U.S. SENATE,
COMMITTEE ON THE JUDICIARY,
Washington, DC

The Committee met, pursuant to notice, at 2:33 p.m., Room SD-226, Dirksen Senate Office Building, Hon. Sheldon Whitehouse presiding.

Present: Senators Franken, Schumer, Feinstein, and Grassley.

OPENING STATEMENT OF HON. SHELDON WHITEHOUSE, A U.S. SENATOR FROM THE STATE OF RHODE ISLAND

Senator WHITEHOUSE. This hearing will come to order. We have a number of nominees for Federal court to consider today and we have a number of colleagues who are here to make introductions, and I will call on my colleagues in the following order. I'll start with Senator Baucus and Senator Feinstein, and then Senator Tester, then Senator Manchin, unless the Majority Leader comes, in which case he will be next.

[Laughter.]

Senator WHITEHOUSE. Senator Baucus, would you care to proceed?

PRESENTATION OF DANA CHRISTENSEN, NOMINEE TO BE
U.S. DISTRICT JUDGE FOR THE DISTRICT OF MONTANA BY HON. MAX BAUCUS, A U.S. SENATOR FROM MONTANA

Senator BAUCUS. Thank you very much, Senator. I appreciate it very much. I am very please here today to introduce Dana Christiansen as a nominee to serve as U.S. District Judge for the District of Montana.

President Dwight D. Eisenhower once said, "The qualities of a great man are vision, integrity, courage, understanding, the power of articulation, and a profundity of character. One might also say these are qualities of a great Federal judge. These, too, are the qualities I consider when speaking of Dana Christiansen. It is a personal pleasure to be able to introduce Dana to this Committee. Dana will be introducing his family later in his testimony, but I would like to personally congratulate Dana and his wife Stephanie on this momentous occasion.

Dana is a fourth-generation Montanan. He was raised in Missoula, Montana. He graduated from Stanford University in 1973, and then received his law degree from the University of Montana School of Law in 1976. Since graduating from law school, Dana has commended the respect of other bar members throughout the State of Montana.

In 1998, Dana and two of his partners formed a new firm in Kalispell, Montana which specializes in civil defense, business law, real estate, and estate planning. Dana has tried more than 50 trials in State and Federal courts. He has an active mediation and arbitration practice and has represented many clients on a pro-bono basis.

Both Dana and his firm have received the highest rankings from Chambers USA, and Dana has been ranked as one of the top 75 lawyers in the northwestern United States by Super Lawyers over the last decade. Dana is also a member of the American Board of Trial Advocates and American College of Trial Lawyers. I cannot say enough about Dana's ability and commitment to justice.

Outside of the office, Dana is very active in his community. He has been a member of the board of directors of his local Chamber of Commerce, president of the Montana Defense Trial Lawyers Association, a member of the University of Montana School of Law Board of Visitors, and a member of the faculty of the University of Montana Advanced Trial Advocacy Program.

To ensure that the most ethical and qualified attorney is appointed as District Judge, I created an advisory selection panel made up of five members with diverse legal backgrounds from across our State and across party lines. My colleague, Senator Tester, very aggressively helped me in that endeavor.

The panel was charged with recommending an individual with a breath of legal experience, ethics above reproach, sharp analytical skills, superior writing skills, and respect for precedent. The panel unanimously and enthusiastically recommended the nomination of Dana Christiansen. Clearly, Dana has earned respect from all segments of the Montana legal community and I am certain that his experience, leadership, and prudent will serve Montana as well.

Dana embodies those qualities President Eisenhower articulated and the qualities that Montana, and America, need on the Federal bench: intellect, extensive experience in the courtroom, commitment to public service, integrity, and respect for precedent and the rule of law.

I must say as an aside, Mr. Chairman, I can think of nobody in the State of Montana, or anybody else I have ever had the pleasure to meet, who will do a better job in serving our country, especially as a Federal judge, than Dana Christiansen.

Senator WHITEHOUSE. Thank you, Senator Baucus. That is high praise, indeed, and of particular weight coming from you.

I will now turn to Senator Feinstein.

PRESENTATION OF CATHY BENCIVENCO, NOMINEE TO BE U.S. DISTRICT JUDGE FOR THE SOUTHERN DISTRICT OF CALIFORNIA BY HON. DIANNE FEINSTEIN, A U.S. SENATOR FROM THE STATE OF CALIFORNIA

Senator FEINSTEIN. Thank you very much, Mr. Chairman. I am very pleased today to indicate my strong support for Judge Cathy Ann Bencivengo, whom I recommended to the President for nomination to become a District Judge in the Southern District of California.

Judge Bencivengo has been a U.S. Magistrate Judge in San Diego for the last 6 years. In that time she has earned an outstanding reputation among her colleagues on the bench and among the lawyers who appear in her courtroom. She was recommended to me by a bipartisan judicial screening Committee which I have established in California, and this Committee reviews judicial candidates based on their legal skill, reputation, experience, temperament, and overall commitment to excellence.

Throughout the Committee process Judge Bencivengo set herself apart as a person who would be a truly exceptional addition to the District Court. She is a descendant of immigrants who came to California through Ellis Island at the turn of the 20th century. She was born in Teaneck, New Jersey. She wanted to be in public service from an early age. Her father was involved in local politics and her upbringing instilled in her a desire to serve the public.

She began her undergraduate career at Rutgers in New Jersey, where she earned her Bachelor's degree in Journalism and Political Science in 1980. The following year she earned her Master's degree from Rutgers. From 1981 to 1984, she worked for a major American corporation, Johnson & Johnson, in New Brunswick, New Jersey. She then attended the University of Michigan Law School, where she excelled, graduated magna cum laude, and was inducted into the Order of the Coif.

After law school she moved to San Diego, where she joined the San Diego-based firm, Grey Carey, which later became part of a major international law firm, DLA Piper, LLP. Soon after starting work as an associate, she became a founding member of the firm's Patent Litigation Group. Her knowledge of patent law, which she honed in law school and private practice, makes her a valued resource for colleagues and clients. She quickly rose through the ranks of her firm.

In 2005 she was selected as the national co-chair of her firm's Patent Litigation Group, a role for which she managed a group of 70 patent attorneys—which, if you know patent attorneys, is a job in itself—around the country. Judge Bencivengo also worked to protect one of the mainstays of American children’s literature, Dr. Seuss, as the lead partner on trademark and copyright issues for Dr. Seuss Enterprises.

In 2005, she became a Magistrate Judge, where she served as a thoughtful jurist. Since her appointment, she has issued roughly 178 published opinions, over 190 reports and recommendations, and over 1,800 orders on non-dispositive motions. Nearly 800 of those orders involved felony criminal cases. A premier San Diego criminal defense attorney described her as “seasoned, bright, responsive, fair, hardworking, and reflective”. I think that pretty much does it.

In addition, her substantial expertise in patent law will be welcomed in the Southern District, which is part of a new Federal judicial program designed to assign more patent cases to judges who are experts in the field of patent law. In short, Judge Bencivengo will make a fine addition to the U.S. District Court, and I urge my colleagues to support her nomination.

Thank you very much, Mr. Chairman.

Senator BAUCUS. Mr. Chairman, if I might be excused. I have a matter I must urgently attend to.

Senator WHITEHOUSE. Of course. Of course.

Senator Baucus. But I urge you to report out—

Senator WHITEHOUSE. You were here with all of your—Senator Baucus.

Senator BAUCUS [continuing]. Dana Christiansen very quickly. Thank you.

Senator WHITEHOUSE. Since we’re going by seniority and since Senator Schumer has now arrived, let me call on Senator Schumer. Of course, everyone is free to go on about their business once they’ve concluded their statements.

PRESENTATION OF MARGO BRODIE, NOMINEE TO BE U.S. DISTRICT JUDGE FOR THE EASTERN DISTRICT OF NEW YORK BY HON. CHARLES E. SCHUMER, A U.S. SENATOR FROM THE STATE OF NEW YORK

Senator SCHUMER. Thank you, Mr. Chairman. I’ll be very brief. I want to thank you for the opportunity to introduce yet another gifted New Yorker to this Committee. Margo Brodie has been nominated by the President to serve on the Eastern District of New York. I was pleased and proud to recommend her for this position as someone who has chosen to make her home in this country, and specifically in the neighborhood served by this court, and who has already graced her community with outstanding and dedicated service. Ms. Brodie was born in St. John’s Antigua. She and her brother Euan were raised by a single mother with the help of her mother’s parents and siblings.

After graduating from high school at the age of 16, she attended St. Francis College in Brooklyn. She worked full-time, graduated magna cum laude, went on to the University of Pennsylvania Law School, where, in addition to work and her academic achievements, she dedicated herself to improving Pen’s minority student recruitment.

After graduating from law school, Ms. Brodie worked for the New York City Law Department for 3 years, where she learned how to litigate cases. She spent 5 years at Carter, Ledyard & Milburn, founded in 1854 and known for alums who include Franklin D. Roosevelt.

Ms. Brodie returned to public service in 1999 by joining the U.S. Attorney's Office in the Eastern District, one of the preeminent U.S. Attorney's Offices in the Nation and one of the largest. She rose to become Deputy Chief and then Chief of the General Crimes Unit, where she trained more than half of the current AUSAs in the Eastern District.

Since July 2010, she's been the Deputy Chief of the Criminal Division, supervision all 100-plus criminal AUSAs in cases involving public corruption, civil rights, business and security fraud, terrorism, or organized crime, narcotics, and many other areas. She has also lent her considerable talents to training prosecutors and law enforcement officers on the rule of law in developing countries, and spent 10 years in Nigeria as a legal advisor on behalf of DOJ's Overseas Training Program.

There is one other part of her lift story, perhaps the most important, that I wanted to highlight in conclusion. In 1996, Ms. Brodie became a citizen of the United States in the very courthouse where she would serve as a judge. I can't think of a more fitting candidate to serve the people in Brooklyn, Queens and Long Island and all the communities in between than someone who pledged her allegiance to this country just footsteps from where she will decide cases.

I look forward to Ms. Brodie's hearing and her continued service to this country and welcome her mother, her brother, as well as the Antiguan ambassador, Ms. Lovell, who is here to endorse her candidacy.

Thank you, Mr. Chairman, and I thank my colleagues.

Senator WHITEHOUSE. Thank you, Senator Schumer.

The Chair now recognizes Senator Jon Tester.

PRESENTATION OF DANA CHRISTIANSEN, NOMINEE TO BE
U.S. DISTRICT JUDGE FOR THE DISTRICT OF MONTANA BY HON. JON TESTER, A U.S. SENATOR FROM THE STATE OF MONTANA

Senator TESTER. Thank you, Mr. Chairman. I very much appreciate the opportunity to turn our focus back on a fellow by the name of Dana Christiansen, whom Max talked to eloquently about. Max covered most of the bases on Dana, and I guess—doesn't it make you feel uncomfortable when people are saying nice things about you, Dana?

But when I came in here, Senator Manchin says, gee, it takes two of you? I said, here's my point: this guy has got such a great resume, yes, it does take two of us. The fact is, Dana is a great guy. You know, you guys on the Judiciary Committee have to sit down and make a decision on somebody that you probably don't know a large portion of the time, and that's unfortunate in this particular case because Dana Christiansen is such a quality human being.

Senator Grassley will appreciate this. This guy was an Eagle Scout and a millworker. He knows how to work with his hands. You've got to appreciate somebody who's going to be in a Federal judge position that not only has integrity and knows fairness, but knows how to work hard, and not only work with his head, but work with his hands. It will help a lot. Plus, he exhibits a level of common sense that, quite frankly, we can all be proud of.

I hope Dana comes out of here and moves forward and we can get it through the Senate, because quite frankly he deserves Senate confirmation. This is a quality man who has got an impeccable record on what he's done in his life. He deserves our report. He is right for this job and good people deserve good things to happen to them. He is the right man for this job.

Thank you, Mr. Chairman.

Senator WHITEHOUSE. Senator Reid, would you like to be recognized and introduce your nominee? I'm sure Senator Manchin will be happy to allow you priority.

PRESENTATION OF EVAN WALLACH, NOMINEE TO BE U.S. CIRCUIT JUDGE FOR THE FEDERAL CIRCUIT BY HON. HARRY REID, A U.S. SENATOR FROM THE STATE OF NEVADA

Senator REID. We just had our caucus, as you know. I have to always do my once-a-week press event.

Evan Wallach is really a good man and has been a tremendous judge. I think he's a perfect nominee for the Court of Appeals for the Federal Circuit. He is also a scholar, and I don't use that term flippantly. He's graduated from the University of Arizona and got his law degree from Berkeley, but that one law degree obviously wasn't enough. He went and got a graduate degree at Cambridge in England. By the way, he was a partner in a law firm when he did that, took a leave of absence to go get that degree.

He is also a patriot. Again, I don't use that term loosely. As a boy, guided by the patriotism taught to him by his mom, dad, and his two older brothers, he is a 115-pound man—nothing wrong with small people. I have lots of them in my family—he volunteered for the military and went to Vietnam, carried a rifle, and did all the other things that happened during that brutal war. He and his two older brothers, as I indicated, volunteered to serve in Vietnam. He was awarded a Bronze Star.

Evan Wallach served his country in Vietnam. When he was a partner in a law firm, very, very busy, the first Iraq war broke out. He quite his job on a temporary basis, came back, and again reentered the military, served in the Pentagon for many months. Took a leave of absence from his law practice and served as an active-duty attorney. He served in the office of the Judge Advocate General of the Army at the Pentagon station at the Pentagon. He really is a patriot.

He served his country bravely in war, he has served his country well as a judge in the U.S. Court of International Trade. He has written hundreds of opinions as a judge on the Court of International Trade. He has also served as a circuit judge in the second, third, and ninth circuits, and a district court judge in Nevada, New York, and the District of Columbia. Because so much of his responsibility will be what we do with the new patent law, one of the cases he heard in Nevada is a patent case.

I introduce my friend to all of you, but also say that—and I don't want to be overly rambunctious here and I hope this doesn't hurt him, but he's my friend. He is one of the best friends I've ever had. I think the world of this man. I recommended him to President Clinton to leave this lucrative law practice to go into public service, and he did that. He is someone who I admire do greatly. He is a poet. He writes poetry. His mom was a wonderful artist, who just died. I have some of her paintings and etchings in my home in Nevada.

I wish I had the ability to convey to this Committee what a wonderful human being he is and how fortunate we are as a country that he would be willing to not see how much money he can make, but he's decided instead to see what a difference he can make in public service.

Senator WHITEHOUSE. Thank you, Leader Reid.

Senator REID. Could I be excused?

Senator WHITEHOUSE. You certainly may.

Senator REID. Thank you all very much.

Senator WHITEHOUSE. Senator Manchin? The patient Senator Manchin.

PRESENTATION OF GINA MARIE GROH, NOMINEE TO BE U.S. DISTRICT JUDGE FOR THE NORTHERN DISTRICT OF WEST VIRGINIA BY HON. JOE MANCHIN, A U.S. SENATOR FROM THE STATE OF WEST VIRGINIA

Senator MANCHIN. Thank you, Mr. Chairman. And thanks to all the members of the Judiciary Committee. I am greatly honored to be able to join you today to introduce an exemplary candidate for the U.S. District Court for the Northern District of West Virginia, and someone who has become truly a dear friend of mine, Judge Gina Marie Groh. I want you to know that I really appreciate the opportunity to be here to speak to Judge Groh's exemplary experience and contributions to public service.

First, I would like to thank Senator Jay Rockefeller for recommending Judge Groh for this prestigious position, and for his steadfast support of her nomination. I know that he has been instrumental in promoting Judge Groh's impressive background here in Washington, and I am truly grateful for his efforts.

I would also like to recognize Judge Groh's husband, Steve Groh. Steve is with us today and her sons, 12-year-old Stephen and 6-year-old Michael—raise your hands, boys—and other members of our family who are also here. Now, I'm delighted that all of them were able to attend.

Judge Groh is a well-respected and recognized member of her community in the eastern panhandle of West Virginia. As I have known her for many years, as West Virginia's Governor I had the privilege of appointing Judge Groh to her current position as the Circuit Judge of the Twenty-third Judicial Circuit in 2006.

Judge Groh was recommended to me by a bipartisan merit selection Committee made up of the most notable figures in West Virginia, legal and business community, including the president of the West Virginia State bar, the dean of the WVU's law school, former Senator Carr Goodwin, and other distinguished representatives in the State.

Judge Groh's in-depth knowledge of the courtroom and excellent reputation with the State bar made her a stand-out candidate, and she was selected as the committee's overwhelming consensus choice for the Circuit Court appointment. Judge Groh was also the first female Circuit judge to serve in the eastern panhandle, and one of only six female Circuit Court judges in the entire State of West Virginia.

Prior to her Circuit Court appointment, Judge Groh served as an Assistant Prosecuting Attorney at the Prosecuting Attorney's Office in Berkley County and Jefferson County, West Virginia. During her 8 years as prosecutor, she established a strong record of protecting her fellow West Virginians by tirelessly pursuing convictions for such crimes as murder, robbery, rape, child abuse, drunk driving, and drug-related offenses.

Judge Groh has not only excelled professionally, but she has also risen to become a true pillar of her community in the eastern panhandle of West Virginia. She dedicates her time to countless charitable foundations and serves on a number of boards.

For many years she has worked for such programs as Robes to School and the Mills with Love Ministry, and has been very involved with her alma mater, Shepherd University, serving both with the Wellness Center and as a member of the Alumni Board. These are really only a few examples of her extensive contribution to the area for which I am personally very grateful.

Judge Groh graduated summa cum laude from Shepherd University in 1986 with a Bachelor of Science degree. She earned the university's highest academic honor as a McMurrin Scholar. In addition to serving as editor-in-chief of the newspaper and vice president of her graduating class, Judge Groh went on to earn her J.D. from the West Virginia University College of Law in Morgantown, West Virginia.

I believe that Judge Groh's experience, intellect, leadership, and impartiality and deep roots in the community make her a prudent choice for the vacancy in the Northern District of West Virginia. If appointed, she will be the first resident of the eastern panhandle to sit as a U.S. District judge in Martinsburg. Her extensive legal experience and dedication to public service demonstrate that she exemplifies not only the qualities of a talented jurist, but also the high moral character and sense of justice necessary to make a great judge.

I thank you, Mr. Chairman, for holding this hearing today on Judge Groh's nomination and allowing me the opportunity to speak to her abilities. Along with Senator Rockefeller, I wholeheartedly support Judge Groh's nomination and I look forward to working with you to confirm her to the Federal bench as swiftly as possible.

Thank you, sir.

Senator WHITEHOUSE. Thank you, Senator Manchin. I know you have important business elsewhere and you may also be excused.

We do have a statement from your senior Senator, Senator Rockefeller, who could not be here today. I will not read the entire statement, but he does say that "this is a very important nomination for the people of West Virginia and deeply personal to me", and describes the candidate as a “supremely talented lawyer, a meticulous student of the law, a proven leader in her community, and a West Virginian through and through.”

So without objection his entire statement will be added to the record of these proceedings.

[The prepared statement of Senator Rockefeller appears as a submission for the record.]

Senator WHITEHOUSE. I will now have the privilege of yielding to the Ranking Member to make a brief opening statement, and after that we will have Judge Wallach as the first panel, then the four District nominees as the second panel.

STATEMENT OF CHARLES E. GRASSLEY, A U.S. SENATOR FROM THE STATE OF IOWA

Senator GRASSLEY. And it will be very brief. I'll put the entirety of my statement in the record.

But I want to welcome all the nominees and their families and friends, and to say that we're moving along on confirmation of nominees. This week we confirmed another nominee on the Senate floor for the Federal Judiciary. We have now confirmed 34 nominees this Congress. We have taken positive action in one way or another on 78 percent of the judicial nominees that have been submitted by the President during this Congress, so we continue to move forward as I indicated I would do on the consensus nominees. It looks to me like we have a group that fall into that category this time.

I'll put the rest of the statement in the record.

[The prepared statement of Senator Grassley appears as a submission for the record.]

Senator WHITEHOUSE. Very well. Thank you, Senator Grassley.

Could Judge Wallach please come forward and remain standing?

[Whereupon, the witness was duly sworn.]

Senator WHITEHOUSE. Please be seated.

Welcome.

Judge WALLACH. Thank you, Senator.

Senator WHITEHOUSE. It is the custom of the Committee to allow for a brief statement by the nominee, and in particular for the nominee to take the occasion to recognize family and friends whom he or she may wish to recognize at this point in these proceedings.

STATEMENT OF EVAN WALLACH, NOMINEE TO BE U.S. CIRCUIT JUDGE FOR THE FEDERAL CIRCUIT

Judge WALLACH. Thank you, Senator. I'd like to introduce my wife, Dr. Katherine Tobin, who's sitting behind me, who has her Ph.D from Stanford University. She's a very smart person, but her distinction to me is she's the nicest person I've ever met.

I've also got my friend David Olive here, a former client. My friends, Frank and Judy Stearns, I did their wedding. Frank just came back from Afghanistan a couple of weeks ago.

I'd like to thank some folks, if I may, please, Senator.

Senator WHITEHOUSE. Please.

Judge WALLACH. I'd like to thank, first off, the members of this Committee and the staff who I know work very hard preparing for these kinds of hearings, and all the folks who helped me in this process, the people from the DOJ, the FBI, and the ABA, and the AO. All of them do an awful lot of work and I think they don't get recognized for what they do.

Of course, some of my family is watching this from one place or another. I never met KT's dad. He was a career Naval aviator who died when she was a little girl. But he obviously influenced her. And I met her mom, whom I love dearly. Both her parents passed, and both mine have passed. As Senator Reid said, my mom was an artist and she just passed in May.

My dad was an engineer. You know, on my birth certificate—the Senator mentioned millwork on my birth certificate. It says my dad's occupation is millworker, and that was true, he was. But he was also working the graveyard shift while he attended the university at night. He went on to get an honorary doctorate from the University of Arizona.

But that wasn't what he was about. He taught me a large thing in life—he taught all three of us boys—and that was to try and figure out what the right thing to do was, and then to do it.

My oldest brother was, I think if you know the term, 4F. He was physically unqualified to serve in the Armed Forces. In Vietnam, a lot of people considered that a blessing. He went as a civilian employee and served 4 years over there. His wife Susan went as well and worked for the army.

My middle brother enlisted in the U.S. Marine Corps and he did a full tour where he was the sole survivor from his unit once, came back, served 30 days in the United States, and went back to Vietnam, where he stepped on a mine and he was one of two survivors the second time. He came back here and got his Ph.D in Engineering, despite the fact that he is 100 percent disabled. He held several patents in the space industry. I'm very proud of them and I know they're watching, as I said, from one place or another.

Thank you.

Senator WHITEHOUSE. Thank you very much, Judge Wallach.

Could you just briefly describe the nature of your work on the Court of International Trade and how you think that prepares you and compares to the work you'll be asked to do as a U.S. Court of Appeals judge?

Judge WALLACH. Sure. We sit, Senator, as both trial judges in matters like Customs and in administrative appeals, in effect, in trade matters. One is regulated by the Chevron doctrine, the other is heard as a new case, sometimes with juries. And it's obviously specialized work, but the essence of it is the same as any law. That is, a judge should look at it, try to know the background, read what record you have in front of you, and learn the law and be prepared for a hearing. I think I've sat on some appellate benches and I think it's the same on an appellate bench as it is a trial bench.

Senator WHITEHOUSE. Well,

I'm very impressed at the legacy of service that you bring to this appointment, and I wish you a speedy confirmation.

I will turn over to our Ranking Member, Senator Grassley, then to Senator Franken.

Judge WALLACH. Thank you, Senator.

Senator GRASSLEY. Let me say something before I ask some questions. It may sound like I'm trying to get you or something on an issue that is very personal to me from a policy standpoint, and I'm not trying to do that at all. But I'm trying to bring attention to your court and you'll probably be a member of that court, and maybe you can help this court be a little more reasonable in an area where I don't think they've been very reasonable. So, I've got some questions along that line.

Congress has consistently recognized the value of whistleblowers in government and private sector. I was an original co-sponsor of the Whistleblower Protection Act of 1989, and I've always pushed for strong whistleblower protections for Federal employees.

I think that most of my oversight work comes from one or two areas, either good, substantial evidence that I get from whistleblowers or from enterprising investigative journalism. So whistleblowers, I think, are a very important part in, is government going to be responsible and transparent and accountable and all that?

The Federal Circuit has issued a number of decisions that have substantially limited the type of disclosures that are protected under the Whistleblower Protection Act, and I wouldn't expect you to be acquainted with these statistics, but up until February 2011 only 3 out of 219 cases that whistleblowers have brought for appeal has a whistleblower won. Three out of 219. Last year, the court was zero for nine against whistleblowers.

Perhaps the most egregious example of the Federal Circuit placing hurdles in front of the Federal Government whistleblowers is a 1999 decision, LaChance v. White. In that case the Federal Circuit held that a whistleblower had to present "irrefragable" proof that wrongdoing actually occurred in order to provide a claim. So my questions are kind of along the lines of what maybe you think about or we can think about bringing some reasoning to these figures that I just gave you.

I mean, I would expect that not every whistleblower appeal would be in favor of the whistleblower. In fact, maybe a minority would be in favor of the whistleblower. But in the case of these statistics I gave you, you can see how overwhelmingly it is against it. Now, maybe you can blame those of us that wrote the 1989 law for not giving enough protection or enough direction to the court.

So my first question is, considering that the Federal Circuit has exclusive jurisdiction over these cases, so you're the only one that's going to hear them. What, if any, experience do you have with the Whistleblower Protection Act? If you say none that's OK, but I just have to ask the question.

Judge WALLACH. Senator, thank you. Thank you for that question. I know about your work with whistleblowers and NIGs. I can't say I have any direct experience at all. I just say that in journalism, I used to argue a lot that the phrase "consent of the governed" always had to mean informed consent when I argued to a court. It's vital that government and the people be kept informed, and obviously whistleblowers have something to do with that.

Senator GRASSLEY. Yes. Have you ever heard of the irrefragable proof standard? If so, what's your understanding of that standard?

Judge WALLACH. My understanding of it is, Senator, that it means that it cannot be refuted, that it's irrefutable proof. It's a very high standard.

Senator GRASSLEY. OK.

So then I suppose the next question is, what does a whistleblower need to prove under that standard to meet it?

Judge WALLACH. Senator, I don't know the answer to that. Obviously I'd look at the case authority and the statute to try to determine it in each case.

Senator GRASSLEY. OK.

Can I ask you whether or not you believe that the irrefragable proof standard or a substantial evidence standard should apply to whistleblower cases? Because, you know, the irrefragable one is a judicial standard, not in the law.

Judge WALLACH. Like everything, Senator, I would be bound by stare decisis. I'd have to look at it, but principle decisionmaking requires me to say that.

Senator GRASSLEY. Wouldn't stare decisis, though, make it almost impossible under that standard to ever improve these statistics I just gave you?

Judge WALLACH. It might be, Senator, that the Supreme Court or obviously the national legislature might be taking a look at it if the courts are wrong. That happens.

Senator GRASSLEY. Well, I would give you this opportunity. Would you be willing to put in writing your understanding of the irrefragable proof standard and whether or not you agree with this standard for reviewing decisions of the Merit System Protection Board?

Judge WALLACH. Sure. I'd be delighted to, Senator.

Senator GRASSLEY. I would like to have you—since this is a very unique body you're going to, I'd like to ask you any experience you've had, if any—and emphasis upon if any, because maybe you haven't where you have served in the past—but would you please identify what experiences you have had that would come before this court in these four areas: patent law, trade law, government contracts, and claims against the government.

Judge WALLACH. Well, in trade, Senator—thank you. Obviously I've sat for 16 years and so I've learned something in that time, and I like to think I know a bit about it. In patent, as Senator Reid said, I sat on a case. I did some IP, intellectual property, work for my press clients, but it was more along the lines of trademark. I've taught overseas for the U.S. Patent & Trademark Office, teaching foreign judges intellectual property.

Senator GRASSLEY. OK.

Then beyond what you just said that you've had, if confirmed would you feel a need to prepare yourself in any way to handle these cases, and how would you do that?

Judge WALLACH. Absolutely I'd feel the need, Senator. I would obviously—I'd try to educate myself, so I'd read the law first, the governing authorities from my superior court, the Supreme Court, and from the prior cases of the Court of Appeals, as well as any other cases coming up from other courts that might inform me.

Senator GRASSLEY. I'd like to—the last series of questions would deal with any political activity you've had, and they aren't asked to denigrate any activity or say it's wrong, or that it would have undue influence. But I feel it necessary to ask, because prior to being appointed as a judge on the International Trade Court, you were actively involved in Nevada politics. You worked on Democratic campaigns as the counsel for the State's Democratic party. There's certainly nothing wrong with that, but your political history may concern future litigants after you're confirmed.

Could you provide the Committee an example of a case you decided as a judge on the Court of International Trade where you put your political views aside to make an independent, sound legal judgment? And I'm not insinuating that politics would enter into your decision, but if there's any case where there was conflict, that maybe you could show where you put it aside.

Judge WALLACH. Senator, thank you for asking that, but I never saw anything where I thought there was a political aspect to it. There were probably some cases where I walked into it feeling one way and the lawyers convinced me the other way, but that was a question of how the law was going, not politics.

Senator GRASSLEY. Well, then I think you'll satisfy me with one last question. I think the answer is probably very obvious, how you've held your demeanor here at this meeting. I'm sure you can assure the Committee then, if confirmed, your decisions will remain grounded in precedent and the text of the law. You said that in the case of the whistleblower cases, but in addition to all other cases rather than any underlying political ideology or motivation.

Judge WALLACH. Yes, sir. Absolutely.

Senator GRASSLEY. Thank you.

Judge WALLACH. Thank you, sir.

Senator GRASSLEY. Thank you, Mr. Chairman.

Senator WHITEHOUSE. Thank you, Senator Grassley.

Senator FRANKEN.

Senator FRANKEN. Thank you, Judge, for testifying. Congratulations on your nomination.

Judge WALLACH. Thank you, Senator.

Senator FRANKEN. Thank you for your service and for your family's service.

I'm interested actually in the International Court of Trade because I don't know much about it. What kind of stuff comes before you? In other words, are you judging whether a country is violating trade laws or a segment of an industry and the country that's doing that? What kind of stuff? Can you give me some examples?

Judge WALLACH. Yes, sir. It's not so much a country, although once in a while you have a national entity appear in front of you. But it's several things. First, we do antidumping and countervailing duty cases. We are a National Geographic court with limited subject matter jurisdiction.

Senator FRANKEN. I don't know what that means, a National Geographic court. What does that mean?

Judge WALLACH. So we hear any case in the United States that comes from anywhere in the U.S., as long as it falls within our limited area of jurisdiction of law. So that, for example, a claim by the U.S. industry that a foreign company is selling goods for less than the fair market value, in effect antitrust law, that foreign company is trying to capture the market in the United States by undercutting, will be investigated by U.S. Government entities. They're going to rule one way or the other for somebody, and somebody is not going to like it. Whoever it is who doesn't like that ruling takes it up to us. That's why I said before we sit in that area, in effect, in an administrative appellate review.

Senator FRANKEN. I see.

Judge WALLACH. We also do Customs cases. Those are brand-new ones where somebody imports something into the country and they're saying one of two things, either Customs said it was one thing and it's really something different so we should pay a different tariff, or we agree what it is, but Customs says it's worth a whole bunch more money than we think it's worth, so you're imposing a much higher value on it and, as a consequence, a higher duty. And so they come in and they actually have trials about that.

Senator FRANKEN. OK. So you're an appellate court on trade matters.

Judge WALLACH. Yes, sir.

Senator FRANKEN. And what happens? Can they appeal higher than you?

Judge WALLACH. YES, SIR.

Senator FRANKEN. Where do they go then?

Judge WALLACH. They come to the Court of Appeals for the Federal Circuit. It's our appellate court.

Senator FRANKEN. OK.

So if some—China, say, is dumping a certain kind of finished paper product, that might be something that you would hear?

Judge WALLACH. We would hear a case involving a Chinese company. I have heard such cases.

Senator FRANKEN. OK.

Then you decide and then it goes to an appellate court.

Judge WALLACH. If a party doesn't like it, they take it up to the court for which I'm nominated.

Senator FRANKEN. OK.

And then if they don't like that, where do they go?

Judge WALLACH. The Supreme Court, sir.

Senator FRANKEN. OK.

And how often do those kind of things go to the Supreme Court?

Judge WALLACH. Not often that they actually grant a writ of certiorari, but it happens occasionally.

Senator FRANKEN. OK.

And so China has to abide by it since it's shipping into the United States?

Judge WALLACH. That's correct. In effect, what happens is, there's a tariff imposed. So as the goods come in, that money is going to have to be paid.

Senator FRANKEN. So there's no international trade adjudicator on trade agreements?

Judge WALLACH. Well, there's the World Trade Organization.

Senator FRANKEN. Yes. Where does that fit into this process?

Judge WALLACH. We pay no homage to the WTO. We are purely a U.S. court and we follow the U.S. law and what the Congress tells us to do.

Senator FRANKEN. So you don't have to pay homage to them?

Judge WALLACH. We don't have to.

Senator FRANKEN. I think that's good.

Judge WALLACH. We don't kiss rings or anything.

Senator FRANKEN. But I meant, it seems to me then—I just want to get this clear. Are there—who has jurisdiction sometimes? Is there a question whether you have jurisdiction or the World Trade Organization has jurisdiction?

Judge WALLACH. No, sir. We would have jurisdiction over a case. It might well be that they're hearing the same issue over in their appellate panels and they might decide it totally differently.

Senator FRANKEN. Well, who wins, then?

Judge WALLACH. Well, as far as we're concerned, as far as the U.S. courts are concerned and the U.S. Government, our rulings are rulings in the United States and they apply. If a WTO decision is contrary, it might be that they give the litigants the ability to enter sanctions on an international basis, apply tariffs or something along those lines. But it really has nothing to do with us as a court.

Senator FRANKEN. I'm just trying to think of who has the ultimate authority.

Judge WALLACH. As far as we're concerned, the Supreme Court of the United States, and that's it.

Senator FRANKEN. OK. But if you're in conflict with the WTO it's not like you're calling Ban Ki-moon or something.

Judge WALLACH. No, sir.

Senator FRANKEN. OK. OK.

Well, that's good. I just wanted to learn a little bit. It's not that often in these things that I learn about something in this way.

Judge WALLACH. Thank you, Senator. That's very kind of you say.

Senator FRANKEN. I'd like to learn more sometime. Thank you.

Judge WALLACH. Thank you, Senator.

Senator WHITEHOUSE. Judge Wallach, I wish you well as you go through the confirmation process under the leadership of Chairman Leahy and Ranking Member Grassley. We have moved fairly smoothly through the nominees here at the Committee level; the floor is a different question. There tends to be a considerable back-up there, so don't be discouraged that you get through the Committee and then there are delays on the floor. But I think you've been a very impressive nominee and I hope that you can see to rapid progress for your nomination through both of the obstacles that are ahead of you in the Senate. I wish you well, and thank you for being here. I appreciate that your family and friends have attended.

Judge WALLACH. Thank you, Senator. Thank you, Senator Grassley, as well.

Senator GRASSLEY. You bet. Thank you.

Senator WHITEHOUSE. Can we now call up Dana Christiansen, Cathy Bencivengo, Gina Groh, and Margo Brodie? We'll take a 2-minute break while everybody gets to chairs and signs sorted out.

13. Judicial Office: State (chronologically) any judicial offices you have held, including positions as an administrative law judge, whether such position was elected or appointed, and a description of the jurisdiction of each such court.

I have served as an Article III judge on the U.S. Court of International Trade since my appointment in 1995. During this time, I have also sat by designation on three courts of appeal and three district courts.

The U.S. Court of International Trade has national geographic jurisdiction but limited subject matter jurisdiction. Its subject matter jurisdiction was expanded by Congress in 1980. The court hears international trade and customs cases and also deals, among other matters, with specific issues such as denial or revocation of customs brokers' licenses, civil penalties for alleged improper importation of goods, and trade adjustment assistance to displaced workers. The court has full legal and equitable powers.

- a. Approximately how many cases have you presided over that have gone to verdict or judgment?

I have presided over 15 bench or jury trials, presided over approximately 140 additional cases that resulted in judgment, and sat on appellate panels in approximately 85 additional cases.

(Most of the judgments in cases over which I presided were not the product of a trial. Many of these cases were decided on motions to dismiss, motions for summary judgment, or motions for judgment on the agency record. In particular, 28 U.S.C. § 2640 directs that certain cases that come before the U.S. Court of International Trade are to be decided on the basis of the underlying administrative record rather than de novo.)

- i. Of these, approximately what percent were:

jury trials:	13 %
bench trials:	87 %

civil proceedings:	100%
criminal proceedings:	0%

(If appellate proceedings are included, these percentages are 88 % civil and 12 % criminal.)

- b. Provide citations for all opinions you have written, including concurrences and dissents.

See attachment 13b.

- c. For each of the 10 most significant cases over which you presided, provide: (1) a capsule summary of the nature the case; (2) the outcome of the case; (3) the name and contact information for counsel who had a significant role in the trial of the case; and (3) the citation of the case (if reported) or the docket number and a copy of the opinion or judgment (if not reported).

The operator of a duty-free store challenged the U.S. Customs Service's refusal to permit the sale of duty-free fuel at that store. After granting limited discovery to the plaintiff but denying the plaintiff's motion to supplement the administrative record submitted by the agency, I decided that the agency acted unlawfully. I granted the plaintiff's motion for judgment on the agency record but denied the plaintiff's motion alleging contempt. Following this decision, the agency identified new information that led it to again reject the sale of duty-free fuel. I decided that this determination had not contravened the previous ruling and could be challenged anew by the plaintiff, but only through the proper channels.

The jury in a patent infringement case found that the plaintiff had infringed on the defendant's patents related to a system of networked gaming devices and awarded $1.5 million in damages. I then denied the plaintiff's challenges to that verdict and granted the defendant's requests for interest, an accounting of sales, and a permanent injunction barring the plaintiff from using the defendant's system, which I stayed pending appeal. Ultimately, the case settled and the appeal was dismissed.

In one of the first cases concerning a particular statistical approach known as zeroing, I held that the United States Department of Commerce's decision to assign a zero margin to sales above normal value of ball bearings was consistent with both U.S. statutory law and U.S. W.T.O. obligations. Additionally, I held Commerce's administrative review on a non-notified exporter, use of mode-specific methodology in calculating cost, application and use of adverse facts available, and acceptance of the exporter's reported cost data were proper. I remanded the case to correct clerical errors related to one of the exporters. The determination was sustained in all other respects.

The Continued Dumping and Subsidy Act of 2000 (CDSOA) gave money to affected domestic producers, but only to those who stated in writing they supported antidumping investigations that resulted in findings of harmful dumping. A domestic seafood producer challenged its exclusion from these payments because it had taken no position on the investigation. Because that producer had not supported the underlying antidumping petition, it was ineligible for payments under the CDSOA. I concluded that this restriction interfered with the plaintiff's political speech, that it did not satisfy a permissible exception or serve a compelling government interest, and that it therefore violated the First Amendment. The Court of Appeals for the Federal Circuit considered these arguments in a related case and decided that a particular saving construction of the CDSOA could pass constitutional muster. See SKF USA, Inc. v. U.S. Customs and Border Protection, 556 F. 3d 1337 (Fed. Cir. 2009).

Various companies sued a former official of the government of Grenada for not issuing a license as promised in a contract formed among the parties as well as other individuals and companies for conspiracy and other claims. I dismissed the case for lack of jurisdiction under the Foreign Sovereign Immunities Act. I also found that the former government official was entitled to the protection of the Foreign Sovereign Immunities Act and that plaintiffs had not demonstrated that any of the exceptions to immunity applied.

In three separate opinions, I granted a preliminary injunction prohibiting liquidation (final processing) of the plaintiff's entries, denied the defendant's motion to dismiss the case, and remanded the Department of Commerce's decision to the agency. Commerce then submitted its redetermination, which I affirmed in part and struck in part. My decisions were vacated by and remanded by the Federal Circuit in SKF USA, Inc. v. United States, 512 F.3d 1326, 246 Fed. Appx. 692, 2007 U.S. App. LEXIS 20919 (Fed. Cir. 2007), which held that the entries had been liquidated by operation of law before the court ruled on the initial request for preliminary injunction, precluding the court from granting relief. I then dismissed the case as moot.

The United States sought civil penalties against an importer of surgical instruments for alleged negligence, gross negligence, and fraud with respect to such importation. Under its international obligations, the government is required to review antidumping and countervailing decisions no later than five years after issuance to determine if those decisions are still necessary (in a proceeding called a sunset review). I affirmed in part and remanded in part the International Trade Commission's five-year sunset review determinations in Certain Carbon Steel Products From Australia, Belgium, Brazil, Canada, Finland, France, Germany, Japan, Korea, Mexico, Netherlands, Poland, Romania, Spain, Sweden, Taiwan, and United Kingdom. I then held as supported by substantial evidence numerous post-remand ITC sunset review determinations: the ITC's decision to cumulate subject imports, the ITC's decision to not conduct a strict quantitative negligibility analysis in a five-year review, the ITC's finding of likely discernible adverse impact, and the overall ITC determination that the revocation of the orders on subject imports were likely to cause the continuation or recurrence of material injury within a reasonably foreseeable time. I sustained the ITC's sunset review following remand.

The USDA had denied the plaintiff's application for trade adjustment assistance because his net income from fishing increased from a loss to a gain in the relevant two years. After I granted the plaintiff's motion to supplement the record, the plaintiff argued that the definition of "net farm income" adopted by USDA violated the intent of Congress. I held that the Secretary of Agriculture has broad discretion in choosing a definition and that the definition chosen was reasonable and rational and therefore permissible.

- f. Provide a brief summary of and citations for all of your opinions where your decisions were reversed by a reviewing court or where your judgment was affirmed with significant criticism of your substantive or procedural rulings. If any of the opinions listed were not officially reported, provide copies of the opinions.
- 1) In Allegheny Ludlum Corp. v. United States, 24 C.I.T. 858, 116 F. Supp. 2d 1276 (Ct. Int'l Trade 2000), vacated and remanded, 287 F.3d 1365 (Fed. Cir.

2002), I held that, although there were errors committed by the ITC and evidence detracting from the substantiality of the evidence, the evidence was significant enough to find that subject imports did not cause material injury to the cold-rolled plate industry. In vacating and remanding, the Federal Circuit held that the ITC's price determination was not supported by substantial evidence and therefore my decision to affirm the Commission was incorrect.

- 2) The Federal Circuit affirmed my decision in Ammex, Inc. v. United States, 26 C.I.T. 247, 193 F. Supp. 2d 1325 (Ct. Int'l Trade 2002), aff'd, 334 F.3d 1052 (Fed. Cir. 2003), cert. denied, 541 U.S. 1041 (2004) to deny the plaintiff's Motion for an Order to Show Cause Why the United States Customs Service Should Not be Held in Contempt. However, the Federal Circuit stated that I had "erred in [my] initial decision by applying the elements of collateral estoppel (or issue preclusion) instead of those of res judicata." 334 F.3d at 1055.
- 3) In Archer Daniels Midland Co. v. United States, 559 F. Supp. 2d 1347 (Ct. Int'l Trade 2008), rev'd and remanded, 561 F.3d 1308 (Fed. Cir. 2009), I held that imported deodorizer distillate was not prima facie classifiable in the U.S. Harmonized Tariff Schedule. The Federal Circuit disagreed.
- 4) In USEC Inc. v. United States, 27 C.I.T. 1419, 281 F. Supp. 2d 1334 (Ct. Int'l Trade 2003) (Pogue, J.), a three-judge panel on which I sat decided, among other things, that certain low-enriched uranium was transacted as a service rather than as a good but was nonetheless subject to the countervailing duty statute. On interlocutory appeal, the Federal Circuit affirmed the nature of the transactions but reversed on the applicability of the statute. Eurodif S.A. v. United States, 411 F.3d 1355 (Fed. Cir. 2005). Following additional decisions by the Court of International Trade panel and the Federal Circuit, the U.S. Supreme Court ultimately held that the U.S. Department of Commerce had reasonably treated the transacted uranium as a good. United States v. Eurodif S.A., 555 U.S. 305 (2009).
- 5) In Former Emps. of Quality Fabricating, Inc. v. United States, 28 C.I.T. 679, 343 F. Supp. 2d 1272, motion for reconsideration denied at 28 C.I.T. 1061, 353 F. Supp. 2d 1284 (Ct. Int'l Trade 2004), vacated and remanded 448 F.3d 1351 (Fed. Cir. 2006), I held that the court had jurisdiction over secondarily-affected worker groups with regard to trade adjustment certifications under the Trade Act of 1974. The Federal Circuit disagreed.
- 6) In Gallant Ocean (Thailand) Co. v. United States, 602 F. Supp. 2d 1337 (Ct. Int'l Trade 2009), vacated and remanded, 602 F.3d 1319 (Fed. Cir. 2010), I held that, due to the plaintiff's unwillingness to supply information in the investigation, Commerce permissibly assigned an adverse facts available rate. The Federal Circuit held, however, that this rate did not represent "commercial reality." 602 F.3d at 1322.

- 7) In GE Med. Sys. Group v. United States, 24 C.I.T. 12, 86 F. Supp. 2d 1291 (Ct. Int'l Trade 2000), rev'd, 247 F.3d 1231 (Fed. Cir. 2001), I held that certain medical photographic equipment should be classified as cameras. The Federal Circuit reversed, finding that this equipment should be classified as accessories.
- 8) The Federal Circuit affirmed my decision in Horizon Lines, LLC v. United States, 659 F. Supp. 2d 1285 (Ct. Int'l Trade 2009), aff'd, 626 F.3d 1354 (Fed. Cir. 2010) that certain work done on the plaintiff's ship was not dutiable under the vessel repair statute. The Federal Circuit nonetheless stated that "the Court of International Trade erred when it held that the prior condition of replaced parts is irrelevant to the determination of whether work constitutes a nondutiable modification or a dutiable repair. However, because the Court of International Trade determined that the replaced parts on the HAWAII were in proper working order prior to modification, this error was harmless." 626 F.3d at 1356.
- 9) In reviewing NMB Sing. Ltd. v. United States, 31 C.I.T. 1943, 533 F. Supp. 2d 1244 (Ct. Int'l Trade 2007), aff'd in part, vacated in part, remanded in part, 557 F.3d 1316 (Fed. Cir. 2009), the Federal Circuit upheld Commerce's antidumping determination, but only with regards to the continuation of the antidumping order; with regards to the antidumping duty rates, the Federal Circuit vacated and remanded.
- 10) In reversing Orlando Food Corp. v. United States, 28 C.I.T. 1244, 343 F. Supp. 2d 1375 (Ct. Int'l Trade 2004), rev'd and remanded, 423 F.3d 1318 (Fed. Cir. 2005), the Federal Circuit held that I "erred in holding that 19 U.S.C. § 1505 did not apply to amounts determined to be excess money deposited as a result of a reliquidation pursuant to section 1408 of the Tariff Suspension and Trade Act of 2000." 423 F.3d at 1325.
- 11) In Rubie's Costume Co. v. United States, 26 C.I.T. 209, 196 F. Supp. 2d 1320 (Ct. Int'l Trade 2002), rev'd, 337 F.3d 1350 (Fed. Cir. 2003), I held that the classification decision by United States Customs was not entitled to Chevron deference and found the agency's reasoning unpersuasive under Skidmore deference. In reversing, the Federal Circuit agreed that Chevron deference did not apply but found the reasoning of Customs persuasive under Skidmore deference.
- 12) In SKF USA Inc. v. United States, 28 C.I.T. 170, 316 F. Supp. 2d 1322 (Ct. Int'l Trade 2004), vacated and remanded, 512 F.3d 1326 (Fed. Cir. 2007), I issued a preliminary injunction prohibiting liquidation of entries. In vacating and remanding this decision, the Federal Circuit held that the entries had been liquidated by operation of law before the court ruled on the initial request for preliminary injunction, removing the court's ability to grant relief.

13) The Federal Circuit affirmed my decision in Tung Mung Dev. Co. v. United States, 26 C.I.T. 969, 219 F. Supp. 2d 1333 (Ct. Int'l Trade 2002), aff'd, 354 F.3d 1371 (Fed. Cir. 2004), which in turn affirmed the U.S. Department of Commerce's remand determination. The Federal Circuit stated that while I "erred in holding that Commerce's decisions were not entitled to Chevron deference . . . , it is not clear that this error was the basis for the Court of International Trade's decisions." 354 F.3d at 1379 n.8.

- g. Provide a description of the number and percentage of your decisions in which you issued an unpublished opinion and the manner in which those unpublished opinions are filed and/or stored.

All public slip opinions issued in U.S. Court of International Trade cases over which I presided are available in official reporters or commercial databases such as Lexis and Westlaw. When the inclusion of business proprietary or other confidential information has required a confidential version of a slip opinion, I have issued a corresponding public version of that slip opinion from which the confidential information was redacted.

At the U.S. Court of International Trade, all final decisions whether in a contested action or with regards to a preliminary injunction must be accompanied by a statement of findings of fact and conclusions of law or an opinion stating the reasons and facts behind the decision. These statements and opinions in addition to all orders and judgments can be found at the Office of the Clerk as public records. All parties to a given action are automatically provided with a copy of all judgments, orders, opinions, decisions, etc. associated with their case.

Although I rarely issue unpublished opinions, I issued one such opinion that formally reprimanded an attorney in Precision Specialty Metals, Inc. v. United States, Court No.: 98-02-00291, and that the Federal Circuit affirmed in Precision Specialty Metals, Inc. v. United States, 315 F.3d 1346 (Fed. Cir. 2003).

In general, opinions issued in cases for which I sat by designation are available in official reporters or commercial databases such as Lexis and Westlaw. However, I am aware of one opinion in a case at the District Court for the District of Columbia that is not provided in any official or unofficial reporter, and is instead available only within the case docket.

- h. Provide citations for significant opinions on federal or state constitutional issues, together with the citation to appellate court rulings on such opinions. If any of the opinions listed were not officially reported, provide copies of the opinions.

 - 9) United States v. Sloan, 1998 U.S. App. LEXIS 5454 (9th Cir. June 11, 1997)
- i. Provide citations to all cases in which you sat by designation on a federal court of appeals, including a brief summary of any opinions you authored, whether majority, dissenting, or concurring, and any dissenting opinions you joined.

In the following cases, I sat by designation and authored a majority, dissenting or concurring opinion.

- 1) Boesch v. Sacco, 2003 U.S. App. LEXIS 9006 (3d Cir. Apr. 29, 2003)

The appellant's appeal of the district court's dismissal of her complaint was dismissed for lack of jurisdiction. The plaintiff failed the redressability prong of the Article III standing inquiry. She was unable to demonstrate that relief could be granted to her by the federal courts for the injury she alleged.

- 2) Boyce v. Barnhart, 66 Fed. Appx. 297, 2003 U.S. App. LEXIS 6004 (3d Cir. 2003)

The administrative law judge denied the plaintiff's application for disability, disability benefits, and Social Security income. We affirmed the decision because it was supported by substantial evidence.

- 3) Ho by Ho v. San Francisco Unified Sch. Dist., 147 F.3d 854 (9th Cir. 1998) (Wallach, J., dissenting)

I dissented from the majority opinion which found a lack of jurisdiction to hear an appeal regarding this desegregation case. Summary judgment should have been granted at the trial level; there was sufficient information on the record to determine there were no genuinely contested facts to create a genuine issue or to deprive us of jurisdiction. Therefore, the trial court's denial of summary judgment should have been reversed.

- 4) Kulas v. Valdez, 159 F.3d 453 (9th Cir. 1998), cert. denied, 2000 U.S. LEXIS 1209 (Feb. 22, 2000) (Wallach, J., dissenting)

I dissented from the majority opinion, which upheld the qualified immunity of a prison doctor who forced an inmate to take medication. I argued that the forced medication of the inmate was not reasonably within the scope of the order of the judge who had committed the inmate to an institution after determining him momentarily incompetent to stand trial.

- 5) Neal v. Comm'r of Soc. Sec., 57 Fed. Appx. 976 (3d Cir. 2003)

The administrative law judge's decision regarding the onset of appellant's disability for the purposes of Social Security disability benefits was upheld as being supported by substantial evidence. Therefore the district court's affirmation of the administrative law judge's decision was affirmed.

- 6) United States v. Berke, 170 F.3d 882 (9th Cir. 1999) (Wallach, J., dissenting)

I dissented from the majority opinion, which upheld the district court's determination that the defendant knowingly and voluntarily waived his First Amendment rights with regards to a consent decree that permanently enjoined him from involvement in the production, sale, or distribution of any sexually explicit materials. In my view, the consent decree acted in part as a prior restraint on the defendant's First Amendment rights and therefore was void as contrary to public policy.

- 7) United States v. Brannon, 146 F.3d 1194 (9th Cir. 1998) (Wallach, J., dissenting)

I dissented from the majority opinion that upheld the district court's decision to admit evidence from an uncompleted breathalyzer test. In my view, the government had not shown that the results of the partial breathalyzer test were reliable under Daubert.

- 8) United States v. Etsitty, 140 F.3d 1274 (9th Cir. 1997) (per curiam), cert. denied, 1998 U.S. LEXIS 7317 (Nov. 16, 1998)

We affirmed the defendant's convictions for kidnapping and assault with a dangerous weapon, as the defendant's brother's suicide note was properly excluded.

9) United States v. McElyea, 158 F.3d 1016 (9th Cir. 1998)

We affirmed the conviction of the lower court but remanded the case for resentencing, because we held that, under the Armed Career Criminal Act, the appellant's previous burglaries "arose out of a single criminal episode."

10) United States v. Parmelee, 319 F.3d 583 (3d Cir. 2003)

The plaintiff was charged with four counts of possession of child pornography using media that traveled in interstate commerce. We reversed the plaintiff's sentence and remanded for re-sentencing consistent with the Sentencing Guidelines.

11) United States v. Shumway, 199 F.3d 1093 (9th Cir. 1997) (Wallach, J., concurring)

I concurred with the majority and wrote separately to highlight a particular aspect of mining that was important to the decision.

12) United States v. Torres, 56 Fed. Appx. 556 (3d Cir. 2002)

We affirmed the district court's determination that the defendant was the leader or supervisor in a drug importation conspiracy, an aggravating factor under the U.S. Sentencing Guidelines Manual § 3B1.1.

In the following cases, I sat by designation on a federal court of appeals and joined the majority opinion.

14. Recusal: If you are or have been a judge, identify the basis by which you have assessed the necessity or propriety of recusal (If your court employs an "automatic" recusal system by which you may be recused without your knowledge, please include a general description of that system.) Provide a list of any cases, motions or matters that have come before you in which a litigant or party has requested that you recuse yourself due to an asserted conflict of interest or in which you have recused yourself sua sponte. Identify each such case, and for each provide the following information:

- a. whether your recusal was requested by a motion or other suggestion by a litigant or a party to the proceeding or by any other person or interested party; or if you recused yourself sua sponte;
- b. a brief description of the asserted conflict of interest or other ground for recusal;
- c. the procedure you followed in determining whether or not to recuse yourself;

- d. your reason for recusing or declining to recuse yourself, including any action taken to remove the real, apparent or asserted conflict of interest or to cure any other ground for recusal.

I assess the necessity and propriety of recusal in accordance with 28 U.S.C. §§ 144 and 455 as well as the Code of Conduct for United States Judges.

I am not aware of any cases, motions or matters that came before me in which a litigant or party requested that I recuse myself due to an asserted conflict of interest. The U.S. Court of International Trade's Case Management / Electronic Case File System (CM/ECF), which encompasses case activity since 2001, contains no records of any such requests by a litigant or party. It also contains no records of any instances where I recused myself sua sponte.

Because I participate in automated conflict checking through CM/ECF, cases that would otherwise have been assigned to me may have been automatically assigned to another judge without my knowledge.

15. Public Office, Political Activities and Affiliations:

- a. List chronologically any public offices you have held, other than judicial offices, including the terms of service and whether such positions were elected or appointed. If appointed, please include the name of the individual who appointed you. I have not held any public office other than judicial office. I have not had any unsuccessful candidacies for elective office or unsuccessful nominations for appointed office.

- b. List all memberships and offices held in and services rendered, whether compensated or not, to any political party or election committee. If you have ever held a position or played a role in a political campaign, identify the particulars of the campaign, including the candidate, dates of the campaign, your title and responsibilities.

- iv. whether you served as a mediator or arbitrator in alternative dispute resolution proceedings and, if so, a description of the 10 most significant matters with which you were involved in that capacity.

I have not served as a mediator.

b. Describe:

- i. the general character of your law practice and indicate by date when its character has changed over the years.

From 1977 to 1986, I had a general litigation practice with emphasis on Employee Retirement Income Security Act (ERISA) collection litigation. The bulk of my work involved representation of trustees of employee benefit trust funds to collect unpaid benefits. In addition, I was engaged in a general practice with increasing emphasis on representing Nevada's media.

From 1987 to 1995, I had a general litigation practice with emphasis on media law and with a significant amount of appellate practice before the Nevada Supreme Court and the United States Court of Appeals for the Ninth Circuit. From 1987 forward, the bulk of my work involved representing media companies in Nevada in work other than broadcast licensing. I obtained access to information for reporters and protected their work against subpoenas. I defended libel actions. I also did the business work associated with a newspaper including employee grievances, pollution issues, collection actions, copyright protection and general legal counsel.

- ii. your typical clients and the areas at each period of your legal career, if any, in which you have specialized.

Typical clients from 1977 to 1986 included ERISA-regulated employee benefit trust funds. Typical clients from 1987 to 1995 included the Nevada State Press Association, the Las Vegas Review Journal, the Society of Professional Journalists and various other newspapers and electronic media outlets.

- c. Describe the percentage of your practice that has been in litigation and whether you appeared in court frequently, occasionally, or not at all. If the frequency of your appearances in court varied, describe such variance, providing dates.

I appeared in court frequently. While the number of trials varied from year to year (many of the non-trial appearances were evidentiary proceedings to establish damages where liability had been established by summary judgment) the frequency of court appearances did not, except for those periods when I was on leave from the firm to work for Sen. Reid or the Army.

- i. Indicate the percentage of your practice in:
- | | |
|-----------------------------|-----|
| 1. federal courts: | 20% |
| 2. state courts of record: | 80% |
| 3. other courts: | 0% |
| 4. administrative agencies: | 0% |

- ii. Indicate the percentage of your practice in:
- | | |
|--------------------------|-----|
| 1. civil proceedings: | 99% |
| 2. criminal proceedings: | 1% |

- d. State the number of cases in courts of record, including cases before administrative law judges, you tried to verdict, judgment or final decision (rather than settled), indicating whether you were sole counsel, chief counsel, or associate counsel.

My records indicate that for the period between 1982 and 1995 I tried twenty trials, in all but one as lead counsel.

- i. What percentage of these trials were:

1. jury:	10%
2. non-jury:	90%

- e. Describe your practice, if any, before the Supreme Court of the United States. Supply four (4) copies of any briefs, amicus or otherwise, and, if applicable, any oral argument transcripts before the Supreme Court in connection with your practice.

I have not practiced before the Supreme Court of the United States.

17. Litigation: Describe the ten (10) most significant litigated matters which you personally handled, whether or not you were the attorney of record. Give the citations, if the cases were reported, and the docket number and date if unreported. Give a capsule summary of the substance of each case. Identify the party or parties whom you represented; describe in detail the nature of your participation in the litigation and the final disposition of the case. Also state as to each case:

- a. the date of representation;
- b. the name of the court and the name of the judge or judges before whom the case was litigated; and
- c. the individual name, addresses, and telephone numbers of co-counsel and of principal counsel for each of the other parties.

- 1. Operating Engineers Pension Trust v. G. C. Wallace, Inc., Case No. CV-S-91-026-PMP (RLH), United States District Court for the District of Nevada, Judge Philip M. Pro (1993 – 1995).

This was an ERISA collection action claiming alter-ego. Twenty days before all motions were due I was retained by the main defendant (G. C. Wallace, Inc.) at the request of its past counsel to try the case. I had previously represented only plaintiffs in ERISA collection actions. Upon review of the extensive file (including a file of an earlier connected case on similar issues which had been tried and lost, and lost again on appeal to the Ninth Circuit), I determined that our client was entitled to a summary judgment. I assembled evidence, researched the issues, and wrote, filed and argued a Motion for Summary Judgment. That Motion was granted and later affirmed on appeal in an unpublished opinion by the Ninth Circuit. See Operating Eng'rs Pension Trust v. G.C. Wallace, Inc., No. 93-15421, 1994 WL 521194 (9th Cir. Sept. 23, 1994). I also wrote, filed and argued a Motion for Sanctions pursuant to Fed. R. Civ. P. 11, and 28 U.S.C. § 1927 and ERISA, which resulted in an award of attorneys fees against plaintiffs and their counsel for more than $100,000. See Operating Eng'rs Pension Trust v. G.C. Wallace, Inc., 159 F.R.D. 536 (D. Nev. 1994).

2. Hawley v. Hall, Case No. CV-S-88-259-LDG (RJJ), United States District Court for the District of Nevada, Magistrate Judge Robert J. Johnson (1990).

This was an action for alleged wrongful termination and civil rights violations by the former Las Vegas City Clerk against the City Manager, Mayor, and other public officials. Defendants moved for a protective order to seal any depositions taken in the case. I successfully moved to intervene on behalf of the Las Vegas Review Journal and successfully opposed the Motion for Protective Order. Reported at Hawley v. Hall, 131 F.R.D. 578 (D. Nev. 1990). This argument resulted in a major extension of the law relating to access to discovery by the press in suits involving public officials.

3. United States v. Spencer, Case No. CR-S-92-276-LDG (RLH), United States District Court for the District of Nevada, Judge Lloyd D. George (1993).

In this criminal case, the defendant sought to subpoena information from a Las Vegas television station. I moved to quash on behalf of the media witnesses. The court denied the motion (one of only two such denials out of a number filed between 1990 and 1995). I moved for reconsideration or withdrawal of the Order Denying the Motion to Quash. That motion was also denied although the court issued an order clarifying its previous ruling.

4. Bart v. City of Caliente, Case No. CV-LV-82-277 (RDF), United States District Court for the District of Nevada, Judge Lloyd D. George (1984 – 1985).

I represented the city of Caliente, Nevada, and its elected officials in the defense of an action for wrongful termination and defamation. My examination of witnesses demonstrated that plaintiff, the former city constable, could only have based the gravamen of his Complaint upon illegally obtained wiretap evidence. The case was resolved in favor of defendants by a motion pursuant to Fed. R. Civ. P. 41(b) at the close of plaintiff's evidence. In a later Motion for Sanctions, the court awarded attorney's fees and costs pursuant to Fed. R. Civ. P. 11 against plaintiff and his counsel.

5. Dick v. United States and Sandia Corp., Case No. CIV-LV 81-208 RDF, United States District Court for the District of Nevada, Judge Roger D. Foley (1987 – 1993).

Plaintiff alleged that he had been exposed to ionizing radiation during his employment by defendant Sandia, which allegedly caused cancer. On behalf of Sandia I researched, wrote and filed a Motion to Dismiss based on various immunities, including governmental immunity doctrines and workers' compensation defenses. All motions by other defendants were decided adverse to them. The Court, however, repeatedly stated that while it was aware of my pending motion it had not yet determined how to rule. That motion placed my client in an extremely advantageous position since the Court did not rule on it for over six years. Eventually, on the eve of trial, when all other counsel were consulting with the Court, and my client had still not filed an answer and could not be taken to trial, the United States Congress modified the Federal Tort Claims Act and the government substituted into the case in place of my client, and settled the matter.

6. Trustees v. Sparks, Adv. 82-0942, United States Bankruptcy Court for the District of Nevada, Judge Clive Jones (1985 – 1986).

In this case on behalf of the Trustees of an ERISA regulated trust, I filed a motion which set aside a discharge in bankruptcy, filed an adversary proceeding, and then filed and won a detailed and factually complex Motion for Summary Judgment for Non-Dischargability for bankruptcy fraud. The debtor had transferred and concealed assets, set up a new business under a new name, and did business through hidden bank accounts. Through extensive discovery I determined sufficient facts to support a successful motion for summary judgment. When I argued this motion, a number of a long-time bankruptcy attorneys in the courtroom indicated their skepticism when I said to the judge that the plaintiffs were moving for a summary judgment for non-dischargability based on fraud. The judge granted the motion, despite commenting that he was known for not granting summary judgments, especially in fraud cases.

7. Trustees v. Whittaker Plastering, Case No. A 213788, Eighth Judicial District Court for the State of Nevada, Judge Myron E. Leavitt (1984 – 1985).

This was a large and complex action to collect unpaid employee benefit trust fund contributions in which I represented the trustees of ERISA regulated trusts. The case involved multiple time periods of liability with differing grounds for liability in each (liability was established by a summary judgment motion I wrote and argued) as well as a trial involving complex proof of damages during those differing time periods with the testimony of competing expert witnesses. The judge specifically complimented me on my handling of the case and later requested the charts I had created for trial for use in a seminar on how counsel should use demonstrative evidence.

8. Klas v. Caesars Palace, Case No. A 329704, Eighth Judicial District Court for the State of Nevada, Judge John S. McGroarty (1994 – 1995).

On behalf of Caesars Palace Casino, I successfully rewrote and argued a Motion for Judgment on the Pleadings in a high profile case involving the interplay of federal Internal Revenue Service tip withholding regulations and Section 401(k) employee retirement plans. The motion was previously written and argued by another attorney and denied. I rewrote the motion and re-argued before the same Judge, and despite his reluctance convinced him to grant a Judgment on the Pleadings and a Summary Judgment.

9. Fox v. Wines, Case No. 8796, Fifth Judicial District Court for the State of Nevada, Judge Stanley Smart (1979).

In my first trial as lead counsel and in a high profile proceeding, I successfully defended a removal action against my client, the incumbent Sheriff of Nye County, Nevada. Plaintiff, who was a former deputy terminated by the Sheriff, sought to remove her from office on grounds of misfeasance and malfeasance. Under Nevada law, a removal action had to be tried within twenty days after filing. I prepared a motion and successfully argued it, striking most of plaintiff's claims. The case went to a bench trial on the remaining allegations. After my cross examination of the plaintiff, the District Court judge trying the case told counsel that he did not believe a word the plaintiff had said.

10. DiPietro v. WTMI, Inc., Case No. A318148, Eighth Judicial District Court for the State of Nevada, Judge Jack Lehman (1993).

This was the defense of an action for defamation brought by a plaintiff who complained about the broadcast of the image of his face in a television story he found objectionable. I participated in preparing a retraction, successfully moved to dismiss all claims for general and punitive damages, and then settled the case for a minimal payment following discovery on special damages.

 7. Between 1989 and 1995, I created and operated the "Battle Born Brigade hotline" which provided free legal advice to Army National Guard members and other United States military personnel.
 8. Prior to my activation for Operation Desert Storm I provided, pro bono and in my free time, over two hundred wills for Nevada National Guard and military reserve personnel who were subject to activation.
 9. I served as a Senior Editor for the Nevada Civil Practice Manual (Third Edition, 1993) and author of a chapter of that book (attached under writings).
 10. I drafted legislation and lobbied for the Nevada State Press Association at the Nevada Legislature for open meeting and open records laws and reporters' shield laws.
 11. I represented, pro bono, Clark County school librarians before the Clark County Commission when there was an attempt to remove certain books from school libraries.
19. Teaching: What courses have you taught? For each course, state the title, the institution at which you taught the course, the years in which you taught the course, and describe briefly the subject matter of the course and the major topics taught. If you have a syllabus of each course, provide four (4) copies to the committee.

1. Public International Law

University of Nevada Las Vegas, Political Science Department, 1981 to 1982.

I do not have a course syllabus but the general subject matter of the course was sources of international law, existence and recognition of states and governments, territorial sovereignty, law of the sea, state jurisdiction including privileges and immunities, legal responsibility of states, human rights, international treaties, state succession, and international organizations including international tribunals.

2. Law of War

a. New York Law School, 1997, 1998, 2000, and 2005

b. Brooklyn Law School, 2001 to present

c. George Mason Law School, 2004

d. Fachspezifische Fremdsprachenausbildung (FFA), University of Muenster, 2001 to 2008

The syllabus for this course at all these law schools is the same. A copy is supplied and the on-line course casebook was supplied in response to Question 12a.

20. Deferred Income/ Future Benefits: List the sources, amounts and dates of all anticipated receipts from deferred income arrangements, stock, options, uncompleted contracts and other future benefits which you expect to derive from previous business relationships, professional services, firm memberships, former employers, clients or customers. Describe the arrangements you have made to be compensated in the future for any financial or business interest.

None.

21. Outside Commitments During Court Service: Do you have any plans, commitments, or agreements to pursue outside employment, with or without compensation, during your service with the court? If so, explain.

I have no specific plans, commitments or agreements, but I expect I will continue to teach law of war should the opportunity arise.

22. Sources of Income: List sources and amounts of all income received during the calendar year preceding your nomination and for the current calendar year, including all salaries, fees, dividends, interest, gifts, rents, royalties, licensing fees, honoraria, and other items exceeding $500 or more (if you prefer to do so, copies of the financial disclosure report, required by the Ethics in Government Act of 1978, may be substituted here).

See attached Financial Disclosure Report.

23. Statement of Net Worth: Please complete the attached financial net worth statement in detail (add schedules as called for).

See attached Net Worth Statement.

24. Potential Conflicts of Interest:

- a. Identify the family members or other persons, parties, categories of litigation, and financial arrangements that are likely to present potential conflicts-of-interest when you first assume the position to which you have been nominated. Explain how you would address any such conflict if it were to arise.

My wife, Dr. Katherine C. Tobin, was Deputy Assistant Secretary of Education for Performance Improvement from 2009 until February 2011. If any matter came before me in which she had been involved, I would recuse myself. Hearing a case involving any publicly-traded corporations in which I hold stock, which currently includes General Electric, Alcatel-Lucent, LSI Corporation, or MVC Corporation, would constitute a conflict of interest and I would recuse myself.

- b. Explain how you will resolve any potential conflict of interest, including the procedure you will follow in determining these areas of concern.

In my present position, I always review a case assigned to me to determine if a potential conflict exists, by adhering to 28 U.S.C. § 455, other relevant statutes, the Code of Conduct for United States Judges, and any applicable policies and procedures of the United States Courts and of the United States Court of International Trade. If a conflict is evident I will recuse myself. If there is a potential for conflict I advise counsel and discuss recusal on the record. If confirmed for this position I will observe the same practice.

25. Pro Bono Work: An ethical consideration under Canon 2 of the American Bar Association's Code of Professional Responsibility calls for "every lawyer, regardless of professional prominence or professional workload, to find some time to participate in serving the disadvantaged." Describe what you have done to fulfill these responsibilities, listing specific instances and the amount of time devoted to each.

I performed extensive pro bono work as a lawyer for military personnel, media persons and entities, and political persons and organizations. This work has included creating and providing all services for legal hotlines for journalists and for military personnel between 1989 and 1995; drafting over 200 wills for military personnel; representing political persons and organizations without charge before the Federal Election Commission; and representing school librarians, journalists, and media entities without charge or at a reduced rate. In addition, all services provided to political candidates and party organizations between 1977 and 1995 were without charge. In 1994, my last full year of practice, I devoted over 600 hours to pro bono work. I am no longer obligated under Canon 2 of the American Bar Association's Code of Professional Responsibility, and cannot, of course, practice law as a sitting judge. However, as a member of the International Judicial Relations Committee of the Judicial Conference of the United States I have devoted a considerable amount of work to assistance to foreign judiciaries through travel, teaching and writing.

26. Selection Process:

- a. Please describe your experience in the entire judicial selection process, from beginning to end (including the circumstances which led to your nomination and the interviews in which you participated). Is there a selection commission in your jurisdiction to recommend candidates for nomination to the federal courts? If so, please include that process in your description, as well as whether the commission recommended your nomination. List the dates of all interviews or communications you had with the White House staff or the Justice Department regarding this nomination. Do not include any contacts with Federal Bureau of Investigation personnel concerning your nomination.

I have long been interested in public service at the Circuit Court level, and Senator Reid has been very supportive of this desire. As far as I know, because of his requests I participated in interviews at the White House with Deputy White House Counsel and/or White House Counsel for various Circuits in January 2009, July 2009, and July 2010. Since February 4, 2011, I have been in contact with officials from the Office of Legal Policy at the Department of Justice. On July 28, 2011, the President submitted my nomination to the Senate.

- b. Has anyone involved in the process of selecting you as a judicial nominee discussed with you any currently pending or specific case, legal issue or question in a manner that could reasonably be interpreted as seeking any express or implied assurances concerning your position on such case, issue, or question? If so, explain fully.

No.

Senator WHITEHOUSE. All right. I welcome each of the nominees who are here today. I congratulate you on the recommendation by my colleagues and your selection by the President of the United States as a candidate for a lifetime appointment on the U.S. Judiciary.

I'm delighted that you have brought family and friends with you. I think we'll just go right across the table, from my left to my right.

We'll start with Dana Christensen. If you would care to make any kind of an opening statement, Mr. Christensen, and recognize any family or friends or any expressions of appreciation you'd care to make, now is the time.

STATEMENT OF DANA CHRISTENSEN, NOMINEE TO BE U.S.
DISTRICT JUDGE FOR THE DISTRICT OF MONTANA

Mr. CHRISTENSEN. Thank you, Senator. I want to thank this Committee for the privilege of this hearing. I would like to thank Senators Baucus and Tester for those very kind introductions. Obviously I'd like to thank the President for the honor of this nomination.

If I am confirmed by this Senate and sworn in, I understand that I will be the 17th Article 3 Federal judge in the history of the State of Montana, which is a very significant privilege and honor.

I have a small family, but a very close one. With me here today is my wife Stephanie. I met her 41 years ago when we were sophomores at Stanford University, and we spent last weekend celebrating our 37th wedding anniversary backpacking for three days and two nights along the Highline Trail in Glacier National Park. If Senators Baucus and Tester were still here, they could attest to the fact that that's one of the most beautiful places in the world.

I also have with me here today my brother-in-law, Jack Adalaar, who is a lawyer in Vancouver, British Columbia and an avid and very well-informed student of American government and American politics.

Watching on webcast either live or this evening is my 32-year-old daughter, who is a special education teacher in Seattle. She and her fiance Josh live there, and she's currently with her 5th grade students. My 29-year-old son and his wife Anya live in San Francisco and he works for a small venture capital company in Palo Alto.

I have obviously a number of other family members and very close friends: my law partners for many years, the wonderful folks that work in my office that are all watching this, presumably live, and I want to thank you again for this opportunity.

- iv. whether you served as a mediator or arbitrator in alternative dispute resolution proceedings and, if so, a description of the 10 most significant matters with which you were involved in that capacity.

I have served as one of three arbitrators in the following two matters:

Monroe v. Anonymous (Decision March 2008). This arbitration involved 12 different cases filed against a Montana orthopedic surgeon. The first case was heard in arbitration and decided against the physician and the remaining 11 cases settled.

BNSF Railway Co. v. Central Montana Rail, Inc. (2008 – 2009). This arbitration involved a dispute between BNSF and the Central Montana Railway. The case was decided in favor of BNSF, by a 2-1 arbitrator's decision. I was one of the two arbitrators that decided in favor of BNSF.

I also serve as a settlement mediator in cases approximately 15-20 times per year. The majority of the cases I mediate are medical malpractice claims. All of the cases I mediate are confidential proceedings. The last ten cases I mediated are summarized as follows:

08/31/10: The Estate of Willson v. Addison, Montana Eighth Judicial District Court Cause No. BDV-09-004. This was a medical malpractice case brought by the husband for alleged forced terminal sedation which resulted in a lethal overdose to his wife who was terminally ill with breast cancer. This case did not settle after a five-hour mediation.

09/02/10: Setzer and Galloway as Personal Representatives of the Estate of Setzer, Deceased Minor v. Karsh, et al., Montana First Judicial District Court Cause No. ADV-2-1-628. This was a medical negligence claim brought against a radiologist who was alleged to have misread a cranial CT scan which revealed a malignant intracranial tumor known as a medulloblastoma in a 19-month old girl. After two hours of telephonic mediation this case settled post mediation.

12/08/10: Ussin-Hunter v. St. Vincent Healthcare, et al., Montana Thirteenth Judicial District Court Cause No. DV-09-0950. In this medical malpractice case, Mrs. Ussin-Hunter had undergone cardiovascular surgery at St. Vincent Healthcare which resulted in open compartment syndrome. This case was settled after a nine-hour mediation.

12/14/2010: Baily v. Iverson, et al., Montana First Judicial District Court Cause No. CDV-2010-248. This case involved an open reduction and fixation (ORIF) of Baily's right ankle performed by Dr. Iverson. Mr. Baily eventually had to have a fusion of his ankle due to a 30-40 degree external rotation. This case was settled after an eight-hour mediation.

01/13/11: Stokes as Personal Representative of the Estate of Carter, Deceased v. Ford Motor Co., et al., Montana Thirteenth Judicial District Court Cause No. DV-05-1236. This was a wrongful death case in which it was alleged that Mr. Carter was partially ejected from his vehicle during a crash due to its poor design. After a 5.5-hour mediation this case remained unsettled.

01/18/11: Iron Horse Ranch, LLC v. U.S. Forest Service, U.S. District Court, Montana, Missoula Division Case No. DV-09-140-M-DWM. This concerned a prescribed burn which resulted in property damage. This case was settled after a five-hour mediation.

01/20/11: Estate of McAllister v. LaVeau, et al., Montana Thirteenth Judicial District Court Cause No. DV-10-1817. b. Describe:

- i. the general character of your law practice and indicate by date when its character has changed over the years.

During the first three years of my legal career at Moulton, Bellingham, Longo & Mather, P.C. in Billings, Montana, my practice focused on natural resources law, representing coal mining and oil and gas companies in a large number of litigation and administrative matters, including permitting issues associated with two coal mines in eastern Montana. During my fourth year as an attorney at that firm, my practice began to transition from the practice area of natural resources to a more general insurance defense litigation practice. During the early years at Murphy, Robinson, Heckathorn & Phillips, P.C. in Kalispell, Montana, my practice focus was insurance defense litigation, representing defendants in civil litigation involving automobile accidents, products liability suits, construction disputes, ski area accidents, etc. Beginning in approximately 1990, the majority of my law practice involved the defense of medical malpractice cases against doctors, hospitals, nurses, nursing homes and other healthcare providers, which has been the focus of my practice to this date. I have also represented defendants in large class action lawsuits filed in Federal Court in Montana.

- ii. your typical clients and the areas at each period of your legal career, if any, in which you have specialized.

My typical clients since 1990 have been doctors, hospitals, nurses, nursing homes and other healthcare providers. Prior to that I represented defendants in civil litigation, and coal mining and oil and gas companies.

- c. Describe the percentage of your practice that has been in litigation and whether you appeared in court frequently, occasionally, or not at all. If the frequency of your appearances in court varied, describe such variance, providing dates.

Since 1977, 95% of my practice has involved litigation. I appear frequently in court.

- i. Indicate the percentage of your practice in:

1. federal courts:	50%
2. state courts of record:	25%
3. other courts:	0%
4. administrative agencies:	25%

- ii. Indicate the percentage of your practice in:

1. civil proceedings:	98%
2. criminal proceedings:	2%

- d. State the number of cases in courts of record, including cases before administrative law judges, you tried to verdict, judgment or final decision (rather than settled), indicating whether you were sole counsel, chief counsel, or associate counsel.

I have tried more than 40 jury and non-jury trials in state and federal courts in Montana. I have represented healthcare providers in excess of 200 matters before the Montana Medical Legal Panel, which is a confidential administrative hearing process that screens all medical malpractice claims. I have represented at least 15 physicians in confidential disciplinary proceedings before the Montana Board of Medical Examiners. I have been sole or chief counsel in all of these matters.

- i. What percentage of these trials were:
 - 1. jury: 90%
 - 2. non-jury: 10%

- e. Describe your practice, if any, before the Supreme Court of the United States. Supply four (4) copies of any briefs, amicus or otherwise, and, if applicable, any oral argument transcripts before the Supreme Court in connection with your practice.

I have not appeared before the Supreme Court of the United States.

17. Litigation: Describe the ten (10) most significant litigated matters which you personally handled, whether or not you were the attorney of record. Give the citations, if the cases were reported, and the docket number and date if unreported. Give a capsule summary of the substance of each case. Identify the party or parties whom you represented; describe in detail the nature of your participation in the litigation and the final disposition of the case. Also state as to each case:

- a. the date of representation;
- b. the name of the court and the name of the judge or judges before whom the case was litigated; and
- c. the individual name, addresses, and telephone numbers of co-counsel and of principal counsel for each of the other parties.

(4) Fardeen as PR of Estate of Sands, deceased v. Glacier Ear, Nose and Throat – Head and Neck Surgery, Montana Eleventh Judicial District Court, Cause No. DV-07-439(C).

Dates of Representation: 2007 – 2010

Presiding Judge: Hon. Stewart E. Stadler

Capsule Summary: The plaintiff alleged that the deceased died of a pulmonary embolism following extensive neck surgery for cancer as a result of the negligent care of physicians employed by my client, Glacier Ear, Nose and Throat – Head and Neck Surgery. The patient died on the third post-operative day. He had been out of bed and ambulatory. An issue in the case was whether sequential compression devices had been improperly discontinued. The defendant physicians offered expert testimony from a forensic pathologist that the patient did not die from a pulmonary embolism. After five days of jury trial a verdict was rendered in favor of my client.

Co-counsel: Sean Goicoechea, Christensen Moore Cockrell Cummings & Axelberg PC, P.O. Box 7370, Kalispell, Montana 59904; Telephone: (406) 751-6000.

(5) Cunningham v. Sobba, U.S. District Court, Montana, Missoula Division, Cause No. CV-03-83-M-DWM.

Dates of representation: 2002 – 2004

Presiding Judge: Hon. Donald W. Molloy

Capsule Summary: The plaintiff suffered a high-impact fall while skiing at Big Mountain resulting in a displaced clavicle fracture. The defendant, my client, treated the plaintiff for the fracture, following him conservatively for approximately 4 months before determining that plaintiff had a non-union of the clavicle fracture, which was producing shoulder instability and discomfort. Accordingly, the defendant performed surgery to reduce the clavicle fracture. Immediately following the surgery, the defendant noted that the patient had normal neurological function of his upper extremity. However, within 4 - 6 hours following the surgery, the patient's affected arm went numb. Initially, the patient suffered a near complete paralysis of his upper extremity. However, over the course of the next 10 to 12 months, the use and function of his arm was completely restored. This case proceeded to trial in October 2004. After only one hour of deliberations, the jury returned a unanimous verdict in favor of my client.

Co-Counsel: I had no co-counsel in this case.

Opposing Counsel: Peter Michael Meloy, Meloy Law Firm, P.O. Box 1241, Helena, Montana 59624, Telephone (406) 442-8670; Randy Kent Dix, Dix Hunt & McDonald, 310 East Broadway, Helena, Montana 59601; Telephone: (406) 443-4667.

(6) Hampton v. Schimpff, U.S. District Court, Montana, Missoula Division, Cause No. CV-98-41-M-DWM.

Dates of representation: 1997 – 1999

Presiding Judge: Hon. Donald W. Molloy

Capsule Summary: Plaintiff Hampton alleged that the defendants were negligent in failing to timely diagnose his wife's dural sinus thrombosis, which resulted in her death. The deceased presented to the Emergency Department of the local hospital with headache symptoms. She was examined at the time by the defendant physician, and carefully followed in the hospital. Her condition worsened and she was emergently transferred to a specialist at the Oregon Health Sciences University in Portland, Oregon, where aggressive anti-thrombolytic therapy was initiated. She ultimately died from the thrombosis in her brain. I represented defendant Dr. Schimpff, the local treating neurologist, who contended that he appropriately treated the deceased and transferred her to a tertiary care facility in a timely manner. After a four-day trial, the jury returned a defense verdict.

Co-counsel: I had no co-counsel in this case.

Opposing Counsel: Douglas A. Buxbaum and E. Craig Daue, Buxbaum Daue & Fitzpatrick PLLC, P.O. Box 8209, Missoula, Montana 59807; Telephone: (406) 327-8677; Randy Kent Dix, Dix Hunt & McDonald, 310 East Broadway, Helena, Montana 59601; Telephone: (406) 443-4667.

(7) Pula v. City of Chinook, Montana Seventeenth Judicial District Court, Cause No. DV-98-17.

Dates of representation: 1997 – 1999

Presiding Judge: Hon. John McKeon

Capsule Summary: Plaintiff, who was an inmate in the Blaine County Jail, was allegedly raped by a Montana State Prison inmate who was being housed at the county jail as a result of his involvement in the Montana State Prison riot. Pula contended that the Department of Corrections was negligent in its placement of the perpetrator in the county jail, and its supervision of him. I represented the State of Montana, which received a defense verdict on the issue of causation after a six-day trial. This case was affirmed on appeal to the Montana Supreme Court (Case No. 99-315, reported at 40 P.3d 364 (Mont. 2002)).

Co-counsel: I had no co-counsel in this case.

(8) Jacobsen. v. State of Montana Department of State Lands, Montana Eleventh Judicial District Court, Cause No. 88-216.

Dates of representation: 1987 – 1989

Presiding Judge: Hon. Leroy McKinnon (deceased)

Capsule Summary: Plaintiffs, who were multiple landowners and insurance companies, sued the Montana Department of State Lands contending that it was negligent in failing to control and suppress the 12,000 acre Houghton Creek Fire between the cities of Kalispell and Libby, which caused the Plaintiffs to suffer property damages in excess of $1 million. The case was bifurcated for trial. I represented the State of Montana, which received a defense verdict on liability after a five-day jury trial. The jury verdict was affirmed on appeal to the Montana Supreme Court (Case No. 88-216, reported at 769 P.2d 694 (Mont. 1989)).

(9) Austin v. BNSF and MRL, U.S. District Court, Montana, Missoula Division, Cause No. CV-99-39-M-LBE.

Dates of representation: 1998 – 2001

Presiding Judge: Hon. Leif B. Ericksen

Capsule Summary: Plaintiff Austin alleged toxic exposure to chlorine following the derailment of a Montana Rail Link (“MRL”) train in Alberton, Montana. Pursuant to a contract between MRL and Burlington Northern Santa Fe Railway (“BNSF”), it was contended that BNSF retained some control over the track where the derailment occurred. Plaintiff was one of approximately 100 individuals who contended they suffered toxic exposure to chlorine gas which was released from an MRL rail car damaged during the derailment. At the end of the first week of trial, my client BNSF settled that case, and approximately 100 other pending cases relating to the same derailment. At the end of the second week of trial, MRL obtained a defense verdict.

Co-counsel: My partner, Dale R. Cockrell, was co-counsel for BNSF. David B. Potter, Oppenheimer Wolff & Donnelly LLP, 45 South 7th Street, Suite 3300, Minneapolis, Minnesota 55402; Telephone: (612) 607-7412; and Randy J. Cox, Boone Karlberg PC, P.O. (10) In the Matter of the Rules of Professional Conduct and the Insurers Imposed Billing Rules and Procedures; Ugrin, Alexander, Zadick & Higgins PC and James, Gray, Bronson & Swanberg, PC, Petitioners, Montana Supreme Court, Case No. 98-612, reported at 2 P.3d 806 (Mont. 2000).

Capsule Summary: This was an original proceeding before the Montana Supreme Court to determine the role of counsel in the tripartite relationship between counsel, insured and insurer, and to further define the responsibilities of insured counsel in billing and reporting to insurers. The Appellants in this proceeding were a select group of Montana insurance defense attorneys. The Appellees in the proceeding were multiple insurers providing insurance in Montana. Many of these insurers imposed on defense counsel written guidelines and third-party billing practices that allegedly interfered with the relationship between attorney and client. I represented The Doctors Company (a medical malpractice insurer). In its decision, the Montana Supreme Court held that: (1) an insured is the sole client of defense counsel appointed by the insurer, and thus the insurer is not a co-client of defense counsel; (2) the requirement of insurers that defense counsel obtain pre-approval before scheduling depositions, undertaking research, employing experts, preparing motions or undertaking other substantive work in the defense of the case violates the Rules of Professional Conduct by fundamentally interfering with defense counsels' exercise of their independent judgment and their duty to give undivided loyalty to insureds; and (3) disclosures to insurers' third-party billing auditors of detailed descriptions of professional services rendered by defense counsel required the contemporaneous, fully informed consent of insureds.

Co-Counsel: I had no co-counsel on behalf of TDC.

Opposing Counsel: Neil Ugrin, deceased; Robert F. James, Ugrin, Alexander, Zadick & Higgins PC, P.O. Box 1746, Great Falls, Montana 59403; Telephone: (406) 771-0007; Hon. Patricia Cotter, Montana Supreme Court, P.O. Box 203001, Helena, Montana 59620; Telephone: (406) 444-5570.

18. Legal Activities: Describe the most significant legal activities you have pursued, including significant litigation which did not progress to trial or legal matters that did not involve litigation. Describe fully the nature of your participation in these activities. List any client(s) or organization(s) for whom you performed lobbying activities and describe the lobbying activities you performed on behalf of such client(s) or organizations(s). (Note: As to any facts requested in this question, please omit any information protected by the attorney-client privilege.)

Other than the first three years of my practice, my focus has been litigation as described in response to questions 16 and 17 above.

From 1977 to 1981, I appeared multiple times before the Montana Oil and Gas Conservation Commission on behalf of oil and gas companies regarding permitting of oil and gas wells in eastern Montana. The issues involved depth of wells, well spacing and other regulatory matters.

Over the course of the last 20 years, I have represented at least 15 physicians in confidential disciplinary proceedings before the Montana Board of Medical Examiners. The issues involved in these proceedings ranged from quality of care provided to patients to competency to practice medicine.

I have represented healthcare providers in excess of 200 matters before the Montana Medical Legal Panel ("MMLP"), which is a confidential, non-binding, administrative hearing process that screens all medical malpractice claims. A claimant/patient cannot file suit in Montana against a healthcare provider without first presenting the claim to the MMLP. A separate 6-person panel is formed to review each claim, consisting of three attorneys and three healthcare providers. In order to initiate a claim, the patient files an application or complaint. The healthcare provider files an answer, and the claim is then set for hearing before the panel. Exhibits, including expert reports, are submitted before the hearing, and hearings usually take 3-6 hours. The claimant/patient and healthcare provider[s] normally provide sworn testimony. At the end of the hearing, the MMLP panel votes on two questions: (1) Is there substantial evidence of an act or omission constituting a breach of the standard of care; and, (2) if so, did this breach cause injury or damage to the claimant/patient.

I was a registered lobbyist in Montana in the late 1970s. I was registered on behalf of Westmoreland Coal Company, and I lobbied on behalf of this entity at the 1979 Montana Legislative Session, focusing on proposed legislation governing the permitting and regulation of surface coal mines.

19. Teaching: What courses have you taught? For each course, state the title, the institution at which you taught the course, the years in which you taught the course, and describe briefly the subject matter of the course and the major topics taught. If you have a syllabus of each course, provide four (4) copies to the committee.

I have not taught any courses.

20. Deferred Income/ Future Benefits: List the sources, amounts and dates of all anticipated receipts from deferred income arrangements, stock, options, uncompleted contracts and other future benefits which you expect to derive from previous business relationships, professional services, firm memberships, former employers, clients or customers. Describe the arrangements you have made to be compensated in the future for any financial or business interest.

I have no deferred income arrangements as described by this question.

21. Outside Commitments During Court Service: Do you have any plans, commitments, or agreements to pursue outside employment, with or without compensation, during your service with the court? If so, explain.

No.

22. Sources of Income: List sources and amounts of all income received during the calendar year preceding your nomination and for the current calendar year, including all salaries, fees, dividends, interest, gifts, rents, royalties, licensing fees, honoraria, and other items

exceeding $500 or more (if you prefer to do so, copies of the financial disclosure report, required by the Ethics in Government Act of 1978, may be substituted here).

See attached Financial Disclosure Report.

23. Statement of Net Worth: Please complete the attached financial net worth statement in detail (add schedules as called for).

See attached Net Worth Statement.

24. Potential Conflicts of Interest:

- a. Identify the family members or other persons, parties, categories of litigation, and financial arrangements that are likely to present potential conflicts-of-interest when you first assume the position to which you have been nominated. Explain how you would address any such conflict if it were to arise.

If I am confirmed, the most likely conflicts of interest would relate to the ownership of stocks and bonds by me and my spouse. In addition, conflicts may be presented by matters in which I previously represented a party as well as matters in which my former law partners participate. Although remote, a potential conflict of interest could also be present due to my son's employment with SVB Capital in Palo Alto, California, or my daughter's employment as a special education teacher in Seattle, Washington. I would handle all matters involving actual or potential conflicts through the careful application of the Code of Conduct for United States Judges as well as other relevant canons and statutory provisions.

- b. Explain how you will resolve any potential conflict of interest, including the procedure you will follow in determining these areas of concern.

I understand the Clerk of Court of the Montana District maintains a computer listing of all stocks and bonds owned by judges and their spouses, which is compared against the parties in all litigation filed in the district and assigned to a particular judge to identify conflicts of interest. I also understand that all judges prepare annual financial disclosure statements and are required to adhere to the Guidelines of the Code of Judicial Conduct. Furthermore, I would be required to vigilantly analyze all cases to determine potential conflicts of interest and to recuse myself in all instances in which a conflict exists or if necessary to avoid the appearance of any sort of impropriety.

25. Pro Bono Work: An ethical consideration under Canon 2 of the American Bar Association's Code of Professional Responsibility calls for "every lawyer, regardless of professional prominence or professional workload, to find some time to participate in serving the disadvantaged." Describe what you have done to fulfill these responsibilities, listing specific instances and the amount of time devoted to each.

From time to time I have represented indigent parties on a pro bono basis in dissolutions, custody disputes and landlord-tenant matters. I have provided pro bono representation to a subsidized elderly residential care facility, and handled adoptions for various placement agencies on a no-fee basis. I have also provided free representation to conservation organizations in litigation matters. In addition, I have been appointed multiple times by the Montana Commission on Practice (the Montana Supreme Court attorney disciplinary body) to investigate and prosecute disciplinary complaints against Montana attorneys, which I have performed on a pro bono basis. Finally, my current law firm contributes annually to the Montana Justice Foundation which supports entities providing free representation to the indigent (Montana Legal Services, etc.). I would estimate that over the years I have provided at least 50 hours a year in pro bono legal services to various individuals and entities.

26. Selection Process:

- a. Please describe your experience in the entire judicial selection process, from beginning to end (including the circumstances which led to your nomination and the interviews in which you participated). Is there a selection commission in your jurisdiction to recommend candidates for nomination to the federal courts? If so, please include that process in your description, as well as whether the commission recommended your nomination. List the dates of all interviews or communications you had with the White House staff or the Justice Department regarding this nomination. Do not include any contacts with Federal Bureau of Investigation personnel concerning your nomination.

Senator Max Baucus formed a committee of five Montana attorneys to recommend to him a suitable replacement for Hon. Donald W. Molloy following Judge Molloy's announcement in December 2010 of his intent to take senior status in August 2011. I understand that I was the sole name recommended to Senator Baucus by the committee. I interviewed with Senator Baucus on January 18, 2011, and expressed my interest in this position at that time. Since February 3, 2011, I have been in contact with pre-nomination officials at the Department of Justice. On March 9, 2011, I interviewed with officials from the White House Counsel's Office and the Department of Justice in Washington, DC. On May 4, 2011, the President submitted my nomination to the Senate.

- b. Has anyone involved in the process of selecting you as a judicial nominee discussed with you any currently pending or specific case, legal issue or question in a manner that could reasonably be interpreted as seeking any express or implied assurances concerning your position on such case, issue, or question? If so, explain fully.

No.

Senator WHITEHOUSE. Thank you, Mr. Christensen.
Judge Bencivengo, welcome.

STATEMENT OF CATHY ANN BENCIVENGO, NOMINEE TO BE U.S. DISTRICT JUDGE FOR THE SOUTHERN DISTRICT OF CALIFORNIA

Judge BENCIVENGO Thank you, Senator. I'd like to thank the Committee for the opportunity to be here today. I'd like to thank Senator Feinstein and her judicial selection committee for sponsoring my nomination, and I'd certainly like to thank the President for my nomination.

I have with me here today my husband, and I thank him for his unfailing support for our now going on 28 years of marriage. My children were unable to be here; they're both attending classes in college. But I would like to recognize them—I believe they're watching on the webcast: my daughter Dana, who is a senior at Colorado State, and my daughter Lauren, who is a freshman at Miami University of Ohio.

With me I do have here today some friends. One of my dearest and oldest friends, Tracy Horner Bird, who I've known since first grade, and her husband Maitland, her daughter Skye and her friend Ian Faulk, and a friend and former colleague from my old law firm, DLA, Kathryn Riley Grasso.

I'd like to thank all my friends and family who are, I hope, watching on the webcast, and particularly my colleagues back at the Southern District of California, my fellow Magistrate judges, and for all the support they've given me, and my wonderful staff, chambers, and my courtroom deputy who I know are watching. Thank you.

- b. The American Bar Association's Commentary to its Code of Judicial Conduct states that it is inappropriate for a judge to hold membership in any organization that invidiously discriminates on the basis of race, sex, or religion, or national origin. Indicate whether any of these organizations listed in response to 11a above currently discriminate or formerly discriminated on the basis of race, sex, religion or national origin either through formal membership requirements or the practical implementation of membership policies. If so, describe any action you have taken to change these policies and practices.

The Girl Scouts of America is and has always been an organization for girls. To my knowledge, the Girl Scouts does not discriminate, with respect to troop leadership, board membership or other volunteer assignments. Otherwise, I am not aware that any of the organizations I listed in my response to 11a discriminates or has ever discriminated on the basis of race, sex, religion or national origin.

Williams v. Harrison, 2007 WL 1110910 (S.D. Cal. Mar. 28, 2007), rev'd, 368 Fed. Appx. 764 (9th Cir. 2010), cert. denied, 130 S. Ct. 3414, 177 L. Ed. 2d 327 (2010), 2010 WL 15293964 (June 14, 2010).

- f. Provide a brief summary of and citations for all of your opinions where your decisions were reversed by a reviewing court or where your judgment was affirmed with significant criticism of your substantive or procedural rulings. If any of the opinions listed were not officially reported, provide copies of the opinions.

Renteria v. Williams, Case No. 05cv0516-JM (CAB).
Report and Recommendation Regarding Defendant's Motion for Summary Judgment, filed November 19, 2007, recommended dismissing plaintiff's Eighth Amendment claim of excessive force because plaintiff failed to establish more than de minimis injury and his retaliation claim for failure to exhaust. The District Judge adopted the recommendation on a de novo review. The order and recommendation are reported at Renteria v. Williams, 2008 WL 698463 (S.D. Cal. Mar. 14, 2008). The Ninth Circuit affirmed dismissal of the retaliation claim, but vacated and remanded the Eighth Amendment claim holding that the standard for an Eighth Amendment claim is whether the force is excessive, not the extent of the resulting injury, so summary judgment should not have been granted. Reported at Renteria v. Williams, 340 Fed. Appx. 386 (9th Cir. 2009).

Williams v. Harrison, Case No. 05cv2150-W (CAB).
Report and Recommendation to Deny Petitioner's Motion to Amend the Petition, filed January 31, 2007, recommending denial of petitioner's motion to amend his petition for writ of habeas corpus because he sought to add claims outside the statute of limitations. The District Judge adopted the recommendation on a de novo review. The order and recommendation are reported at Williams v. Harrison, 2007 WL 1110910 (S.D. Cal. Mar. 28, 2007). The Ninth Circuit reversed holding that petitioner's motion to recall the remittitur in state court may serve as a habeas petition and toll the statute of limitations and remanded for a determination as to whether the claims in petitioner's state motion to recall the remittitur should be treated as state habeas petitions. Reported at Williams v. Harrison, 368 Fed. Appx. 764 (9th Cir. 2010).

Hall v. Harrison, Case No. 05cv1261-W (CAB).
Report and Recommendation Re Respondent's Motion to Dismiss the First Amended Petition for Writ of Habeas Corpus, filed January 26, 2007, recommending denial of respondent's motion to dismiss because petitioner presented colorable federal constitutional claims and exhausted his claims. The District Judge rejected the report in part, on a de novo review, finding the petitioner's claims did not raise a colorable federal issue and dismissed the First Amended Petition with prejudice. Reported at Hall v. Harrison, 2007 WL 1110918 (S.D. Cal. Mar. 29, 2007). A copy of my Report and Recommendation is supplied.

Stewart v. Tilton, Case No. 05cv1059-BTM (CAB).

Report and Recommendation Denying Petition for Writ of Habeas Corpus, filed February 28, 2008, recommending denial of the petition because it was untimely and because he failed to present a federal question, or show the state court denials were contrary to or an unreasonable application of federal laws and he did not make a truly persuasive demonstration he was actually innocent. Reported at Stewart v. Tilton, 2008 WL 2276158 (S.D. Cal. Feb. 28, 2008). The District Judge, on a de novo review, declined to adopt the recommendation and granted the petitioner's motion to amend. Stewart v. Cate, 2008 WL 2276209 (S.D. Cal. May 30, 2008).

United States v. Nunez-Beltran, Case No. 10cr0522-CAB.

I held a bench trial on March 5, 2010, and found the defendant guilty of misdemeanor illegal entry. My decision was appealed and reviewed de novo by District Judge Jeffrey Miller, who affirmed my judgment but found error in the admission of the defendant's birth certificate. 2010 WL 2985490 (S.D. Cal. July 26, 2010). An appeal of Judge Miller's order filed by defendant is pending in the Court of Appeals for the Ninth Circuit.

- g. Provide a description of the number and percentage of your decisions in which you issued an unpublished opinion and the manner in which those unpublished opinions are filed and/or stored.

My search for published opinions resulted in 176 issued opinions. This appears to be slightly more than 8% of my issued opinions. Since December 2005, the District Court's records reflect that I have issued over 160 Report and Recommendations and over 450 orders on non-dispositive motions for Habeas Corpus Petitions and in Prisoner Civil Rights cases; 11 Report and Recommendations and 18 orders on non-dispositive motions in Social Security Appeals; 20 Report and Recommendations on dispositive motions and over 610 orders on non-dispositive motions in other civil cases; and 85 orders on dispositive motions in civil consent cases. I have issued over 770 orders on non-dispositive motions in felony cases. The unpublished opinions are stored electronically in the District Court's records and can be searched by author, case names and number, and other parameters.

- h. Provide citations for significant opinions on federal or state constitutional issues, together with the citation to appellate court rulings on such opinions. If any of the opinions listed were not officially reported, provide copies of the opinions.

I have not issued any opinions that addressed any significant federal or state constitutional issues.

- i. Provide citations to all cases in which you sat by designation on a federal court of appeals, including a brief summary of any opinions you authored, whether majority, dissenting, or concurring, and any dissenting opinions you joined.

I have not sat by designation on a federal court of appeals.

14. Recusal: If you are or have been a judge, identify the basis by which you have assessed the necessity or propriety of recusal (If your court employs an "automatic" recusal system by which you may be recused without your knowledge, please include a general description of that system.) Provide a list of any cases, motions or matters that have come before you in which a litigant or party has requested that you recuse yourself due to an asserted conflict of interest or in which you have recused yourself sua sponte. Identify each such case, and for each provide the following information:

- a. whether your recusal was requested by a motion or other suggestion by a litigant or a party to the proceeding or by any other person or interested party; or if you recused yourself sua sponte;
- b. a brief description of the asserted conflict of interest or other ground for recusal;
- c. the procedure you followed in determining whether or not to recuse yourself;
- d. your reason for recusing or declining to recuse yourself, including any action taken to remove the real, apparent or asserted conflict of interest or to cure any other ground for recusal.

I recuse from any matter in which I have a financial interest in accordance with the Code of Judicial Conduct. I also recuse if I have a relationship with counsel or a party such that it would be improper or create an appearance of impropriety for me to be a judge on the case. I do not take cases in which parties are represented by my former law firm or my former clerks and I have a short list of close friends and former clients on my recusal list. Our court has an automatic recusal system. A judge enters names of entities or individuals that will trigger a conflict hit. If that happens, the clerk's office either reassigns the case or sends a notice to the judge that there was a hit so the judge can determine if recusal is appropriate. It is my responsibility to update my list as needed.

There is no record of the cases that are automatically reassigned by the clerk's office resulting from a conflict hit at the time the case was filed.

I have recused sua sponte on the following cases because my former law firm or a personal friend was representing a party and I felt it was improper or would appear improper for me to be a judge on the case:

Hermanson v. Hunter, Case No. 07cv936-WQH (LSP)
Regional Water v. Bernal, Case No. 01cv270-BTM (BLM)
Smith v. Kraft Foods, Inc., Case No. 07cv2192-BEN (WMC)

Meyer v. Qualcomm Inc., Case No. 08cv655-WQH (LSP)
Oliver v. Bill Muncy Industries Inc., Case No. 08cv1940-WQH (NLS)
Lorenzo v. United States, Case No. 09cv1803-DMS (BGS)
SEC v. Khanna, Case No. 09cv1783-BEN (WVG)
SEC v. Khanna, Case No. 09cv1784-BEN (WVG)
Zeinali v. Raytheon Company, Case No. 09cv838-JLS (BLM)
Ivy Hotel San Diego v. Houston Cas. Co., Case No. 10cv2183-L (BGS)
Norris v. Berkowitz, Case No. 10cv2477-BEN (NLS)

I also recused sua sponte on the following cases:

Stewart v. California Dept. of Educ., Case No. 07cv971-MMA (WVG)
To v. Poway Unified Sch. Dist., Case No. 07cv1978-LAB (NLS)

At the time my children were students in the Poway Unified School District and I believed it could be perceived as a conflict of interest for me to be a judge on a matter in which their school district was a party.

In 2009, I inherited financial assets from my parent's estate. I had two matters pending before me from which I recused sua sponte due to a conflict that arose resulting from inherited stock (I sold the inherited stocks as soon as possible to avoid future conflicts):
Moutain v. Home Depot, Case No. 09cv1326-W (BGS)
Intel Corp. v. Procopio, Cory, Hargreaves & Savitch, Case No. 10cv264-JLS (BLM)

I also recused sua sponte from a case that involved disciplinary proceedings against a criminal defense attorney practicing in our District – In Re: DeOlivas, Case No. 08cv1575-BLM. I sanctioned the attorney and his conduct in my court was one of the instances that led to his disciplinary proceedings. When the case was assigned to me to supervise counsel's compliance with the disciplinary order, I did not feel it was proper and recused so one of my colleagues who had not had any similar instances with the attorney could supervise his compliance.

I have not had a litigant or party request directly to me that I recuse due to an asserted conflict of interest. I am aware of three cases in which a party requested by motion that I be recused from the case:

Luna v. Sears Life Ins. Co., Case No. 06cv2653-DMS (CAB). Counsel for plaintiff filed a motion with District Judge Dana Sabraw on February 7, 2007, requesting I be disqualified based on a perceived bias against plaintiff's case. Judge Sabraw denied the motion and I did not voluntarily recuse and I continued management of the litigation. I had no bias against Mr. Luna or his case. In light of the plaintiff's stated perception, however, I did refer the parties to another Magistrate Judge for settlement negotiations.

Klat v. Mitchell Repair Info. Co., Case No. 10cv0100-JM (CAB). Plaintiff Klat, a pro se litigant in an employment discrimination case, filed a motion with District Judge Jeffrey Miller on March 9, 2010, requesting Judge Miller and I both recuse from her matter based on a perceived bias against her case. Judge Miller denied the motion and I did not voluntarily recuse. I have no bias against Ms. Klat or her case.

Martinez v. Scribner, Case No. 06cv2613-JAH (CAB). Plaintiff Martinez, a pro se litigant in a prisoner civil rights action, filed a motion with District Judge John Houston on May 12, 2010, requesting the District Judge remove me as Magistrate Judge on the case because he believes I have issued orders that are biased and prejudicial against him. The request is pending before the District Judge, however, had plaintiff made the request directly to me, I would not have recused based on his dissatisfaction with the court's rulings. I have no bias or prejudice against Mr. Martinez.

15. Public Office, Political Activities and Affiliations:

- a. List chronologically any public offices you have held, other than judicial offices, including the terms of service and whether such positions were elected or appointed. Also, state chronologically any unsuccessful candidacies you have had for elective office or unsuccessful nominations for appointed office.

I have held no public offices.

I was a civil litigator. In the initial years of my practice, 1988 through 1992, approximately 50% of my practice was intellectual property litigation and 50% was insurance defense, business disputes and environmental tort litigation. From 1993 until I left practice my work was approximately 80% intellectual property litigation, mostly patent cases, and 20% breach of contract, trade secret and other business disputes. I was the National Co-Chair of Patent Litigation for DLA Piper US, LLP. As the firm's Patent Litigation Co-Chair, I managed a group of 70 patent litigators in six offices around the United States. In addition to my client work, I was responsible for the administration of the group, client intake, budgeting, marketing and recruiting.

- ii. your typical clients and the areas at each period of your legal career, if any, in which you have specialized.

During the initial years of my practice, I represented insureds of the Automobile Club of Southern California (AAA) in personal injury cases and local San Diego businesses in contract and intellectual property cases. I was a founding member of the law firm's patent litigation practice. From 1993 on my practice primarily involved representing both patent owners and accused infringers in patent cases involving a variety of technologies including computer hardware and software, semiconductor design and manufacturing, telecommunications devices, automotive parts, medical devices, immunology and consumer products. My clients ranged from individuals and small startups to large international corporations. Starting in 1994 my copyright and trademark work was primarily for Dr. Seuss Enterprises, L.P.

- c. Describe the percentage of your practice that has been in litigation and whether you appeared in court frequently, occasionally, or not at all. If the frequency of your appearances in court varied, describe such variance, providing dates.

All my practice has been in litigation. I appeared in court two to three times a month during my early years of practice (1988-1992), mostly for motion practice. During the middle period (1993-2000), in addition to four patent jury trials, I appeared in court one to two times a month. During the last period (2001-2005), I appeared in court 6 to 8 times a year as my administrative responsibilities increased.

- i. Indicate the percentage of your practice in:

1. federal courts:	75%
2. state courts of record:	25%
3. other courts:	0%
4. administrative agencies:	0%

- ii. Indicate the percentage of your practice in:

1. civil proceedings:	100%
2. criminal proceedings:	0%

- d. State the number of cases in courts of record, including cases before administrative law judges, you tried to verdict, judgment or final decision (rather than settled), indicating whether you were sole counsel, chief counsel, or associate counsel.

I tried eleven civil cases to verdict. Eight were jury trials. I was sole counsel for one of those cases and second chair, associate or co-counsel for seven of those cases. I tried three civil bench trials. I was sole counsel for each of those cases.

- i. What percentage of these trials were:

1. jury:	73%
2. non-jury:	27%

- e. Describe your practice, if any, before the Supreme Court of the United States. Supply four (4) copies of any briefs, amicus or otherwise, and, if applicable, any oral argument transcripts before the Supreme Court in connection with your practice.

I am admitted to the Supreme Court of the United States and was co-counsel on one amicus brief filed in Eldred v. Ashcroft, 537 U.S. 186 (2003), on behalf of Dr. Seuss Enterprises, L.P., et al. Copy supplied.

17. Litigation: Describe the ten (10) most significant litigated matters which you personally handled, whether or not you were the attorney of record. Give the citations, if the cases were reported, and the docket number and date if unreported. Give a capsule summary of the substance of each case. Identify the party or parties whom you represented; describe in detail the nature of your participation in the litigation and the final disposition of the case. Also state as to each case:

- a. the date of representation;

Representing the plaintiffs, I handled discovery, motion practice, witness preparation, was second chair at trial and prepared the respondent's brief on appeal. The case was tried in the Vista Branch of the San Diego Superior Court before the Hon. Don Martinson. The jury returned a verdict for the plaintiffs, which was affirmed on appeal. Representing defendant/counterclaimant Four Pi Systems, I handled discovery, motion practice, demonstrative exhibit preparation, jury instructions and verdict form, witness preparation, was second chair at trial and prepared post-trial motions. Trial in the U.S. District Court for the Southern District of California before the Hon. Earl B. Gilliam resulted in a hung jury. Plaintiff filed for bankruptcy during post-trial motion practice and the case was eventually dismissed for failure to prosecute. I worked on the case from approximately August 1992 to January 1995.

Representing plaintiff, I handled discovery, motion practice, demonstrative exhibit preparation, jury instructions and verdict form, witness preparation, was second chair at trial and prepared post-trial motions and appeals. The case was tried in the U.S. District Court for the Southern District of California before the Hon. William B. Enright, who set aside a verdict for the plaintiff. On appeal, the case was reversed and remanded. On remand, JMOL was entered for the defendant. This decision was reversed in part and affirmed in part on a second appeal. I worked on the case from approximately January 1994 to February 2000.

4. Dr. Seuss Enterprises L.P. v. Penguin Books USA, Inc., 924 F. Supp. 1559 (S.D. Cal. 1996), aff'd, 109 F.3d 1394 (9th Cir. 1997).

This was a copyright and trademark infringement case involving unauthorized use of the "Cat in the Hat" and other Dr. Seuss properties in a book about the O.J. Simpson trial. The case was heard in the U.S. District Court for the Southern District of California before the Hon. Napoleon A. 18. Legal Activities: Describe the most significant legal activities you have pursued, including significant litigation which did not progress to trial or legal matters that did not involve litigation. Describe fully the nature of your participation in these activities. List any client(s) or organization(s) for whom you performed lobbying activities and describe the lobbying activities you performed on behalf of such client(s) or organizations(s). (Note: As to any facts requested in this question, please omit any information protected by the attorney-client privilege.)

As a litigator my most significant cases are listed in responses to Question 17, above. As a patent litigator, many of the matters I worked on did not proceed to trial. Throughout my litigation practice, much of the legal work I did enabled me to settle litigation for intellectual property clients such as Maxtor Corporation, Samsung Electronics Co., and Hewlett-Packard on favorable terms without proceeding to trial. I also provided assessments to partners in my former firm of key intellectual property assets being acquired by clients in business mergers and acquisitions.

For Dr. Seuss Enterprises, L.P., in addition to copyright and trademark enforcement litigation, I assisted in coordinating with charitable and community organizations for the use of Dr. Seuss properties.

I became my former law firm's intellectual property practice group assistant chair in approximately 2000 and gradually took over the administration of the group, including associate and lateral partner hiring and retention, client intake, budgeting, marketing and training. I was the National Co-Chair of the 70-person DLA Piper US LLP Patent Litigation Practice Group, a position rarely held by a woman attorney with no science or engineering degree, when I was appointed a U.S. Magistrate Judge for the Southern District of California.

I have not performed any lobbying activities for any client or organization.

19. Teaching: What courses have you taught? For each course, state the title, the institution at which you taught the course, the years in which you taught the course, and describe briefly the subject matter of the course and the major topics taught. If you have a syllabus of each course, provide four (4) copies to the committee.

Introduction to Intellectual Property Law, at University of San Diego School of Law, from June 7 through July 31, 1999.

The course was an introduction to copyright, trademark and patent law. It covered the types of intellectual property protected by each statutory provision, application procedures, enforcement proceedings, affirmative defenses and damages. I do not have a copy of the syllabus.

20. Deferred Income/ Future Benefits: List the sources, amounts and dates of all anticipated receipts from deferred income arrangements, stock, options, uncompleted contracts and other future benefits which you expect to derive from previous business relationships, professional services, firm memberships, former employers, clients or customers. Describe the arrangements you have made to be compensated in the future for any financial or business interest.

I have no anticipated receipts or other future benefits expected from previous business relationships of any nature.

21. Outside Commitments During Court Service: Do you have any plans, commitments, or agreements to pursue outside employment, with or without compensation, during your service with the court? If so, explain.

I have no plans, commitments, or agreements to pursue outside employment during my service with the court.

22. Sources of Income: List sources and amounts of all income received during the calendar year preceding your nomination and for the current calendar year, including all salaries, fees, dividends, interest, gifts, rents, royalties, licensing fees, honoraria, and other items exceeding $500 or more (if you prefer to do so, copies of the financial disclosure report, required by the Ethics in Government Act of 1978, may be substituted here).

See attached Financial Disclosure Report.

23. Statement of Net Worth: Please complete the attached financial net worth statement in detail (add schedules as called for).

See attached Net Worth Statement.

24. Potential Conflicts of Interest:

- a. Identify the family members or other persons, parties, categories of litigation, and financial arrangements that are likely to present potential conflicts-of-interest when you first assume the position to which you have been nominated. Explain how you would address any such conflict if it were to arise.

The following entities are on my conflict list due to financial interest: ThermoFisher Scientific (my husband's employer), and JDS Uniphase (we own common stock shares). The following people are on my conflict list because they are personal friends and I have determined it would be an appearance of impropriety if they appeared before me: Assistant U.S. Attorney Cindy Cipriani; Randall E. Kay, Esq.; Nancy L. Stagg, Esq.; Michael Leggieri, Esq. (former law clerk); Olga May, Esq. (former law clerk). The following entities are on my conflict list because I have determined it may be an appearance of impropriety if they appeared before me: Dr. Seuss Enterprises, LP (former very significant client); and DLA Piper US, LLP (my former law firm); Wilber & Associates (an Illinois firm in which my brother Joseph Palumbo is a principal).

- b. Explain how you will resolve any potential conflict of interest, including the procedure you will follow in determining these areas of concern.

I will continue to follow the federal recusal statutes and the Code of Conduct for United States Judges, just as I do in my current position. I will continue to recuse myself from cases I which I perceive there is any appearance of impropriety.

25. Pro Bono Work: An ethical consideration under Canon 2 of the American Bar Association's Code of Professional Responsibility calls for "every lawyer, regardless of professional prominence or professional workload, to find some time to participate in serving the disadvantaged." Describe what you have done to fulfill these responsibilities, listing specific instances and the amount of time devoted to each.

Prior to becoming a judge, my pro bono contribution was primarily through Bar Association committee work. I was a committee member and chair of the San Diego County Bar Association's Lawyer Referral Service ("LRIS"), and worked to expand the Bar Association's Modest Means Program to help provide access to legal services for those in San Diego who need legal counsel but are financially unable to bear the expense. Also as chair of LRIS, I instituted the founding of an annual grant from LRIS, to be administered by the San Diego County Bar Foundation, to provide financial support to such groups as the San Diego Volunteer Lawyers Program and the Women's Resource Fair. I also served as a Judge Pro Tem in the San Diego Small Claims Court to assist the Superior Court in meeting the needs of the San Diego community. I served on the San Diego County Bar Foundation raising funds for grants to organizations and programs that provide access to justice, such as Voices for Children, Volunteers in Parole and Casa Cornelia Law Center.

26. Selection Process:

- a. Please describe your experience in the entire judicial selection process, from beginning to end (including the circumstances which led to your nomination and the interviews in which you participated). Is there a selection commission in your jurisdiction to recommend candidates for nomination to the federal courts? If so, please include that process in your description, as well as whether the commission recommended your nomination. List the dates of all interviews or communications you had with the White House staff or the Justice Department regarding this nomination. Do not include any contacts with Federal Bureau of Investigation personnel concerning your nomination.

I was contacted in November 2010 by Senator Dianne Feinstein's Judicial Advisory Committee about the open District Judge position. On December 7, 2010, I met with David S. Casey, Jr., from the Senator's Committee, to discuss my interest in the position and again on December 24, 2010 to review my application to Senator Feinstein's Committee. On December 28, 2010, I submitted my application and I was interviewed by the Senator's Committee, chaired by David J. Noonan, on January 25, 2011. On February 9, 2011, I received a call from Lane Dilg, Senator Feinstein's nominations counsel, informing me that the Senator recommended me to the President for appointment

Since February 11, 2011, I have been in contact with pre-nomination officials at the U.S. Department of Justice. On March 21, 2011, I interviewed with attorneys from the White House Counsel's Office and the Department of Justice in Washington, DC. On May 11, 2011, the President submitted my nomination to the Senate.

- b. Has anyone involved in the process of selecting you as a judicial nominee discussed with you any currently pending or specific case, legal issue or question in a manner that could reasonably be interpreted as seeking any express or implied assurances concerning your position on such case, issue, or question? If so, explain fully.

No.

Senator WHITEHOUSE. Thank you very much.
Judge Groh.

STATEMENT OF GINA MARIE GROH, NOMINEE TO BE U.S. DISTRICT JUDGE FOR THE NORTHERN DISTRICT OF WEST VIRGINIA

Judge. GROH. Thank you. Good afternoon, Senators. Thank you for inviting me here to answer your questions this afternoon. I'd like to thank the President for this nomination. I'd also like to thank Senator Rockefeller for recommending me to the Federal District Court, and thank Senator Manchin for heartily seconding that recommendation. Also, thank both of our Senators from West Virginia for their kind words here today.

I have some folks with me. As Senator Manchin mentioned, I have my husband Steve, who is a great support to me, and my high school sweetheart; my sons Stephen and Michael.

And I have some friends and colleagues here to offer support as well: my good friend Dr. Diana Noon, Magistrate Gail Boober, Ken Martin or Clarence Martin, who also served on that Merit Selection Committee that recommended me to then-Governor Manchin for appointment to the State bench, and Stephen Skinner.

Back home watching on webcast that my court reporter, law clerk and secretary set up in my courtroom, we have my little 84-year-old mother, Elizabeth Householder, my sister Linda Gildersly, my brother, who's also a Vietnam vet, is watching from his home State up in New Jersey today.

Thank you.

13. Judicial Office: State (chronologically) any judicial offices you have held, including positions as an administrative law judge, whether such position was elected or appointed, and a description of the jurisdiction of each such court.

I was appointed as a circuit judge in the 23rd Judicial Circuit of West Virginia in December 2006, after being recommended by a merit selection panel. The court is a court of general jurisdiction which handles a variety of civil and criminal matters in addition to juvenile, abuse and neglect proceedings, family court appeals and magistrate court appeals. I also handle grand jury in Morgan and Jefferson counties. In each county, the grand jury meets three times per year.

I was elected in November 2008 to the same position.

- a. Approximately how many cases have you presided over that have gone to verdict or judgment? 93

- i. Of these, approximately what percent were:

jury trials:	43%
bench trials:	57%
civil proceedings:	65%
criminal proceedings:	35%

- b. Provide citations for all opinions you have written, including concurrences and dissents.

Because I sit on a trial court of general jurisdiction, I do not issue formal published opinions, such as courts of appeal issue. Between 2007 and 2010 alone, I handled over approximately 3,400 cases in which I routinely issued orders. Without reviewing each and every case file, I cannot compile a list of every order that contained a detailed analysis of legal issues and findings of fact, such as would appear in an opinion order. Those orders are on file with the clerks of the individual counties.

- c. For each of the 10 most significant cases over which you presided, provide: (1) a capsule summary of the nature the case; (2) the outcome of the case; (3) the name and contact information for counsel who had a significant role in the trial of the case; and (3) the citation of the case (if reported) or the docket number and a copy of the opinion or judgment (if not reported).

To cover up prior criminal activity, the defendant and several others murdered the victim and burned his body in a campground fire pit. The crime was never discovered until co-defendant Kerns' reported disclosure to a friend. The defendant was convicted by a jury of second degree murder and sentenced to prison.

However, the malicious assault sentence was suspended for five years supervised probation.

- e. Provide a list of all cases in which certiorari was requested or granted.

None.

- f. Provide a brief summary of and citations for all of your opinions where your decisions were reversed by a reviewing court or where your judgment was affirmed with significant criticism of your substantive or procedural rulings. If any of the opinions listed were not officially reported, provide copies of the opinions.

The West Virginia Supreme Court has reversed three of my decisions and reversed in part and affirmed in part one decision.

Board of Education of Monongalia County v. The Honorable Gina M. Groh, Case No. 073230, and The State of West Virginia ex rel. The West Virginia Secondary School Activities Commission v. The Honorable Gina M. Groh, (November 1, 2007). The Court granted a writ of prohibition prior to final hearing in a case where I had granted a preliminary injunction in favor of Martinsburg High School. The preliminary injunction prohibited the WVSSAC from enforcing its rulings requiring the high school to forfeit two football games until a final hearing could be held on the issue of whether or not the court should grant a permanent injunction. The order of the West Virginia Supreme Court is supplied.

Largent v. Zoning Board of Appeals for the Town of Paw Paw and the Town of Paw Paw, 222 W. Va. 789, 671 S.E.2d 794 (2008). The Supreme Court held that the town of Paw Paw's adoption of an open space ordinance prior to the adoption of its comprehensive plan rendered the ordinance invalid. A copy of my summary judgment order is supplied.

Wilson v. Wilson, 2010 WL 4723461 (W. Va. 2010). The Supreme Court reversed in part and affirmed in part my decision in a complicated divorce appeal involving marital property. A copy of my order, in which I adopted the proposed order of appellant's counsel, is supplied.

State of West Virginia v. Stanley M. Myers, No. 35672 (2011). The Supreme Court reversed my decision in this case of first impression. In 2003, the defendant pled guilty to three counts of first degree sexual abuse and one count of third degree sexual assault of a male child and was sentenced to prison. At the 2003 sentencing, another judge found the appellant to be a "sexual predator" in accordance with the plea agreement. There is a "sexually violent predator," but not a "sexual predator" designation in the West Virginia Sex Offender Registration Act. In 2009, the State discovered the defendant was not on the state police's sexually violent predator list. Because the Act does not contain a specified time period during which a proceeding must be initiated to examine whether an individual is a sexually violent predator, the State moved for me to initiate proceedings for the purpose of finding the defendant to be a sexually violent predator since I had taken over the other judge's caseload. In its decision, the Supreme Court interpreted the West Virginia Sex Offender Registration Act and held that the trial court erred in granting the prosecutor's motion to permit the State to proceed with a summary proceeding and in making the determination that the defendant was a sexually violent predator subsequent to his release from prison. Copies of my opinion and the Supreme Court's opinion are supplied.

- g. Provide a description of the number and percentage of your decisions in which you issued an unpublished opinion and the manner in which those unpublished opinions are filed and/or stored.

As a circuit court judge, I have issued countless orders, many of which are very basic and do not contain any detailed analysis of facts and law on significant issues. I estimate that I have issued orders containing detailed analysis of facts and the law in 30% of all cases I handled. I would have to review each court file to determine which cases had such orders issued in them.

- h. Provide citations for significant opinions on federal or state constitutional issues, together with the citation to appellate court rulings on such opinions. If any of the opinions listed were not officially reported, provide copies of the opinions.

I do not recall issuing any substantive orders containing significant opinions on federal or state constitutional issues.

- i. Provide citations to all cases in which you sat by designation on a federal court of appeals, including a brief summary of any opinions you authored, whether majority, dissenting, or concurring, and any dissenting opinions you joined.

I have not sat by designation on any federal court of appeals.

14. Recusal: If you are or have been a judge, identify the basis by which you have assessed the necessity or propriety of recusal (If your court employs an "automatic" recusal system by which you may be recused without your knowledge, please include a general description of that system.) Provide a list of any cases, motions or matters that have come before you in which a litigant or party has requested that you recuse yourself due to an asserted conflict of interest or in which you have recused yourself sua sponte. Identify each such case, and for each provide the following information:

- a. whether your recusal was requested by a motion or other suggestion by a litigant or a party to the proceeding or by any other person or interested party; or if you recused yourself sua sponte;
- b. a brief description of the asserted conflict of interest or other ground for recusal;
- c. the procedure you followed in determining whether or not to recuse yourself;
- d. your reason for recusing or declining to recuse yourself, including any action taken to remove the real, apparent or asserted conflict of interest or to cure any other ground for recusal.

I am guided by the West Virginia Code of Judicial Conduct in determining whether to recuse myself. As a general rule, I evaluate the necessity of recusal based upon whether I have an actual conflict or whether my impartiality may reasonably be questioned. Factors I consider include whether I am related to or have a close personal relationship with a party or attorney, my individual and family interests, my former prosecutions or clients, and any other factors that may be suggested from the subject matter involved in the case. My court does not have an automatic recusal system. However, upon a request by a party for recusal, according to our rules, the judge must forward the request along with a response to the Chief Justice of the West Virginia Supreme Court of Appeals for a decision.

The sole case in which a litigant has requested that I recuse myself is a pending civil matter in Berkeley County, styled Sims v. Rosedale Cemetery Company, et al., Case No. 03-C-506. In their first motion to recuse, the plaintiff class moved to recuse me on the basis that I was an assistant prosecutor when the underlying criminal case involving defendants who are not parties to this civil action was prosecuted. I did not recall working on the case or discussing it with the prosecutor who handled it. I confirmed with her that I did not and ran a check of the criminal file in the clerk's office to make sure I did not appear in it. According to our rules, I sent the motion and my response to the Chief Justice advising her that I did not appear or work on the criminal matter and plaintiffs' counsel knew of my employment history because he was my political opponent. This case which was filed in 2003 was finally scheduled for trial the first week in March 2011. Therefore, I perceived the motion to be a delay tactic. Thus, having no reason to recuse myself, I advised the Chief Justice I could continue to preside over the matter. On February 28, 2011, the Acting Chief Justice ordered that I remain in the case. Subsequently, plaintiffs' counsel filed a second motion with additional information which I interpreted as a motion to reconsider. While the rules do not provide for such a motion, I forwarded it to the Supreme Court out of an abundance of caution. On March 4, 2011, the Acting Chief ordered that I remain in the case.

Below are all of the matters to my recollection in which I recused myself sua sponte:

Green v. Hoke, Warden HCC, Berkeley County Case No. 10-C-467. In the defendant's first habeas corpus proceeding, I asked the defendant whether he wanted me to recuse myself because I handled a matter involving him while I was an assistant prosecuting attorney in Berkeley County. He chose to have me remain on the first habeas. Case No. 10-C-467 is the defendant's second habeas. Because I denied his first habeas, I asked the defendant to consider whether he would like for me to voluntarily recuse myself in the second one. Based upon his request, I recused myself voluntarily.

State v. Yunkers, Morgan County Case No. 10-F-35. In this case, the victim's family opposed a plea agreement between the State and the defendant. A letter from an attorney stating the family wished to speak through him was included in the pre-plea investigation report prepared by the Court's probation officer. In that letter, the attorney alleged that the defendant's attorney might force the court to accept the plea because the attorney may have been helping me in my potential nomination to the federal bench. This allegation had no basis in fact. Nevertheless, because the family and attorney were not local and because it was not proper for me to comment on my nomination process, I simply recused myself to avoid the appearance of impropriety.

In the Interest of Haley M., Berkeley County Case No. 06-JA-57 and 58. The recusal in this case does not state a reason for my recusal. However, I believe I recused myself because I had prior knowledge of the personal life of the girlfriend of one of the parties because my sister is a friend of her mother.

State v. Myers, Berkeley County Case Nos. 95-F-44, 10-F-22, and 09-F-127. I recused myself because the defendant had just sued me in federal court.

New v. Poland, Berkeley County Case No. 09-C-228. I recused myself because my law clerk had discovered after the fact that the car sales person he had been test driving cars with was the plaintiff.

State v. Sensel, Berkeley County Case No. 10-F-34. I recused myself because I prosecuted the defendant.

Myers v. Owens, Berkeley County Case No. 10-C-2. I recused myself because the plaintiff is the head of security in the Berkeley County Judicial Center, frequently bailiffs for me and I thought he had discussed his problems with the defendants with me in the past.

State ex rel. Bowers, Berkeley County Case No. 03-C-10. I recused myself because I appeared on behalf of the State in the underlying criminal matter.

State v. Munday, Berkeley County Case No. 05-C-4 and 06-C-70. I recused myself because I had knowledge of the case from my employment as an assistant prosecutor.

State v. Catlett, Berkeley County Case No. 06-C-151 and 07-C-60. I recused myself because I had knowledge of the underlying case based upon my employment as an assistant prosecutor.

State v. Evvy, Berkeley County Case No. 06-F-307. I recused myself because I prosecuted the defendant previously.

State v. Landon, Berkeley County Case No. 06-F-343. I recused myself because I formerly prosecuted the defendant.

Wadsworth v. Mays, Berkeley County Case No. 06-C-766. I recused myself because my legal assistant is a friend of the plaintiff.

Mulligan v. Faircloth, Berkeley County Case No. 06-C-319. I recused myself because the defendant campaigned for me.

State ex rel. Kilmer, Berkeley County Case No. 07-C-518. I recused myself because I had knowledge of the case based upon my former employment as a prosecutor.

McGill v. Jefferson Security Bank, Berkeley County Case No. 08-C-1194. I recused myself because a third-party defendant in this case is a probation officer for my court.

Timberwalk Property Owners Ass'n, Inc. v. McDermott and McDonough, Berkeley County Case No. 08-C-1359. I recused myself because I prosecuted one of the defendants.

Faircloth v. Berkeley Cnty. Pub. Serv. Water Dist., Berkeley County Case No. 09-C-826. I recused myself because the plaintiff campaigned for me and I consider him a friend.

Top Dollar Inv. v. Berkeley Cnty. Comm'n, Berkeley County Case No. 08-C-903. I recused myself because one of the parties was an active participant in my recent campaign.

Turner v. Micchelli, Berkeley County Case No. 08-C-AP-5. I recused myself because the petitioner is a court reporter for my circuit.

Jack v. Navy Fed. Credit Union, Berkeley County Case No. 09-C-392. I recused myself because one of the witnesses is a bailiff for the Court.

State v. Sala, Morgan County Case No. 10-M-1. I recused myself to avoid the appearance of impropriety because the defendant mistakenly believed there was some collusion between the Court, the prosecutor and his counsel.

Harris v. Sunset Water, Morgan County Case No. 10-C-25. I recused myself because I believed the owner of the defendant company had spoken about me favorably at political events during my campaign.

Beddow v. Warm Springs Pub. Serv. Dist., Morgan County Case No. 08-C-116. I recused myself because one of the plaintiffs is my cousin.

Green Tree Servicing, LLC v. McCarty, Morgan County Case Nos. 07-C-131, and 08-C-42. I recused myself because one of the defendants is an employee of the Morgan County Clerk's Office.

First Am. Title Ins. Co. v. Firriolo, Morgan County Case No. 05-C-94. I recused myself because the father of one of the defendants is a judge in a neighboring county and my assigned mentor.

Chiapella v. Firriolo, Morgan County Case No. 05-C-34. I recused myself because the father of one of the defendants is a judge in a neighboring county and my assigned mentor.

Firriolo v. Lefever, Morgan County Case No. 01-C-8. I recused myself because the father of one of the defendants is a judge in a neighboring county and my assigned mentor.

Rode v. Danley, Jefferson County Case No. 07-C-119 and 07-C-120. I recused myself because my father-in-law recently opposed the defendant in litigation.

Neush v. Danley, Jefferson County Case No. 07-C-160. I recused myself because my father-in-law recently opposed the defendant in litigation.

Neighborhood Welcome v. Keatley, Jefferson County Case No. 07-C-79. To avoid the appearance of judicial partiality, I recused myself when I became aware that the owner of the plaintiff company had children at my child's daycare and we began encountering each other on a daily basis at pick up and drop off.

Argyle Land Co. v. Mahar, Jefferson County Case No. 07-C-90. I recused myself because a fellow judge in my circuit was a party to this lawsuit.

Cardinal Building Sys., Inc. v. Rai Props., LLC, Jefferson County Case No. 07-C-96. I recused myself because the owner of the defendant company is a friend of mine.

Baker v. Delhaize Am. and Food Lion, Jefferson County Case No. 08-C-52. I recused myself because plaintiff's counsel was my current political opponent.

In the following Jefferson County cases, I recused myself pursuant to an administrative order entered when I first took the bench which directed the clerk's office not to assign any cases to me in which the Jefferson County Prosecuting Attorney's Office had made an appearance of record:

Boober v. Shenandoah Constr., Case No. 07-C-182

Orser v. Jefferson Cnty. Comm'n, Case No. 08-C-122

Riggs v. Waid, Case No. 08-C-31

Boober v. Shenandoah Constr., Case No. 07-C-186 and 07-C-182

S&S Group v. Jefferson Cnty. Comm'n, Case No. 07-C-80

Vance v. Dep't of Motor Vehicles, Case No. 08-C-2

I recused myself from the following Jefferson County Cases because I had prosecuted the defendant:

Shane v. French, Case No. 07-c-64

Winchester Med. Ctr. v. Barrow, Case No. 07-C-68

Winston v. Eastern Reg'l Jail, Case No. 07-C-83

Branch Banking v. Oaks, Case No. 07-C-137

I also recused myself from the following Jefferson County Cases because of my former employment with the Jefferson County Prosecutor's Office:

Aubrey v. Jefferson Cnty. Planning Comm'n, Case No. 07-C-63

Nagel v. Brooks, Case No. 07-C-94

Uzan v. Filly's Bar and Grill, Case No. 08-C-96
Bennett v. Divas, LLC, Case No. 08-C-1
Urciolo v. Citizens Commc'ns Co., Case No. 07-C-105
Register v. Howard, Case No. 10-C-42

15. Public Office, Political Activities and Affiliations:

- a. List chronologically any public offices you have held, other than judicial offices, including the terms of service and whether such positions were elected or appointed. If appointed, please include the name of the individual who appointed you. Also, state chronologically any unsuccessful candidacies you have had for elective office or unsuccessful nominations for appointed office.

None.

- b. List all memberships and offices held in and services rendered, whether compensated or not, to any political party or election committee. If you have ever held a position or played a role in a political campaign, identify the particulars of the campaign, including the candidate, dates of the campaign, your title and responsibilities.

In 2000 my husband, Stephen V. Groh, Jr., ran for Jefferson County Magistrate. I was his campaign treasurer. It was a self-financed campaign, so I did not raise money. However, I did attend events to support his candidacy and prepared periodic campaign spending statements.

In 2008, I was a candidate for the position in which I am currently serving. I spoke at political events on my behalf and distributed campaign literature.

16. Legal Career: Answer each part separately.

- a. Describe chronologically your law practice and legal experience after graduation from law school including:
- i. whether you served as clerk to a judge, and if so, the name of the judge, the court and the dates of the period you were a clerk;
- I did not serve as a clerk to a judge.
- ii. whether you practiced alone, and if so, the addresses and dates;
- I never practiced alone.
- iii. the dates, names and addresses of law firms or offices, companies or governmental agencies with which you have been affiliated, and the nature of your affiliation with each.

- iv. whether you served as a mediator or arbitrator in alternative dispute resolution proceedings and, if so, a description of the 10 most significant matters with which you were involved in that capacity.

I never served as a mediator or arbitrator.

b. Describe:

- i. the general character of your law practice and indicate by date when its character has changed over the years.

From 1989 to 1998, I handled primarily civil litigation. Most of my cases involved workers' compensation defense and personal injury defense. At Mell, Brownell and Baker I also represented the Resolution Trust Corporation on occasion. In addition, I handled criminal appointments for Steptoe and Johnson. The workers' compensation cases involved jury trials on appeals in Maryland and frequent appearances before the Maryland Workers' Compensation Commission and District of Columbia's Department of Employment Services' Hearing Examiners. From 1998 until my appointment to the bench, I devoted my practice to public service, prosecuting felony cases and the occasional misdemeanor. I also handled many abuse and neglect and juvenile cases while at the prosecutor's office in Berkeley County. In addition, while at the prosecutor's office in Jefferson County I handled many matters for the Jefferson County Commission.

- ii. your typical clients and the areas at each period of your legal career, if any, in which you have specialized.

In private practice, my clients were individuals and businesses. Primarily, I represented insurance companies and self-insured employers in civil liability actions and workers' compensation claims in Maryland and the District of Columbia. In Maryland, the initial workers' compensation hearings were administrative hearings tried before commissioners; however, the appeals were trials de novo in circuit court. In the District of Columbia the workers' compensation matters were administrative hearings at the Department of Employment Services. I did not handle any West Virginia workers' compensation. In public service as a prosecutor, I represented the State of West Virginia in primarily felony cases. However, I also prosecuted misdemeanors and handled forfeitures and abuse and neglect and juvenile proceedings. As an assistant prosecutor in Jefferson County, I also represented the county government in civil matters.

- c. Describe the percentage of your practice that has been in litigation and whether you appeared in court frequently, occasionally, or not at all. If the frequency of your appearances in court varied, describe such variance, providing dates.

During the years 1991 to 1998, I handled more workers' compensation cases before administrative hearing examiners, as opposed to trial work in court. I appeared for workers' compensation hearings about three to four times per week. While in the prosecutors' offices, I appeared in court on a daily basis. I can only estimate the following because I was working as an associate at the law firms and an assistant at the prosecutors' offices, so I would not expect to be listed as counsel of record very often.

i. Indicate the percentage of your practice in:

- | | |
|-----------------------------|-----|
| 1. federal courts: | 2% |
| 2. state courts of record: | 65% |
| 3. other courts: | 3% |
| 4. administrative agencies: | 30% |

ii. Indicate the percentage of your practice in:

- | | |
|--------------------------|-----|
| 1. civil proceedings: | 50% |
| 2. criminal proceedings: | 50% |

- d. State the number of cases in courts of record, including cases before administrative law judges, you tried to verdict, judgment or final decision (rather than settled), indicating whether you were sole counsel, chief counsel, or associate counsel.

I probably tried about 500 cases to verdict before a jury, judge and administrative judge, such as in the workers' compensation cases. However, I can only estimate because I would not expect to be listed as counsel of record on many cases since I was an associate at the private firms and an assistant at the prosecutors' offices. In almost all of these cases, I was sole counsel at trial.

i. What percentage of these trials were:

- | | |
|--------------|-----|
| 2. non-jury: | 80% |

- e. Describe your practice, if any, before the Supreme Court of the United States. Supply four (4) copies of any briefs, amicus or otherwise, and, if applicable, any oral argument transcripts before the Supreme Court in connection with your practice.

I have never appeared before the Supreme Court of the United States.

17. Litigation: Describe the ten (10) most significant litigated matters which you personally handled, whether or not you were the attorney of record. Give the citations, if the cases were reported, and the docket number and date if unreported. Give a capsule summary of the substance of each case. Identify the party or parties whom you represented; describe in detail the nature of your participation in the litigation and the final disposition of the case. Also state as to each case:

- the date of representation;
- the name of the court and the name of the judge or judges before whom the case was litigated; and
- the individual name, addresses, and telephone numbers of co-counsel and of principal counsel for each of the other parties.

1. State v. Caton, Case No. 04-F-6 (Jefferson County Circuit Court) (Judge Thomas Steptoe)

I was sole counsel for the State in the trial that occurred December 7-9, 2004. The defendant kidnapped the victim in Berkeley County and transported her first to a location in Berkeley County and then to a location in Jefferson County, where he raped her. The defendant was also charged in Berkeley County around the same time for the rape of the victim in my case and two other separate victims. In my case, he was charged and convicted of two counts of sexual assault in the second degree.

The defendant hid under his wife's porch until his children left for school, then entered her home with a shotgun in an attempt to murder her. Defendant's Counsel Paul Lane, deceased.

6. State v. Ellerbe, Case No. 98-F-69 (Berkeley County Circuit Court) (Judge David Sanders)

I was sole counsel for the State in the trial that occurred on or about December 4, 1998. The defendant was the gunman in a robbery of a young male, committed by several individuals at an apartment complex. During the course of the robbery, the defendant attempted to force the victim at gunpoint into a vehicle for transport. The defendant was convicted of aggravated robbery, attempted kidnapping and wanton endangerment with a firearm.

7. State v. Slaton, Case No. 99-F-216 (Berkeley County Circuit Court) (Judge David Sanders)

I served as co-counsel with Hassan Rasheed for the State in the trial that occurred on or about December 20, 2000. The defendant was convicted of sexual assault in the first degree for forcing a five-year-old male to perform oral sex on him.

Co-counsel Hassan Rasheed, 110 North George Street, Charles Town, WV 25414, (304)728-3243.

WV 25401, (304) 267-7168.

9. State v. Hendrickson, Case No. 00-F-58 (Berkeley County Circuit Court) (Judge David Sanders)

I was sole counsel for the State in the trial that occurred on or about October 20, 2000. The defendant was convicted of unlawful assault and domestic battery for wounding his brother-in-law with a .22 caliber rifle.

Defendant's Counsel Robert C. Stone, Jr., 529 West King Street, Martinsburg,
WV 25401, (304) 267-7168.

10. Shroades v. Food Lion, Berkeley County Case No. 96-C-582 (Berkeley County Circuit Court) (Judge Thomas Steptoe);

Although my most significant litigated matters are the numerous felony trials I handled, I did handle this civil case. The plaintiff sued Food Lion for a back injury he alleged he sustained when a shopping cart hit him in the back. I tried the case in 1999, and the jury rendered a verdict for the plaintiff. I appealed the matter on behalf of Food Lion, and the case was reversed and remanded by the West Virginia Supreme Court of Appeals on February 2, 2000, see 207 W. Va. 195, 530 S.E.2d 456 (2000). The case finally resolved with a settlement.

Plaintiff's Counsel Michael Santa Barbara, 518 West Stephen Street, Martinsburg, WV 25401, (304) 264-0000.

18. Legal Activities: Describe the most significant legal activities you have pursued, including significant litigation which did not progress to trial or legal matters that did not involve litigation. Describe fully the nature of your participation in these activities. List any client(s) or organization(s) for whom you performed lobbying activities and describe the lobbying activities you performed on behalf of such client(s) or organizations(s). (Note: As to any facts requested in this question, please omit any information protected by the attorney-client privilege.)

In civil practice, I tried many cases as sole counsel before juries and administrative judges. In the cases that did not go to trial, I obtained settlements for my clients.

As an assistant prosecuting attorney, my felony work included not only being sole counsel at jury trials, but also preparation for and presentation to the grand jury. In my felony cases, I often met with the investigating officers, experts, our victims' advocates and victims to prepare for trial. I also responded to habeas corpus petitions. If the cases did not go to trial, I negotiated plea agreements. I have also handled many abuse and neglect and juvenile matters. I also advised officers who had questions about whether their evidence supported certain criminal charges and their investigations, reviewed and analyzed documents and directed officers on whether further follow-up or investigation needed to be performed to prepare a case for trial. I balanced protecting the community's interest, the victims' rights and the defendants' rights throughout the process from the criminal investigation through trial or plea agreement. Ultimately, within my prosecutorial discretion, I made determinations, based upon the evidence and the law, on whether or not to prosecute individuals charged with offenses.

I never performed any lobbying.

19. Teaching: What courses have you taught? For each course, state the title, the institution at which you taught the course, the years in which you taught the course, and describe briefly the subject matter of the course and the major topics taught. If you have a syllabus of each course, provide four (4) copies to the committee.

I have not taught any courses.

20. Deferred Income/ Future Benefits: List the sources, amounts and dates of all anticipated receipts from deferred income arrangements, stock, options, uncompleted contracts and other future benefits which you expect to derive from previous business relationships, professional services, firm memberships, former employers, clients or customers. Describe the arrangements you have made to be compensated in the future for any financial or business interest.

None, other than that I anticipate receiving money from two West Virginia state pension programs, PERS and Judicial Retirement, for my public service from 1998 to the present.

21. Outside Commitments During Court Service: Do you have any plans, commitments, or agreements to pursue outside employment, with or without compensation, during your service with the court? If so, explain.

None.

22. Sources of Income: List sources and amounts of all income received during the calendar year preceding your nomination and for the current calendar year, including all salaries, fees, dividends, interest, gifts, rents, royalties, licensing fees, honoraria, and other items exceeding $500 or more (if you prefer to do so, copies of the financial disclosure report, required by the Ethics in Government Act of 1978, may be substituted here).

See attached Financial Disclosure Report.

23. Statement of Net Worth: Please complete the attached financial net worth statement in detail (add schedules as called for).

See attached Net Worth Statement.

24. Potential Conflicts of Interest:

- a. Identify the family members or other persons, parties, categories of litigation, and financial arrangements that are likely to present potential conflicts-of-interest when you first assume the position to which you have been nominated. Explain how you would address any such conflict if it were to arise.

My husband is an assistant prosecuting attorney in Jefferson County, West Virginia. I would recuse myself from any case in which he was counsel of record in the same or a closely related matter. I would also recuse myself from any criminal matter if I had previously prosecuted the defendant. I am unaware of any other circumstances that would raise potential conflict of interest. I would resolve any potential conflict of interest by adhering to the Code of Conduct for United States Judges and all applicable policies and procedures of the United States Courts.

- b. Explain how you will resolve any potential conflict of interest, including the procedure you will follow in determining these areas of concern.

I would resolve any potential conflict of interest by adhering to the Code of Conduct for United States Judges, and all applicable policies and procedures of the United States Courts. I would recuse myself in any matter in which my spouse or I hold a financial interest or in which I have a sufficiently close connection with counsel or parties based upon a business or social relationship. If it is a close call, I would err on the side of recusal so as not to raise the appearance of impropriety.

25. Pro Bono Work: An ethical consideration under Canon 2 of the American Bar Association's Code of Professional Responsibility calls for "every lawyer, regardless of professional prominence or professional workload, to find some time to participate in serving the disadvantaged." Describe what you have done to fulfill these responsibilities, listing specific instances and the amount of time devoted to each.

As an associate for Steptoe and Johnson, I was assigned court appointed criminal defense cases in state and federal courts in West Virginia. In public service as a prosecutor, I was precluded from pro bono work. As a judge, I have the same restrictions, however, I participate in the Robes to Schools program of the West Virginia Supreme Court and participate each year in the Martinsburg City Police Department's Junior Police Academy. Many of the children I speak to in these programs come from lower income homes.

26. Selection Process:

- a. Please describe your experience in the entire judicial selection process, from beginning to end (including the circumstances which led to your nomination and the interviews in which you participated). Is there a selection commission in your jurisdiction to recommend candidates for nomination to the federal courts? If so, please include that process in your description, as well as whether the commission recommended your nomination. List the dates of all interviews or communications you had with the White House staff or the Justice Department regarding this nomination. Do not include any contacts with Federal Bureau of Investigation personnel concerning your nomination.

There is not a selection commission in my jurisdiction to recommend candidates for nomination to the federal courts.

In approximately the summer of 2009, I sent letters to Senator Jay Rockefeller, Senator Robert Byrd and then-Governor Joe Manchin advising them of my interest in a recommendation for any openings in the U.S. District Court for the Northern District if one became available. In February 2011, I received a call from an assistant to Rochelle Goodwin, Senator Rockefeller's state director. The assistant advised that the senator's office was scheduling meetings with people who had expressed such an interest in the opening in the Northern District. On February 9, 2011, Ms. Goodwin interviewed me in the senator's Charleston, West Virginia office. On February 23, 2011, Senator Rockefeller interviewed me in his Washington, D.C. office. On March 1, 2011, Senator Rockefeller called to offer the recommendation to me. Since March 3, 2011, I have been in contact with pre-nomination officials at the Department of Justice. On April 4, 2011, I interviewed with officials from the White House Counsel's Office and the Department of Justice in Washington, D.C. On May 19, 2011, the President submitted my nomination to the Senate.

- b. Has anyone involved in the process of selecting you as a judicial nominee discussed with you any currently pending or specific case, legal issue or question in a manner that could reasonably be interpreted as seeking any express or implied assurances concerning your position on such case, issue, or question? If so, explain fully.

No.

VIII. ADDITIONAL INFORMATION OR EXPLANATIONS. (Indicate part of Report.)

Part VIII 40. line My spouse owns a 1/30 share in corporation which owns timberland in Washington County, Maryland. Value is an estimate based upon known past sales.

Part VII lines 41 & 42. My spouse owns shares in two closely held family corporations which conduct business in Maryland and West Virginia. Value is an estimate based on book value as no recent sales are known.

Part VII line 46. The timber referenced is standing timber located on a portion of the parcel of land at my primary residence. The Timber is part of a managed timber program and has a value assessed annually by the state tax assessor. No income will be realized until timber is harvested in the future.

Part VII line 47. My spouse is a discretionary income beneficiary of a testamentary trust established in 1984. My children are part of a class of contingent remaindermen of the trust. The trust was not established by myself, my spouse nor either of our children and none of us serve as a trustee for the trust. It is a "spendthrift" trust with an independent corporate financial trustee in charge of all investment decisions. We exercise no control over the investments owned by the trust. My spouse receives income from the trust at the sole discretion of the corporate trustee. Other than periodic communications regarding distributions and information needed to complete income tax forms, the only specific information received about the trust is in yearly K-1 forms received. We do not know the trust's gross value.

10. Bar and Court Admission:

- a. List the date(s) you were admitted to the bar of any state and any lapses in membership. Please explain the reason for any lapse in membership.

New Jersey, 1991
 New York, 1992

After I was admitted to the New Jersey State bar, I failed to pay the annual attorney registration fee required to keep my admission current. As a result, I was removed from the roll of attorneys in New Jersey. I was reinstated after I paid the past due fees. I never practiced law in New Jersey.

- b. List all courts in which you have been admitted to practice, including dates of admission and any lapses in membership. Please explain the reason for any lapse in membership. Give the same information for administrative bodies that require special admission to practice.

Supreme Court of the United States, 1998
 United States Court of Appeals for the Second Circuit, 2005
 United States District Court for the Eastern District of New York, 1992
 United States District Court for the Southern District of New York, 1992

There have been no lapses in membership.

11. Memberships:

- a. List all professional, business, fraternal, scholarly, civic, charitable, or other organizations, other than those listed in response to Questions 9 or 10 to which you belong, or to which you have belonged, since graduation from law school. Provide dates of membership or participation, and indicate any office you held. Include clubs, working groups, advisory or editorial boards, panels, committees, conferences, or publications.

Van Park Housing Corporation
 Treasurer (1996 – 2002)

- b. The American Bar Association's Commentary to its Code of Judicial Conduct states that it is inappropriate for a judge to hold membership in any organization that invidiously discriminates on the basis of race, sex, or religion, or national origin. Indicate whether any of these organizations listed in response to 11a above currently discriminate or formerly discriminated on the basis of race, sex, religion or national origin either through formal membership requirements or the practical implementation of membership policies. If so, describe any action you have taken to change these policies and practices.

To the best of my knowledge, the Van Park Housing Corporation does not discriminate and did not formerly discriminate on the basis of race, sex, religion or national origin.

12. Published Writings and Public Statements:

- a. List the titles, publishers, and dates of books, articles, reports, letters to the editor, editorial pieces, or other published material you have written or edited, including material published only on the Internet. Supply four (4) copies of all published material to the Committee.

In June 2011, as part of the 35th anniversary Gala celebration of the Association of Black Women Attorneys, I wrote a message stating what ABWA has meant to me throughout my career, which was published in a journal. A copy of that message is supplied.

In 2007, as part of the 30th anniversary Gala celebration of the Association of Black Women Attorneys, I prepared remarks as the president of the organization, which were published in a journal. A copy of those remarks, which were entitled the "President's Message," is supplied.

In 2006 and 2007, as president of the Association of Black Women Attorneys, I wrote fundraising letters for the organization. Copies supplied.

In 2007, I co-authored a document entitled, "ABWA: 2002 and Forward," which was published in the 30th Anniversary Gala journal. Copy supplied.

As an Assistant Corporation Counsel for the City of New York, from September 1991 to approximately August 1994, I defended city agencies and officials in state and federal court litigation challenging the exercise of their discretionary power in the management of municipal affairs. I personally handled all aspects of litigation such as drafting pleadings, motion practice and discovery in cases involving contracts, environmental issues, constitutional law, public bidding law, mortgage foreclosure, in rem tax foreclosure and tort claims.

While employed at Carter, Ledyard & Milburn, from September 1994 to June 1999, I represented both plaintiffs and defendants in various types of civil litigation. I drafted and answered complaints in a number of general commercial cases in city, state and federal courts; participated in all phases of discovery, including witness interviews and preparation; conducted and defended depositions; engaged in motion practice, including related court appearances; negotiated and arbitrated settlement agreements; and participated in bench trials.

As an Assistant United States Attorney, beginning in July 1999 and continuing to the present, I represent the United States in investigations and prosecutions from the grand jury phase through trial and appeal, in a broad range of areas. I have prosecuted cases involving, among others, tax fraud, public corruption, money laundering, RICO, murder-in-aid of racketeering, narcotics trafficking, gun trafficking and human trafficking.

In addition, between July 2006 and October 2009, I supervised new AUSAs in the General Crimes Section, first as a Deputy Chief and later as the Chief. During that time I supervised on average 25 AUSAs and 3 Deputy Chiefs at any one time. My responsibilities included reviewing charging and plea decisions, motions and briefs, and training prosecutors in a range of areas, including narcotics and firearms trafficking, violent crimes, financial crimes, public corruption, immigration offenses and child pornography offenses. I provided trial advocacy training and reviewed courtroom presentations of new AUSAs. I also accompanied the new AUSAs to court to assist them during various types of hearings.

From May 2005 to March 2006, I was a legal advisor to the Independent Corrupt Practices and Other Related Offences Commission (ICPC) in Nigeria, which is an anti-public corruption commission. I advised the prosecutors on all aspects of prosecution, including trial strategy, and I accompanied the prosecutors to court, although I did not officially take part in the court proceedings. I also provided training to several prosecutors and investigators from the ICPC, the Economic and Financial Crimes Commission and the National Agency for the Prohibition of Traffic in Persons and Other Related Matters Commission.

In October 2009, I became the Counselor to the Criminal Division of the United States Attorney's Office. I spearheaded review of policy and procedural issues of importance to the Criminal Division; led special projects within the Division and in coordination with the United States Department of Justice and other agencies; facilitated and coordinated the Office's training programs; identified and developed strategic initiatives; updated and coordinated the Division's policies and procedures; and acted as the Office's principal liaison with United States Department of Justice headquarters on evolving topics such as discovery.

In my current position as Deputy Chief of the Criminal Division, I supervise over 100 Criminal Division AUSAs in the areas of public corruption, civil rights, terrorism, organized crime, gang violence, narcotics trafficking, and business and securities fraud; advise the United States Attorney and Criminal Division Chief regarding legal policy and management issues; devise and implement the Office's criminal discovery policies; and oversee various training programs.

I handled cases involving contracts, public bidding law, mortgage foreclosure, in rem tax foreclosure and tort claims.

From 1994 to 1999, while employed at Carter, Ledyard & Milburn, I practiced in the area of general commercial litigation for various corporate clients.

In the interim, as an associate at Carter, Ledyard & Milburn, I did not appear in court as frequently. From May 2005 to April 2006, I was a legal advisor in Nigeria where I traveled to court with the prosecutors on their matters but did not appear on any matter. 1. United States v. Robinson, 09-CR-794 (JG); Eastern District of New York; The Honorable John Gleeson; 2010 – Present.

The defendant was convicted after trial of sex trafficking a minor. I was the lead counsel and tried the case with a junior Assistant United States Attorney. Trial preparation involved the painstaking review of dozens of hours of prison conversations between the defendant and the minor victim, who identified herself as the defendant's "girlfriend," to identify conversations establishing that the defendant was, in fact, the victim's pimp and that he directed her prostitution activities. The defense was that the victim worked voluntarily as a prostitute and not for the defendant and that the victim gave money to the defendant only because he was her boyfriend and not because he was her pimp. I examined the victim at trial, which required questioning her to elicit useful information, limit and neutralize harmful testimony and reveal the victim's bias for the defendant. I also gave the summation and rebuttal jury addresses, during which I used the prison conversations and the victim's testimony to convince the jury that the victim was lying to protect the defendant. The defendant was convicted and sentenced to 15 years' imprisonment, 5 years above the mandatory minimum sentence. The case is currently on appeal.

Several of the gang members pleaded guilty and four went to trial before the Honorable Jack B. Weinstein. A fifth gang member was a fugitive at the time of the trial before Judge Weinstein but was eventually arrested and tried separately before the Honorable Nina Gershon.

I investigated and indicted this case, charging the defendants with RICO, RICO conspiracy, murder in aid of racketeering, conspiracy to commit murder in aid of racketeering and the unlawful use of firearms. This was originally a firearms trafficking case that I was able to develop into a RICO prosecution. Two of the defendants pleaded guilty and cooperated with the government. I was one of three Assistant United States Attorneys who tried this case as co-counsel. The other two Assistant United States Attorneys were Kelly Currie and Marshall Miller. We litigated several pre-trial motions, including motions by the defendants to sever the trial of some of the co-defendants, and to obtain a bill of particulars, exculpatory and impeachment material of government witnesses, the identity of unindicted co-conspirators and the production of informants and witness lists in advance of trial. We also litigated the introduction of uncharged conduct pursuant to Rule 404(b) of the Federal Rules of Evidence.

I conducted the direct examination of several of the government's witnesses and the cross-examination of a defense witness. In addition, I delivered one of the jury addresses. After a four-week jury trial, the four defendants were convicted on several counts of the indictment. Three of the four defendants were sentenced to life and one was sentenced to ten years. I was co-counsel for the appeal and partially argued the appeal before the Second Circuit Court of Appeals. The convictions were affirmed on appeal, but the cases were remanded for resentencing in accordance with United States v. Booker, 534 U.S. 220 (2005). On remand, the three life sentences were reduced to 30 years.

6. United States v. Lugo, 01-CR-922 (NG); Eastern District of New York; The Honorable Nina Gershon; 2001 – 2007.

The defendant was convicted after a jury trial of murder in aid of racketeering, conspiracy to commit murder in aid of racketeering and the unlawful use of firearms in relation to the murder and murder conspiracy. This defendant was indicted with the defendants in United States v. Tyler (discussed above), but was a fugitive at the time of the trial in Tyler. Pre-trial litigation included a motion to suppress the out-of-court identification of the defendant by two of the government's witnesses, which resulted in a hearing before Magistrate Judge Cheryl Pollak at which I presented the government's evidence. In addition, during trial, outside the presence of the jury, the court conducted a hearing pursuant to Massiah v. United States, 377 U.S. 201 (1964), at which I presented the government's evidence. At trial, I conducted the direct examination of several of the government's witnesses and delivered two of the jury addresses. The trial lasted approximately two weeks. Post trial litigation included responding to the defendant's motions for a judgment of acquittal and a new trial.

The defendant, a former immigration inspector, was charged with impersonating an officer of the Immigration and Naturalization Service and with tax evasion. The defendant orchestrated two elaborate schemes to defraud several Chinese victims of over a million dollars. The defendant was convicted at a second trial before the Honorable Frederic Block after the Second Circuit reversed the earlier conviction before the Honorable Nina Gershon. I conducted several direct and cross examinations of witnesses, including the cross of two expert witnesses, and delivered two jury addresses. Both trials lasted approximately two to three weeks. I was the lead counsel during both trials.

All prosecuted in the Eastern District of New York; The Honorable John Gleeson; 2003 – 2008 (except 2005 – 2006 while I worked in Nigeria).

The defendants were 12 New York City school custodian engineers and two vendors who were arrested for embezzling, stealing and misapplying funds from the New York City Department of Education. The defendants pleaded guilty to the charges. Sentencing issues were litigated as to some of the defendants. I investigated and obtained arrest warrants for the defendants based on two detailed complaints. During the time I worked in Nigeria as an advisor, the cases were reassigned to Assistant United States Attorneys Debra Newman and Steven Breslow. They negotiated the plea agreements with the defendants. Upon my return to the United States in 2006, I was reassigned to the case for the defendants' sentencing.

The defendants were 13 plumbing contractors who were arrested on bribery charges after warrants were obtained based on evidence set forth in a 64-page complaint. The defendants paid a Department of Buildings inspector to approve plumbing work performed at various locations in New York City, without inspection, and to expedite approvals. I investigated and prosecuted this case, resulting in the guilty pleas to bribery charges of 11 of the defendants. During the time I was working in Nigeria in 2005 to 2006, the cases against the remaining two defendants were assigned to former Assistant United States Attorney Michael Ramos, who oversaw the defendants' guilty pleas to tax charges.

18. Legal Activities: Describe the most significant legal activities you have pursued, including significant litigation which did not progress to trial or legal matters that did not involve litigation. Describe fully the nature of your participation in these activities. List any client(s) or organization(s) for whom you performed lobbying activities and describe the lobbying activities you performed on behalf of such client(s) or organizations(s). (Note: As to any facts requested in this question, please omit any information protected by the attorney-client privilege.)

One of the most significant legal activities I engaged in was my work in Nigeria on behalf of the United States Department of Justice ("DOJ"). I was selected to work as an intermittent legal advisor in Nigeria for six months, but my position was extended to ten months. I performed many duties on behalf of DOJ including the training of over 100 prosecutors and investigators in various areas of the law, with the assistance of other prosecutors and federal agents. Some of the areas in which I provided training included public corruption, trial advocacy, evidence and plea bargaining. I also advised the prosecutors on all aspects of prosecution, including trial strategy.

I worked with government officials in Lesotho on their proposed human trafficking bill and provided training to various government officials in Lesotho and Swaziland on how to investigate and prosecute human trafficking crimes. While these matters did not involve litigation, I found them to be significant in view of the worldwide human trafficking problem.

Further, in my former role as Chief of the General Crimes unit, I was responsible for training all of the new Assistant United States Attorneys in the office. Being entrusted with the training and development of new AUSAs was, to my mind, one of the most important responsibilities in the Office because it formed the foundation upon which the Office's work was (and continues to be) built for years and generations of prosecutors to come. To develop the skills of the Office's new prosecutors, while also instilling in them the sense of integrity, justice and fair play essential to their roles as representatives of the United States, is critical to the mission of the Office and the U.S. Department of Justice.

19. Teaching: What courses have you taught? For each course, state the title, the institution at which you taught the course, the years in which you taught the course, and describe briefly the subject matter of the course and the major topics taught. If you have a syllabus of each course, provide four (4) copies to the committee.

20. Deferred Income/ Future Benefits: List the sources, amounts and dates of all anticipated receipts from deferred income arrangements, stock, options, uncompleted contracts and other future benefits which you expect to derive from previous business relationships, professional services, firm memberships, former employers, clients or customers. Describe the arrangements you have made to be compensated in the future for any financial or business interest.

I am not aware of any such income or benefits.

21. Outside Commitments During Court Service: Do you have any plans, commitments, or agreements to pursue outside employment, with or without compensation, during your service with the court? If so, explain.

I am currently teaching at Brooklyn Law School and would hope to continue doing so. I have no additional plan, commitment or agreement with respect to outside employment during any service with the court.

22. Sources of Income: List sources and amounts of all income received during the calendar year preceding your nomination and for the current calendar year, including all salaries, fees, dividends, interest, gifts, rents, royalties, licensing fees, honoraria, and other items exceeding $500 or more (if you prefer to do so, copies of the financial disclosure report, required by the Ethics in Government Act of 1978, may be substituted here).

See attached Financial Disclosure Report.

23. Statement of Net Worth: Please complete the attached financial net worth statement in detail (add schedules as called for).

See attached Net Worth Statement.

24. Potential Conflicts of Interest:

- a. Identify the family members or other persons, parties, categories of litigation, and financial arrangements that are likely to present potential conflicts-of-interest when you first assume the position to which you have been nominated. Explain how you would address any such conflict if it were to arise.

All criminal matters that are currently pending in the United States Attorney's Office for the Eastern District of New York would present a conflict of interest. I would require that Assistant United States Attorneys submit a letter indicating whether any criminal matter assigned to me was pending in the office during the time I supervised the Criminal Division. If the matter was pending during my tenure, I would recuse myself from that matter. I would follow the guidance of the recusal statutes and the Code of Conduct for United States Judges and recuse myself where appropriate to avoid even an appearance of conflict.

- b. Explain how you will resolve any potential conflict of interest, including the procedure you will follow in determining these areas of concern.

I would follow the guidance of the recusal statutes and the Code of Conduct for United States Judges and recuse myself where appropriate to avoid even an appearance of conflict.

25. Pro Bono Work: An ethical consideration under Canon 2 of the American Bar Association's Code of Professional Responsibility calls for "every lawyer, regardless of professional prominence or professional workload, to find some time to participate in serving the disadvantaged." Describe what you have done to fulfill these responsibilities, listing specific instances and the amount of time devoted to each.

While employed in the private sector at Carter, Ledyard & Milburn, I participated in several pro bono projects to assist individuals who would not otherwise have access to representation. In one case, I represented a Somali national who was denied political asylum and was scheduled to be deported. I conducted a trial before the immigration judge and was able to demonstrate that if the applicant was returned to Somalia, he would have been persecuted. The applicant was granted political asylum and subsequently obtained a permanent alien card. I spent a substantial amount of hours debriefing the client, conducting research, and preparing for trial.

In another pro bono case, Rodriguez v. Clinton Housing and Development Company, Inc., 241 A.D.2d 339, 660 N.Y.S. 2d 16 (1st Dept. 1997), I represented a non-profit corporate landlord, its officers, directors and managing agent in a contract dispute with an attorney who leased space in the building. The non-profit landlord provided affordable housing for the needy. This matter was heavily litigated in state court, including depositions, and was appealed to the appellate division. I devoted a substantial amount of time to this matter.

In 1994 and 1995, I worked on a pro bono civil case with several other attorneys. The suit was brought in the Southern District of New York against Jean-Bosco Barayagwiza on behalf of five Rwandans whose families were massacred in Rwanda. I wrote a section of the complaint that was filed against Barayagwiza. In 1996, we obtained a default judgment for $105 million on behalf of the plaintiffs. Several years later, in 2003, Barayagwiza was convicted of genocide and crimes against humanity by the international criminal tribunal in Tanzania, and was sentenced to 27 years in prison for his role in inciting Hutus to slaughter Tutsis in Rwanda. (I had no involvement with the criminal prosecution.)

As an Assistant United States Attorney I once sought permission to perform pro bono work but my request was denied.

26. Selection Process:

- a. Please describe your experience in the entire judicial selection process, from beginning to end (including the circumstances which led to your nomination and the interviews in which you participated). Is there a selection commission in your jurisdiction to recommend candidates for nomination to the federal courts? If so, please include that process in your description, as well as whether the commission recommended your nomination. List the dates of all interviews or communications you had with the White House staff or the Justice Department regarding this nomination. Do not include any contacts with Federal Bureau of Investigation personnel concerning your nomination.

I submitted a completed questionnaire to New York Senator Charles E. Schumer's judicial selection committee, which recommends candidates for nominations to the federal courts, to the Senator in March 2009. I was interviewed by that committee on May 14, 2009. I was interviewed by Senator Schumer on October 1, 2010.

Since March 2011, I have been in contact with pre-nomination officials at the United States Department of Justice. On April 19, 2011, I interviewed with officials from the White House Counsel's Office and the Department of Justice in Washington, DC. On June 7, 2011, the President submitted my nomination to the Senate.

- b. Has anyone involved in the process of selecting you as a judicial nominee discussed with you any currently pending or specific case, legal issue or question in a manner that could reasonably be interpreted as seeking any express or implied assurances concerning your position on such case, issue, or question? If so, explain fully.

No.

VIII. ADDITIONAL INFORMATION OR EXPLANATIONS. (Indicate part of Report.)

In response to question II Agreements, please note that while I have no formal agreement with Brooklyn Law School, I have been an adjunct professor at the law school beginning with the 2009/2010 school year. I anticipate teaching in the Fall of 2011 and will seek permission to do so from the Chief Judge of the Circuit if I am confirmed for the position of United States District Judge.

The values of Rental Property #1, Rental Property #2, and Rental Property #3, question VII Investments and Trust, were obtained from real estate brokers who work in the particular neighborhoods where the properties are located.

I listed the Antigua Commercial Bank in response to question VII Investments and Trusts because there is a savings account at the bank in my name and my mother's name. This account was opened by my mother and is used by her. I do not deposit any money into this account. However, because my name is on the account, I listed it on this form.

Senator WHITEHOUSE. I have the privilege now of turning to our Ranking Member, Senator Grassley, if you have any questions.

Senator GRASSLEY. I have one question for each and will probably submit some questions for answer in writing.

Mr. Christiansen, according to your Senate questionnaire, nearly all of your litigation experience has involved civil matters with a focus on defending medical malpractice cases. Given your expertise in health care litigation, I'm interested in your view on one aspect of health care. It's not so much to get your opinion of what you might do as a judge, but from your practice.

What impact would caps on damages have in our health care costs?

Mr. CHRISTIANSEN. Thank you, Senator Grassley. In Montana we have implemented over the years a number of things that would probably fairly be described as reform in the area of medical malpractice litigation. For instance, we have a $250,000 general damage cap in Montana. It's been on the books for a considerable period of time, since the mid-80s, I believe. We have a screening panel in Montana that requires parties, before they can file a lawsuit against a health care provider, to present a claim. It's non-binding, it's confidential.

We also have a number of other statutes we've implemented in this area. Obviously I think it's important that the rights of parties to present their claims and to have access to the courts is essential. We haven't found that any of the things that we've done in Montana have severely limited those rights, and it's been my belief that all of these things have facilitated resolution, quite frankly, of claims against health care providers, particularly the medical/legal panel proceeding. I would estimate that probably 60, 70 percent of claims against health care providers get resolved as a result of that process.

Senator GRASSLEY. So it sounds to me like your conclusion is that the caps on damages would impact positively health care costs?

Mr. CHRISTIANSEN. Senator, I think I probably need to be careful in terms of how I respond to the issue of caps. Obviously I've lived with them. I will tell you that the constitutionality of that statute has never been addressed by the Montana Supreme Court and is an issue that very well could end up, if I am confirmed and sworn in, in my court, so I probably need to be careful and stay between the ditches on that one.

Senator GRASSLEY. And if I call you Kathy instead of trying to pronounce your last name, would you forgive me?

Judge BENCIVENGO. That's fine. It's Bencivengo.

Senator GRASSLEY. In your Senate questionnaire you listed cases in which you were sometimes reversed in whole or in part by reviewing courts. Would you care to comment on those reversals and share with the Committee—in fact, the second part of this question is the most important one. Share with the Committee what you learned from those experiences.

Judge BENCIVENGO. Yes, Senator. Thank you for the question. I believe that most of the cases involved reports and recommendations that I made to District judges where generally parties are then given an opportunity to file further paper and make further argument, and consequently the modifications and reversals may result from a better record in front of the District judge on review of the report and recommendations. There certainly were instances where there might have been either a change or a misinterpretation of the law on my end, and therefore the lesson always for me is to be as diligent as I can in interpretation and application of the law.

Senator GRASSLEY. Judge Groh, I'm going to ask you a question from one of your cases, but it doesn't involve just your case. But it's kind of to get your feeling about sentencing guidelines/recommendations that you might be asking the Federal court. They're voluntary, but how you might respond to them.

As a West Virginia Circuit Court judge you presided over a case involving an eighth grade female teacher sending sexually explicit messages to, and engaging in, inappropriate conduct with a 14-year-old male student. According to press accounts, the prosecutor and the defendant reached a plea agreement in which the teacher agreed to plead guilty to one count of sexual abuse by a person in trust, and in return the prosecutor would seek that she serve 10 years probation and no more than 4 months jail sentence in lieu of a 10- to 20-year prison sentence.

Did you have any concerns about this plea agreement given the seriousness of the conduct at hand? More importantly, at sentencing, you sentenced the teacher to only 3 months in jail instead of the 4 months permitted in the plea agreement. What factors led you to that decision?

Judge GROH. Thank you for that question, Senator. While going into the sentencing phase of that proceeding I wondered myself if the plea should be accepted, but a number of components go into sentencing an individual in State court, and also in Federal court as well. I learned more about the defendant as an individual.

I considered the position of the victim or the victim's mother, the position of the investigating officer, the position of the State, the defendant's criminal history, which really she didn't have any criminal history to my recollection, and the specifics of the crime or offense in and of itself that she was pleading to. That's how I reached my conclusion, as I do in every case, on what the appropriate sentence is.

Now, bringing it forward, if I were so fortunate to be serving on the Federal bench, I know that we have the guideline—or would have the guidelines there and the guidelines are no longer mandatory. However, I would give deference to the guidelines. I believe it's important to have uniformity in sentencing. That's also another issue I look at, not between defendants if they're involved in different offenses in State court, but if the defendants—or for my court a co-defendant—they also have to make sure that there's no disparity in sentencing.

Senator GRASSLEY. You answered my follow-up question, so I'll move on to Ms. Brodie.

Just one question for you. I might have some in writing for all of the judges. From May of 2005 to March of 2006, you served as a legal advisor to the Independent Core Practices and Other Related Offices Commission in Nigeria. In this role I understand you advised and trained over 100 prosecutors and investigators on all aspects of prosecution. So I'd like to have you comment on how this experience will affect you as a Federal judge, when confirmed.

Ms. BRODIE. Well, thank you for that question, Senator Grassley. I think I've learned quite a few things from working overseas, and particularly in that detail in Nigeria. It has made me realize and recognize that we are very blessed here in the United States to have a very functional judicial system, which is something that most countries don't have. It has taught me the appreciation of knowing that the system that we have here in the United States can be recognized, relied on by the litigants who appear in court.

In Nigeria, part of the problem with the judicial system—the criminal justice system as a whole, in fact, which is something they're working on—is the fact that when matters are brought before the court they could take years to be concluded, because on every single matter that a judge rules on it can be appealed all the way to the Supreme Court. That delays all the proceedings. It's especially bad for criminal proceedings where defendants are either incarcerated or not, but could spend years before a matter can be resolved simply because of the way in which the system is set up for that matter.

So it does make me appreciate the fact that it's important that matters be litigated promptly, and if I were lucky enough to be confirmed to the position for which I've been nominated, one of the things that I would make sure that I do is to make decisions very quickly so that litigants, whether they be civil or criminal, who appear before the court, can know what the outcome is, and I will do so fairly and impartially. Thank you, Senator.

Senator GRASSLEY. I would say for all of you, just to caution. Even though your nominations appear to be non-controversial, sometimes for things unrelated to your qualifications or anything personal or ideological, nominees are held up because questions aren't answered fully. So I would encourage you all, if you have questions from the two of us or any of the 18 members of the Committee, I hope you will understand that we don't usually move ahead until all are satisfactorily answered.

Mr. CHRISTIANSEN. Thank you.

Judge BENCIVENGO. Thank you, Senator.

Judge GROH. Thank you.

Senator WHITEHOUSE. Let me ask each of you one final question before we adjourn the hearing. Who would you seek to emulate as a U.S. District judge? Somebody from history, or fiction, or from your personal experience in the law. Who would you think the model would be for your service as a judge, and why? Mr. Christiansen?

Mr. CHRISTIANSEN. Senator, that's a wonderful question. I was inspired to become a lawyer at a very early age by a practitioner in Missoula, Montana named Sherm Lawn. He's now deceased. The Kiwanis Club in Missoula had a program where you could spend a day shadowing someone in a profession, and I shadowed Sherm Lawn. He was a wonderful old-school trial lawyer. He had the finest ethics, he was collegial, and my parents, who unfortunately are now both deceased, would probably recall that I came home in about the 7th or 8th grade and said, I've decided this is what I want to do, I want to be a lawyer. So that person—he also gave me my first job while I was in law school. He meant a lot to me and he inspired me.

Senator WHITEHOUSE. Judge Bencivengo.

Judge BENCIVENGO. Thank you, Senator. I wouldn't have to look far for examples of judges I would want to emulate. My District Court, I believe, has one of the best benches in the country. If I were to choose one of those judges, the position I'm being considered for, the judge who went senior and made that position available, Jeffrey Miller, I think, is an exemplary person to look to for judicial demeanor for his ability to make everyone in his courtroom feel comfortable, and yet still sustain the formality and the importance of the judiciary, his respect amongst the bar, and jurors who appear in front of him. I think he is just an extraordinary example of a fine judicial person and someone I would certainly wish to emulate. Thank you.

Senator WHITEHOUSE. Judge Groh.

Judge GROH. The person who I wish to emulate, and would if I were so fortunate to find myself on the Federal bench, is Judge Irene Berger. Judge Berger was a Circuit Court when I became a Circuit Court judge. She was one of two, and Senator Manchin added me as the third. Judge Berger was confirmed toward the end of 2009 as a Federal judge. She serves in the Southern District of our State.

The very first time I met her at my initial judicial conference, she gave me all her numbers and she held my hand, figuratively, and she has been doing that ever since, even throughout this process through the DOJ vetting and all the questionnaires, and phases and hoops that we've been going through. Our careers parallel. She was a former prosecutor, as was I, before she became a Circuit judge. She progressed and now is in what she tells me is the best job she's ever had on the Federal bench. She is well-respected. She's kind and compassionate, yet has control of her courtroom. She's even-tempered, smart, and hardworking, well-respected, as I said, among the bar. I was honored for the Supreme Court to replace her with me on our Judicial Ethics Hearing Board when she was elevated to the Federal bench. Thank you.

Senator WHITEHOUSE. Thank you.

Ms. Brodie.

Ms. BRODIE. Thank you, Senator Whitehouse. Well, I can't decide on one judge because there are so many judges in the Eastern District of New York who I would love to emulate. There are many of them who I believe possess the right qualities that make for a wonderful judge. They're extremely decisive, they are smart, they have the right temperament.

I love my job, and the reason I do is because it's a great job when you have to go to the courtroom of these judges every day and know that it's going to be a wonderful experience, regardless of whether or not the outcome, the ruling is what you want it to be. The experience is going to be enjoyable. That is what I hope to do, if I become confirmed to this position, to emulate all of those judges who have all of the fine qualities that I believe are important in a District Court judge.

Senator WHITEHOUSE. Good.

Well, I wish you all well. I know that this process can be a bit of an ordeal as you go through repeated blockades of paperwork, but you're through all that now and you've had the happiest possible thing happen, which is to have the Ranking Member of the party other than the President who appointed you deem your nominations uncontroversial.

[Laughter.]

Senator WHITEHOUSE. So I wish you well as you proceed through the Committee, and as we take up your nominations on the floor and in your service to our country to what I hope are long and productive lives on the bench.

The hearing will remain open for an additional week if anybody wishes to add anything to the record, but we are, today, adjourned.

[Whereupon, at 3:44 p.m. the meeting was adjourned.]

[Questions and answers and submissions for the record follow.]

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Responses of Cathy Ann Bencivengo
Nominee to be United States District Judge for the Southern District of California
To the Written Questions of Senator Chuck Grassley

1. What is the most important attribute of a judge, and do you possess it?

Response: I believe there are many attributes a judge must possess, including intellectual capacity, energy and enthusiasm, decisiveness and patience. Fairness and impartiality in the finding of facts and application of law are the most important judicial attributes to preserve and protect the integrity of the legal system. I believe I possess these attributes.

2. Please explain your view of the appropriate temperament of a judge. What elements of judicial temperament do you consider the most important, and do you meet that standard?

Response: I believe an appropriate judicial temperament is one of civility and respect for everyone in the courtroom, patience, consideration and humility. A judge by word and deed should uphold the dignity of the court and instill confidence in all those appearing in court that they will be treated with fairness and impartiality. I believe I meet this standard.

3. In general, Supreme Court precedents are binding on all lower federal courts and Circuit Court precedents are binding on the district courts within the particular circuit. Are you committed to following the precedents of higher courts faithfully and giving them full force and effect, even if you personally disagree with such precedents?

Response: Yes.

4. At times, judges are faced with cases of first impression. If there were no controlling precedent that dispositively concluded an issue with which you were presented, to what sources would you turn for persuasive authority? What principles will guide you, or what methods will you employ, in deciding cases of first impression?

Response: I would first look to the text of the relevant statute, regulation or provision at issue and any legislative history if available for guidance. I would also consider rulings in Supreme Court or Circuit Court cases on analogous issues. I would finally consider district court and state court decisions on analogous issues for persuasive authority. Using those sources, I would consider the case narrowly on the facts before me.

5. What would you do if you believed the Supreme Court or the Court of Appeals had seriously erred in rendering a decision? Would you apply that decision or would you use your own judgment of the merits, or your best judgment of the merits?

Response: I would adhere to the precedent of the Supreme Court or the Circuit Court regardless of my personal beliefs. It is never appropriate for the District Judge to substitute his or her own judgment for binding precedent.

6. Under what circumstances do you believe it appropriate for a federal court to declare a statute enacted by Congress unconstitutional?

Response: A federal court should only declare a statute enacted by Congress unconstitutional if Congress has exceeded its constitutional authority or enacted a statute in contravention of a constitutional provision. In making that determination, a federal court must apply any relevant precedent in its evaluation.

7. As you know, the federal courts are facing enormous pressures as their caseload mounts. If confirmed, how do you intend to manage your caseload? Please describe actions you have taken as a sitting U.S. Magistrate Judge.

Response: The U.S. District Court for the Southern District of California has a large criminal and civil caseload, including many complex civil matters. The Court has instituted a number of case management tools to assist in the efficient resolution of matters, including early and regular settlement conferences and local rules for patent cases. The District utilizes Magistrate Judges to provide for the efficient management of discovery to keep cases moving toward resolution. As a Magistrate Judge, it has been my practice to fully review party submissions, be prepared for argument and promptly issue orders. If confirmed as a District Judge, I would continue those practices and work cooperatively with the Magistrate Judges to manage my civil and criminal docket efficiently.

8. Do you believe that judges have a role in controlling the pace and conduct of litigation and, if confirmed, what specific steps would you take to control your docket? Please describe actions you have taken as a sitting U.S. Magistrate Judge.

Response: Parties have the right to fair and efficient resolution of their matters. Judges set the pace for litigation. Clear and reasonable scheduling orders provide guidance and set the expectations for the conduct of the litigation and the prompt resolution of motions encourages early resolution and avoids unnecessary expense. As a Magistrate Judge, when appropriate I resolve disputes informally, convene regular status conferences to minimize discovery delays, and issue orders promptly. If confirmed as a District Judge, I will continue those practices as well as the case management techniques discussed above.

- 9. Please describe with particularity the process by which these questions were answered.

Response: I received and carefully reviewed all the questions. I personally prepared my responses and forwarded them to the Department of Justice for submission to the Senate Judiciary Committee.

- 10. Do these answers reflect true and personal views?

Response: Yes.

Responses of Cathy Ann Bencivengo
Nominee to be United States District Judge for the Southern District of California
to the Written Questions of Senator Amy Klobuchar

- 1. If you had to describe it, how would you characterize your judicial philosophy?
How do you see the role of the judge in our constitutional system?

Response: I would characterize my judicial philosophy as impartiality and efficiency. Parties are entitled to a fair and full opportunity to be heard, an impartial and faithful application of the law to the facts of the case and a prompt resolution of the matter. In our constitutional system, the role of a District Judge is to apply law in accordance with precedent to the facts and issues presented.

- 2. What assurances can you give that litigants coming into your courtroom will be treated fairly regardless of their political beliefs or whether they are rich or poor, defendant or plaintiff?

Response: Equal justice under the law is a cornerstone of our legal system. During my service as a Magistrate Judge, I believe I have demonstrated my commitment to treat all litigants with respect and dignity without regard to their political beliefs, economic status, or role in the case. I am patient and courteous and provide a forum in which all litigants receive fair treatment and consideration. If I am confirmed as a District Judge, I will continue that commitment

- 3. In your opinion, how strongly should judges bind themselves to the doctrine of stare decisis? How does the commitment to stare decisis vary depending on the court?

Response: Judges are obligated to adhere to and apply precedential opinions of the court's controlling Circuit Court and the Supreme Court. The doctrine of stare decisis is not optional nor does it vary depending on the court.

Responses of Margo Kitsy Brodie
Nominee to be United States District Judge for the Eastern District of New York
to the Written Questions of Senator Chuck Grassley

- 1. As I mentioned at your hearing, you have had some experience with a foreign judicial system. I am interested on your comparative views of our Constitutional system and the role of judges.

- a. What, in your view, is the primary characteristic of our federal court system?

Response: In my view, the primary characteristic of our federal court system is its ability to decide cases fairly and expeditiously in pursuit of the rule of law. This stands in contrast to countries like Nigeria, which, though it may also have judges who perform a limited role within a tripartite system of government, are still trying to achieve the same level of even-handedness and efficiency.

- b. How would you best describe your judicial philosophy?

Response: My judicial philosophy is that a district court judge plays a very narrow, albeit important, role in our federal court system. That role is to decide the case or controversy before the court, based on the facts before the court and the decisions of the United States Supreme Court and the Court of Appeals for the circuit in which the court sits. If confirmed, I would endeavor to fulfill that role.

- 2. What is the most important attribute of a judge, and do you possess it?

Response: I believe the most important attributes of a judge are even-handedness, even-temperament and the ability to decide every case before the court impartially and expeditiously. I believe I possess these attributes.

- 3. Please explain your view of the appropriate temperament of a judge. What elements of judicial temperament do you consider the most important, and do you meet that standard?

Response: A judge should be fair, impartial, open-minded, even-handed, patient, modest and respectful of the parties and all who come in contact with the court. I believe I possess these qualities.

- 4. In general, Supreme Court precedents are binding on all lower federal courts and Circuit Court precedents are binding on the district courts within the particular circuit. Are you committed to following the precedents of higher courts faithfully and giving them full force and effect, even if you personally disagree with such precedents?

Response: Yes. If confirmed, I would follow the precedents of the United States Supreme Court and the United States Court of Appeals for the Second Circuit, regardless of my personal views.

- 5. At times, judges are faced with cases of first impression. If there were no controlling precedent that dispositively concluded an issue with which you were presented, to what sources would you turn for persuasive authority? What principles will guide you, or what methods will you employ, in deciding cases of first impression?

Response: If confirmed and faced with a case of first impression, I would generally start with the text of the statute or other relevant legal provision. I would look at decisions of the United States Supreme Court and the United States Court of Appeals for the Second Circuit on similar statutes or areas of law and, if necessary, consider decisions from other Courts of Appeal or District Courts.

- 6. What would you do if you believed the Supreme Court or the Court of Appeals had seriously erred in rendering a decision? Would you apply that decision or would you use your own judgment of the merits, or your best judgment of the merits?

Response: If confirmed, I would always follow the decisions of the United States Supreme Court and the United States Court of Appeals for the Second Circuit regardless of my personal views.

- 7. Under what circumstances do you believe it appropriate for a federal court to declare a statute enacted by Congress unconstitutional?

Response: I believe that it is appropriate for a federal court to declare a statute enacted by Congress unconstitutional if Congress exceeds its powers under the Constitution or enacts a law inconsistent with a provision of the Constitution. If confirmed, I would apply the precedents of the United States Supreme Court and the United States Court of Appeals for the Second Circuit to evaluate whether Congress had done so.

- 8. As you know, the federal courts are facing enormous pressures as their caseload mounts. If confirmed, how do you intend to manage your caseload?

Response: If confirmed, I would manage my caseload by publishing and enforcing clear rules with deadlines for pretrial discovery and motion practice. With the assistance of the magistrate judges, I would ensure that discovery deadlines are adhered to, and encourage early settlement discussions. In addition, I would rule expeditiously on matters before the court since I strongly believe that justice delayed is indeed justice denied.

- 9. Do you believe that judges have a role in controlling the pace and conduct of litigation and, if confirmed, what specific steps would you take to control your docket?

Response: Yes. I do believe that judges have a responsibility to ensure that all matters are heard, considered and decided quickly and impartially, and that all litigants are treated fairly and with respect. As discussed in response to question 8 above, if confirmed, I would strive to decide cases fairly and expeditiously.

10. Please describe with particularity the process by which these questions were answered.

Response: I received the questions on Wednesday, September 14, 2011. I drafted responses to the questions the following day. I discussed my responses with an official from the Department of Justice, after which I finalized my responses. I then forwarded my responses to the Department of Justice for submission to the Senate Judiciary Committee.

11. Do these answers reflect your true and personal views?

Response: Yes

Responses of Margo Kitsy Brodie
Nominee to be United States District Judge for the Eastern District of New York
to the Written Questions of Senator Amy Klobuchar

- 1. If you had to describe it, how would you characterize your judicial philosophy?
How do you see the role of the judge in our constitutional system?

Response: My judicial philosophy is that a district court judge plays a very narrow, albeit important, role in our federal court system. That role is to decide the case or controversy before the court, based on the facts before the court and the decisions of the United States Supreme Court and the Court of Appeals for the circuit in which the court sits. If confirmed, I would endeavor to fulfill that role.

- 2. What assurances can you give that litigants coming into your courtroom will be treated fairly regardless of their political beliefs or whether they are rich or poor, defendant or plaintiff?

Response: I firmly believe that everyone is entitled to equal justice under the law, without regard to political belief, economic status and social status. Throughout my legal career I have demonstrated my commitment to this principle and, in particular, have done so over the past 12 years as a federal prosecutor. If confirmed, I will continue to practice this principle by ensuring the fair, equal and courteous treatment of the parties and all who come in contact with the court.

- 3. In your opinion, how strongly should judges bind themselves to the doctrine of stare decisis? How does the commitment to stare decisis vary depending on the court?

Response: In my opinion, all judges are bound by the doctrine of stare decisis. District court judges are bound by the decisions of the United States Supreme Court and the Court of Appeals for the circuit in which they sit.

Responses of Dana L. Christensen
Nominee to be United States District Judge for the District of Montana
to the Written Questions of Senator Chuck Grassley

- 1. According to your questionnaire, your practice has been limited almost exclusively to civil litigation.

a. Please explain your experience in criminal law cases and trials?

Response: Between the years 1977 and 1981 I was appointed by U.S. District Court Judge James F. Battin to represent indigent Native American defendants from the Northern Cheyenne and Crow reservations in at least five different criminal matters pending in U.S. District Court. One of those cases proceeded to jury trial in 1978 [United States v. Springfield] where I received a directed verdict of acquittal of my client following the government's case in chief. All of the other cases were concluded through dismissals or plea agreements. I have also handled two criminal matters in state district court. One of those cases was tried to a verdict where my criminal defendant client was acquitted by the jury, and in the other one my criminal defendant client entered an Alford Plea.

b. What will you do to prepare yourself in this area? What assurances can you provide both the Committee and future litigants that your judgment on criminal matters will be informed, sound, and fair?

Response: There are significant resources that will be available to prepare me to handle the criminal docket, including training and education programs offered by the Federal Judicial Center, written publications and materials, and consultation with fellow federal judges within the Montana District. You have my assurance that I will do everything possible immediately upon assuming my duties to become proficient in this aspect of the docket so that my judgment on criminal matters will be informed, sound, and fair. I also believe my 35 years of real trial experience will aid me in this regard.

- 2. You have been an active participant in conservation matters. Given this background, will you recuse yourself in cases that may provide, at least the appearance, of a conflict? For instance, would you recuse yourself in cases involving land use, ranching, logging, and wilderness recreation?

Response: I will recuse myself in all cases that present a conflict or the appearance of a conflict. In making this determination, I will consult with the Code of Judicial Conduct, publications and guidelines of the Administrative Office of the United States Courts, and fellow judges.

My participation in conservation matters relates to my experience as a member of the Board of Trustees of the Montana Chapter of The Nature Conservancy [2003-2011], and pro bono work that I performed for the Flathead Land Trust in a single litigation matter in 2009. I have never represented The Nature Conservancy in any legal matters, and I immediately resigned from the Board of Trustees of that organization on May 5, 2011, the day following my nomination by President Obama.

In any event, I would recuse myself from any matters involving The Nature Conservancy or the Flathead Land Trust that present a conflict or the appearance of a conflict.

a. If not, please explain why not?

Response: Please see above response.

b. What, if any, assurances can you provide the committee that you can approach these issues with an open-mind and render a fair judgment?

Response: Fairness and impartiality are the hallmark of a good judge. It is my belief that all litigants are entitled to be treated fairly. I can assure you that I will adhere to the highest ethical standards as a judge, and that I will recuse myself in all cases that present a conflict or the appearance of a conflict.

3. Can you pledge to the Committee that you will treat all litigants who appear before you in a fair and non-partisan fashion?

Response: Yes.

4. What is the most important attribute of a judge, and do you possess it?

Response: There are many important attributes of a judge, including fairness, impartiality, common sense, diligence, a strong work ethic, experience, intellectual curiosity and decisiveness. I believe one of the most important attributes of a judge is humility, not just personal humility, but judicial humility which manifests itself in deciding only the narrow issue that is before the court, and by deferring to the legislative and executive branches of the government. I believe I possess these attributes.

5. Please explain your view of the appropriate temperament of a judge. What elements of judicial temperament do you consider the most important, and do you meet that standard?

Response: A judge should at all times be respectful to the parties and their attorneys, and everyone the judge comes in contact with on a daily basis, including jurors, witnesses, court personnel, law enforcement, probation and parole officers, and fellow judges. A judge should also maintain an open mind, and not decide matters until he or she has a complete record and has given the parties and their attorneys an opportunity to be fully heard. All parties, regardless of their station in life, are entitled to fairness and impartiality, respect, and an expeditious ruling on the matter before the court. I have always adhered to these standards as a practicing attorney, and you have my assurance that I will continue to do so if I am confirmed by the Senate and sworn-in as a judge.

6. In general, Supreme Court precedents are binding on all lower federal courts and Circuit Court precedents are binding on the district courts within the particular circuit. Are you committed to following the precedents of higher courts faithfully and giving them full force and effect, even if you personally disagree with such precedents?

Response: Yes.

7. At times, judges are faced with cases of first impression. If there were no controlling precedent that dispositively concluded an issue with which you were presented, to what sources would you turn for persuasive authority? What principles will guide you, or what methods will you employ, in deciding cases of first impression?

Response: In a matter of first impression, I would look first to the plain meaning of any statute I was called upon to interpret. If the statute was ambiguous, I would look to the purpose of the statute, and available legislative history. I would look for analogous law within the Court of Appeals for the Ninth Circuit or the United States Supreme Court for guidance in deciding the case. Finally, I would consider cases from other Circuit or District Courts that might have dealt with the same issue. I would exercise restraint and prudence in deciding cases of first impression.

8. What would you do if you believed the Supreme Court or the Court of Appeals had seriously erred in rendering a decision? Would you apply that decision or would you use your own judgment of the merits, or your best judgment of the merits?

Response: I would apply the decision of the Supreme Court or the Court of Appeals irrespective of whether I personally agree with that decision.

9. Under what circumstances do you believe it appropriate for a federal court to declare a statute enacted by Congress unconstitutional?

Response: A federal court should declare a statute enacted by Congress unconstitutional only where it clearly violates the United States Constitution or where Congress has clearly exceeded its constitutional boundaries. When analyzing a constitutional challenge to a statute enacted by Congress, a federal judge should apply United States Supreme Court precedent.

10. As you know, the federal courts are facing enormous pressures as their caseload mounts. If confirmed, how do you intend to manage your caseload?

Response: I intend to manage my caseload by adhering to the local Montana Federal Court practice of convening an early, substantive and meaningful preliminary pretrial conference pursuant to Rules 16 and 26 of the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure, establishing clear deadlines, and through regular status conferences with the parties and counsel. I also believe that management of the caseload is facilitated by providing the parties and their counsel with an expeditious trial setting at the time of the preliminary pretrial conference.

- 11. Do you believe that judges have a role in controlling the pace and conduct of litigation and, if confirmed, what specific steps would you take to control your docket?

Response: Yes, judges must play a role in controlling the pace and conduct of litigation. In addition to the steps outlined in response to question No. 10 above, I would endeavor to identify and anticipate problems that may arise, and take the initiative in addressing any problems or issues through status conferences with the parties and their counsel. In my 35 years of trial experience in Montana I have found that the vast majority of attorneys who practice in this state in federal court are well versed in the importance of deadlines, and prosecute and defend their cases in an appropriate and workmanlike manner. Nevertheless, the court can and should intervene when necessary.

- 12. Please describe with particularity the process by which these questions were answered.

Response: I received these questions on September 14, 2011. I drafted my answers and asked the U.S. Department of Justice to submit them on my behalf.

- 13. Do these answers reflect your true and personal views?

Response: Yes.

Responses of Dana L. Christensen

to the Written Questions of Senator Amy Klobuchar

- 1. If you had to describe it, how would you characterize your judicial philosophy?
How do you see the role of the judge in our constitutional system?

Response: My judicial philosophy is that a judge has an absolute responsibility to adhere to the rule of law and follow judicial precedent, irrespective of one's personal beliefs. A judge should also possess personal humility, and exercise judicial humility in deciding only the narrow issue that is before the court, and by deferring to the legislative and executive branches of the government.

- 2. What assurances can you give that litigants coming into your courtroom will be treated fairly regardless of their political beliefs or whether they are rich or poor, defendant or plaintiff?

Response: I assure you that all litigants, regardless of their station in life, will be treated fairly and impartially in my court if I am confirmed by the United States Senate and sworn-in as a judge. A judge must approach all cases with an open mind, with respect to the parties and their counsel, and to not decide matters until he or she has a complete record, and given the parties and their attorneys a full and complete opportunity to be heard.

- 3. In your opinion, how strongly should judges bind themselves to the doctrine of stare decisis? How does the commitment to stare decisis vary depending on the court?

Response: I believe it is the solemn duty of a judge to apply the law as it has been set forth in the United States Constitution, in statutes or in legal precedents, and to be bound by the doctrine of stare decisis. This duty and commitment does not vary depending on the court.

Responses of Gina M. Groh

Nominee to be United States District Judge for the Northern District of West Virginia to the Written Questions of Senator Charles Grassley

- 1. At your hearing, you said that if confirmed you would give deference to the Sentencing Guidelines, and you appeared to recognize that sentencing disparity for similarly situated defendants is problematic. Under what circumstances would you be inclined to depart from the Guidelines?

Response: If confirmed, I would consider a departure as provided in the Sentencing Guidelines and as indicated by applicable Supreme Court and Fourth Circuit precedent.

- 2. I understand the State of West Virginia does not have the death penalty. As a federal district court judge, however, you may have to preside over a death penalty case. Do you have any doubts about your ability to uphold and enforce the federal death penalty statute?

Response: I have no doubts about my ability to uphold and enforce the federal death penalty statute.

- 3. Do you believe that the death penalty is an acceptable form of punishment?

Response: The federal death penalty is an appropriate form of punishment under the circumstances prescribed by the Supreme Court and I would enforce it when applicable.

- 4. In Roper v. Simmons, the Supreme Court relied on foreign law in holding that the execution of minors violated the Eighth Amendment. Do you think it is proper to look to foreign law to determine the meaning of the Eighth Amendment to the United States Constitution?

Response: I believe the U.S. Constitution, including the Eighth Amendment, should not be interpreted through foreign law. I would not look to foreign law to determine the meaning of the Constitution, except as directed by the Supreme Court.

- 5. In a campaign advertisement, you said: “as one of only three female circuit judges in our state, I bring a unique perspective and energy to the bench.”

- a. In your personal view, how does or should the gender of a judge affect the decision making process?

Response: The gender of a judge should not affect her decision making process. My statement in the campaign literature was based on the fact that as a young, professional woman effectively balancing my career and family, I possessed the stamina, diligence and organizational skills necessary to manage a busy docket.

- b. If a judge permits his or her own personal experiences to influence decisions, do you believe the judge is living up to the responsibility to remain fair and neutral?

Response: No. A judge must not allow her personal opinions or experiences to influence her decisions. Rather, her decisions should be based solely on the facts in evidence and the application of legal precedent.

- c. During her confirmation hearings, Justice Sotomayor rejected President Obama's so-called "empathy standard" stating, "We apply the law to facts. We don't apply feelings to facts." Do you agree with Justice Sotomayor? Please explain.

Response: Yes, I agree that judges should apply the law to facts, not their feelings. This is the impartiality standard required of judges and that is the standard that I have followed as a state court judge.

- 6. Do you believe it is ever appropriate for a Judge to consult foreign law, when determining the meaning of the United States Constitution?

Response: No. I do not believe judges should ever consult foreign law when determining the meaning of the United States Constitution, except as directed by the Supreme Court.

- 7. What is the most important attribute of a judge, and do you possess it?

Response: The most important attribute of a judge is fairness. A judge must treat all parties equally with regard to the amount of respect given to them and in the decisions she renders. A judge must attentively and carefully consider all of the evidence and arguments with an open mind and, thereafter, impartially decide a case solely upon the application of legal precedent to the facts. This is what I currently do as a state court judge.

- 8. Please explain your view of the appropriate temperament of a judge. What elements of judicial temperament do you consider the most important, and do you meet that standard?

Response: A judge must be even-tempered, courteous, patient and humble. She must treat all individuals respectfully and require that they treat each other the same. She must also conduct herself in a manner befitting the judiciary inside and outside of the courtroom. Most importantly, a judge must not be guided by passion, but rather, must be guided by the law. My temperament as a state court judge demonstrates that I strive to conduct myself according to my view of the appropriate judicial temperament.

- 9. In general, Supreme Court precedents are binding on all lower federal courts and Circuit Court precedents are binding on the district courts within the particular circuit. Are you committed to following the precedents of higher courts faithfully and giving them full force and effect, even if you personally disagree with such precedents?

Response: I am fully committed to following the precedents of higher courts faithfully, giving them full force and effect, regardless of my personal views. A judge cannot be guided in her legal decisions by passion, personal opinion or any opinion that is contrary to legal precedent.

10. At times, judges are faced with cases of first impression. If there were no controlling precedent that dispositively concluded an issue with which you were presented, to what sources would you turn for persuasive authority? What principles will guide you, or what methods will you employ, in deciding cases of first impression?

Response: In cases of first impression, I would first look to the plain and ordinary meaning of the statute or Constitution. If necessary, I would research the legislative history of a statute. I would also look to prior rulings of the U.S. Supreme Court and the Fourth Circuit Court of Appeals in cases that had similar fact patterns or issues. If there were none, I would research if there were rulings from other federal courts in similar cases to obtain some guidance.

11. What would you do if you believed the Supreme Court or the Court of Appeals had seriously erred in rendering a decision? Would you apply that decision or would you use your own judgment of the merits, or your best judgment of the merits?

Response: I would apply the legal precedent established in the decision, regardless of my personal opinions.

12. Under what circumstances do you believe it appropriate for a federal court to declare a statute enacted by Congress unconstitutional?

Response: If Congress exceeded its authority under the Constitution, it is appropriate for a federal court to declare a statute enacted by Congress unconstitutional.

13. As you know, the federal courts are facing enormous pressures as their caseload mounts. If confirmed, how do you intend to manage your caseload?

Response: If confirmed, my staff and I would first meet with the judge handling the docket and the clerk of court and review the court's calendar and case management system so I understood the status of the docket. Thereafter, I would continue to review the case management system on a regular basis to make sure nothing was overlooked and the cases were moving forward according to applicable timelines and as expeditiously as possible. In addition, I would set firm, yet reasonable deadlines and render timely decisions. I would also encourage mediation where cost effective. Finally, I would prepare for court ahead of time by reviewing the electronic case files and pending motions and by researching anticipated legal issues so that I could make the most effective use of in-court time.

14. Do you believe that judges have a role in controlling the pace and conduct of litigation and, if confirmed, what specific steps would you take to control your docket?

Response: I believe judges have a role in controlling the pace and conduct of litigation through effective case management and docket control. Therefore, I would follow the case management strategy outlined in the preceding question number thirteen. I believe that a judge's role in controlling the pace and conduct of litigation is to ensure that all matters reach final disposition as soon as practicable, in order for the parties to achieve finality in the most time efficient and cost effective manner.

15. Please describe with particularity the process by which these questions were answered.

Response: I carefully reviewed the questions submitted. After reflection, I answered them and forwarded my written responses to the Department of Justice for review and submission to the Senate Judiciary Committee.

16. Do these answers reflect your true and personal views?

Response: Yes.

Responses of Gina M. Groh

To the Written Questions of Senator Amy Klobuchar

- 1. If you had to describe it, how would you characterize your judicial philosophy?
How do you see the role of the judge in our constitutional system?

Response: My judicial philosophy is that a judge must be fair, even tempered, courteous and respectful to all parties and require that all parties treat each other and the court with the same respect and courtesy. A judge must also render timely decisions and work hard to keep her docket up to date and to keep herself apprised of current law. The role of a judge in our constitutional system is not to be a judicial activist or interject her personal views into her decisions. A judge must listen attentively to all of the evidence in a case with an open mind and render a fair and impartial decision based solely on the facts and applicable legal precedent.

- 2. What assurances can you give that litigants coming into your courtroom will be treated fairly regardless of their political beliefs or whether they are rich or poor, defendant or plaintiff?

Response: As a state court judge for nearly five years and a prosecutor before that, I earned a reputation for treating all litigants who come into the courtroom fairly and equally, regardless of their political beliefs, economic status, race, ethnicity or status as a defendant or plaintiff. I have never decided a case for or against a party or attorney as individuals, but decide every case solely upon the facts and the applicable law. If confirmed, I will continue to be ever mindful of my oath to uphold the law and will continue to treat everyone who comes before me fairly.

- 3. In your opinion, how strongly should judges bind themselves to the doctrine of stare decisis? How does the commitment to stare decisis vary depending on the court?

Response: Judges must follow legal precedent. The commitment to stare decisis should not vary depending on the court. All courts are bound to follow legal precedent for the sake of uniformity and to ensure that decisions are guided by the law, instead of by an individual judge's personal opinion as to what the law or outcome should be in a case.

Responses of Evan J. Wallach
Nominee to be United States Circuit Judge for the Federal Circuit
to the Written Questions of Senator Chuck Grassley

1. At your hearing, I asked you about the Federal Circuit’s 1999 decision in Lachance v. White, where it held that a whistleblower had to present “irrefragable proof” that wrongdoing actually occurred in order to prove the claim. You indicated that, as you understand it, the “irrefragable proof” standard is “very high” and essentially means that the whistleblower must present evidence that “cannot be refuted.” I indicated that I would like you to provide more robust written answers regarding this issue. Please review the statute and case authority, and provide answers to these questions.

a. What is your understanding of the “irrefragable proof” standard?

Response: I examined Lachance and cases upon which it relies, as well as several other cases. The CAFC relied in Lachance on Alaska Airlines v. Johnson. Johnson was one of a line of federal contracting cases that discussed the evidence needed to rebut a presumption that public officers perform their duties correctly, fairly, and in good faith. Based on reading those cases, I understand “irrefragable proof” to mean “clear and convincing evidence” as articulated in Am-Pro Protective Agency v. U.S. where the CAFC clarified what it characterized as “some confusion” about the use of the phrase “irrefragable proof.”

b. What evidence must the whistleblower present in order to meet the standard?

Response: My understanding is that the whistleblower must present clear and convincing evidence, a standard which is more than a preponderance of the evidence, but less than “beyond a reasonable doubt.” See, Am-Pro Protective Agency v. U.S.

c. Based on your review, do you believe Lachance is consistent with the text and intent of the statute? (Please answer this question independently of whether you believe stare decisis would compel you to apply the standard.)

Response: Lachance applies certain presumptions to performance by public officers of their duties and holds that rebuttal of those presumptions requires “irrefragable evidence.” The existence of those presumptions is based on the case authority discussed above. The word “irrefragable” is not found in the statute. I think it would be inappropriate for me to make any more specific comment in case the issue arises in front of me.

2. At your hearing, I asked about your experience in the areas listed below. Though you provided an answer, it was brief (given the time constraints of the hearing). Please take this opportunity to identify what experience you have with these issues.

a. Patent law.

Response: I sat by designation as a district judge in Nevada in a two week jury trial in a patent infringement. The jury found that the plaintiff had infringed on the defendant's patents related to a system of networked gaming devices and awarded $1.5 million in damages.

b. Trademark law.

Response: As counsel for Nevada media entities, including newspapers and outdoor advertisers, and for Nevada hotel/casinos, I dealt with a number of trademark issues, such as use of similar casino names, over my time in practice.

c. Government contracts.

Response: As Brigade JAG for Nevada's Battle Born Brigade, I reviewed and occasionally participated in the negotiation of contracts. I also studied government contracting in the JAG Advanced Course.

d. Claims against the government.

Response: I represented a government owned contractor operated entity as one of numerous defendants in a radiation cancer case. The defense was based on sophisticated analysis of government contractor liability. I also represented military personnel before administrative boards and, where necessary, challenged those findings on appeal.

3. In PS Chez Sidney, LLC v. U.S. Intern. Trade Com'n, 30 C.I.T. 858 (2006), you held the Byrd Amendment to the Continued Dumping and Subsidy Offset Act (CDSOA) of 2000 violated the First Amendment, and therefore struck it down as unconstitutional. The Byrd Amendment requires an affected domestic producer to indicate they support the anti-dumping petition in order to be eligible to receive offset distributions under the CDSOA.

The Federal Circuit, in a 2 to 1 decision, essentially overruled your decision in an appeal from a similar case, holding that the Byrd Amendment neither violated the First Amendment nor the Equal Protection clause.¹ The Federal Circuit held the Amendment regulated commercial speech, which subjected it to a lower level of scrutiny. Do you agree with the Federal Circuit's decision in SFK USA, Inc. v. U.S. Customs and Border Protection? Please explain why or why not?

¹ See SFK USA, Inc. v. U.S. Customs and Border Protection, 556 F.3d 1337 (2009)

Response: Given that PS Chez Sidney is still before me in the CIT, and on appeal to the CAFC, I believe it would be inappropriate for me to comment on any issues related to the case.

4. Your academic writings have focused on the Law of War. You have argued that waterboarding constitutes torture; that procedures initially afforded detainees in military tribunals violated the Geneva Conventions; and that the Bush Administration erred in determining Al Qaeda and Taliban detainees were not protected by the Geneva Conventions. The Federal Circuit has a limited jurisdiction, and if confirmed, it is unlikely that you will decide cases on these issues. Nevertheless, when you authored these writings, you were serving as a federal judge. Do you think your writings were an appropriate action for a sitting federal judge?

Response: I considered Canon 4 before and while writing any articles, and on occasion consulted the Code of Conduct Committee, Committee Counsel, and counsel at the Administrative Office of the U.S. Courts. I did my best to present material fairly and dispassionately, and I thought the articles contributed to the law, the legal system and the administration of justice.

5. In 1992, prior to your appointment to the bench, you authored an opinion piece entitled, President's Much Ballyhooed Foreign-Policy Prowess and Illusion. In the article, you questioned President George H.W. Bush's foreign affairs credentials, including the role he played in the fall of the Soviet Union and his execution of the Iraq War. You wrote, the "factual history of any event or policy, the truth or falsity of any statement, seems to have no bearing on what the Republicans are willing to say." Again, these issues are unlikely to arise in your court, if confirmed. And I recognize you authored this article prior to your appointment to the federal bench. Nonetheless, this statement appears to be rather partisan for a judge.

- a. Do you think this statement demonstrates appropriate judicial temperament? Do you still stand by it?

Response: If I had said it as a judge, the statement would not demonstrate appropriate judicial temperament. I wrote it as the lawyer for the Nevada Democratic Party at the request of a local newspaper which had a politically conservative editorial page and wanted an argument from the Democratic side. I would not write a statement like that as a judge, and I would not stand by it today.

- b. Can you appreciate that some may view this statement as evidence that you have pre-judged the credibility of an entire class of potential litigants? Can you provide any examples from your judicial record that demonstrate this is not the case?

Response: If anyone thought I ever prejudged any group in any fashion I would deeply regret it. I believe my entire judicial record demonstrates my commitment to judicial neutrality and actual and apparent fairness. I take very seriously my oath to do equal justice, and I strive to let all sides have a complete opportunity to convince me of the merits of their case. One of my goals in any case is to decide cases in a way such that the parties feel, win or lose, that they got a fair shake.

- c. Can you pledge to the Committee that you will treat all litigants who appear before you in a fair and non-partisan fashion?

Response: Yes

- 6. What is the most important attribute of a judge, and do you possess it?

Response: Commitment to fundamental rule of law principles, including predictability, uniformity, transparency, neutrality and stare decisis. I believe I do possess that commitment, and I have argued to foreign judges that they should adopt it.

- 7. Please explain your view of the appropriate temperament of a judge. What elements of judicial temperament do you consider the most important, and do you meet that standard?

Response: The important elements of judicial temperament are that a judge should be neutral to all litigants, appreciate the serious nature of their claims and how important they are to the parties, work to understand the parties' positions and the authorities underlying them, be able to act as an efficient case manager while still giving a full opportunity to develop and try a case, and be able to limit and control the tension inherent in any courtroom where attorneys and their clients passionately believe in their cause. On an appellate bench a judge should also be able to work collegially and efficiently with other judges while articulating what that judge believes is the correct result as a matter of law. I believe I meet that standard.

- 8. In general, Supreme Court precedents are binding on all lower federal courts and Circuit Court precedents are binding on the district courts within the particular circuit. Are you committed to following the precedents of higher courts faithfully and giving them full force and effect, even if you personally disagree with such precedents?

Response: Yes

- 9. At times, judges are faced with cases of first impression. If there were no controlling precedent that dispositively concluded an issue with which you were presented, to what sources would you turn for persuasive authority? What principles will guide you, or what methods will you employ, in deciding cases of first impression?

Response: In a case of first impression I would give the parties a full opportunity to brief the matter and, where appropriate, I would encourage the filing of amicus briefs. Once fully briefed, I would examine all authorities cited by the parties, as well as statutory law on point. If I felt legislative or agency intent was clear, and no Constitutional or legal issues were raised, I would attempt to apply the law as intended. If a statute or regulation was unclear or was not at issue, I would review analogous case law in the Supreme Court and the Federal Circuit, followed, when necessary, by consideration of other case precedent.

10. What would you do if you believed the Supreme Court had seriously erred in rendering a decision? Would you apply that decision or would you use your own judgment of the merits, or your best judgment of the merits?

Response: I am bound by Supreme Court precedent and will continue to be so.

11. Under what circumstances do you believe it appropriate for a federal court to declare a statute enacted by Congress unconstitutional?

A federal court should declare unconstitutional a statute that violates the clear provisions of the U.S. Constitution, where the statute cannot be interpreted to apply, or is not applied, in a constitutional manner.

12. Under what circumstances, if any, do you believe an appellate court should overturn precedent within the circuit? What factors would you consider, in making this decision?

Response: I would uphold all Federal Circuit precedent unless the precedent is overruled by the Supreme Court or by the Federal Circuit en banc.

a. Do you believe the Federal Circuit should revisit its holding in Lachance?

Response: Given that the question of whether to grant a rehearing of Lachance en banc might come before me for a vote if I was on the CAFC, and I believe I would have to disqualify myself if I had expressed a previous opinion as to the outcome of such a vote, it would be inappropriate for me to comment on that issue.

13. Please describe with particularity the process by which these questions were answered.

Response: I thought about each question, drafted notes of each area where I should do further research, read Lachance v. White, and cases which cited it, and then prepared these answers in draft. I reviewed my draft answers with attorneys from the Office of Legal Policy of the Department of Justice, and then submitted them.

14. Do these answers reflect your true and personal views?

Response: Yes.

Responses of Evan J. Wallach
Nominee to be United States Circuit Judge for the Federal Circuit
to the Written Questions of Senator Amy Klobuchar

- 1. If you had to describe it, how would you characterize your judicial philosophy?
How do you see the role of the judge in our constitutional system?

Response: I would characterize my judicial philosophy as devotion to rule of law. I see the role of the judge in our constitutional system as one of a principled, neutral, interpreter of law as articulated by the Constitution and the Congress.

- 2. What assurances can you give that litigants coming into your courtroom will be treated fairly regardless of their political beliefs or whether they are rich or poor, defendant or plaintiff?

Response: The assurance I can give is that I take the oath of office very seriously, and have devoted myself to fair treatment of all litigants appearing before me over my sixteen years on the bench.

- 3. In your opinion, how strongly should judges bind themselves to the doctrine of stare decisis? How does the commitment to stare decisis vary depending on the court?

Response: The stare decisis doctrine is of core importance to rule of law, and I believe all judges should bind themselves to it subject only to principled reconsideration. The only variance by court is that binding law may change based upon a ruling by a superior court, or that the law itself may change, necessitating the principled reconsideration I mentioned above.

Statement of Senator Charles Grassley

Before the Committee on the Judiciary

On the Nominations of:

*Judge Evan Jonathan Wallach, to be United States Circuit Judge for the Federal Circuit
Cathy Ann Bencivengo, to be United States District Judge for the Southern District of California
Margo Kitsy Brodie, to be United States District Judge for the Eastern District of New York
Dana L. Christensen, to be United States District Judge for the District of Montana Gina Marie Groh, to be United States District Judge for the Northern District of West Virginia*

September 7, 2011

Mr. Chairman,

I join you in welcoming the nominees who are here today with their families and friends.

This week, we confirmed another nominee to the federal judiciary. We have now confirmed 34 nominees this Congress. We have taken positive action, in one way or another, on 78% of the judicial nominees submitted during this Congress. So we continue to move forward, as I indicated I would do, on consensus nominees.

On today's agenda are four District Court nominations, and a United States Circuit Judge for the Federal Circuit.

The Federal Circuit is unique among the Courts of Appeals. It is not geographical based but has nationwide subject matter jurisdiction in designated areas. In addition to international trade, the Court hears cases on patents, trademarks, government contracts, certain money claims against the United States government, veterans' benefits, and public safety officers' benefits claims.

Of particular interest to me, the U.S. Court of Appeals for the Federal Circuit has exclusive jurisdiction over cases related to federal personnel matters. That includes exclusive jurisdiction over appeals from the Merit Systems Protection Board (MSPB) which hears whistleblower cases under the whistleblower protection act.

Mr. Chairman, I will not take the time here to repeat the full biographical information on our nominees, but again, I welcome them, congratulate them on their nominations, and look forward to their testimony.

Thank you, Mr. Chairman, for your courtesy. I will insert the balance of my statement into the record.

Evan Jonathan Wallach is nominated to be United States Circuit Judge for the Federal Circuit. Since 1995, he has served as a Judge on the U.S. Court of International Trade. From 1976 to 1995, he was an associate, then partner, with Lionel Sawyer & Collins. Judge Wallach has also served as an Adjunct Law Professor at Brooklyn Law School, the New York Law School, George Mason University Law School, and was a visiting professor at the University of Muenster. Statement of Senator John D. Rockefeller IV
Hearing before the Senate Committee on the Judiciary
On the Nomination of Gina Marie Groh
To be United States District Judge for the Northern District of West Virginia
September 7, 2011

Senator Whitehouse and distinguished members of the Judiciary Committee, it is an honor to be able to speak today on behalf of Judge Gina Marie Groh to serve as a U.S. District Judge for the Northern District of West Virginia.

This is a very important nomination for the people of West Virginia and the residents of the Eastern Panhandle in particular. It is also deeply personal to me.

This seat has been vacant since the passing of my dear friend, Judge W. Craig Broadwater, in 2006. Consequently, the Eastern Panhandle of West Virginia has been without a federal judge for the past five years.

Since Judge Broadwater's untimely death, the other judges in the district have stepped up and shown tremendous effort to handle the caseload, but after such a long vacancy, it is time for this position to be filled. Justice requires that our federal bench be fully staffed with the most highly-qualified individuals – and Judge Groh is absolutely the right person for the job.

She is a supremely talented lawyer, a meticulous student of the law, a proven leader in her community, and although a native of Maryland, she is a West Virginian through and through.

But most importantly, she is unrelenting in her commitment and dedication to upholding the principles of fairness and justice that are the foundation of our judicial system. This is something that we must demand of all judicial nominees. Some people like to talk about these principles, but Judge Groh lives them every day. That is why I was so very proud to recommend her to President Obama for this position.

One of her most impressive qualities is her willingness to stand up for those who are most in need of legal help. After spending nine years honing essential trial skills as a litigation associate at several firms in West Virginia, Washington, D.C., and Maryland, Judge Groh returned to West Virginia to protect the public as an assistant prosecutor in Berkeley and Jefferson Counties.

There, she prosecuted some of the toughest cases imaginable – murder, kidnapping, robbery, and sexual assault – and defended the rights of people who have been victimized by these terrible crimes.

And like Judge Broadwater before her, Judge Groh will bring a wealth of judicial experience to the federal bench. In 2006, she was appointed to fill a newly-created state trial court position by my colleague, then-Governor Manchin.

With a reputation for having a great judicial temperament, being well-prepared for cases, and treating all litigants with fairness and respect, she earned the confidence of the people of West Virginia and was elected to serve a full term in Berkeley, Jefferson, and Morgan Counties.

If confirmed, Judge Groh will be ready for the job on day one. She knows how to run a courtroom efficiently and effectively, she knows what it is like to have to make tough decisions and issue weighty opinions, and she has a clear and strong record of using her legal skills for the betterment of her fellow citizens.

There is no question that President Obama made the right decision when he nominated her – and it is my hope that the Senate will move forward quickly to confirm this supremely qualified nominee.

In closing, I would like to congratulate Judge Groh on her nomination and thank the Judiciary Committee and its staff for all of your hard work in helping to fulfill the Senate's important Constitutional duty to provide Advice and Consent to judicial nominees. I know that it requires a tremendous amount of work, and I want to let you know that I deeply appreciate your efforts.

U.S. SENATE,
COMMITTEE ON THE JUDICIARY,
Washington, DC.

The Committee met, pursuant to notice, at 2:32 p.m., in room SD-226, Dirksen Senate Office Building, Hon. Amy Klobuchar, presiding.

Present: Senators Klobuchar, Hatch, and Lee.

OPENING STATEMENT OF HON. AMY KLOBUCHAR, A U.S.
SENATOR FROM THE STATE OF MINNESOTA

Senator KLOBUCHAR. I am pleased to call this nominations hearing of the Senate Committee on the Judiciary to order. Our Ranking Member today is Senator Hatch, and I know we have several members here to speak, to introduce. We have five judicial nominees today, so I would like to call upon my colleagues to introduce the nominees from their home State. We will start with Senator Nelson of Nebraska.

PRESENTATION OF JOHN M. GERRARD, NOMINEE TO BE DIS-TRICT JUDGE FOR THE DISTRICT OF NEBRASKA, BY HON.
BEN NELSON, A U.S. SENATOR FROM THE STATE OF NE-BRASKA

Senator NELSON of Nebraska. Thank you, Madam Chair. It is truly my honor to join with my colleague, Senator Johanns, and introduce Nebraska's Supreme Court Justice John Gerrard, who has been nominated by the President for the U.S. District Court for Nebraska.

I have known John and Nancy Gerrard and their family for nearly 20 years. I saw in him the experience, intellect, and temperament needed to serve on the Nebraska Supreme Court bench. So as Governor, I appointed John Gerrard to the Nebraska Supreme Court in 1995. The people of Nebraska have approved of his service and voted to retain Judge Gerrard on our State's highest court three times.

He has consistently received top ratings by the Nebraska Bar Association in its biennial judicial evaluations. In 2006, Judge Gerrard received the Distinguished Judge for Improvement of the Judicial System Award for leading initiatives promoting racial and ethnic fairness under the law. In 2008, Judge Gerrard received the Legal Pioneer Award for utilizing technology to improve Nebraska citizens' understanding and participation in our courts.

On the Nebraska Supreme Court, Judge Gerrard has authored more than 400 opinions. Other opinions written by Judge Gerrard have helped refine protocol for how many different types of cases are handled, including evidence requirements in homicide cases, how expert testimony is received, and clarifying duty analysis in negligence cases.

Prior to his service on the Nebraska Supreme Court, Judge Gerrard was senior partner in the law firm of Gerrard, Stratton & Ptak in Norfolk, where he was in private practice for 14 years. He also served as the Battle Creek city attorney, as counsel to Northeast Community College, Norfolk Public Schools, and other north-east Nebraska school districts.

I thank the members of the Senate, Madam Chair, Ranking Member Hatch, and Senator Lee, for considering this extremely well qualified nominee for the Federal bench. It is my hope the Committee will report out Judge Gerrard's nomination soon and that the full Senate will have the opportunity to swiftly approve this good man.

Senator KLOBUCHAR. Very good.

Now Senator Johanns from Nebraska.

PRESENTATION OF JOHN M. GERRARD, NOMINEE TO BE DISTRICT JUDGE FOR THE DISTRICT OF NEBRASKA, BY HON. MIKE JOHANNNS, A U.S. SENATOR FROM THE STATE OF NEBRASKA

Senator JOHANNNS. Madam Chair, thank you very much. It is an honor for me to appear before this Committee. Let me, if I might, start this afternoon by saying thank you to my colleague from Nebraska, Senator Ben Nelson, and I definitely want to associate myself with the comments that he has just made.

As we all know, Senator Nelson and I occupy different sides of the aisle, but I will tell you we both agree that the exceptional record and the experience of Judge Gerrard makes him an excellent candidate for the Federal Bench.

Madam Chair, this is exactly as a nomination should occur. Before the nomination was even announced, Senator Nelson called me and he said, "Here is what I am thinking about. I am thinking about Judge Gerrard for this U.S. district court position. Would you take the time to sit down and visit with him?" So I did. So before any nomination was talked about publicly, I had an opportunity to go to the judge's Supreme Court office, and we talked.

Of course, I have known him also for many, many years. I have always been impressed with his temperament, his background, his judicial philosophy, his record, and I could not more enthusiastically support this nomination. In fact, I was saying to my colleague as we were preparing to come into the hearing room, if I were king for a day, this is the kind of person I would nominate to the U.S. district court. So I appreciate being a part of this process.

Judge Gerrard embodies integrity, judicial restraint, thoughtful fairness. He is a class act in every way, and he is absolutely the right person for this job.

During his 16 years on the Nebraska Supreme Court, he has conducted himself in every way with great distinction. And every time his colleagues in the legal profession had an opportunity to rate him, they gave him the highest ratings.

So I am very pleased to be here today. It is my hope that the Committee will agree with our assessment, vote him to the floor, and I want to assure the Chair and the Ranking Member I will do everything I possibly can to try to bring his nomination to a vote. It is critical that we fill this district court position.

Thank you.

Senator KLOBUCHAR. Thank you very much.

Senator McCaskill of Missouri.

PRESENTATION OF MARY ELIZABETH PHILLIPS, NOMINEE TO BE DISTRICT JUDGE FOR THE WESTERN DISTRICT OF MISSOURI, BY HON. CLAIRE MCCASKILL, A U.S. SENATOR FROM THE STATE OF MISSOURI

Senator MCCASKILL. Thank you, Madam Chairwoman. I am honored today to be here to introduce Beth Phillips as a nominee for the Western District Court of Missouri. I had the pleasure of hiring Beth Phillips as a young assistant prosecutor many years ago, back in the 1990s, and I have watched her career, as has the rest of the bench and bar in Missouri, with a great deal of pride.

When I used to be in the courtroom—and I know I probably can get some “me, too’s” on this from the members of this Committee—nothing was more frustrating than having a judge presiding over a trial that it was fairly clear they had never been in a trial. And those people who do work in a courtroom know how great it is to have someone on the bench that understands exactly what it is like to be at the bar and to be arguing for your case and all of the challenges and frustrations that go with that.

This is a woman who has tried over 40 cases in the courtroom; 90 percent of those were jury trials. She has tried those cases both as a prosecutor and as a civil litigant. She was appointed to be the U.S. Attorney for the Western District 2 years ago and was unanimously confirmed by the Senate 2 years ago. And since that time, she has overseen a staff of 126 employees, including 67 lawyers, in the Western District of Missouri as the U.S. Attorney.

You know, whenever you have been involved in trying to help someone in their career, many times you get calls from—and I have got a lot of former friends and colleagues that practice law in the Kansas City area, and I will be honest with you. There have been times that I have gotten calls about this person or that person that were not always positive, like, you know, "That person you hired is an idiot," or, "I am really irritated at that person." And it is unbelievable to me the way that this woman's leadership has been greeted by both the judiciary and the litigants in the greater Kansas City area and in the Western District of Missouri.

She is an undergraduate from the University of Chicago and a master's from the University of Chicago, and then she got some sense and came home and got her law degree in Missouri. She is a native Missourian, and I do not know how many generations of her family have been in Missouri, but she was born in a very small town in rural Missouri. And so when we went to the swearing-in as U.S. Attorney, I think half of her hometown was there. It was a moment of great pride for this very small community that she had reached this zenith.

I think she is ready to take this lifetime appointment for so many reasons. It will be a two-judge family. Her husband is here with her today, Brent Powell, who was appointed to the State bench by my colleague's son, Governor Matt Blunt, when he was Governor. And I do not get into politics at these things. I do not think you should. But I think it tells you the kind of people these are that I am pushing for the appointment of Beth Phillips as a Federal judge when the man who defeated me for Governor appointed her husband as a State judge. I think that is the kind of bipartisanship we all long for in this body and certainly that we hope to get on the Federal judiciary. And I think that she will call balls and strikes. She will let people try their cases. She will not impose her judgment in terms of any bias she has on any matter of policy into the courtroom, and she will be the kind of Federal judge that will make us proud as the U.S. Senate and will do justice to our great Constitution and the system of checks and balances that it embraces.

I would ask for favorable consideration from the Committee today for her appointment. Thank you, Madam Chairman.

Senator KLOBUCHAR. Thank you very much, Senator McCaskill, and that is a lot of good information for us to have. We enjoyed that.

Now we will turn from the Midwest to Florida. I think Senator Rubio was here first, and—you want Senator Nelson? Very nice. Senator Nelson, oh, my goodness, Senator Nelson will go first, and we are pleased to have both of you here on behalf of the Florida nominee.

PRESENTATION OF ADALBERTO JOSE JORDAN, NOMINEE TO BE CIRCUIT JUDGE FOR THE ELEVENTH CIRCUIT, BY HON. BILL NELSON, A U.S. SENATOR FROM THE STATE OF FLORIDA

Senator NELSON of Florida. Well, this reminds me who is the senior Senator and who is the junior Senator. When Bob Graham was my senior Senator, he always expected me to serve him coffee.

[Laughter.]

Senator RUBIO. I will be right back.

[Laughter.]

Senator NELSON of Florida. Well, the two of us are here unanimous because this is an excellent appointee by the President, and we urge upon the Committee for quick confirmation for the Eleventh Circuit Court of Appeals.

Madam Chairman, Judge Jordan will end up being the first Cuban American to sit on the court of appeals. That is significant in itself, but when you look at his life, all the way from being magna cum laude, the fact that he was a walk-on at the University of Miami baseball team and made the team, the fact that he was an Assistant U.S. Attorney and served with distinction there and then was picked by President Clinton to be a Federal district judge, so he has been a judge now for well over a decade. And among all of his peers have had nothing but glowing comments once the President made his decision.

And so this is a great day, and I want to just shorten my comments so that my colleague—and you are very kind—can say something about the historical significance of judge Jordan's nomination.

Senator KLOBUCHAR. Very good. Thank you.
Senator Rubio.

PRESENTATION OF ADALBERTO JOSE JORDAN, NOMINEE TO BE CIRCUIT JUDGE FOR THE ELEVENTH CIRCUIT, BY HON. MARCO RUBIO, A U.S. SENATOR FROM THE STATE OF FLORIDA

Senator RUBIO. Thank you, and I will also be brief because I think his experience and his resume will speak for itself. I just want to echo a few things.

First of all, obviously as a community we are very proud of Judge Jordan's nomination and look forward to his appointment.

I would add a couple things. He is, as I am, a law school graduate from the University of Miami. He is a double Hurricane, I should say, because also his bachelor's degree was from there. He has been serving for 12 years on the bench in the U.S. District Court for the Southern District of Florida. At the time of his appointment, he was only 37 years old. He remains very active in our community. He is involved in teaching both at the University of Miami School of Law and at a newer place that is really growing rapidly, the Florida National University College of Law as well.

I think his knowledge of the law is demonstrated further in part by his work as the chief of the Appellate Division in the Office of the U.S. Attorney for the Southern District of Florida, which is a very active district in his time there practicing as an attorney. He spent time as a clerk at the U.S. Supreme Court for Justice Sandra Day O'Connor, and he has served as a clerk to Judge Thomas Clark of the Eleventh Circuit Court of Appeals. So I am obviously honored and proud to be here introducing him to the Committee, and I look forward to your full consideration of his nomination.

Thank you.

Senator KLOBUCHAR. Thank you very much. Thank you both for coming, and we look forward to hearing from your nominee.

Now we turn to the State of Utah with my colleague here, Senator Hatch, for an introduction.

PRESENTATION OF DAVID NUFFER, NOMINEE TO BE DISTRICT JUDGE FOR THE DISTRICT OF UTAH, BY HON. ORRIN G. HATCH, A U.S. SENATOR FROM THE STATE OF UTAH

Senator HATCH. Well, thank you, Madam Chairman. We are very happy, and I was very pleased to sit here with you and I am honored to be with you on this panel today.

I am very pleased to introduce to the Committee Chief U.S. Magistrate Judge David Nuffer, and I want to congratulate President Obama for choosing him as the nominee to the U.S. District Court in Utah.

After receiving his undergraduate and law degrees from Brigham Young University, Judge Nuffer spent 24 years in private legal practice. He has served for 16 years as the U.S. magistrate judge, half of those years part-time and half full-time. He has been the chief U.S. magistrate judge for the District of Utah since 2009, and as a lawyer, he practiced both in the criminal prosecution area and criminal defense, and he has tried more than 150 cases to verdict, which is more than most people who come before this body.

I am not surprised that the American Bar Association unanimously gave him its highest well-qualified rating. In fact, I would have been upset if they had not.

Judge Nuffer is widely known in Utah's legal community, and he is just as widely respected. I have talked to numerous lawyers in Utah, lawyers that I have tremendous respect for, and to a person, they all believe that he will be one of the great judges in this country.

He has not only practiced law, but he has served the law as well as both a commissioner and as president of the Utah State Bar. He has served on various committees and task forces of the Utah Supreme Court and is Chairman of the Utah Judicial Conduct Commission. And for more than a decade, Judge Nuffer has been an adjunct professor at his law school alma mater.

But his service to the law extends beyond our borders. Judge Nuffer has lectured to judges, lawyers, and law students in countries as far afield as Brazil, Egypt, and Ukraine, and serves on the board of the Leavitt Institute for International Development.

As my colleagues know, I chair the Senate Republican High-Tech Task Force and have for many years been involved in efforts to reform the patent system. I therefore took particular notice of Judge Nuffer's love of technology and the promise that it holds for the legal system. In one of his many articles and blog postings, he wrote, "Technology is a leveler that puts us all in touch, reduces the distance from the courthouse, and leverages our abilities." I cannot agree more.

When he is confirmed, as I know he will be, Judge Nuffer will help make the law and the court system more accessible to all of our citizens. This well-rounded picture of dedication, service, and excellence has really impressed me, as it has, I am sure, many others in Utah and around the country.

As I usually do when we have a judicial vacancy, I talk to lawyers and leaders in the legal community of both parties throughout Utah, and in Judge Nuffer's case, the response was strong and unanimous, and we are very proud of you and we are looking forward to you serving a nice long time on the Federal bench. And we are very happy to have your lovely wife with you as well.

Senator KLOBUCHAR. Very good.
Senator Lee.

PRESENTATION OF DAVID NUFFER, NOMINEE TO BE DISTRICT JUDGE FOR THE DISTRICT OF UTAH, BY HON. MIKE LEE, A U.S. SENATOR FROM THE STATE OF UTAH

Senator LEE. Thank you, Madam Chair. It is my pleasure to say a few words to support the nomination of Magistrate Judge Nuffer. I will be brief. I will also be personal. I am one of those lawyers who has appeared in front of him, and I have found him to be a judge who is unusually well informed, well prepared, and exercises exceptionally good judgment. And I commend President Obama for his excellent choice in this nomination.

As Senator Hatch noted, over the course of his career Judge Nuffer has worked tirelessly and with distinction to serve the bar and the bench in Utah and beyond. For example, he has served as president of the Utah State Bar Association, as a member of the Utah District Court's Civil Procedure Rules Committee, the Utah District Court Arbitration and Mediation Panel, and the National U.S. Court IT Advisory Committee.

Judge Nuffer has also written or presented extensively on a variety of legal and law-related issues, especially those involving the use of technology by litigants and in the courts.

The many attorneys and judges that have read his publications and attended his lectures and other seminars have benefited greatly from his expertise. Judge Nuffer has also served as an adjunct professor at BYU's law school for the past decade, where he helped to prepare the next generation of attorneys.

Finally, let me add that Judge Nuffer is well known and highly regarded throughout the Utah bench and bar. His knowledge, his temperament, his expertise, including those 16 years that he served first as a part-time magistrate judge and then as a full-time magistrate judge, are among the many qualities for which he is rightly admired. I am pleased enthusiastically to recommend him to my fellow colleagues on this Committee, and I ask for your full consideration of this outstanding nominee.

Thank you, Madam Chair.

Senator KLOBUCHAR. Thank you very much, Senator Lee.

There is one other nominee that I am going to introduce: Thomas Rice. He has been nominated to the United States District Court for the Eastern District of Washington. Mr. Rice has spent his entire legal career working for the United States Department of Justice, where he started as an Honors Program trial attorney in 1986 and now serves as the first Assistant United States Attorney in the Eastern District of Washington. A Washington native, we welcome you, Mr. Rice, and we thank you for being here. I picked out the right person. He looked like he was a U.S. Attorney, so that was pretty good.

[Laughter.]

Senator KLOBUCHAR. I mean, that is not a generalization. I just picked you out.

We do know that Senator Murray from Mr. Rice's home State has submitted a statement that will be entered for the record.

[The prepared statement of Senator Murray appears as a submission for the record.]

Senator KLOBUCHAR. I would now like to turn to Senator Hatch for any additional remarks he would like to make.

STATEMENT OF HON. ORRIN G. HATCH, A U.S. SENATOR FROM THE STATE OF UTAH

Senator HATCH. Well, I might mention that Senator Murray is in that super committee, so that is just dominating all their time, so I hope folks will realize that and realize why she is not here today.

We are just really happy to have all of you here. The Federal judiciary is absolutely critical to this country. It is the third branch of Government. It is a co-equal branch of Government. Many feel maybe it is more than co-equal in some respects. I had extensive experience before the Federal courts, both in Pennsylvania and in Utah, and all I can say is that I never met a Federal judge that I did not like. And that includes Willis Ritter out in Utah, who is quite a curmudgeon, and we got along very well.

I will never forget one time a fellow cut down one of our—families, pioneer families had always cut down Christmas trees on Federal property, and so they just thought it was a matter that they could easily do. And one day this fellow, one of the successors, cut down a Christmas tree, and he was indicted for destroying Federal property. And he appeared before Judge Ritter for sentencing. I was there. And Judge Ritter sentenced him to 8 years in the Federal penitentiary. That made everybody aghast. Fortunately, there were other judges there who later commuted the sentence.

[Laughter.]

Senator HATCH. But I caution you judges and judges-to-be that it is really important that our Federal bench has always set the highest standards.

Now, Judge Ritter was one of the brightest people I have ever met. He was a law professor and a very great student of the law. But he occasionally had those aberrations that were very interesting.

One other time—in fact, it was the same time. A fellow showed up with this—an attorney was with this woman, and he said, "What did you do?" And she said, "I stole a Federal bond and cashed it." This is right after he sentenced this fellow to 8 years. He said, "Well, what did you do with the money?" And she says, "I gave it to my attorney for legal fees."

[Laughter.]

Senator HATCH. And Ritter then said, "Well, you overpaid him." And he gave her 6 months' probation. So it shows the difference between—all I can say is that I do not expect any of you judges-to-be or judges to do that type of work on the bench. Our Federal bench in this country is really very, very great and highly qualified, and we are just happy to have all of you here.

I might add that I think we are doing a good job on this Committee keeping this administration's judges moving as fast as we can, and we should do even better, as far as I am concerned.

So we are grateful to all of you for being willing to serve. We know there are advantages and disadvantages, but without the Federal judiciary, this country cannot survive in its current form. So we are very proud of all of you and very pleased to have you here.

Senator KLOBUCHAR. Well, that was very nice, Senator Hatch, and I know that now all the nominees can expect a question about what sentence they thought the guy that took the Christmas tree should get.

[Laughter.]

Senator KLOBUCHAR. That was just his little tip to all of you.

Senator HATCH. It just shows how tough we are there in Utah.

Senator KLOBUCHAR. We will start with Judge Jordan, if he wants to come up. Do you say “JOR-din” or “Jor-DAN”? No, really, tell me. Tell me. “JOR-din,” good. It sounded like your Florida Senators had a little bit of an accent, but they always have an accent anyway.

We are going to swear you in first. Do you affirm that the testimony you are about to give before the Committee will be the truth, the whole truth, and nothing but the truth, so help you God?

Judge JORDAN. I do.

Senator KLOBUCHAR. Very good. Would you like to introduce family members or friends that are here with you, Judge Jordan?

STATEMENT OF ADALBERTO JOSE JORDAN, NOMINEE TO BE CIRCUIT JUDGE FOR THE ELEVENTH CIRCUIT

Judge JORDAN. I would. Thank you very much.

Senator Klobuchar, Senator Hatch, Senator Lee, I am honored to be here. I am also deeply grateful to the President for nominating me, and I would like to thank the Committee for scheduling the hearing and Senators Nelson and Rubio for their kind words and support.

I do not have any remarks, but I would like to recognize family members and friends. My wife, Esther, and our daughters, Diana and Elizabeth, are here; as are my brother George and one of our nephews, Carlos.

Several family members could not make it, but they are watching through the Committee’s webcast in Miami and elsewhere: my mother, Elena; my mother-in-law, Flor; my sister-in-law, Connie; my brother-in-law, Domingo, and his girlfriend, Grace; and our nephews, George, Matthew, and Dominic; our nieces, Emma and Amanda; and my step-brother and step-sisters and their families.

Some of our chamber staff have flown here for the hearing. The rest are watching back home. Also here are a number of former clerks and friends. I am very fortunate for their friendship and for their support. Thank you.

Indicate whether any of these organizations listed in response to 11a above currently discriminate or formerly discriminated on the basis of race, sex, religion or national origin either through formal membership requirements or the practical implementation of membership policies. If so, describe any action you have taken to change these policies and practices.

Before I was inducted in 1986, the University of Miami's Iron Arrow Honor Society limited membership to men. Iron Arrow has admitted women since 1985. Other than that, to the best of my knowledge, none of the organizations listed above currently discriminates or previously discriminated on the basis of race, sex, religion, or national origin, either through formal membership requirements or the practical implementation of membership policies.

12. Published Writings and Public Statements:

- a. List the titles, publishers, and dates of books, articles, reports, letters to the editor, editorial pieces, or other published material you have written or edited, including material published only on the Internet. Supply four (4) copies of all published material to the Committee.

Adalberto Jordán, "Imagery, Humor, and the Judicial Opinion," 41 U. Miami L. Rev. 693 (1987). Copy supplied.

Glenn Gerena & Adalberto Jordán, "United States v. Doe and its Progeny: A Re-evaluation of the Fifth Amendment's Application to Custodians of Corporate Records," 40 U. Miami L. Rev. 793 (1986). Copy supplied.

- b. Supply four (4) copies of any reports, memoranda or policy statements you prepared or contributed in the preparation of on behalf of any bar association, committee, conference, or organization of which you were or are a member. If you do not have a copy of a report, memorandum or policy statement, give the name and address of the organization that issued it, the date of the document, and a summary of its subject matter.

I was a member of the Miami-Dade County Bar Association's Judicial Campaign Practices Commission from 1992 to 1999. The Commission issued advisory opinions concerning complaints made by candidates for judicial office in Miami-Dade County, Florida. As a member of the Commission, I wrote advisory opinions in several matters. See Dubitsky v. Levenson (Sept. 21, 1992); Capua v.

Weiner (Aug. 3, 1993); Fallon v. Ballman (Aug. 24, 1994); Glazer v. Adderly (Aug. 27, 1998); Vasquez v. Harnage (Sept. 2, 1998). I have been unable to obtain copies of these opinions, but press coverage of one of the decisions is supplied.

- c. Supply four (4) copies of any testimony, official statements or other communications relating, in whole or in part, to matters of public policy or legal interpretation, that you have issued or provided or that others presented on your behalf to public bodies or public officials.

On July 13, 1999, I testified before the United States Senate Judiciary Committee as a nominee to be United States District Judge for the Southern District of Florida. Transcript supplied.

On September 14, 1990, I appeared before the Florida Supreme Court's Racial and Ethnic Bias Study Commission (at the invitation of the Commission's Chair, Frank Scruggs) in Orlando, Florida, and discussed legal developments in the area of affirmative action. I have been unable to obtain a transcript of my statements.

In 1989 and 1990, Steel Hector & Davis – where I was an associate – joined together with accounting firm KPMG Peat Marwick and other consultants, including TEM Associates, to conduct discrimination studies for state and local government entities following the Supreme Court's decision in City of Richmond v. J.A. Croson Co., 488 U.S. 469 (1989) (holding that state and local affirmative action programs are subject to strict scrutiny). I worked on the legal aspects of the studies with Frank Scruggs and Samuel Dubbin, who were partners at Steel Hector & Davis. My task was to take the data assembled by other team members and analyze it to see if the affirmative action program at issue would be constitutional under Croson and its progeny. We ended up conducting studies for the Florida Department of Transportation and other state departments and agencies, the City of Miami, and the West Coast Regional Water Supply Authority. I have been unable to obtain copies of the studies.

- d. Supply four (4) copies, transcripts or recordings of all speeches or talks delivered by you, including commencement speeches, remarks, lectures, panel discussions, conferences, political speeches, and question-and-answer sessions. Include the date and place where they were delivered, and readily available press reports about the speech or talk. If you do not have a copy of the speech or a transcript or recording of your remarks, give the name and address of the group before whom the speech was given, the date of the speech, and a summary of its subject matter. If you did not speak from a prepared text, furnish a copy of any outline or notes from which you spoke.

The list which follows represents my best efforts, through searches of my records, calendars, and Internet databases, to identify speeches and remarks I have given. There may be, however, other speeches or remarks that I have been unable to

In May of 1987, I was interviewed by the local Telemundo or Univision television station in Miami about my upcoming clerkship with Justice O'Connor. A portion of that interview was aired during a newscast, but I have been unable to obtain a recording.

In 1997, 1998, and 1999 I sometimes stood in as the spokesperson for the U.S. Attorney's Office when the spokesperson was ill, on vacation, or otherwise unavailable. In that capacity, I spoke to the media on a number of matters. I have done my best to locate any statements or interviews that exist in electronic databases, and those I have found are listed above.

13. Judicial Office: State (chronologically) any judicial offices you have held, including positions as an administrative law judge, whether such position was elected or appointed, and a description of the jurisdiction of each such court.

I have served as a United States District Judge in the Southern District of Florida since October of 1999. I was nominated to that position by President William Clinton and confirmed by the Senate. The jurisdiction of a federal district judge is general in nature, and extends to all federal criminal cases and all civil cases in which there is federal subject-matter jurisdiction (i.e., federal question cases and diversity cases).

- a. Approximately how many cases have you presided over that have gone to verdict or judgment?

According to statistics compiled by the clerk of our court, I have tried 197 cases to verdict or judgment. This number does not include other contested evidentiary proceedings (e.g., suppression hearings, sentencing hearings, preliminary injunction hearings).

- i. Of these, approximately what percent were:

jury trials:	74%
bench trials:	26%
civil proceedings:	49%
criminal proceedings:	51%

- b. Provide citations for all opinions you have written, including concurrences and dissents.

Please see attached list.

- c. For each of the 10 most significant cases over which you presided, provide: (1) a capsule summary of the nature the case; (2) the outcome of the case; (3) the name and contact information for counsel who had a significant role in the trial of the case; and (3) the citation of the case (if reported) or the docket number and a copy of the opinion or judgment (if not reported).

- (1) United States v. Orlansky et al., Case No. 03-20951-Cr-Jordan.

In this criminal case, the government charged eight defendants with wire fraud, bank fraud, conspiracy to commit wire fraud and bank fraud, and money laundering offenses related to a $160 million bank fraud scheme arising out of a factoring business and joint venture. The case was long and complex: it lasted over four years, involved a heavy motion practice, presented difficult issues relating to the competency and insanity defense of one of the lead defendants, and generated over 1,300 docket entries. See, e.g., Order Granting Motions to Exclude Mental Health Experts [D.E. 625] (Feb. 24, 2006) (copy supplied). At the time of trial, this was the largest alleged bank fraud scheme in South Florida history. The trial for the four defendants who did not enter guilty pleas – including the two lead defendants – lasted over four months, making it the longest trial I have presided over. The jury convicted all four defendants on at least some of the charges, and I sentenced the two lead defendants to 20 years in prison. The Eleventh Circuit affirmed on all issues raised in a lengthy but unpublished opinion. See United States v. Puerto, 2010 WL 3191765 (11th Cir. 2010).

(2) United States v. Greenpeace, Inc., Case No. 03-20577-Cr-Jordan.

The government filed misdemeanor criminal charges against Greenpeace arising out of the boarding by Greenpeace members of a vessel carrying Brazilian mahogany into the Port of Miami. The case – apparently a rare prosecution of an advocacy organization – was based on 18 U.S.C. § 2279, a misdemeanor statute from the 1800s which prohibits the boarding of a vessel “about to arrive at the place of her destination . . . and before she has been completely moored.” The case involved a number of difficult issues, including the interpretation and application of § 2279 to the conduct of the Greenpeace members who boarded the vessel, the availability of a jury trial for Greenpeace, and the use of a justification defense. In a pretrial order, I denied Greenpeace’s motion to dismiss but concluded, as a matter of discretion, that Greenpeace should be tried by a jury. See United States v. Greenpeace, Inc., 314 F. Supp. 2d 1252 (S.D. Fla. 2004).

At the close of the government’s case, I granted a Rule 29 judgment of acquittal in Greenpeace’s favor. I concluded that no reasonable jury could find that the Greenpeace members had violated § 2279 because the vessel was so far away from the Port of Miami at the time of the boarding. I warned Greenpeace, however, that the statute could be enforced in the future if the organization engaged in similar activities close to the place where a ship was to arrive.

(3) United States v. Frank, Case No. 04-20778-Cr-Jordan.

The defendant in this case was charged with numerous criminal offenses related to his engaging in sex with minor girls in Cambodia. The case involved novel issues, including the applicability of the United States Constitution to certain interrogations and searches conducted by Cambodian law enforcement officials, and the constitutionality of 18 U.S.C. § 2423(c), which prohibits an American citizen or permanent resident from traveling in interstate commerce and engaging in a commercial sex act with a person under the age of 18. Following an evidentiary hearing, I denied the defendant's motion to suppress and held that § 2423(c) was constitutionally enacted by Congress pursuant to the Necessary and Proper Clause in order to implement a United Nations treaty that the Senate had previously ratified. See United States v. Frank, 486 F. Supp. 2d 1353 (S.D. Fla. 2007). The defendant was convicted after a three-week trial, which was apparently only the second child sex tourism trial in the country. On appeal, the Eleventh Circuit affirmed on all grounds in a published opinion. See United States v. Frank, 599 F.3d 1221 (11th Cir. 2010).

(4) Kpadeh et al. v. Emmanuel, Case No. 09-20050-Civ-Jordan.

In this action, a number of Liberian citizens filed suit against Charles McArthur Emmanuel (aka Charles Taylor, Jr. and "Chuckie" Taylor) under the Alien Tort Statute, 28 U.S.C. § 1350, the Torture Victim Protection Act, 28 U.S.C. § 1350 Note, Florida law, and Liberian law. The plaintiffs alleged that during a civil war in Liberia they were victims of the Liberian Anti-Terrorism Unit, which was commanded by Mr. Emmanuel, and were subjected on Mr. Emmanuel's orders to savage beatings, rapes, mutilations, and unspeakable other atrocities. Mr. Emmanuel (who had been convicted on related federal criminal charges) defaulted on liability, but chose to represent himself at a bench trial on damages following the denial of class certification. See Kpadeh v. Emmanuel, 261 F.R.D. 687 (S.D. Fla. 2009). At the end of the bench trial – at which the plaintiffs credibly testified about what they were subjected to by Mr. Emmanuel and the ATU – I awarded the plaintiffs a total of $22 million in compensatory damages (for physical pain, mental suffering, and medical expenses) and punitive damages. Order supplied.

(5) United States v. Lauer et al., Case No. 08-20071-Cr-Jordan.

This complex case involved highly publicized criminal charges of wire fraud and conspiracy to commit mail fraud, wire fraud, and securities fraud brought against the manager of the Lancer hedge funds and others. The government alleged that this was one of the largest hedge fund fraud schemes in the history of the United States and that investors lost over $200 million. It took about three years of proceedings to get the case ready for trial, and I issued numerous orders denying the defendants' motions to dismiss the charges. See, e.g., Supplemental Order on Motions to Dismiss [D.E. 975] (March 7, 2011) (copy supplied). Two defendants pled guilty, and one defendant was convicted on some charges after a separate seven-week trial in 2010. The manager and another officer of Lancer proceeded to trial in 2011. At the end of that trial, which lasted eight weeks, the jury acquitted these two defendants on all counts.

(6) Hershell Gill Consulting Engineers, Inc. v. Miami-Dade County, Case No. 98-2300-Civ-Jordan.

This case involved an equal protection challenge by white-owned firms to sections of Miami-Dade County's Minority and Women Business Enterprise program, which set participation goals (achievable through set-asides, subcontractor goals, bid preferences, and/or selection factors) for architectural and engineering contracts. By the time the case went to trial, the Eleventh Circuit had already held that the County's MWBE program was unconstitutional as applied to certain sectors of construction contracts, see Engineering Contractors Ass'n v. Metropolitan Dade County, 122 F.3d 895 (11th Cir. 1997), and the County manager had told the County commissioners that according to an internal study the County had reached parity in the areas of architecture and engineering for black, Hispanic, and women-owned firms. The County manager had also recommended that the MWBE program be replaced with a Community Small Business Enterprise program, and provided the County commissioners with another memorandum recommending that no further MWBE measures be used for architectural and engineering contracts because there was parity. The County commissioners continued to vote to apply MWBE measures to architectural and engineering contracts that came before them for approval, and did not request a formal disparity study until the lawsuit had been ongoing for 18 months.

After a bench trial, I ruled that the MWBE program was unconstitutional as applied to architectural and engineering contracts, and permanently enjoined the use of MWBE measures to such contracts because the County's disparity study was seriously flawed, there was insufficient evidence of disparity to withstand strict scrutiny (as to race and ethnicity) and/or intermediate scrutiny (as to gender), and the program was not properly tailored under the respective standards. I also concluded that the County commissioners had absolute legislative immunity for voting on and enacting the MWBE program, and that they could assert (but were not entitled to) qualified immunity as to their votes to apply MWBE measures to individual contracts. I did not award the plaintiff any compensatory damages because I concluded that such damages were not adequately proven, and chose not to award any punitive damages. I warned the commissioners, however, that if they continued to apply MWBE measures to other types of contracts – there was another pending case challenging the MWBE program as applied to security services – without any evidentiary basis, punitive damages would be a virtual certainty. See Hershell Gill Consulting Engineers, Inc. v. Miami-Dade County, 333 F. Supp. 2d 1305 (S.D. Fla. 2004). The County did not appeal.

(7) Martinez et al. v. Bush, Case No. 02-20244-Civ-Jordan (three-judge court) & Maurer v. Florida, Case No. 02-10028-Civ-Jordan (three-judge court).

These consolidated cases involved a number of challenges – e.g., under the United States Constitution, the Voting Rights Act, and Title VI of the Civil Rights Act – to the Florida legislature's 2002 redistricting plan following the 2000 census. I sat as a member of a three-judge district court with Eleventh Circuit Judge Gerard B. Tjoflat and United States District Judge Robert Hinkle. Our court held a two-week trial in Miami in 2002, and also convened hearings in Jacksonville and Tallahassee. In a 75-page per curiam opinion, the court rejected all of the plaintiffs' and intervenors' claims, though it concluded that the Florida legislature had intended to draw congressional districts in such a way as to favor Republicans. See Martinez v. Bush, 234 F. Supp. 2d 1275 (S.D. Fla. 2002) (per curiam). Judge Hinkle and I wrote concurring opinions on the political gerrymandering issue. My concurring opinion, see id. at 1352 (Jordan, J., concurring), which suggested to the Supreme Court that it address political gerrymandering again to clear up the confusion that existed in the lower courts, was cited by the Supreme Court in Vieth v. Jubelirer, 514 U.S. 267, 283 (2004). As noted in Martinez, there were a number of related redistricting lawsuits that were assigned to me, and some of them involved interesting issues of federal procedure. See, e.g., Brown v. Florida, 208 F. Supp. 2d 1344 (S.D. Fla. 2002) (removal of case by Florida secretary of state pursuant to 28 U.S.C. § 1443(2)).

(8) Cave v. McDonough, Case No. 05-14137-Civ-Jordan.

This was the first capital case I was assigned. The petitioner in this habeas corpus proceeding was sentenced to death in Florida for his involvement in the 1982 murder of a kidnapping victim. He sought to vacate his death sentence on a number of grounds, including that his counsel had rendered ineffective assistance of counsel (a) due to his misunderstanding of Florida law, (b) by not presenting certain mental health and addiction evidence, (c) in failing to perpetuate or preserve an exculpatory statement made by a co-defendant on the eve of his execution, (d) when he failed to object to an allegedly improper line of questioning, and (e) in seeking to establish a certain mitigating factor. Because the petitioner's sentence had been overturned two times, and there had been three sentencing hearings, the case required review of about 30 years' worth of transcripts, legal memoranda, and court proceedings.

I ultimately denied relief on all grounds. I concluded, under the applicable AEDPA standard, that the Florida Supreme Court had not acted unreasonably in concluding that counsel's misunderstanding of Florida law did not cause the petitioner prejudice, that counsel had not rendered deficient performance by not putting on certain mental health and addiction evidence, that the petitioner was not prejudiced due to the failure to perpetuate or preserve the co-defendant's exculpatory statement, and that counsel had not been ineffective in trying to establish a certain mitigating factor. I also ruled that, although counsel had rendered deficient performance in failing to object to certain questions by the prosecutor under Florida law, the Florida Supreme Court's conclusion that the petitioner was not prejudiced by that error was not unreasonable. I issued a certificate of appealability so that the petitioner could seek review in the Eleventh Circuit. Following oral argument, the Eleventh Circuit affirmed the denial of habeas corpus relief in a published opinion. See Cave v. McDonough, 2009 U.S. Dist. Lexis 130889 (S.D. Fla. 2009), aff'd, 638 F.3d 739 (11th Cir. 2011).

(9) Caracciolo v. McDonough, Case No. 97-1139-Civ-Jordan.

This habeas corpus case arose out of the highly publicized murder of a Miami millionaire in 1986. The petitioner in this case – the alleged shooter in a contract killing ordered by the victim's wife – had pled no contest to second-degree murder charges in 1991 and had been sentenced to 40 years' imprisonment. A number of the habeas claims that the petitioner asserted were procedurally barred, but the petitioner argued that he could overcome the procedural bar by demonstrating actual innocence under cases like Schlup v. Delo, 513 U.S. 298 (1995). I therefore held an evidentiary hearing on the issue of actual innocence, which – given the no contest plea – essentially required a mini-trial on most of the issues relating to the murder. Over 20 witnesses testified, and numerous exhibits, including the transcript of the wife's separate trial, were introduced. After the hearing, I issued an order examining all of the evidence and concluding that the petitioner could not show that he was actually innocent so as to overcome the procedural bar on some of the claims. See Caracciolo v. McDonough, 456 F. Supp. 2d 1240 (S.D. Fla. 2006).

(10) Florida Transportation, Inc. v. Miami-Dade County, Case No. 05-22637-Civ-Jordan.

In this case, brought pursuant to 42 U.S.C. § 1983, a stevedoring company challenged, on Dormant Commerce Clause grounds, a Miami-Dade County ordinance requiring special permits for stevedores at the Port of Miami. Ruling on motions for summary judgment, I concluded that Miami-Dade County had violated the Dormant Commerce Clause by applying the ordinance so that entrenched stevedores with permits had their renewal applications rubber-stamped for approval without having to compete for scarce slots at the Port. See Florida Transportation, Inc. v. Miami-Dade County, 757 F. Supp. 2d 1260 (S.D. Fla. 2010). In my view, the County's application of the ordinance insulated the existing stevedores from any new competition. Following the summary judgment order, I presided over a jury trial on damages. The jury awarded the stevedoring company several million dollars in damages, and I upheld that jury award against post-trial challenges. The County filed a notice of appeal, and the case is currently pending in the Eleventh Circuit.

e. Provide a list of all cases in which certiorari was requested or granted.

To the best of my knowledge, the Supreme Court has granted certiorari in only one of my cases. In United States v. Garcia-Rodriguez, Case No. 01-993-Cr-Jordan, the defendants were convicted of money laundering and structuring offenses, and I sentenced them under the then-mandatory sentencing guidelines. On appeal, the Eleventh Circuit affirmed in a table decision. See United States v. Garcia-Rodriguez, 97 F. App'x 904 (11th Cir. 2004) (table). The Supreme Court granted certiorari, vacated the Eleventh Circuit's decision, and remanded for reconsideration in light of Booker v. United States, 543 U.S. 220 (2005), which had held (in an opinion issued after the sentencing hearing) that the sentencing guidelines were to be applied in an advisory fashion. See Garcia-Rodriguez v. United States, 543 U.S. 1122 (2005). On remand, the Eleventh Circuit again affirmed, explaining that the defendants had not asserted on appeal that it was error to apply the guidelines as mandatory. See United States v. Garcia-Rodriguez, Case No. 03-10348 (11th Cir. Apr. 19, 2005).

A list of cases in which certiorari was sought and denied follows. This list may not be complete, as parties are not required to file certiorari petitions in our court docket, and our court does not always receive notification that the Supreme Court has denied certiorari.

Delancy v. Moore, Case No. 99-1185-Civ-Jordan, Order Dismissing Petition as Time-Barred [D.E. 28] (copy supplied), rev'd and remanded, 246 F.3d 1328 (11th Cir. 2001). I dismissed the habeas corpus petition as untimely based on then-existing Eleventh Circuit precedent such as Weekly v. Moore, 204 F.3d 1083 (11th Cir. 2000). By the time the Eleventh Circuit considered the appeal, the Supreme Court had issued an opinion, Artuz v. Bennett, 531 U.S. 4 (2000), which altered cases like Weekly. The Eleventh Circuit, noting the change in governing law, reversed the dismissal and remanded for further proceedings in light of Artuz.

Dow Jones & Co., Inc. v. Kaye, 90 F. Supp. 2d 1397 (S.D. Fla. 2000), appeal dismissed for lack of jurisdiction and preliminary injunction vacated as moot, 256 F.3d 1251 (11th Cir. 2001). In an action brought pursuant to 42 U.S.C. § 1983, I ruled that a state court gag order in tobacco liability litigation was unconstitutional under the First Amendment, and enjoined enforcement of the order. On appeal, the Eleventh Circuit ruled that the state judge's appeal and the media's challenge to the gag order were moot because the state tobacco trial had ended, and the judge no longer had jurisdiction to enforce the gag order.

King v. Attorney General, Case No. 00-4216-Civ-Jordan, Order Dismissing Habeas Corpus Petition for Lack of Jurisdiction [D.E. 8] (copy supplied), vacated and remanded, 31 F. App'x 930 (11th Cir. 2002) (copy supplied). In this habeas corpus case I concluded that, given the language of some federal immigration provisions, there was no jurisdiction to review certain decisions made by the Attorney General. The Eleventh Circuit did not say that I was wrong, but vacated and remanded so that I could consider the effect of two Supreme Court cases that had been decided after I issued my ruling.

Gray v. ODS Technologies, Case No. 99-2808-Civ-Jordan, Order Granting Defendant's Motion for Summary Judgment and Dismissing Case for Lack of Subject-Matter Jurisdiction [D.E. 215] (copy supplied), vacated with instructions to enter judgment on the merits in favor of defendant, 77 F. App'x 507 (11th Cir. 2003) (copy supplied). In this case I ruled that a certain executive incentive plan was not a "top-hat" plan under ERISA and dismissed the action for lack of subject-matter jurisdiction. The Eleventh Circuit held that I "correctly concluded that ODS [the defendant] was entitled to summary judgment, and that the plan was not covered by ERISA." But it concluded that, instead of dismissing the action, I should have entered judgment on the merits in favor of the defendant. It therefore vacated the dismissal and remanded for entry of judgment on the merits in favor of the defendant.

United States v. Pepper's Steel & Alloys, Inc., 348 F.3d 964 (11th Cir. 2003) (District Court Case No. 85-0571-Civ-Jordan). Interpreting a Florida statute, I ruled that an insured could not obtain an award of attorney's fees for trying to enforce a settlement with the insurer. I cannot find a copy of my order because the case is so old and because the order was issued at a time when the court did not have an electronic docketing system. The Eleventh Circuit – noting the uncertainty in Florida law – certified the question to the Florida Supreme Court, which later ruled that fees could be recovered by the insured under the statute. The Eleventh Circuit, based on the Florida Supreme Court's ruling, vacated my order and remanded for further proceedings.

Bonadonna v. Serrano, Case No. 99-2201-Civ-Jordan, Order Granting Summary Judgment [D.E. 53] (copy supplied), aff'd in part and vacated in part, 82 F. App'x 219 (11th Cir. 2003) (copy supplied). The plaintiff, a federal inmate, filed a lawsuit against a private doctor and several federal correctional employees alleging deliberate indifference to his medical needs in violation of the Eighth Amendment. I dismissed the claim against the doctor, and granted summary judgment in favor of the other defendants, agreeing with the magistrate judge that no deliberate indifference had been pled or shown. On appeal, the Eleventh Circuit affirmed in part and vacated in part. It ruled that I had properly dismissed the claim against the doctor, and that I had correctly granted summary judgment on the Eighth Amendment claim in favor of the other defendants. It also ruled, however, that I had erred in not allowing the plaintiff to amend the complaint to add, under a third-party beneficiary contract theory, the hospital where the doctor was employed. My order was therefore vacated in part and the case was remanded so that the plaintiff could file an amended complaint.

United States v. Orihuela, 320 F.3d 1302 (11th Cir. 2003) (District Court Case No. 01-794-Cr-Jordan). In this criminal appeal brought by the government, the Eleventh Circuit ruled that I had erred in interpreting a guideline provision, USSG § 2L1.2(b)(1)(A). Noting that the issue was one of first impression, the Eleventh Circuit concluded – contrary to my interpretation – that a telephone facilitation offense was a "drug trafficking offense" within the meaning of the guideline provision. It therefore vacated the sentence and remanded for resentencing. If I recall correctly, the defendant was not resentenced because he had been deported.

Sibley v. Cohen Lando, Case No. 03-21728-Civ-Jordan, Order on Motions to Dismiss and for Sanctions [D.E. 51] (copy supplied), aff'd in part, rev'd in part, and remanded, 92 F. App'x 782 (11th Cir. 2004) (table) (copy supplied). This case involved state law tort claims brought by a state court litigant against the state judge who had presided over his marital dissolution proceeding. The plaintiff alleged that the judge had improperly issued a writ of bodily attachment against him without ruling on a pending motion for disqualification. I ruled that there was no subject-matter jurisdiction under the Rooker-Feldman doctrine and that abstention was otherwise appropriate, but denied the judge's motion to restrict future filings by the plaintiff. The Eleventh Circuit concluded that Rooker-Feldman did not apply because the writ of bodily attachment was not a final order, and that abstention was not appropriate because the plaintiff was seeking damages. The Eleventh Circuit also ruled that I had correctly denied the judge's motion to restrict future filings.

Elan Corp. v. Andrx Pharmaceuticals, Inc., 272 F. Supp. 2d 1325 (S.D. Fla. 2002), rev'd, 366 F.3d 1336 (Fed. Cir. 2004). Following a bench trial in this patent infringement case, I found that the plaintiff's patent was invalid under the on-sale bar of 35 U.S.C. § 102(b) because the plaintiff had offered to sell the patented invention more than one year prior to filing its patent application. The Federal Circuit reversed. It concluded that I had incorrectly characterized a letter from the plaintiff to another company as a commercial offer to sell.

Kingsland v. City of Miami, 2003 WL 24829644 (S.D. Fla. 2003), aff'd in part and rev'd in part, 382 F.3d 1220 (11th Cir. 2004). In this action under 42 U.S.C. § 1983 for false arrest and malicious prosecution, I ruled that the police officers who were sued had probable cause to arrest the plaintiff and were entitled to qualified immunity. On appeal, the Eleventh Circuit affirmed as to the malicious prosecution claim, but reversed as to the false arrest claim, finding that there were factual issues as to whether there was probable cause to arrest, and concluding that the officers were not entitled to qualified immunity on that claim.

United States v. McGriff, 140 F. App'x 121 (11th Cir. 2005) (District Court Case No. 04-60044-Cr-Jordan). I sentenced the defendant at a time when the federal sentencing guidelines were mandatory. By the time the Eleventh Circuit heard the defendant's appeal, the Supreme Court had ruled that the guidelines were advisory. The Eleventh Circuit therefore vacated the sentence and remanded for resentencing.

United States v. Bollea, 144 F. App'x 69 (11th Cir. 2005) (District Court Case No. 04-20021-Cr-Jordan). I sentenced the defendant at a time when the federal sentencing guidelines were mandatory. By the time the Eleventh Circuit heard the defendant's appeal, the Supreme Court had ruled that the guidelines were advisory. The Eleventh Circuit therefore vacated the sentence and remanded for resentencing.

United States v. Vargas-Vasquez, 148 F. App'x 836 (11th Cir. 2005) (District Court Case No. 04-20282-Cr-Jordan). I sentenced the defendant at a time when the federal sentencing guidelines were mandatory. By the time the Eleventh Circuit heard the defendant's appeal, the Supreme Court had ruled that the guidelines were advisory. The Eleventh Circuit therefore vacated the sentence and remanded for resentencing.

United States v. Joseph, 148 F. App'x 914 (11th Cir. 2005) (District Court Case No. 02-20851-Cr-Jordan). I sentenced the defendant at a time when the federal sentencing guidelines were mandatory. By the time the Eleventh Circuit heard the defendant's appeal, the Supreme Court had ruled that the guidelines were advisory. The Eleventh Circuit therefore vacated the sentence and remanded for resentencing.

United States v. Alvarez, 164 F. App'x 893 (11th Cir. 2006) (District Court Case No. 03-20641-Cr-Jordan). I sentenced the defendant at a time when the federal sentencing guidelines were mandatory. By the time the Eleventh Circuit heard the defendant's appeal, the Supreme Court had ruled that the guidelines were advisory. The Eleventh Circuit therefore vacated the sentence and remanded for resentencing.

Association for Disabled Americans v. Florida International University, 178 F. Supp. 2d 1291 (S.D. Fla. 2001), rev'd, 405 F.3d 954 (11th Cir. 2005). This was an action for injunctive relief against a state university for alleged violations of Title II of the ADA. I ruled, based on Bd. of Trustees v. Garrett, 531 U.S. 356 (2001) (holding that the Eleventh Amendment bars claim for money damages against a state under Title I of the ADA), that the Eleventh Amendment barred a claim for injunctive relief against a state university with respect to educational benefits under Title II. After I issued my ruling, the Supreme Court held in Tennessee v. Lane, 541 U.S. 509 (2004), that Congress could properly abrogate the states' Eleventh Amendment immunity through Title II in the context of the right to access to the courts. Based largely on the Supreme Court's intervening decision in Lane, the Eleventh Circuit reversed my ruling and remanded for further proceedings.

Sweet Pea Marine Ltd. v. APJ Marine, Inc., 2003 WL 25731087 (S.D. Fla. 2003), aff'd in part and rev'd in part, 411 F.3d 1242 (11th Cir. 2005). This litigation involved disputes under admiralty law and state law arising from the refurbishing and retrofitting of a multi-million dollar pleasure yacht. After a joint jury/bench trial, I concluded that diversity jurisdiction existed, upheld the jury's verdict on the state law claims in favor of the yacht's owner, and ruled in favor of the vendor (agreeing with the jury's advisory verdict) on the admiralty claims against the yacht's owner and the yacht itself. On appeal, the Eleventh Circuit affirmed my ruling as to jurisdiction (and therefore the judgment in favor of the owner), but set aside my ruling on the admiralty claims, finding that the vendor had presented insufficient evidence that its charges were reasonable. The case was remanded so that judgment on the admiralty claims could be entered in favor of the owner and the yacht.

Andrx Pharmaceuticals v. Elan Corp., Case No. 00-3481-Civ-Jordan, Order Granting Motion for Judgment on the Pleadings [D.E. 73] (copy supplied), aff'd in part, rev'd in part, and remanded, 421 F.3d 1227 (11th Cir. 2005). In this antitrust case arising out of a patent dispute, I granted the defendant's motion for judgment on the pleadings with respect to claims under the federal and state antitrust laws. I concluded that the defendant's prior lawsuit was not a sham litigation for antitrust purposes, and that the defendant's settlement of a patent dispute with a third party – which involved cross-licenses – did not violate the antitrust laws. I also ruled that the plaintiff, because of undue delay, would not be allowed to file a second amended complaint. The Eleventh Circuit, addressing the plaintiff's appeal, affirmed in part, reversed in part, and remanded. First, it affirmed my ruling that the prior lawsuit was not a sham litigation for antitrust purposes. Second, it held that I had erred in granting judgment on the pleadings with respect to the patent settlement claim because the settlement agreement, coupled with the third party's agreement not to market, stated a claim under the federal antitrust laws. Third, it affirmed my denial of the plaintiff's motion for leave to amend.

Hernandez v. United States, Case No. 05-21381-Civ-Jordan, Final Judgment Denying Motion to Vacate [D.E. 11] (copy supplied), vacated, 212 F. App'x 832 (11th Cir. 2006). The movant in this case sought to set aside his conviction and sentence on a number of grounds, including a claim that his counsel had incorrectly advised him that he could not appeal due to an appeal waiver in his plea agreement. I denied the motion to vacate, agreeing with the magistrate judge on this claim that the movant had been properly advised about the scope of the appeal waiver at his change of plea hearing. The Eleventh Circuit, however, construed the movant's papers to also include a claim that counsel had not filed a notice of appeal when requested to do so, and held that this claim should not have been denied without an evidentiary hearing. It remanded as to that claim for an evidentiary hearing.

Watts v. Florida International University, 2005 WL 3730879 (S.D. Fla. 2005), aff'd in part and rev'd in part, 495 F.3d 1289 (11th Cir. 2007). This case, brought pursuant to 42 U.S.C. § 1983, involved the termination of a master's student from a practicum position. The student alleged that he was terminated from the practicum because of his religious beliefs and freedom of expression, and that the termination led to his dismissal from a seminar and prevented him from earning a master's degree. The student asserted a number of federal constitutional claims and 12 state law claims against the university, the university's board of trustees, the president of the university, several university instructors, the Florida board of regents, and the psychiatric facility where he was completing the practicum. I granted the defendants' motions to dismiss the federal claims, and declined to exercise supplemental jurisdiction over the state law claims. The Eleventh Circuit affirmed my dismissal of the student's free speech and due process claims. A majority of the panel, however, concluded that I should not have dismissed the student's free exercise of religion claim and that I had used the wrong standard in addressing that claim. Judge Tjoflat, dissenting in part, would have affirmed my dismissal of that claim as well because he believed the student had not adequately pled the sincerity of his religious belief. The majority remanded the case for further proceedings on that claim, and for consideration of the supplemental state law claims.

Pintado v. Miami-Dade Housing Agency, Case No. 04-22856-Civ-Jordan, Order Granting Defendant's Motion for Summary Judgment [D.E. 83] (copy supplied), vacated, 501 F.3d 1241 (11th Cir. 2007). The plaintiff in this case brought federal and state claims against a local housing agency in state court, and the agency removed the case to federal court. After removal, the plaintiff amended his complaint by dropping the federal claim, and I granted summary judgment in favor of the agency on the state claim. On appeal, the Eleventh Circuit, raising the issue on its own, held that the plaintiff, by voluntarily amending his complaint after removal, had eliminated any subject-matter jurisdiction: there was no longer a federal claim, and there was no diversity for the remaining state claim. The Eleventh Circuit distinguished the scenario where a federal court dismisses a federal claim after removal, and then addresses the remaining state claim through supplemental jurisdiction. It explained that here the amended complaint nullified the prior complaint and had to be assessed on its own.

United States v. Aviles, 518 F.3d 1228 (11th Cir. 2008) (District Court Case No. 04-20059-Cr-Jordan). Following a lengthy criminal trial, various defendants were convicted for their roles in a complex healthcare fraud scheme involving Medicare and private insurance companies. The defendants appealed their convictions and the government cross-appealed one of my sentencing rulings. The Eleventh Circuit affirmed on the issues raised by the defendants, but agreed with the government that I had erred in not using an ex post facto analysis to determine which guidelines applied to two of the defendants. It vacated the sentences of those two defendants and remanded for resentencing.

Hadley v. Gutierrez, Case No. 03-23170-Civ-Jordan, Order on Motion for Summary Judgment [D.E. 127] (copy supplied), aff'd in part and rev'd in part, 526 F.3d 1324 (11th Cir. 2008). In this action under 42 U.S.C. § 1983 for excessive force and conspiracy against two police officers, I denied the officers' motion for summary judgment, concluding that they were not entitled to qualified immunity. The officers filed an interlocutory appeal, and the Eleventh Circuit affirmed in part and reversed in part. As to one officer who had allegedly punched the plaintiff, the Eleventh Circuit ruled that I had correctly denied qualified immunity on the excessive force claim. But as to the other officer, the Eleventh Circuit ruled that he was entitled to summary judgment because he could not have anticipated or stopped the other officer's actions. The Eleventh Circuit also ruled that I had erred in not granting summary judgment in favor of the officers on the conspiracy claim.

Canal Ins. Co. v. SP Transport, Inc., Case No. 04-20031-Civ-Jordan, Order Denying Motion for Attorney's Fees and Costs [D.E. 187] (copy supplied), rev'd, 272 F. App'x 825 (11th Cir. 2008). This case, arising under Florida law, involved an interpretation of Fla. Stat. § 627.428(1). The question presented was whether, under the statute, a partial settlement by an insurer constituted a confession of judgment, thereby permitting an award of attorney's fees. There was no case on point in Florida, and I read the Florida precedent as not treating the partial settlement as a confession of judgment. The Eleventh Circuit read that same precedent differently, and reversed my decision.

Orenshteyn v. Citrix Systems, Inc., 265 F. Supp. 2d 1323 (S.D. Fla. 2003) & 558 F. Supp. 2d 1251 (S.D. Fla. 2008), aff'd in part and rev'd in part, 341 F. App'x 621 (Fed. Cir. 2009). I ruled in this patent infringement suit that there had been no infringement of the plaintiff's patent. I also imposed sanctions on the plaintiff and his counsel. The Federal Circuit affirmed my merits ruling "of all claims and all products," except for one of the infringement claims related to the defendant's metraframe product. As to that one claim, the Federal Circuit held that there were genuine issues of fact with respect to infringement. With respect to the sanctions order, the Federal Circuit ruled that, based on an intervening Eleventh Circuit case on Rule 11, see In re Walker, 532 F.3d 1304 (11th Cir. 2008) (Rule 11 motion must be filed prior to final judgment so that the 21-day safe harbor provision can be effective), the defendant's motion – which was filed after final judgment – did not give the plaintiff the benefit of the 21-day safe harbor. It also ruled that the prosecution of the lawsuit by the plaintiff and his counsel was not frivolous within the meaning of 28 U.S.C. § 1927. The sanctions therefore constituted an abuse of discretion, and were vacated.

United States v. Calvo, Case No. 08-20961-Cr-Jordan, vacated, Eleventh Circuit Case No. 09-11820-A (11th Cir. 2009) (copy supplied). The defendant was convicted of aggravated identity theft, see 18 U.S.C. § 1029A, pursuant to then-existing Eleventh Circuit precedent, see United States v. Hurtado, 508 F.3d 603 (11th Cir. 2007), which did not require the government to prove that the defendant knew that the means of identification stolen or possessed belonged to an actual person. While the defendant's appeal was pending, the Supreme Court ruled that such proof was in fact required in a prosecution under § 1029A. See Flores-Figueroa v. United States, 129 S. Ct. 1886 (2009). Based on Flores-Figueroa and the government's concession that summary reversal was warranted, the Eleventh Circuit vacated the conviction and ordered the defendant's immediate release from custody.

Lee v. Attorney General, Case No. 07-22582-Civ-Jordan, Order Dismissing Successive Motion to Vacate [D.E. 5] (copy supplied), vacated, 382 F. App'x 820 (11th Cir. 2010). I dismissed the movant's motion to vacate as successive because the movant had already filed an unsuccessful motion to vacate and had not obtained Eleventh Circuit approval to file another motion to vacate. The Eleventh Circuit vacated the dismissal, ruling that with respect to the movant's prior motion to vacate in 1998, the presiding judge (another judge) had not given the movant the required warnings before construing his pro se pleading as a motion to vacate. Due to the lack of proper notice in 1998, the first motion did not qualify as a motion to vacate, and the second motion filed before me was not successive. The case was remanded for further proceedings.

Fazile v. EMC Mortgage Corp., Case No. 09-21636-Civ-Jordan, Order Dismissing Complaint [D.E. 26] (copy supplied), aff'd in part and rev'd in part, 382 F. App'x 833 (11th Cir. 2010). In this action by a borrower against her mortgage company, I dismissed the borrower's federal claims under RESPA, 12 U.S.C. § 2604(c), and TILA, 15 U.S.C. § 1601 et seq. On appeal, the Eleventh Circuit affirmed in all respects, with the exception of a single claim under TILA. As to that single claim (which alleged that the mortgage company had not timely rescinded the mortgage transaction), the Eleventh Circuit concluded that it was not time-barred and could be pursued.

Bank of America v. FDIC, Case No. 09-22384-Civ-Jordan, Order Granting and Extending Preliminary Injunction [D.E. 36] (copy supplied), vacated, 604 F.3d 1239 (11th Cir. 2010). This case involved allegations that a failed bank had committed civil theft with respect to funds belonging to Bank of America. After I issued a temporary restraining order against the failed bank, the FDIC took over the bank as receiver and sought to dissolve the restraining order pursuant to certain jurisdiction-stripping provisions in the U.S. Code. See, e.g., 12 U.S.C. § 1821(j). Relying on a number of district court decisions, I ruled that § 1821(j) did not preclude injunctive relief under the circumstances because the FDIC stood in the shoes of the failed bank (which had committed civil theft) and because the failed bank had never owned the disputed funds (and held them only as a custodian). I therefore enjoined the FDIC from disposing of the disputed funds. The FDIC appealed, and the Eleventh Circuit vacated the injunction, concluding that § 1821(j) did not permit injunctive relief against the FDIC in its capacity as receiver.

Penzer v. Transportation Ins. Co., 509 F. Supp. 2d 1278 (S.D. Fla. 2007), rev'd, 605 F.3d 1112 (11th Cir. 2010). The question presented in this case was whether, under Florida law, a commercial liability insurance policy for "advertising injury" (i.e., "injury arising out of . . . oral or written publication that violates a person's right to privacy") provided coverage for violation of a law prohibiting unsolicited fax advertisements. The Florida courts had not addressed this question, and the decisions in other federal and state courts were split. I thought that the decisions concluding that there was no coverage were more persuasive and ruled accordingly. On appeal, the Eleventh Circuit certified the question to the Florida Supreme Court, which concluded that there was coverage under the policy language. Based on the Florida Supreme Court's decision, the Eleventh Circuit reversed my order and remanded for further proceedings.

United States v. Vera Rojas, Case No. 10-20236-Cr-Jordan, rev'd and remanded for resentencing, 2011 WL 262359 (11th Cir. July 6, 2011). In this criminal case, I ruled, based on the general savings statute (1 U.S.C. § 109) and certain prior decisions, that the Fair Sentencing Act of 2010, Pub. L. No. 111-220, 124 Stat. 2372 (2010), was not retroactive as to individuals who had committed offenses before the Act became effective. On appeal, the Eleventh Circuit reversed and held that the Act applied to individuals who were sentenced after its effective date, even if their conduct took place before that date. The mandate in this case has not yet issued, and as a result the decision is not yet final.

- g. Provide a description of the number and percentage of your decisions in which you issued an unpublished opinion and the manner in which those unpublished opinions are filed and/or stored.

According to statistics compiled by our clerk of court, I have presided over 5,700 cases (over 4,600 civil cases and over 1,100 criminal cases) as a district judge, and have issued thousands of orders in those cases. The great majority of those orders are unpublished, but may be found in the court's electronic docketing system (with the possible exception of cases originating in the 1980s or earlier).

- h. Provide citations for significant opinions on federal or state constitutional issues, together with the citation to appellate court rulings on such opinions. If any of the opinions listed were not officially reported, provide copies of the opinions.

14. Recusal: If you are or have been a judge, identify the basis by which you have assessed the necessity or propriety of recusal (If your court employs an "automatic" recusal system by which you may be recused without your knowledge, please include a general description of that system.) Provide a list of any cases, motions or matters that have come before you in which a litigant or party has requested that you recuse yourself due to an asserted conflict of interest or in which you have recused yourself sua sponte. Identify each such case, and for each provide the following information:

- a. whether your recusal was requested by a motion or other suggestion by a litigant or a party to the proceeding or by any other person or interested party; or if you recused yourself sua sponte;
- b. a brief description of the asserted conflict of interest or other ground for recusal;
- c. the procedure you followed in determining whether or not to recuse yourself;
- d. your reason for recusing or declining to recuse yourself, including any action taken to remove the real, apparent or asserted conflict of interest or to cure any other ground for recusal.

The judges on our court can give the clerk's office a list of individuals and entities in whose cases we would recuse. I have provided such a list to the clerk's office, which provides automated conflict/recusal checks by email to ensure that no cases are missed. As a general matter, I recuse in cases where an objective, disinterested, and fully informed lay observer would entertain a significant doubt about my impartiality. See 28 U.S.C. §§ 144, 455.

I have recused sua sponte from the following cases:

- (i) Cases involving the University of Miami and Florida International University, where I teach as an adjunct professor. This includes cases where a professor appeared as lead counsel through a clinic or similar legal program supported by either university.

Rodriguez v. Mercy Hosp., Inc., Case No. 02-21886-Civ (S.D. Fla.)

(ix) Cases where I believed my impartiality might reasonably be questioned because, for example, I had personal knowledge about the case, or because a pro se litigant had brought similar claims against me.

McGuire v. Clerk of the Court, Case No. 04-20877-Civ (S.D. Fla.). Mr. McGuire brought an action in state court, which was removed, to recover fees from the clerk of court for his work as an expert witness in another case before me. Because a representative of the clerk of the court came to see me concerning Mr. McGuire's claims before they were removed, I felt uncomfortable presiding over the case and recused myself – despite the fact that both parties had no objections to my staying on as the judge.

May v. Moreno, et al., Case No. 00-4119-Civ (S.D. Fla.). I recused in this case because Mr. May's suit – which asserted claims against a district judge in the Central District of California – was similar to two actions he had filed against me arising from rulings I issued against him in his other cases. Mr. May was proceeding pro se, and filed dozens of lawsuits, including actions against judges who ruled against him.

I have denied motions for recusal or disqualification in the following cases:

(i) Driessen v. Christiani, et al., Case No. 11-20910-Civ-Jordan (S.D. Fla.). Ms. Driessen, proceeding pro se, filed an affidavit of bias, which I construed as a motion to recuse under 28 U.S.C. §§ 144 and 455(a). She argued that I was biased based on my rulings in another case over which I presided (and in which she was a defendant). She also noted that one of the defendants she had sued (a state court judge) was of Cuban heritage, like me. I denied Ms. Driessen's motion, finding that her affidavit failed to allege facts that would convince a reasonable person that bias actually existed. See Christo v. Padgett, 223 F.3d 1324, 1333 (11th Cir. 2000).

(ii) Rodriguez v. Brown, et al., Case No. 10-21529-Civ-Jordan (S.D. Fla.). Mr. Rodriguez, proceeding pro se, argued that I had improperly dismissed his complaint without prejudice. Based on the language he used, I construed Mr. Rodriguez's motion as one to recuse under 28 U.S.C. § 455(a). I denied the motion because "judicial rulings alone almost never constitute a valid basis for a bias or partiality motion." See United States v. Amedeo, 487 F.3d 823, 828 (11th Cir. 2007).

(iii) Aviles v. United States, Case No. 10-20725-Civ-Jordan (S.D. Fla.). Mr. Aviles, who was convicted of narcotics offenses, brought a motion to vacate his conviction on a pro se basis. He moved to recuse me under 28 U.S.C. §§ 144 and 455(a) because I was allegedly biased against him and his co-defendants during his trial, based on rulings and statements I had made during the trial. Because my previous rulings and statements did not form a viable basis for recusal, I did not recuse.

(iv) United States v. Steinger, et al., Case No. 08-21158-Cr-Jordan (S.D. Fla.). Mr. Steinger and Mr. Steiner – both accused of engaging in a viatical fraud scheme – moved to disqualify me (and all other judges in the Southern District of Florida) under 28 U.S.C. § 455(a). Two other defendants joined the motion, but a fifth defendant did not. The basis for their motion was that all the judges in district had ties to current and former public officials whom an individual, Mr. Mendelhsen, had claimed to the defendants he could bribe in exchange for their efforts to dissuade then-U.S. Attorney Alexander Acosta from bringing federal charges against them. Among the public officials named by Mr. Mendelhsen was Paul C. Huck, Jr., the son of U.S. District Judge Paul Huck. The Department of Justice's Public Integrity Section eventually charged Mr. Mendelhsen with mail and wire fraud (and he pled guilty to the charges), but it found that his story regarding his dealings with current and former public officials was completely fabricated.

I limited my consideration of the defendants' recusal motion to myself, and referred the motion to recuse all of the district's other judges to the district's chief judge. I found that there was no reason for me, or any of the district's judges, to be biased against the defendants since it was not them, but Mr. Mendelsohn, whose actions would create any semblance of partiality, and also because it was ultimately uncovered that the entire story was fabricated.

(v) Thompson v. The Florida Bar, Case No. 07-21256-Civ-Jordan (S.D. Fla.). Mr. Thompson, proceeding pro se, moved to recuse me over a dozen times from his case. I denied all of the motions. For example, in one instance, Mr. Thompson suggested that an order to show cause that I issued – due to his having submitted pornographic images in a public court filing – showed that I was not impartial. I construed this as a motion to recuse under 28 U.S.C. § 455(a). I found that the order to show cause was warranted in light of the graphic images filed by Mr. Thompson, and that – though I had not yet sanctioned him or held him in contempt – any decision to sanction him based on that conduct would not demonstrate any impartiality. See Litek v. United States, 510 U.S. 540, 555 (1994) (“judicial rulings alone almost never constitute a valid basis for a bias or partiality motion”).

On another occasion, Mr. Thompson moved for relief from an order dismissing his case against the Florida Bar under Rule 60(b)(6). He argued that I was biased as a result of my participation in public seminars and speaking engagements for the Florida Bar. Among other reasons, I denied the motion because there was nothing improper or extraordinary about my participation in these events which would require that I disturb the finality of the judgment. See e.g., Hirsch v. Justices of the Supreme Court of California, 67 F.3d 708, 715 (9th Cir. 1995); Hu v. American Bar Association, 2009 WL 1796441, *1 (7th Cir. 2009). Mr. Thompson has been permanently disbarred by the Florida Bar.

(vi) Barnes v. Home Equity Mortgage Corp., Case No. 07-60650-Civ-Jordan (S.D. Fla.). Mr. Barnes moved to recuse me from the case because one of my law clerks had been offered employment by the law firm representing one of the litigants. But under Eleventh Circuit precedent, in this scenario I was only required to isolate that law clerk from working on the matter, which I had done. I denied his motion to the extent it sought my recusal.

(vii) Copeland, et al. v. Schwartz, Case No. 07-60818-Civ-Jordan (S.D. Fla.). After the case had been thoroughly litigated at both the trial level and in the Eleventh Circuit, Ms. Copeland, proceeding pro se, moved to recuse me. Because the case had been exhaustively tried, and had been resolved, I denied her motion.

(viii) Awala v. Levi, et al., Case No. 06-21014-Civ-Jordan (S.D. Fla.). I denied Mr. Awala's motion to recuse as moot because it was filed after the case had been dismissed and closed.

(ix) Pintado v. Miami-Dade Housing Agency, Case No. 04-22856-Civ-Jordan (S.D. Fla.). Mr. Pintado moved to disqualify me for bias under 28 U.S.C. § 144 primarily based on an order I had issued. In that order, I had incorrectly ruled that his Rule 59(e) motion was untimely, and thereby construed it as a Rule 60 motion, which I ultimately denied. But I vacated that erroneous order, and thus, cured any effect it had on Mr. Pintado’s right to file a timely appeal. In fact, Mr. Pintado was able to file an appeal in the Eleventh Circuit. Mr. Pintado also argued that I should have been disqualified because counsel for the County and I had a mutual friend, also an attorney, in common. But he did not provide any case law suggesting that such a mutual third-party friendship is proper grounds for disqualification under § 144. Finally, I found that, to the extent Mr. Pintado sought to disqualify me based on my rulings against him on summary judgment or his post-trial motion, his argument did not have any merit.

(x) United States v. Prada, Case No. 04-20446-Cr-Jordan (S.D. Fla.). Mr. Prada, a criminal defendant facing narcotics trafficking charges, moved on a pro se basis to disqualify me for various rulings entered in the case. His reasons included that I “thwarted” a refund that he was supposedly owed by his former counsel; that I improperly rejected “affidavits” which he had submitted regarding the applicable law; and that I failed to provide him access to all grand jury transcripts. I denied Mr. Prada’s motion because the reasons he offered for my disqualification were invalid and did not warrant recusal or disqualification under 28 U.S.C. § 455(a).

(xi) Massachusetts Mutual Life Ins. Co. v. May, Case No. 99-06774-Civ-Jordan (S.D. Fla.). Ms. May moved to recuse me under 28 U.S.C. § 455(a) because – while working in private practice at Steel Hector & Davis – I had represented Massachusetts Mutual in matters unrelated to her litigation. I denied the motion because a judge’s previous representation of a party in an unrelated matter, or a judge’s previous employment with a law firm representing a party before him, are not grounds for recusal under Eleventh Circuit and Supreme Court precedent.

(xii) Azubko v. Commissioner of Police for the City of Boston, et al., Case No. 04-21072-Civ-Jordan (S.D. Fla.). Mr. Azubko, proceeding pro se, filed a document entitled “Plaintiff’s Complaint Against Judge Jordan,” which I construed as a motion to recuse. I denied the motion as moot because the case had already been closed for several months prior to the filing of the motion.

(xiii) Lans v. Stuckey, et al., Case No. 04-22173-Civ Jordan (S.D. Fla.). Mr. Lans, proceeding pro se, moved to recuse me after I entered judgment in favor of the defendants following a bench trial. Mr. Lans contended that I was biased because I am Hispanic (like some of the defendants and their counsel) and because of prior rulings that I made against him. I found that neither reason was valid as a matter of law.

(xiv) Stahl v. United States, Case No. 07-20631-Civ-Jordan (S.D. Fla.). Mr. Stahl filed an “Emergency Health Letter,” which I construed as a motion to recuse under 28 U.S.C. § 455(a). Because the apparent basis for his motion was that I had ruled against him in part on summary judgment, I denied the motion.

(xv) Awala v. Zloch, Case No. 07-20863-Civ-Jordan (S.D. Fla.). In this case Mr. Awala sued all of the active and senior judges in the district – myself included – some of whom had issued rulings in his pro se cases. Although Mr. Awala did not raise the issue, I sua sponte determined that recusal was not warranted because of the rule of necessity, because the case was being dismissed without prejudice for lack of prosecution (i.e., Mr. Awala’s failure to take any action in 18 months), and because I did not have to address the merits. In a footnote, I explained that recusal might have been warranted if the merits had to be reached.

The following is a motion for recusal that I have granted:

Comm-Lease International Limited, et al. v. Lucent Technologies, Inc., Case No. 01-05109-Civ-Martinez (Jordan) (S.D. Fla.). At calendar call in a case set for a bench trial, the plaintiffs indicated that a friend of mine was an important witness of theirs on both liability and damages. As a result, the plaintiffs stated that they were not comfortable with me remaining on the case. Despite the fact that the plaintiffs waited until basically the eve of trial to bring this matter to my attention, I found it appropriate to recuse.

- iv. whether you served as a mediator or arbitrator in alternative dispute resolution proceedings and, if so, a description of the 10 most significant matters with which you were involved in that capacity.

I never served as a mediator or arbitrator as an attorney.

- b. Describe:

- i. the general character of your law practice and indicate by date when its character has changed over the years.

After clerking in the Eleventh Circuit and in the Supreme Court, I joined Steel Hector & Davis' litigation department in 1989. At SH&D, I initially handled First Amendment matters and commercial litigation cases. With respect to First Amendment matters, I worked on defamation (libel and slander) and media access cases as well as contempt proceedings involving media clients. In the commercial setting, I worked on business disputes that had resulted in litigation. The substantive areas of law included ERISA, insurance, contracts, attorney malpractice, civil rights, banking, zoning, products liability, foreclosures, personal injury, and wrongful death. The majority of my work in commercial litigation was on behalf of civil defendants.

Following my first several years at SH&D, I began to specialize in appellate practice, writing briefs and presenting oral arguments in the federal and state appellate courts. My appellate work was on behalf of both appellants and appellees. In addition, I handled numerous pro bono cases while at SH&D, including the appellate representation of abused and neglected children (through the Guardian Ad Litem Program) in state dependency/termination proceedings, the appellate representation of a death row inmate in a federal habeas corpus appeal in the Eleventh Circuit, the representation at trial of an inmate suing Dade County under 42 U.S.C. § 1983 for injuries sustained at the Dade County Jail, and the representation of an individual who alleged that he had been beaten by correctional officers in St. Lucie County.

From August of 1994 to September of 1999, I worked as an Assistant United States Attorney in the Appellate Division of the U.S. Attorney's Office and worked mainly on civil and criminal appeals involving the government. I became the Deputy Chief of the Appellate Division in October of 1996, and became the Chief of the Division in January of 1998. All of my work (except for some pro bono cases) was in the federal system. Approximately 80-90% of my work was in substantive and procedural criminal law (including the constitutional issues raised in criminal proceedings); the remaining 10-20% involved civil and asset forfeiture matters. I handled civil and criminal matters from all of the different trial sections in the U.S. Attorney's Office (e.g., Public Corruption, Organized Crime, Economic Crimes, Narcotics, Major Crimes, Environmental Crimes, Civil, and Asset Forfeiture).

In October of 1997, the U.S. Attorney, Thomas Scott, named me Special Counsel to the U.S. Attorney on Legal Policy and appointed me Chairperson of the Hiring Committee. As Special Counsel, I provided advice to Mr. Scott on legal and policy issues, including those arising in pending criminal matters and investigations. I also worked on special projects he assigned to me.

- ii. your typical clients and the areas at each period of your legal career, if any, in which you have specialized.

While I was at Steel Hector & Davis (from 1989 to 1994), the non-pro bono clients for whom I did work were mainly mid- to large-sized corporations. The media/entertainment clients included The St. Petersburg Times, The Miami Herald, The Palm Beach Post, Turner Network Television, CNN, Cowles Media, Barbour-Langley Productions, and Post-Newsweek Stations. Other clients included Prudential Securities, Mass Mutual, Mitsubishi, Dupont, Espirito Santo Bank, Atlantic Gulf, Transportes Aereos de Honduras, Provident Insurance Company, Southeast Bank, Reedy Creek Improvement District (Walt Disney World's governmental arm), Paramount Pictures, Peat Marwick, Telesat, John Hancock, Florida Power & Light, and Goodyear Tire Company. During my first several years at SH&D, I did some First Amendment work, which mainly involved the representation of media clients in defamation (libel and slander) and access cases, as well as contempt proceedings. After my first couple of years at SH&D, and during my employment at the U.S. Attorney's office, I specialized in appellate litigation. I wrote over 125 appellate briefs (in both civil and criminal cases) in the federal and state courts, and had 36 appellate oral arguments in those courts.

From August of 1994 to September of 1999, my only client (except for pro bono cases) was the United States.

- c. Describe the percentage of your practice that has been in litigation and whether you appeared in court frequently, occasionally, or not at all. If the frequency of your appearances in court varied, describe such variance, providing dates.

At Steel Hector & Davis, I appeared in court an average of once a month. At the U.S. Attorney's Office, where I did mostly appellate work, I appeared in court approximately once a month.

- i. Indicate the percentage of your practice in:

1. federal courts:	65%
2. state courts of record:	35%
3. other courts:	0%
4. administrative agencies:	0%

- ii. Indicate the percentage of your practice in:

1. civil proceedings:	55%
2. criminal proceedings:	45%

- d. State the number of cases in courts of record, including cases before administrative law judges, you tried to verdict, judgment or final decision (rather than settled), indicating whether you were sole counsel, chief counsel, or associate counsel.

I tried seven cases to judgment, including two preliminary injunction evidentiary hearings that resulted in final judgments. Of the seven cases, six were in federal district court, and the other was in state circuit court. I was sole counsel in one case, lead counsel in one case, and associate counsel (i.e., second chair) in the other five cases.

- i. What percentage of these trials were:
- | | |
|--------------|-----|
| 1. jury: | 57% |
| 2. non-jury: | 43% |

- e. Describe your practice, if any, before the Supreme Court of the United States. Supply four (4) copies of any briefs, amicus or otherwise, and, if applicable, any oral argument transcripts before the Supreme Court in connection with your practice.

I drafted (along with Martin Reeder and Wifredo Ferrer of Steel Hector & Davis) an amicus brief on behalf of The Palm Beach Post and The Miami Herald in support of a petition for writ of certiorari filed by a reporter who had been found guilty of criminal contempt for not revealing his sources for a story. 17. Litigation: Describe the ten (10) most significant litigated matters which you personally handled, whether or not you were the attorney of record. Give the citations, if the cases were reported, and the docket number and date if unreported. Give a capsule summary of the substance of each case. Identify the party or parties whom you represented; describe in detail the nature of your participation in the litigation and the final disposition of the case. Also state as to each case:

- a. the date of representation;

- b. the name of the court and the name of the judge or judges before whom the case was litigated; and
- c. the individual name, addresses, and telephone numbers of co-counsel and of principal counsel for each of the other parties.

In chronological order, these are the 10 most significant litigated matters which I personally handled.

(1) Ocean Bio-Chem, Inc. v. Turner Network Television, Inc., 741 F. Supp. 1546 (S.D. Fla. 1990); District Judge Kenneth Ryskamp; 1989 – 1990.

In December of 1989, Turner Network Television (TNT) broadcast a fictional made-for-television movie entitled “Incident at Dark River.” The movie portrayed the anguish of a father over his daughter’s death, which had been caused by the river pollution of a company called “Starbrite Batteries.” Ocean Bio-Chem, a company which marketed numerous products under the Starbrite name, filed suit against TNT, asserting federal and state trademark infringement and dilution claims. I was associate counsel on behalf of TNT. I handled portions of an evidentiary hearing held on Ocean BioChem’s request for a preliminary injunction and co-drafted TNT’s legal memoranda. The evidentiary hearing resulted in a final summary judgment in favor of TNT. Judge Ryskamp issued a lengthy published opinion on First Amendment protections and federal trademark law.

Fla. 1991); 958 F.2d 340 (11th Cir. 1992); 616 So. 2d 12 (Fla. 1993); 989 F.2d 428 (11th Cir. 1993), cert. denied, 510 U.S. 964 (1993); United States Court of Appeals for the Eleventh Circuit Judges: Circuit Judges Phyllis Kravitch, Lanier Anderson, and Stanley Birch; 1990 – 1994.

This diversity case involved claims that St. Paul Fire and Marine Insurance Company had acted in bad faith in refusing to settle a negligence claim asserted against its insured, a neurosurgeon named Dr. Kimbell, and that this conduct had led to an excess judgment being entered against Dr. Kimbell. We represented the trustee of Dr. Kimbell’s bankruptcy estate. Our theory was that St. Paul had improperly tried to use Dr. Kimbell's bankruptcy as a shield to avoid a bad faith claim. The district court granted summary judgment in favor of St. Paul, and we appealed to the Eleventh Circuit. I drafted about 80% of our initial and reply briefs and presented oral argument. The Eleventh Circuit ended up certifying the case to the Florida Supreme Court on state law issues.

In the Florida Supreme Court, I again drafted about 80% of our appellate briefs, and Sandy D'Alemberte of Steel Hector & Davis handled the oral argument. In 1993, the Florida Supreme Court held that under Florida law a named insured's bankruptcy does not bar a bad faith action by the bankruptcy trustee against the insurer. When the case returned to the Eleventh Circuit, the panel reversed the district court's summary judgment based on the Florida Supreme Court's ruling. At trial, the jury returned a verdict in favor of our client for $2.7 million (the excess amount). After I left SH&D for the U.S. Attorney's Office, the Eleventh Circuit affirmed the jury verdict, rejected St. Paul's attempts to overturn the prior appellate rulings, and held that our client was entitled to pre-judgment interest.

(3) United States v. Browne, Case No. 92-6101-Cr-Ryskamp; District Judge Kenneth Ryskamp; 1992 – 1993.

A federal grand jury charged Mr. Browne, a Port Everglades Commissioner and union leader, with mail fraud and tax offenses. Thomas Scott (a former federal district judge and U.S. Attorney in Miami), Henry Salas, and I represented Mr. Browne. I was responsible for developing our legal theories and for handling the portions of the case relating to the tax charges. I worked with our tax expert and cross-examined the government's tax witness (Mr. Browne's accountant) at trial. I also presented the Rule 29 acquittal arguments on all of the charges to Judge Ryskamp after the government rested its case. Judge Ryskamp agreed with our arguments and acquitted Mr. Browne of all charges without submitting the case to the jury.

In October 1989, a Boeing 727 aircraft operated by Transportes Aereos Nacionales, S.A., and Servicios Aereos de Honduras, S.A. ("TAN-SAHSA") crashed near Tegucigalpa, Honduras, killing 127 passengers and 4 crew members and injuring 15 others. Over 30 lawsuits were filed against our client, TAN-SAHSA, in Dade County Circuit Court by representatives of Nicaraguan citizens killed in the crash. The parties stipulated that Nicaraguan law governed, and that TAN-SAHSA would not contest liability for compensatory damages recoverable under Nicaraguan law. The parties disagreed, however, about whether or not the plaintiffs could recover "daños morales" ("moral damages" or damages based on noneconomic harm such as pain and suffering) under Nicaraguan law given the facts presented. After an evidentiary hearing, the circuit court ruled that the plaintiffs could recover damages for non-economic harm.

I drafted TAN-SAHSA's motion for reconsideration and the majority of its initial and reply briefs in the Third District. The appellate briefs focused on whether the circuit court had misapplied Nicaraguan law in its ruling on "moral damages." I also presented oral argument to the Third District panel on TAN-SAHSA's behalf. In March 1993, the Third District reversed the circuit court's rulings. The Third District held that under Nicaraguan law TAN-SAHSA was not liable for "moral damages" given the facts presented, and set aside the $2.9 million award for such damages in the two cases on appeal.

(5) Ivory v. Dade County, Case No. 88-2321-Civ-Marcus (Sorrentino); United States District Court for the Southern District of Florida; Magistrate Judge Charlene Sorrentino; 1992 – 1993.

In 1993, Jon Sjostrom and I tried, on a pro bono basis, a civil rights action against Dade County under 42 U.S.C. § 1983. We received the case from the Florida Justice Institute, which had filed the suit on behalf of plaintiff Ivory. In 1986, while a pre-trial detainee at the Dade County Jail, Mr. Ivory had been stabbed multiple times by an inmate with a history of violent attacks on others. The inmate, despite his prior actions, had not been segregated from non-violent inmates and had, in fact, been placed on a general population floor at the Dade County Jail. We asserted that Dade County was liable under § 1983 because it had a policy, custom, or practice of not maintaining adequate records by which to identify and segregate violent inmates, and because that policy had led to Mr. Ivory's stabbing.

With the consent of the parties, the case was tried before Magistrate Judge Sorrentino. Mr. Sjostrom and I divided the trial work. I handled the jury selection, conducted the direct examination of two officials from the Dade County Corrections Department, and worked on the jury instructions. Mr. Sjostrom presented the opening statement, conducted the direct examination of Mr. Ivory and four expert witnesses, and presented closing argument. We were able to establish that the Dade County Jail, which was overcrowded, did not have any practical way to compile incident reports on violent inmates so as to segregate them from pre-trial detainees and non-violent inmates. The jury returned a verdict in Mr. Ivory's favor and awarded him $375,000 for his injuries and pain and suffering. Magistrate Judge Sorrentino later remitted (i.e., reduced) the sum awarded by the jury, and we settled the case on Mr. Ivory's behalf for a sum larger than the remittitur but smaller than the jury verdict.

(6) Routly v. Singletary, 33 F.3d 1279 (11th Cir. 1994); Circuit Judges Gerald Tjoflat, Emmet Cox, and Stanley Birch, 1993 – 1994.

In 1993, Professor Steve Goldstein of the FSU Law School and the Volunteer Lawyers' Resource Center asked me to handle, on a pro bono basis, the Eleventh Circuit habeas corpus appeal of Mr. Routly. Mr. Routly had been convicted of murder in Ocala in 1980, and had been sentenced to death by a Florida judge who had overridden the jury's recommendation of life imprisonment. I agreed to take the case and, with the help of other attorneys and law clerks at Steel Hector & Davis, drafted a 70-page initial brief and a reply brief on behalf of Mr. Routly. Among the claims were constitutional challenges to Florida's jury override system in capital cases and an argument that the prosecution had knowingly permitted false testimony and failed to turn over exculpatory evidence. The record in the case was voluminous and had produced three published opinions in the Florida Supreme Court. I spent hundreds of hours on the case.

I presented oral argument before the Eleventh Circuit on July 19, 1994. At argument, the panel requested supplemental briefs on Mr. Routly's challenge to Florida's jury override system, and I prepared and filed a supplemental brief. Several months later, the Eleventh Circuit issued a published opinion adopting the district court's order and denying Mr. Routly relief.

Under the customs laws, property valued at less than $500,000 can be forfeited administratively. To prevent summary forfeiture and obtain a hearing, a claimant must file a claim to the seized property and post a bond. The regulations of the U.S. Customs Service provide that the bond requirement will be waived "upon satisfactory proof of financial inability to post [the] bond." 19 C.F.R. § 162.47(e). In 1992, U.S. Customs agents seized $476,590 from Mr. Arango's home during an undercover money laundering investigation. When U.S. Customs sought to forfeit the money, Mr. Arango requested that the matter be referred for judicial forfeiture proceedings. He later sought to have the bond requirement waived, and filed a sworn declaration of indigency and a copy of his 1991 joint tax return. Because of discrepancies in the documents submitted by Mr. Arango, U.S. Customs asked him for an interview to clarify his financial status. Mr. Arango, invoking his Fifth Amendment privilege against self-incrimination, declined to submit to the interview. U.S. Customs then informed Mr. Arango that he would have to post the required cost bond. He did not post the bond, and therefore did not obtain a judicial forfeiture hearing.

In late 1994, Mr. Arango filed a civil action in federal district court alleging that U.S. Customs had acted arbitrarily in denying his request for waiver of the cost bond. The district court dismissed the complaint, and Mr. Arango appealed to the Eleventh Circuit. I drafted the government's brief and presented oral argument to the Eleventh Circuit, which affirmed the dismissal of Mr. Arango's complaint. The Eleventh Circuit agreed with the government's arguments that Mr. Arango had been provided with due process and that the U.S. Customs Service's application of § 162.47(e) was not arbitrary or capricious under the Administrative Procedure Act. The opinion was the first published federal appellate decision in the United States dealing with the constitutional and administrative implications of § 162.47(e).

(8) United States v. Brand, 163 F.3d 1268 (11th Cir. 1998); Circuit Judge Joseph Hatchett and Senior Circuit Judges Paul Roney and Donald Lay; 1997 – 1998.

This case involved an issue of first impression concerning the restitution provisions of the Child Support Recovery Act of 1992 (codified at 18 U.S.C. § 228). The CSRA, which criminalizes the willful failure to pay “a past due support obligation with respect to a child who resides in another state,” § 228(a), provides in § 228(c) that “upon conviction ... the court shall order restitution ... in an amount equal to the past due support obligation as it exists at the time of sentencing.” The term “past due support obligation” is defined in § 228(d)(1)(A) of the CSRA as the amount due “for the support and maintenance of a child or of a child and the parent with whom the child is living.” The issue of first impression was whether a defendant convicted of violating the CSRA could be made to pay, as restitution, the full amount set forth in a state court dissolution judgment which ordered the defendant to pay his spouse a lump sum for multiple, interrelated purposes.

The Eleventh Circuit agreed with the arguments set forth in the government's brief, which I drafted, and held that the defendant could be ordered to pay restitution of $4.5 million based on an underlying state court lump sum award. Significantly, the Eleventh Circuit rejected Mr. Brand's argument that the CSRA should be interpreted in light of state family law. The Eleventh Circuit also ruled (1) that the underlying state court order was not unconstitutionally vague, (2) that the CSRA does not permit collateral attacks on underlying support judgments, and (3) that due process concerns are not implicated by the refusal to entertain collateral attacks in CSRA cases where the defendant has not sought to challenge, modify, or clarify the underlying state court order. Finally, the Eleventh Circuit noted that the government's position that restitution under the CSRA was mandatory was “well taken,” but said that it did not have to address that argument given its resolution of Mr. Brand's appeal.

In April 1998, before the RICO / “Operation Courtroom” retrial of former state judge Alfonso Sepe, Senior District Judge Norman Roettger issued a ruling excluding the testimony of Mr. Sepe’s convicted co-defendant. Judge Roettger found that the government had engaged in misconduct by, among other things, not being forthright with Mr. Sepe’s lawyer about the co-defendant testifying on behalf of the government, and concluded that suppression of the testimony was the appropriate sanction. The government appealed Judge Roettger’s ruling, and I drafted the government’s brief, arguing that Judge Roettger’s findings were not supported by the record and that the suppression of the co-defendant’s testimony was erroneous. I also presented oral argument to a panel of the Eleventh Circuit, which reversed the suppression of the testimony.

On October 11 and 13, 1993, two Miami newspapers printed articles reporting that District Judge K. Michael Moore of the Southern District of Florida was under investigation by the U.S. Attorney’s Office in Brooklyn, New York, for allegedly accepting gratuities worth thousands of dollars from officials of Central Security Systems, Inc. (“CSSI”) while he served as Director of the U.S. Marshals Service. A few days later, Judge Moore entered an order recusing himself from all cases in which the United States was a party. In early 1994, various defendants who had been tried before and/or sentenced by Judge Moore prior to his recusal filed motions for new trials or new sentencing hearings. They argued that the grand jury investigation of Judge Moore had been ongoing since November 1992, and that Judge Moore should have recused himself at that earlier date pursuant to 28 U.S.C. § 455(a). Ultimately, Eleventh Circuit Chief Judge Gerald Tjoflat appointed District Judge William C. O’Kelley of Atlanta to rule on the new trial motions because judges in the Southern District of Florida had disqualified themselves from the cases. After an evidentiary hearing at which Judge Moore testified, Judge O’Kelley ruled in a published opinion that Judge Moore should have recused himself in November of 1992, when he learned that he was a “subject” in the grand jury investigation. As a result, Judge O’Kelley granted new trials and new sentencing hearings in over 20 cases involving over 35 defendants.

The United States appealed, and I wrote the government’s brief in the more than 20 consolidated cases. The case presented an issue of first impression in the entire country – whether a federal district judge who is a “subject” but not a “target” of a federal grand jury investigation is required to recuse himself from all cases in which the United States is a party. I presented oral argument to the Eleventh Circuit on October 7, 1997, in a proceeding that lasted over 2 hours.

In April 1998, an Eleventh Circuit panel issued a published opinion affirming Chief Judge O’Kelley’s rulings and rejecting the government’s arguments. I drafted and filed the government’s suggestion of rehearing en banc in June 1998, and rehearing en banc was granted in November 1998. I drafted about 90% of the government’s initial and reply en banc briefs, and represented the government at the en banc oral argument on January 27, 1999. The en banc Eleventh Circuit was evenly divided with respect to whether Judge Moore should have recused under § 455(a) but ruled that a defendant should be granted a new trial only upon a showing of prejudice.

Throughout my career in private practice and at the U.S. Attorney's office, I regularly provided pro bono representation to indigent litigants. I am proud of my pro bono work – which was very informative and fulfilling – and which is summarized in the answer to question 25.

In 1989, the United States Supreme Court ruled that state and local affirmative action programs were subject to strict scrutiny. See City of Richmond v. J.A. Croson Co., 488 U.S. 469 (1989). The Croson decision led many state and local government entities to analyze whether their minority-set aside programs passed constitutional muster. My former firm, Steel Hector & Davis, joined together with the accounting firm of KPMG Peat Marwick, TEM Associates, and other consultants to conduct discrimination studies for state and local government entities and to make recommendations concerning their programs. I worked on the legal aspects of the studies together with two then-SH&D partners, Frank Scruggs and Sam Dubbin. My job on these studies consisted of taking the data assembled by other components of the team and analyzing it to see if the affirmative action program at issue was constitutional under Croson and its progeny. We conducted studies for the State of Florida (two studies – one for the Department of Transportation and the other for the remaining state agencies), the City of Miami, and the West Coast Regional Water Supply Authority. My work on these various studies allowed me to meet and work with government officials at the state and local levels, and permitted me to merge legal analysis with the public policy and planning involved in administering affirmative action programs.

19. Teaching: What courses have you taught? 20. Deferred Income/ Future Benefits: List the sources, amounts and dates of all anticipated receipts from deferred income arrangements, stock, options, uncompleted contracts and other future benefits which you expect to derive from previous business relationships, professional services, firm memberships, former employers, clients or customers. Describe the arrangements you have made to be compensated in the future for any financial or business interest.

I do not have any such anticipated receipts or arrangements.

21. Outside Commitments During Court Service: Do you have any plans, commitments, or agreements to pursue outside employment, with or without compensation, during your service with the court? If so, explain.

If possible, I plan to continue my law school teaching, and have agreed to teach at Florida International University College of Law in the Spring of 2012. If possible, I also plan to continue serving as a volunteer soccer coach at St. Brendan High School.

22. Sources of Income: List sources and amounts of all income received during the calendar year preceding your nomination and for the current calendar year, including all salaries, fees, dividends, interest, gifts, rents, royalties, licensing fees, honoraria, and other items exceeding $500 or more (if you prefer to do so, copies of the financial disclosure report, required by the Ethics in Government Act of 1978, may be substituted here).

See attached Financial Disclosure Report.

23. Statement of Net Worth: Please complete the attached financial net worth statement in detail (add schedules as called for).

See attached Net Worth Statement.

24. Potential Conflicts of Interest:

- a. Identify the family members or other persons, parties, categories of litigation, and financial arrangements that are likely to present potential conflicts-of-interest when you first assume the position to which you have been nominated. Explain how you would address any such conflict if it were to arise.

If I am confirmed, I will recuse in all cases involving any of my family members. I will also recuse in any cases involving the University of Miami and Florida International University (where I teach), in cases involving the Archdiocese of Miami (where my wife is employed as a high school teacher), in cases involving the City of Hialeah (where my brother-in-law is employed as a firefighter and paramedic), in cases where my former law clerks are listed as counsel of record and have primary responsibility for litigating the matter, and in cases involving close friends.

I would recuse in any cases that were pending before me as a district judge. I would also follow any recusal protocol that the Eleventh Circuit has for cases arising out of the Southern District of Florida for a certain period of time.

I would further recuse in cases involving close friends involved in the practice of law. Those friends are listed on the clerk's recusal list in the Southern District of Florida, and I would ask the clerk of the Eleventh Circuit to provide some mechanism for notification (in addition to the certificate of interested persons) if any of those friends appeared in a case so that I could recuse.

- b. Explain how you will resolve any potential conflict of interest, including the procedure you will follow in determining these areas of concern.

If I am confirmed, I will apply the standards set forth in 28 U.S.C. §§ 144 and 455 to any scenario involving a potential conflict of interest or appearance of partiality.

25. Pro Bono Work: An ethical consideration under Canon 2 of the American Bar Association's Code of Professional Responsibility calls for "every lawyer, regardless of professional prominence or professional workload, to find some time to participate in serving the disadvantaged." Describe what you have done to fulfill these responsibilities, listing specific instances and the amount of time devoted to each.

As a judge, I am not allowed to practice law on behalf of others, so I have not engaged in any pro bono legal work since my confirmation in September of 1999. From 2000 – 2010, however, I was the court liaison to the Volunteer Lawyers Project, the pro bono program of the District Court for the Southern District of Florida. I regularly attended meetings of the Project's advisory committee and visited law firms to encourage attorneys to do pro bono work through the Project. My work as liaison ended in 2010, when I became chair of the Magistrate Judges Committee and the Rules Committee for the Southern District of Florida.

Before I became a judge, I regularly provided pro bono legal representation to the indigent, and received pro bono awards in 1993, 1996, and 1998. My pro bono work included the following matters:

Representation of a teacher wrongfully accused by the Florida Department of Health and Rehabilitative Services (now the Department of Children and Families) of fondling students by bouncing them on his knee (1990 – 1991).

Representation of a Florida death row inmate in federal habeas corpus proceedings in the Eleventh Circuit, district court, and state court (1990 – 1991).

Guardian ad Litem representation of a child who was the subject of a dependency proceeding (1991 – 1992).

Representation of plaintiff in a civil rights action for excessive force against St. Lucie County and several correctional officers (1991 – 1994).

Guardian ad Litem representation of a child who was the subject of a dependency proceeding (1992).

Representation of various individuals and families who had lost their homes and/or suffered property losses during Hurricane Andrew (1992).

Representation of a pretrial detainee who had been stabbed by another inmate while awaiting trial at the Dade County Jail, in a civil rights action (1992 – 1993).

Guardian ad Litem representation of children who were the subjects of a proceeding to terminate their mother's parental rights due to abuse and neglect (1992 – 1995).

Representation of a Florida death row inmate in a federal habeas corpus appeal in the Eleventh Circuit (1993 – 1994).

Representation of a minor mother seeking to obtain a domestic abuse/violence restraining order against the father of her child (1995 – 1996).

Representation of the Guardian ad Litem Program in litigation between the Program and Miami-Dade County over the payment of expert witness fees in dependency/termination proceedings (1996 – 1997).

Representation of a woman in a proceeding to obtain a domestic violence injunction against her husband (1998).

Guardian ad Litem representation of children who were the subjects of proceedings to terminate the parental rights of their mother and unknown father(s) (1998 – 1999).

26. Selection Process:

- a. Please describe your experience in the entire judicial selection process, from beginning to end (including the circumstances which led to your nomination and the interviews in which you participated). Is there a selection commission in your jurisdiction to recommend candidates for nomination to the federal courts? If so, please include that process in your description, as well as whether the commission recommended your nomination. List the dates of all interviews or communications you had with the White House staff or the Justice Department regarding this nomination. Do not include any contacts with Federal Bureau of Investigation personnel concerning your nomination.

There is no selection commission in my jurisdiction to recommend candidates for nomination to the United States Court of Appeals for the Eleventh Circuit.

On April 13, 2011, at the suggestion of former Florida Senator Bob Graham, I sent my resume to senior officials at the White House Counsel's Office. I did not speak to any attorneys from the office at this time. The following day, I was asked by a staff member from the White House Counsel's Office to send a copy of my resume to her so that it could be provided to another senior attorney in the office. I did so, and called the staff member later that same day to confirm that she had received the resume.

Since May 11, 2011, I have been in contact with officials from the Office of Legal Policy at the Department of Justice. On June 14, 2011, and on July 26, 2011, I interviewed with attorneys from the White House Counsel's Office and the Department of Justice in Washington, DC. On August 2, 2011, President Obama submitted my nomination to the Senate.

- b. Has anyone involved in the process of selecting you as a judicial nominee discussed with you any currently pending or specific case, legal issue or question in a manner that could reasonably be interpreted as seeking any express or implied assurances concerning your position on such case, issue, or question? If so, explain fully.

No.

(NOTARY)

Senator KLOBUCHAR. Very good. Thank you so much. I am just going to ask you a few questions here at the beginning.

I am a former prosecutor myself, and I know you served in the Appellate Division, the chief of the Appellate Division of the United States Attorney's Office. How has that experience shaped your work as a judge?

Judge JORDAN. Well, it certainly helped me to figure out how to read records and learn hopefully what mistakes can be made and which ones can be avoided. I also argued and wrote a fair number of briefs while I was there at the office and was able to practice before the Eleventh Circuit for the majority of my time at the U.S. Attorney's Office. So it was certainly a different type of work than the one that I am doing now, but it certainly helped me to learn the law of the circuit, the traditions of the circuit, how things operate. And I think that that certainly helped prepare me, at least in part, for the job that I currently hold.

Senator KLOBUCHAR. And then you served for 12 years as a judge, and what surprised you about that job? And have you changed over the years in your philosophy as a judge?

Judge JORDAN. I do not think I have changed in my philosophy. Some judges who gave me advice when I came on told me it would take about 2 to 3 years to get your sea legs in a district like Miami, and I think they were basically right.

I was surprised at the speed of cases in a district like Miami where the criminal workload is pretty heavy, and we are in trial all of the time. I think last year we ended up maybe second or third in the country in trials, and for the past 4 or 5 years before that No. 1. So we are in trial a lot, and that is not something you get used to right away.

It also took me a little bit of time to get used to making calls on the spot, off the cuff, during a trial. That is not something you do on a normal, everyday basis as an appellate attorney. But you learn quickly that you better do it, or else things are going to get clogged up mighty fast.

Senator KLOBUCHAR. Very good. You are now going to be serving on a panel of judges on the circuit court, and talk about how you think you are going to handle that and trying to seek agreement. You have clearly gotten agreement between your two Senators that support you, so that is a good beginning. It is not that easy to do around here. So tell me about how you think you will handle the job differently than yours now and how you think you would go into that consensus building.

Judge JORDAN. It certainly is a different job. I think I am going to be helped in part by the fact that I have sat a number of times by designation on the circuit, and I have sat with I think half or a little bit over half of the judges on the circuit already.

The job of sitting by designation is certainly not the job of sitting as a full-time appellate judge. As a district judge in the Eleventh Circuit, you sit for just 2 days out of the 4, so you are able to fly in, hear 2 days' worth of cases, and then get your assignments and go back home. So the work will certainly be different in terms of volume.

But I think I understand what the process is like and what consensus building is about and how to be civil to your colleagues even when you might disagree with a position and how to try to reach middle ground on cases where that middle ground can be reached. So I hope that those experiences have prepared me well for the job that I will hopefully have.

Senator KLOBUCHAR. Very good. I really appreciate your answers. They were good ones.

I am going to turn it over to Senator Hatch.

Judge JORDAN. Thank you.

Senator HATCH. Welcome back to the Judiciary Committee. We are happy to have you here.

Judge JORDAN. Thank you, Senator.

Senator HATCH. I appreciate your comments on the issue of judicial impartiality. Some have argued that the judicial branch ought to be very much like the legislative branch where substantive interests are actually represented. On the other hand, the judicial oath requires impartiality without regard to the identity of the parties.

You know that because you have, of course—you have to take the oath and you understand that. Each individual certainly brings his own background and experiences with him or her to the bench, but please comment on a judge's obligation to step back from that and to judge cases impartially, if you will.

Judge JORDAN. I think that is one of the paramount goals of a judge in our system. We are supposed to be the neutral arbiters and judge and decide cases without regard to who it is who is before us or what their views are. I have certainly strived to try to do that in my almost 12 years on the district court bench in Miami. I do not think that our personal views have any place in what we do on a day-to-day basis as judges. We are all human beings, of course, but I think as a judge you need to try and strive very, very hard to make sure you are deciding the case on something other than your own preferences and views, whatever those might be. So I have strived and I hope I have achieved impartiality in my years on the bench in Miami.

Senator HATCH. Well, thank you. You have been a Federal trial judge for a dozen years. If confirmed, you will instead review the decisions of Federal trial court judges. Appeals are not supposed to be simply do-overs, just another bite at the apple. Please comment on the difference between these two roles of the trial court and appeals court judges in our judicial system.

Judge JORDAN. Well, there certainly are differences, and you do not get to have complete do-overs in the court of appeals on a whole range of cases. Obviously, questions of law get reviewed de novo, without any deference being given. But when you are talking about a judge's findings of fact or an evidentiary ruling which is subject to an abuse of discretion standard or things like that, I think appellate judges need to keep in mind that the trial judge is usually in the best vantage point and the best position to be able to make those calls, knows the litigants, knows the history of a case, knows what lawyers have argued, what might be missing, what might be going on in a case.

I think as district judges we hope that those calls are given deference when appropriate when our cases go up to the court of appeals, and I think and I hope that I will be able to do that if I am fortunate enough to be confirmed. I am confident that I can.

Senator HATCH. Thank you. I am certainly going to support your confirmation, and we congratulate you for being willing to serve in this very important position.

Judge JORDAN. Thank you very much, Senator.

Senator KLOBUCHAR. He did not even ask you the Christmas tree question, so you are really in good shape.

Judge JORDAN. Christmas trees do not grow in Miami.

[Laughter.]

Senator KLOBUCHAR. OK. Senator Lee.

Senator LEE. I have got one question I am just dying to ask you. As someone who has argued 36 appellate cases, briefed over 125 others, you made the transition when you became a district judge to that status, having probably had to jettison most of your appellate standards of review to one far corner of your brain. Which transition do you think will prove to be the more difficult one: the transition from appellate litigator to district judge or district judge to appellate judge—subject, again, to all the deferential standards of review?

Judge JORDAN. I think the first transition was more difficult. You know, as an appellate lawyer you get to sometimes sit in an ivory tower and pontificate about what might have happened or what theories might have been argued or what might be the best result in a world where everything else might be equal. And that is not the world of a district judge, not in a district like ours. So it takes a while to get used to that transition.

I did try some cases when I was an Assistant U.S. Attorney, so the trial courtroom was not foreign to me, but it certainly was not my specialty. So I think that transition was more difficult. I have sat with the Eleventh Circuit a number of times over the years and authored a number of opinions, so I think going back into that mind-set of what the appropriate standards of review are and working with colleagues and panels instead of being a lone judge making decisions at the trial level will not be as difficult. It will be a transition, but I do not think it will be as difficult as the first one that I made.

Senator LEE. I have got just one follow-up to that question, which is: Since the time when you were an appellate attorney, we have had the Blakely v. Washington era begin and sort of run its course. How substantial do you think the shift is now in the role of the appellate courts when you were an appellate attorney often handling criminal cases up on appeal and how it is now in the wake of Blakely v. Washington and its progeny?

Judge JORDAN. On sentencing issues, you mean?

Senator LEE. Yes.

Judge JORDAN. You know, I think at least I can comment on our circuit. I am certainly less familiar with the law in the other circuits. In our circuit I think that the Eleventh Circuit gives a fair amount of deference to district judges when they are applying Blakely, Booker, et cetera, as long as judges are reasoned and explain why it is that they might be imposing a sentence outside of the guidelines in a given case.

But the Eleventh Circuit is also not shy about reversing judges when they think they have gone too far, and they have done so on a number of occasions in pretty celebrated cases. So I think at least in our circuit, district judges know that if they have a reason to vary from the guidelines and express it and cogently explain why they are doing it and do not go crazy, there is a good chance that the circuit is going to give deference to that decision.

So I think—

Senator LEE. But probably more reversals than you had in criminal sentencing prior to Blakely.

Judge JORDAN. Well, you know, I do not know the statistical number, but they would be different reversals because before Blakely and Booker, the majority of sentencing appeals—we did them from the U.S. Attorney's Office when I was appellate chief—were basically guideline interpretations. There were not many departure appeals. Most of them were about whether or not the district judge correctly interpreted or applied a given guideline. So I think with regards to guideline application, the reversal rate probably has stayed about the same, which is relatively low. But now, of course, there is sentencing where the guidelines are not mandatory, and that is a new sort of deference that did not exist before. So they are two sort of target groups that you probably could not compare very well.

Senator LEE. Thank you.

Senator KLOBUCHAR. Do my colleagues have any additional questions?

[No response.]

Senator KLOBUCHAR. Well, thank you very much, Judge Jordan. We enjoyed your appearance here, and we wish you luck, and we will see you again. Thank you.

Judge JORDAN. Thank you very much.

Senator KLOBUCHAR. Very good.

Could the other nominees please come up and stand to be sworn? Do you affirm that the testimony that you are about to give before the Committee will be the truth, the whole truth, and nothing but the truth, so help you God?

Justice GERRARD. I do.

Ms. PHILLIPS. I do.

Mr. RICE. I do.

Judge NUFFER. I do.

Senator KLOBUCHAR. Very good. Well, thank you very much. Welcome, and we will start with Judge Gerrard, if you would like to introduce anyone that is here with you today.

STATEMENT OF JOHN M. GERRARD, NOMINEE TO BE DISTRICT JUDGE FOR THE DISTRICT OF NEBRASKA

Justice GERRARD. I would be happy to, Senator, and thank you. I want to thank the President for the honor of the nomination and for both of my home State Senators, obviously, for their consistent support both beginning and through the process.

With me today is my wife and full partner in life, Nancy, and also with me is my daughter, Erin Ching, and my grandson, Joshua, but I think they might be in the cry room, appropriately. But she is here.

Senator KLOBUCHAR. We have a lot of crying rooms around here. I am sure you found one.

[Laughter.]

Justice GERRARD. He has got a good reason, though. He is 11 months old.

I also want to acknowledge my other three children: Michaela is in Lincoln, Nebraska, with her son, Jack, and husband, Brandon. My son Eric is a third-year law student and is hopefully in class or watching this broadcast at the University of San Diego. His wife, Esther, and daughter, Jayla, are also with us. And then my youngest son, Mitchell, is a senior at Pomona College out in Claremont, California.

I also want to acknowledge my sisters, Mary and Ann, and my brother Bill from various parts of the country who may be watching this webcast, and, of course, all of my judicial colleagues and staff and good friends back in Nebraska and throughout various parts of the country.

Thank you, Senator.

13. Judicial Office: State (chronologically) any judicial offices you have held, including positions as an administrative law judge, whether such position was elected or appointed, and a description of the jurisdiction of each such court.

On April 20, 1995, I was appointed by then Governor E. Benjamin Nelson to serve as a judge on the Nebraska Supreme Court. I was sworn in on July 6, 1995, and I have been retained (by election) to serve in 1998, 2004, and 2010. Nebraska is a Missouri Plan retention state, and my current term of office expires on December 31, 2016. The supreme court is the appellate court of last resort in Nebraska's judicial system.

- a. Approximately how many cases have you presided over that have gone to verdict or judgment?

I was appointed directly from private practice to the Nebraska Supreme Court. Although I participated as a lawyer in numerous civil and criminal jury trials, and bench trials, that have gone to verdict or judgment, I have not presided over any such cases as a trial judge.

- i. Of these, approximately what percent were:

jury trials:	0%
bench trials:	0%
civil proceedings:	0%
criminal proceedings:	0%

- b. Provide citations for all opinions you have written, including concurrences and dissents.

Because I have written over 450 published opinions and 30 other unpublished opinions, I am separately attaching a list of all opinions authored by me, in chronological order. See attachment.

- c. For each of the 10 most significant cases over which you presided, provide: (1) a capsule summary of the nature the case; (2) the outcome of the case; (3) the name and contact information for counsel who had a significant role in the trial of the case; and (3) the citation of the case (if reported) or the docket number and a copy of the opinion or judgment (if not reported).

I have not presided over any civil or criminal case as a trial judge. Below are 10 cases over which the Nebraska Supreme Court, as an appellate body, presided. The cases are listed in reverse chronological order, but not necessarily in order of significance or importance.

1. A.W. v. Lancaster Cnty. Sch. Dist. 0001, 280 Neb. 205, 784 N.W.2d 907 (2010).

A kindergarten student was sexually assaulted in a school restroom during the school day. The student's mother sued the school district on his behalf, alleging that its negligence permitted the assault to occur. The district court entered summary judgment for the school district, reasoning that the assault was not foreseeable. The fundamental issue in this appeal, as framed by the parties, was whether the school district had a legal duty to the student to protect him from the assault. We concluded that although our case law had, in the past, placed factual questions of foreseeability in the context of legal duty, they are more appropriately decided by the finder of fact in the context of determining whether a tort-feasor's duty to take reasonable care has been breached. We adopted the Restatement (Third) of Torts and held that the questions of foreseeability presented in this appeal were matters of fact, not of law, and that there was a genuine issue of material fact regarding whether the school district's conduct met its duty of reasonable care. We reversed and remanded for further proceedings.

2. State v. Edwards, 278 Neb. 55, 767 N.W.2d 784 (2009).

The victim in this murder case disappeared on her way to the defendant's house, and although her body was never found, her blood was found on the mattress and walls in the defendant's bedroom, on a weapon found in his closet, and in the trunk of his car. The defendant was convicted of second degree murder and use of a deadly weapon to commit a felony. The primary issue on appeal was whether the evidence was sufficient to establish the corpus delicti of homicide, even though the victim's body was never found. Our court concluded that the circumstantial evidence was sufficient to prove that the victim was killed and that the defendant killed her. We also rejected the defendant's Daubert challenge to the State's DNA evidence and his other evidentiary challenges. We affirmed the defendant's convictions and sentence.

3. State v. Henderson, 277 Neb. 240, 762 N.W.2d 1 (2009).

The appellant was fired from his job as a Nebraska State Patrol trooper after he joined the Knights Party, a Ku Klux Klan-affiliated organization. But the trooper was reinstated when his case was submitted to arbitration under a collective bargaining agreement. The district court concluded that public policy precluded enforcement of the arbitrator's award. Our court, concluding that the laws should be enforced without racial or religious discrimination and the public should reasonably perceive this to be so, agreed with the district court and affirmed its order vacating the arbitration award.

4. Neb. Legislature ex rel. State v. Hergert, 271 Neb. 976, 720 N.W.2d 372 (2006).

In this case, an elected University of Nebraska Regent was impeached by the Nebraska Legislature and tried in an original action before the judges of the Nebraska Supreme Court. After a full trial, our court found that Hergert intentionally manipulated and violated Nebraska's campaign finance laws in a scheme to prevent his opponent from receiving public campaign funds, and that during the election campaign and, significantly, after he took office, Hergert intentionally filed false reports of campaign spending in an attempt to cover up this conduct. Thus, we concluded that the Legislature had proved by clear and convincing evidence that Hergert was guilty of false reporting and obstructing government operations. We, therefore, removed Hergert from office and disqualified him from holding any office of trust in the future.

5. State v. Molina, 271 Neb. 488, 713 N.W.2d 412 (2006).

The defendant was convicted of second degree murder and child abuse resulting in death for the beating death of his 2-year-old daughter. We affirmed the convictions. We rejected the defendant's primary Double Jeopardy argument, finding that second degree murder was not a lesser-included offense of child abuse resulting in death. Among other things, we also found that the district court had erred in not instructing the jury on negligent child abuse as a lesser-included offense of child abuse resulting in death, but the error was harmless because the jury had resolved the element of intent in the context of lesser-included offenses of homicide.

6. State v. Hembert, 269 Neb. 840, 696 N.W.2d 473 (2005).

The defendant was convicted in the county court of assault and battery, based in part on the testimony of an Omaha police officer regarding statements made by the victim when police arrived at the scene shortly after the assault. The domestic violence victim did not testify at trial. The issues presented on appeal were whether the officer's testimony as to the victim's statements were properly admitted into evidence under the excited utterance exception to the hearsay rule and, if so, whether the statements were "testimonial" within the meaning of the Confrontation Clause standards explained in Crawford v. Washington, 541 U.S. 36 (2004). We concluded that the county court correctly determined that the officer's testimony regarding statements made by the victim was admissible and affirmed the judgment. Certiorari was requested and ultimately denied by the U.S. Supreme Court based on our analysis of the Confrontation Clause.

7. State v. Gales, 269 Neb. 443, 694 N.W.2d 124 (2005).

The defendant was sentenced to death by a three-judge panel pursuant to jury findings of aggravating circumstances, for each of two counts of first degree murder, following our remand for resentencing in State v. Gales, 265 Neb. 598 (2003) (Gales I). On appeal, we affirmed the sentences of death. We rejected the defendant's challenges to the applicability of L.B.1, which had implemented the system of jury findings of aggravating circumstances following the U.S. Supreme Court's decision in Ring v. Arizona, 536 U.S. 584 (2002), based on our rejection of the same arguments in Gales I. Among other things, we also found no error in the fact that the jurors were not individually questioned about their awareness of Gales' prior death sentences, as the jurors were carefully instructed about the questions they were to answer, which were specific to the findings of aggravating circumstances.

8. Schafersman v. Agland Coop, 262 Neb. 215, 631 N.W.2d 862 (2001).

The plaintiffs won a $120,000 jury verdict based upon the jury's finding that contaminated hog feed, negligently delivered to the plaintiffs, caused illnesses and deaths among the plaintiffs' dairy cattle. The Court of Appeals affirmed the district court. We reversed the Court of Appeals, determining that the district court abused its discretion in permitting the plaintiffs' expert to testify regarding causation. Significantly, we also held that after October 1, 2001, Nebraska trial courts should evaluate the admissibility of expert opinion testimony under the analytical framework of Daubert v. Merrell Dow Pharmaceuticals, Inc., 509 U.S. 579 (1993).

9. State v. Harrold, 256 Neb. 829, 593 N.W.2d 299 (1999).

County court convicted defendant of manufacturing and distributing obscene material, after he delivered a videotape to a Lincoln cablevision studio for production and showing. The district court affirmed the judgment but the Court of Appeals reversed, finding error in the determination of obscenity and in excluding evidence offered to prove community standards. On further review, we reversed the Court of Appeals and reinstated the conviction, after setting forth and applying Nebraska's obscenity standard as gleaned from Miller v. California, 413 U.S. 15 (1973), and its progeny.

10. Hartwig v. Oregon Trail Eye Clinic, 254 Neb. 777, 580 N.W.2d 86 (1998).

In this case, a cleaning worker, who was stuck by a hypodermic needle while emptying a medical clinic's nonmedical waste, brought a negligence action against the clinic. After granting the clinic's motion in limine to preclude evidence that the worker suffered mental anguish resulting from her fear of testing positive for HIV and contracting AIDS, the district court entered a $3,000 jury verdict limited to the minor needle stick injury sustained by the plaintiff. The district court denied the plaintiff's motion for new trial based on the alleged error of limiting proof on fear of AIDS mental anguish. In this case of first impression, our court reversed the order of the district court denying the motion for new trial and held that a plaintiff may adduce proof and potentially recover damages for the mental anguish of reasonably fearing AIDS resulting from a physical injury when (1) the plaintiff may have been exposed, via a medically sufficient channel of transmission, to the tissue, blood, or body fluid of another; (2) in circumstances where the identity of the patient upon whom the contaminated needle or instrument was used is unknown; and (3) when it is impossible or impracticable to ascertain whether any such tissue, blood, or body fluid may be HIV positive. The cause was remanded to the district court for a new trial solely on the issue of damages.

- f. Provide a brief summary of and citations for all of your opinions where your decisions were reversed by a reviewing court or where your judgment was affirmed with significant criticism of your substantive or procedural rulings. If any of the opinions listed were not officially reported, provide copies of the opinions.

I did not find any opinions authored by me that were reversed by a reviewing court. After a diligent search, I did find one opinion in which the U.S. District Court, on habeas review, criticized our rationale. (See McCracken below.)

State v. McCracken, 260 Neb. 234, 615 N.W.2d 902 (2000). McCracken was convicted of murder in the first degree and, on appeal, argued that he was prejudiced by the admission at trial of two mental health evaluations. We determined that by the time the mental health evaluations were admitted at trial, McCracken had placed his sanity at issue; thus, the admission of evidence derived from those evaluations did not violate the Fifth Amendment.

McCracken v. Clarke, 2005 WL 2405927 (No. 4:02CV3090, D. Neb. Sept. 29, 2005). On habeas review, the federal district court also rejected McCracken's argument regarding the admission of the mental health evaluations at trial, but on different grounds. The court stated that we had apparently assumed that both examinations had been compelled, and that the Fifth Amendment privilege was therefore implicated when the evidence was admitted at trial. But according to the federal court's review, the record showed that one examination was not actually received at trial, and the other was the result of a jointly-requested examination. The court therefore found that our analysis was based on a factual error. However, the court found that our error did not avail McCracken. Having so determined, the court saw no need to decide whether our analysis would have been correct otherwise.

- g. Provide a description of the number and percentage of your decisions in which you issued an unpublished opinion and the manner in which those unpublished opinions are filed and/or stored.

Less than 8% of our court's opinions are unpublished – and the reason an opinion is unpublished is because there is nothing in the case that changes, or modifies in any way, existing case law. I have listed all unpublished opinions authored by me in Attachment 13b. Each of the opinions is publically accessible in the Nebraska Supreme Court case files that are maintained by the Clerk of the Supreme Court.

- h. Provide citations for significant opinions on federal or state constitutional issues, together with the citation to appellate court rulings on such opinions. If any of the opinions listed were not officially reported, provide copies of the opinions.

- i. Provide citations to all cases in which you sat by designation on a federal court of appeals, including a brief summary of any opinions you authored, whether majority, dissenting, or concurring, and any dissenting opinions you joined.

I have not sat by designation on a federal court of appeals.

14. Recusal: If you are or have been a judge, identify the basis by which you have assessed the necessity or propriety of recusal (If your court employs an "automatic" recusal system by which you may be recused without your knowledge, please include a general description of that system.) Provide a list of any cases, motions or matters that have come before you in which a litigant or party has requested that you recuse yourself due to an asserted conflict of interest or in which you have recused yourself sua sponte. Identify each such case, and for each provide the following information:

- a. whether your recusal was requested by a motion or other suggestion by a litigant or a party to the proceeding or by any other person or interested party; or if you recused yourself sua sponte;
- b. a brief description of the asserted conflict of interest or other ground for recusal;
- c. the procedure you followed in determining whether or not to recuse yourself;
- d. your reason for recusing or declining to recuse yourself, including any action taken to remove the real, apparent or asserted conflict of interest or to cure any other ground for recusal.

I recognize that public confidence in the courts is maintained only by stringent adherence to conflict of interest principles. If there is any actual conflict or the objective appearance of a conflict of interest, I recuse myself from a case. I review the parties and counsel in each case to ensure I do not have a close relationship to any of the parties, witnesses, or counsel that would interfere with my neutrality or compromise the objective appearance of justice. I have strictly followed the Nebraska Code of Judicial Conduct during my time on the bench.

For example, in 2008 and 2009, my daughter was employed as a lawyer for the Nebraska Appleseed Center, and I recused myself from all matters in which that organization was counsel to a party. Likewise, my wife is employed as a psychiatric nurse practitioner at the University of Nebraska, and in the rare event that the University Health Center would be involved in a case as a party or witness (or if a decision would have a direct financial impact on my spouse), I would recuse myself from a case. But, I have never had a litigant or party request recusal during my tenure on the bench.

With that said, I am listing all recusals (from a search of my records) in reverse chronological order, with the reasons stated for each recusal. All of the recusals have been sua sponte. There were no actions that could be taken to cure the grounds for recusal, but the court was able to resolve all of the below appeals without the benefit of my participation.

15. Public Office, Political Activities and Affiliations:

- a. List chronologically any public offices you have held, other than judicial offices, including the terms of service and whether such positions were elected or appointed. If appointed, please include the name of the individual who appointed you. Also, state chronologically any unsuccessful candidacies you have had for elective office or unsuccessful nominations for appointed office.

I have never held any public office, other than my current judgeship, nor have I had any unsuccessful candidacies for elective office. In 2006, I was one of three finalists for the Nebraska chief justice position. Governor Dave Heineman selected then U.S. Attorney Michael G. Heavican to fill the chief justice position. I have never had an "unsuccessful nomination" for appointed office.

- b. List all memberships and offices held in and services rendered, whether compensated or not, to any political party or election committee. If you have ever held a position or played a role in a political campaign, identify the particulars of the campaign, including the candidate, dates of the campaign, your title and responsibilities.

I was an active member of the Madison County Democrats, and while in the private practice of law, I served as vice chair from 1990 to 1992 and as chairman from 1992 to 1995. I played an informal role in assisting Governor E. Benjamin Nelson (1990, 1994) and U.S. Senator J. Robert Kerrey (1988, 1994) in their respective political campaigns. I had no particular title or any formal responsibilities; I simply assisted the candidates with fundraising and introduced the candidates to the people of northeast Nebraska. Again, with no formal responsibilities, I also assisted my former law partner, David A. Domina, during his unsuccessful primary campaign for governor of Nebraska in 1986.

16. Legal Career: Answer each part separately.

- a. Describe chronologically your law practice and legal experience after graduation from law school including:
- i. whether you served as clerk to a judge, and if so, the name of the judge, the court and the dates of the period you were a clerk;

I did not serve as a clerk to a judge after law school.
 - ii. whether you practiced alone, and if so, the addresses and dates;

I have never practiced law alone.
 - iii. the dates, names and addresses of law firms or offices, companies or governmental agencies with which you have been affiliated, and the nature of your affiliation with each.

- iv. whether you served as a mediator or arbitrator in alternative dispute resolution proceedings and, if so, a description of the 10 most significant matters with which you were involved in that capacity.

I have never served as a mediator or arbitrator in an alternative dispute resolution proceeding.

b. Describe:

- i. the general character of your law practice and indicate by date when its character has changed over the years.

I began my career in 1981 as an associate in an “AV” rated general litigation firm. Although I was assigned primarily insurance defense tasks, and cut my teeth on insurance subrogation trials, I nonetheless performed a wide variety of legal functions in my first year including criminal law defense, juvenile court, and many transactional law projects.

In 1982, David Domina started a new law firm in Norfolk and I joined his law practice. During the next eight years, I conducted primarily a general litigation practice. Our firm represented both plaintiffs and defendants in civil and criminal litigation in all state and federal courts. In addition, I was very active in the community – so I represented a number of businesses and nonprofit entities in northeast Nebraska.

In 1990, Domina moved to Omaha and I, along with two partners, opened a new law office in Norfolk. During the last five years of my private practice (1990 – 1995), I engaged primarily in an active trial practice (70%) and an administrative law/school law practice (30%). My trial practice included several civil jury trials in the state courts and federal courts of Nebraska and South Dakota. In addition, I represented felony criminal defendants in bench trials, jury trials, and appeals in the state court. I have represented numerous administrative clients and school districts in state court, federal court, and agencies such as the Equal Opportunity Commission. In a community the size of Norfolk (population 23,000), a general practice of law really means "general." In addition to general trial practice, I drafted wills and business agreements, prepared private adoption agreements, and litigated before the workers' compensation court and social security administration, etc. – in other words, the general practice of law covers a rather full slate of legal issues.

I was sworn in as a judge on the state supreme court in July 1995, and I did not represent clients in private practice after that date.

- ii. your typical clients and the areas at each period of your legal career, if any, in which you have specialized.

I never did specialize during my law practice days, and it would be very difficult to do so in northeast Nebraska. As the years went by, I did tend to take on more large litigation matters (e.g., wrongful death, product liability) and delegated some of the general office practice to willing partners and associates. But I did not have a "typical client": I represented everyone from clergy to vagabonds, grieving relatives to hardened criminals, and everything in-between. My clients were individuals, corporations, and businesses from all sectors of the community. In addition, area colleges, school districts, and municipalities made up approximately 30% of my client base.

- c. Describe the percentage of your practice that has been in litigation and whether you appeared in court frequently, occasionally, or not at all. If the frequency of your appearances in court varied, describe such variance, providing dates.

Approximately 70 to 75% of my private practice involved litigation. As a result, I appeared in court frequently. It was typical to appear in court many times weekly for various motions, hearings, and trials.

- i. Indicate the percentage of your practice in:
1. federal courts: 15%
 2. state courts of record: 80%
 3. other courts: 0%
 4. administrative agencies: 5%

ii. Indicate the percentage of your practice in:

- | | |
|--------------------------|-----|
| 1. civil proceedings: | 80% |
| 2. criminal proceedings: | 20% |

d. State the number of cases in courts of record, including cases before administrative law judges, you tried to verdict, judgment or final decision (rather than settled), indicating whether you were sole counsel, chief counsel, or associate counsel.

In private practice, I tried approximately 120 cases, as sole counsel or chief counsel, to verdict, judgment, or final decision.

i. What percentage of these trials were:

- | | |
|--------------|-----|
| 1. jury: | 20% |
| 2. non-jury: | 80% |

e. Describe your practice, if any, before the Supreme Court of the United States. Supply four (4) copies of any briefs, amicus or otherwise, and, if applicable, any oral argument transcripts before the Supreme Court in connection with your practice.

I have not practiced before the Supreme Court of the United States.

17. Litigation: Describe the ten (10) most significant litigated matters which you personally handled, whether or not you were the attorney of record. Give the citations, if the cases were reported, and the docket number and date if unreported. Give a capsule summary of the substance of each case. Identify the party or parties whom you represented; describe in detail the nature of your participation in the litigation and the final disposition of the case. Also state as to each case:

- a. the date of representation;
 - b. the name of the court and the name of the judge or judges before whom the case was litigated; and
 - c. the individual name, addresses, and telephone numbers of co-counsel and of principal counsel for each of the other parties.
1. Sobansky, as Special Administratrix of the Estate of Sobansky, deceased v. Ford Motor Co.; U.S. District Court for the District of South Dakota, Civil No. 91-4181; Honorable John B. Jones presiding.

I represented the plaintiff (on her behalf and on behalf of her children) from 1991 through 1993 in this federal court litigation against Ford Motor Company. The plaintiff's husband struck a patch of ice while he was driving a Ford Bronco II on a highway near Vermillion, South Dakota. As he attempted to correct the sliding Ford Bronco II, the vehicle rolled over in the middle of the highway and he died in the accident. Co-counsel Gerald L. Reade and I filed a wrongful death lawsuit in federal court alleging that Ford Motor Company had defectively designed and manufactured its Bronco II vehicle and knew of the defects that were causing a significant number of unnecessary rollover accidents, including the instant one. Exhaustive investigation and discovery occurred, expert witnesses were retained and deposed, and just prior to trial, the parties were able to mediate a substantial court-supervised settlement agreement. The terms of the settlement remain confidential.

2. Koch, Personal Representative v. Martin and Breitreutz; Valley County District Court, Case No. 6342, Honorable Ronald D. Olberding presiding.

From 1994 through 1995 (until I was appointed to the bench), I represented the plaintiff as the personal representative of his wife, who was a 30-year-old young wife and mother when she died from bacterial pneumonia in July 1992. I filed a medical malpractice (wrongful death) lawsuit on behalf of the family, against Dr. Martin and his physician assistant, Breitreutz. The plaintiff alleged that the defendants failed to timely and correctly diagnose and treat the decedent (i.e., treated for viral rather than bacterial pneumonia); and that the defendant's care and treatment fell below the standard of care and caused the decedent's death. Prior to my appointment to the bench in July 1995, I had filed the lawsuit and obtained a full report and deposition of our primary expert witness, an infectious disease specialist. My co-counsel, Denzel Busick, and I conducted discovery and prepared the case for trial. Busick tried the case to a jury (in the months after I took the bench) and obtained a $700,000 verdict in favor of the Koch family.

3. State of Nebraska v. Manzer, 246 Neb. 536, 519 N.W.2d 558 (1994); Pierce County District Court, Honorable Richard P. Garden presiding.

I represented 17-year-old defendant Manzer from late 1992 through 1994. Manzer was charged with one count of first degree murder for the shotgun slaying of his father, and another count of first degree assault for shooting and wounding his sister on the same night. There were significant issues regarding Manzer's mental state and alleged abuse in the home prior to the crime. Experts were hired and deposed, and substantial defenses were raised and prepared to show diminished capacity and a lack of premeditation on the part of the defendant. On the eve of trial, Manzer reached a plea agreement. As a result of pleading guilty to a reduced charge of second degree murder and one count of assault, Manzer was sentenced to life in prison and a consecutive term of years for the assault. His conviction was reversed on appeal, and Manzer was ultimately resentenced to life in prison for the murder and a lesser term of years for the accompanying charge. Manzer's life sentence was commuted to a term of years, and he was eventually paroled.

4. State of Nebraska v. Quick, 1 Neb. App. 756, 511 N.W.2d 168 (1993); Wayne County District Court, Honorable Richard P. Garden presiding.

In 1992 and 1993, I represented the defendant, who was charged with first degree sexual assault of his daughter. This matter was tried to a jury; Quick had originally been charged for an alleged act occurring sometime between March 27 and April 9, 1988. At trial, after adducing all evidence, the State moved to amend the information to conform to controverted evidence, by changing the beginning date of the charged time period to April 25, 1987, thereby extending from two weeks to almost one year the time period in which the alleged act could have occurred. I objected on grounds of lack of notice and a violation of due process. The trial judge granted the motion to amend the information, the trial proceeded, and Quick was convicted. On appeal, the Court of Appeals reversed and remanded this cause for a new trial, finding that the trial court's decision to allow the State to amend the information constituted prejudicial error. On remand, the defendant was able to secure a plea agreement to a reduced charge, and Quick was released from custody based on time served.

5. Day v. Nelson, 240 Neb. 997, 485 N.W.2d 583 (1992); Lancaster County District Court, Honorable Earl J. Witthoff presiding.

In 1991 and 1992, co-counsel Robert F. Bartle and I represented a group of Madison County citizens who challenged the constitutionality of Nebraska's reapportionment plan in light of the 1990 Federal Census. After substantial discovery, this equity matter was tried to the court. We alleged that the reapportionment plan, insofar as it abolished Madison County as a unitary legislative district and instead divided the county between two preexisting districts, violated the Nebraska Constitution, as well as the 14th Amendment to the U.S. Constitution. The plaintiffs requested a declaratory judgment determining that the reapportionment plan was unconstitutional and permanently enjoining the Governor and the Secretary of State from enforcing the provisions of the plan. The district court determined that the reapportionment plan was not constitutionally deficient and dismissed the case. We appealed. The Nebraska Supreme Court, on appeal, determined that the reapportionment plan did, in fact, violate Article III, Section 5, of the Nebraska Constitution in that it was practicable to follow the county lines of Madison County in the legislative redistricting plan and the Legislature failed to do so. The district court judgment was reversed and the cause remanded with directions to enter judgment for the citizens of Madison County. As a result, the Governor called a special session of the Legislature and legislative redistricting was performed within the strictures of the Constitution.

6. Tunender v. Niobrara Valley Electric Membership Corp.; Holt County District Court, Case No. 19047, Honorable William B. Cassel presiding.

From 1989 through 1993, I represented the family of a man who was killed when the vehicle in which he was riding struck Niobrara Valley's parked truck. I filed a wrongful death lawsuit, on behalf of the family, against Niobrara Valley, alleging that employees of the utility company were negligent for parking a large truck partially on the wrong side of the highway (in thick fog), facing oncoming traffic. There were extenuating circumstances, and numerous issues were litigated. The utility company denied negligence, claiming that the truck was parked in the best place possible while repairing a faulty utility line (emergency) in the middle of the night; and the defendant asserted that the driver of the car was the proximate cause of the accident, citing excessive speed and use of alcohol. This case was tried to a jury twice. The first time, in 1992, the trial ended in a hung jury (eight to four, jury could not agree on amount of damages). The second time, in 1993, a unanimous jury returned a verdict in favor of the Tunender estate.

7. Schieffer v. Catholic Archdiocese of Omaha, 244 Neb. 715, 508 N.W.2d 907 (1993); Douglas County District Court, Honorable Donald J. Hamilton presiding.

In 1992 and 1993, I represented a Catholic priest and co-counsel, Patrick Vipond, represented the Catholic Archdiocese of Omaha. The plaintiff-appellant had commenced an action against the archdiocese and the priest arising from a sexual relationship that allegedly began while the priest was counseling the plaintiff. Substantial discovery occurred and depositions were taken in preparation for trial; but prior to trial, the district court sustained the defendants' motion to dismiss after an evidentiary hearing was conducted. Plaintiff appealed. The district court found (and the Supreme Court affirmed) that (1) plaintiff failed to adequately state causes of action against the priest for intentional infliction of emotional distress, negligence, and breach of fiduciary duty, given the consensual nature of the relationship; and (2) the archdiocese could not be held liable for the priest's conduct without tort liability as to the priest individually.

From 1993 through early 1995, I represented Bruns, the husband and personal representative of his wife, who died as a passenger in a mid-air airplane collision on a clear day near Norfolk, Nebraska, in July 1993. I, along with co-counsel, Mark H. Goodrich, filed a wrongful death lawsuit, on behalf of the family, against both (deceased) pilots' estates and the aviation companies. There was substantial investigation and discovery performed with regard to the Federal Aviation Administration investigation and various experts' reports assigning fault as between the two pilots. After multiple depositions (of expert and fact witnesses) were taken, and the case was fully prepared for trial, the plaintiff and defendants were able to reach a satisfactory (confidential) settlement agreement.

9. Otoe Cnty. Nat'l Bank v. Lewis et al.; Brown County District Court, Case No. 6151, Honorable Edward E. Hannon presiding.

In 1988 and 1989, I defended Lewis in an alleged fraudulent conveyance equity lawsuit in Ainsworth, Nebraska. This case presented some intricate badges of fraud issues. The plaintiff bank sued Lewis to set aside certain assignments of trust interests from a brother-in-law to Lewis. It was alleged that the brother-in-law was trying to defraud the plaintiff bank and that Lewis was part of a scheme to convey income to him through the trust instruments. This sophisticated case was tried to the court, and although Lewis was deemed to be an innocent party and received the consideration he paid for the trust annuity, the court annulled and canceled the assignments of trust interest conveying income to the brother-in-law.

In 1984 and 1985, I defended Coenen after he was charged with first degree murder and two counts of assault. Coenen spent a long day (in late 1984) at a house with his wife, her new boyfriend, and his adult daughter. Although all parties appeared to be getting along for most of the day, things turned sour in the evening. A confrontation ensued late in the evening, and Coenen ended up shooting and killing the boyfriend, and wounding his wife and daughter. Expert witnesses were employed and extensive discovery occurred in preparation for trial. I raised a State v. Vosler diminished capacity defense on Coenen's behalf. As a result of discovery and final trial preparation, an agreement was reached wherein Coenen pled guilty to a reduced charge of second degree murder and lesser counts of assault. Coenen was sentenced to a term of life imprisonment; there was no appeal.

18. Legal Activities: Describe the most significant legal activities you have pursued, including significant litigation which did not progress to trial or legal matters that did not involve litigation. Describe fully the nature of your participation in these activities. List any client(s) or organization(s) for whom you performed lobbying activities and describe the lobbying activities you performed on behalf of such client(s) or organizations(s). (Note: As to any facts requested in this question, please omit any information protected by the attorney-client privilege.)

While in private practice, I enjoyed every aspect of representing clients, from getting to know clients to being able to provide legal relief in very difficult circumstances – and oftentimes, the effective presentation of law and facts caused a major civil case to settle (prior to litigation) or caused the government to decline to file charges or negotiate a favorable criminal plea without going to trial. But I equally enjoyed presentations to the public, particularly to high school and college groups, that would educate others and demystify the justice system. Thus, coaching a local mock trial team or engaging in public forums or debates was always rewarding. One of the rewarding legal activities while in private practice was representing the citizens of Madison County (on a pro bono basis) in 1991 and 1992, when we were able to successfully bring suit and set aside the legislative redistricting plan in Nebraska. The particular facts of the case are described elsewhere in this questionnaire, but the ultimate significance of the case was to maintain the representation of Madison County in one contiguous unit as contemplated by the state constitution.

After assuming the bench in 1995, in addition to deciding cases, I have chaired various Supreme Court committees that helped even the playing field in the courts of Nebraska. The Minority Justice Committee and the Interpreter Advisory Committee, for example, have done great work to help increase full access to justice for non-English speaking persons and to significantly increase minority representation on our juries in the state, among many other things. All of these practical changes affect due process, on a wide-scale basis and in real ways, throughout our system. I do not want to take too much credit for many of these changes because the changes have come as a result of much study and the sweat of others. It has been rewarding to be a part of all of this and to provide some modicum of leadership and direction in most of the projects.

I have performed no lobbying activities on behalf of any client or organization.

19. Teaching: What courses have you taught? For each course, state the title, the institution at which you taught the course, the years in which you taught the course, and describe briefly the subject matter of the course and the major topics taught. If you have a syllabus of each course, provide four (4) copies to the committee.

I have not taught any courses.

20. Deferred Income/ Future Benefits: List the sources, amounts and dates of all anticipated receipts from deferred income arrangements, stock, options, uncompleted contracts and other future benefits which you expect to derive from previous business relationships, professional services, firm memberships, former employers, clients or customers. Describe the arrangements you have made to be compensated in the future for any financial or business interest.

I will receive payments, upon reaching age 65 (or upon later retirement), from the Nebraska Judges Retirement System.

21. Outside Commitments During Court Service: Do you have any plans, commitments, or agreements to pursue outside employment, with or without compensation, during your service with the court? If so, explain.

I have no plans, commitments, or agreements to pursue outside employment, with or without compensation, during my service with the court.

22. Sources of Income: List sources and amounts of all income received during the calendar year preceding your nomination and for the current calendar year, including all salaries, fees, dividends, interest, gifts, rents, royalties, licensing fees, honoraria, and other items exceeding $500 or more (if you prefer to do so, copies of the financial disclosure report, required by the Ethics in Government Act of 1978, may be substituted here).

See attached Financial Disclosure Report.

23. Statement of Net Worth: Please complete the attached financial net worth statement in detail (add schedules as called for).

See attached Net Worth Statement.

24. Potential Conflicts of Interest:

- a. Identify the family members or other persons, parties, categories of litigation, and financial arrangements that are likely to present potential conflicts-of-interest when you first assume the position to which you have been nominated. Explain how you would address any such conflict if it were to arise.

My wife is a psychiatric nurse practitioner at the University of Nebraska Health Center. A case may arise directly implicating her, or the University Health Center; however, that should be a rare occurrence. Should such a matter arise, I would recuse myself unless it did not present a conflict or the appearance of a conflict. I can think of no other categories of litigation or financial arrangements that are likely to present potential conflicts of interest if I am confirmed.

- b. Explain how you will resolve any potential conflict of interest, including the procedure you will follow in determining these areas of concern.

If confirmed, I will handle all matters involving actual or potential conflicts of interest by following the Code of Conduct for United States Judges and the federal recusal statutes. I recognize that public confidence in the courts is maintained only by stringent adherence to these principles. I intend to err on the side of recusing myself when faced with any legitimate challenge to my impartiality.

25. Pro Bono Work: An ethical consideration under Canon 2 of the American Bar Association's Code of Professional Responsibility calls for "every lawyer, regardless of professional prominence or professional workload, to find some time to participate in serving the disadvantaged." Describe what you have done to fulfill these responsibilities, listing specific instances and the amount of time devoted to each.

During my private practice, I regularly provided pro bono legal services to the citizens of northeast Nebraska. I was a long-time panel member with the Nebraska State Bar Association pro bono section and represented low-middle income individuals in all types of legal matters, including family law, adoptions, landlord-tenant disputes, and general litigation. In addition, I represented numerous nonprofit organizations in Norfolk and surrounding communities, on a pro bono basis. This representation included not only the drafting of documents and attendance at meetings, but also often involved representation to employees and volunteers of the nonprofit organization for various criminal, administrative, and civil matters. On a personal basis, I often took on pro bono cases that I felt had merit and would benefit the community at large. One such cause was the Day v. Nelson redistricting case, referenced earlier in this questionnaire. A fair estimate of the time I spent on pro bono cases would be in the 6 to 10% range.

Since being appointed to the bench, I regularly speak to high school and college classes, to Boys State, and to community groups about our entire civil and criminal justice system. But just as importantly, I lead bar committees and regularly speak to lawyers about the critical needs of the underserved in our system. Thus, access to justice and the need for pro bono services are a significant part of my ongoing speaking agenda.

26. Selection Process:

- a. Please describe your experience in the entire judicial selection process, from beginning to end (including the circumstances which led to your nomination and the interviews in which you participated). Is there a selection commission in your jurisdiction to recommend candidates for nomination to the federal courts? If so, please include that process in your description, as well as whether the commission recommended your nomination. List the dates of all interviews or communications you had with the White House staff or the Justice Department regarding this nomination. Do not include any contacts with Federal Bureau of Investigation personnel concerning your nomination.

In November 2010, Senator E. Benjamin Nelson's chief of staff and I engaged in a conversation about a potential vacancy on the district court when District Judge Richard G. Kopf was about to announce his intention to take senior status in 2011. We discussed various possible candidates, including the possibility of my interest in the federal bench. Senator Nelson's staff arranged a meeting with me on November 29, 2010, to discuss in detail my background, interests, and cases that I had decided since assuming the bench in July 1995. An advisory committee utilized by Senator Nelson vetted the information. On December 10, 2010, I met and interviewed personally with Senator Nelson. And on January 10, 2011, I met and interviewed personally with Senator Mike Johanns.

Since January 20, 2011, I have been in contact with pre-nomination officials at the Department of Justice. On February 18, 2011, I interviewed with attorneys from the White House Counsel's Office and the Department of Justice in Washington, D.C. The President submitted my nomination to the Senate on May 4, 2011.

- b. Has anyone involved in the process of selecting you as a judicial nominee discussed with you any currently pending or specific case, legal issue or question in a manner that could reasonably be interpreted as seeking any express or implied assurances concerning your position on such case, issue, or question? If so, explain fully.

No.

AFFIDAVIT

(NOTARY)

Senator KLOBUCHAR. Very good. Well, thank you.

Judge Phillips, we enjoyed the story of you and your husband, so we hope to see him out there, and I will note that I also went to the University of Chicago.

Ms. PHILLIPS. Good.

Senator KLOBUCHAR. So I am pleased to hear that part of your resume. Please go ahead.

STATEMENT OF MARY ELIZABETH PHILLIPS, NOMINEE TO BE DISTRICT JUDGE FOR THE WESTERN DISTRICT OF MISSOURI

Ms. PHILLIPS. Thank you, Madam Chairwoman. I appreciate the opportunity to address the Committee, and I first want to thank members of the Committee for holding this hearing today and considering these nominations.

I do have some family members present. In addition to my husband, who has already been referenced, I would like to acknowledge he is not only a judge but a former State court prosecutor and a former Assistant United States Attorney, and he does have that look of Assistant United States Attorneys.

[Laughter.]

In addition, with me today is my sister, Jennifer Phillips, who follows in the footsteps of Senator McCaskill and is currently an assistant Jackson County prosecutor; her husband, Buck Williams, who is a homicide detective with the Kansas City, Missouri, Police Department.

My parents, who still live in the small town in north Missouri that I grew up in: My father, Bill Phillips, who is a former prosecutor and currently still practices in Milan; and my mother, who not only puts up with living in a family full of lawyers, but holds her own quite well.

In addition, I have some family here from McAllen, Texas: my sister, Ann Valarde. Unfortunately, her husband is a high school football coach in Texas and could not—this is not a good time of year for him to get away, but he is watching on the webcast.

Also with me today are my two nieces, Katie and Chloe Slusher, who are having the time of their lives watching what is going on here in the Senate.

Senator KLOBUCHAR. They are back there. They waved. Very nice. I hope they get on the webcam. Kind of like being at a sporting event.

Ms. PHILLIPS. Yes. I also have some people who are watching on the webcam, namely, my 101-year-old grandmother, Jane Pratt. She is, with some assistance today, watching. And I have a number of family and friends and supporters, some of whom are in my office, hopefully still working, but also watching on the webcam there in the Western District of Missouri.

In addition to those supporters, I have to thank Senator McCaskill who not only gave me my first job out of law school, but who has continued to support me, and through her support and confidence has provided me unbelievable opportunities.

In addition, I need to thank the President, President Obama, for once again nominating me for a Senate-confirmed position.

Thank you.

1. State of Missouri v. Buffington

Case Number: 16CR98004507-01

50 S.W.3d 858

Charges Filed – March 5, 1999

Final Disposition – February 17, 2000

Jackson County, Missouri Circuit Court

Judge Justine Del Muro

Buffington was charged with Forcible Rape after coercing a neighbor into the basement of an abandoned house and raping her at knife-point. Although Buffington argued the encounter was consensual, the extensive DNA evidence directly contradicted Buffington's story. The jury convicted Buffington of the sole count, and the judge sentenced him to ten years in prison.

I served as lead counsel in the case and was responsible for all pre-trial matters, the exhibits and jury instructions. Assistant Jackson County Prosecutor Ted Hunt served as co-counsel. At trial, I conducted voir dire, direct examination of one-half of the witnesses, including the DNA expert, and the first half of closing argument.

2. State of Missouri v. Dorsey
Case Number: 16CR99001457
156 S.W.3d 825; 70 S.W.3d 552
Case Filed – April 2, 1999
Final Disposition – October 5, 2000
Jackson County, Missouri Circuit Court
Judge Preston Dean

The State presented evidence that the victim was driving to her cousin's house and became lost. When she stopped to ask for directions, Dorsey approached the victim's car with a knife and ordered her to let him in the car. Dorsey then ordered her to drive to a remote location and forced her to perform oral sex on him. Dorsey then forced the victim out of the car and drove off in the car. The State charged him with Kidnapping, Sexual Abuse, Attempted Forcible Rape, Forcible Sodomy, First Degree Robbery and five corresponding counts of Armed Criminal Action.

At trial, Dorsey testified that the victim stopped to ask him about drugs, and he entered the car to discuss purchasing drugs. He further testified that the victim voluntarily agreed to the sex act in exchange for drugs. Dorsey acknowledged driving off with the car but contended that the victim rented him the car in exchange for drugs. After two days of deliberations, the jury convicted Dorsey of Forcible Sodomy, Robbery and two counts of Armed Criminal Action. The jury acquitted him of the remaining counts. The judge sentenced Dorsey to 12 years for Forcible Sodomy, ten years for Robbery and three years for each Armed Criminal Action count. The judge further ordered that the Robbery and Armed Criminal action sentences be served concurrently and consecutive to the Forcible Sodomy sentence.

In speaking with the jurors after the verdict, co-counsel and I learned that between the two days of deliberations one of the jurors visited the crime scene to confirm the victim's testimony that she got lost in the area. He reported his trip to the other jurors and informed them that he too had gotten lost in the area. The lead prosecutor immediately informed the court and defense counsel of the juror's statements.

On appeal, Dorsey argued that his counsel was ineffective for, among other things, failing to timely file a motion for new trial and failing to properly address the issue of juror misconduct. The court of appeals agreed, found Dorsey's counsel ineffective, reversed the judgment and remanded the case to the trial court to vacate the convictions and sentences and to order a new trial. After the case returned to the trial court, Dorsey pled guilty to Forcible Rape, Robbery and Armed Criminal Action. He was sentenced to 18 years in prison.

I served as co-counsel in the case and was responsible for opening statement, direct examination of approximately one-half of the witnesses and the first half of closing argument.

3. State of Missouri v. Mattic
Case Number: 16CR99005182-01
84 S.W.3d 161
Charges Filed – September 22, 1999
Final Disposition – February 23, 2001
Jackson County, Missouri Circuit Court
Judge Justine Del Muro

The State charged Mattic with two counts of Statutory Rape and one count of Statutory Sodomy in connection with his sexual abuse of his two nieces when they were approximately four and five years old. The girls testified at trial, along with the social workers to whom they initially disclosed the abuse and the social worker who conducted forensic interviews of the girls. Although Mattic testified in his defense, the jury found him guilty of all counts and the judge sentenced him to 30 years in prison.

As lead counsel, I made the decision to file the case and handled all pre-trial matters, including an extensive hearing pursuant to R.S. Mo. § 491.075 to determine whether the hearsay statements of the social workers were reliable and admissible. At trial, I presented the opening statement, conducted the direct examination of one-half of the witnesses, including the two minor victims, the cross-examination of Mattic and rebuttal closing argument. I was also responsible for the exhibits and jury instructions.

4. State of Missouri v. Rogers
Case Number: 16CR00002321-01
95 S.W.3d 181
Charges Filed – May, 26, 2000
Final Disposition – May 15, 2001
Jackson County, Missouri Circuit Court
Judge Preston Dean

Rogers was charged with Attempted Statutory Rape in the Second Degree, three counts of Statutory Sodomy in the Second Degree, Statutory Rape in the Second Degree and Forcible Rape. The State's evidence established that Rogers, age 33, had a sexual relationship with his niece, age 14. When the young girl became pregnant and told her aunt of the pregnancy, the aunt reported the relationship to the police. The young girl subsequently underwent an abortion. In addition to the young girl's testimony, the State presented DNA evidence from the aborted fetus and handwriting analysis of an apology letter Rogers sent from pre-trial custody. The jury found Rogers guilty and based upon a previous conviction for forcible rape the judge determined the defendant to be a predatory sex offender. The court sentenced Rogers to consecutive terms of imprisonment of five years for Attempted Statutory Rape, seven years for each count of Statutory Sodomy, seven years for Statutory Rape and life imprisonment for Forcible Rape without eligibility for parole until he has served twenty-seven years of his life sentence.

Assistant Jackson County Prosecutor Ted Hunt served as lead counsel, and I served as co-counsel. As co-counsel, I participated in all pre-trial preparation, was responsible for one-half of the witnesses at trial, including the handwriting analysis expert, and the first half of closing argument. I also assisted with the exhibits and jury instructions.

5. State of Missouri v. Porras

Case Number: 16CR00000306-1

84 S.W.3d 153

Charges Filed – February 24, 2000

Final Disposition – May 18, 2001

Jackson County Missouri Circuit Court

Judge Michael Manners

Porras was charged with two counts of Statutory Sodomy involving his three-year-old step-daughter. Although the victim was very young at the time of her disclosure, she was a very verbal and articulate child. The victim was five years old at the time of trial and testified in person. Despite her age, the victim's consistent, detailed and descriptive disclosure of the abuse persuaded the jury of Porras' guilt despite his adamant denials. After a day and a half of deliberations, the jury found Porras guilty of one count of Statutory Sodomy, and he was sentenced to ten years in prison.

As lead counsel, I made the decision to file the case and was responsible for all pre-trial matters. At trial, I conducted voir dire and direct examination of approximately one-half of the state's witnesses, including the victim. I also cross-examined the defendant, presented rebuttal closing argument and was responsible for the exhibits and jury instructions. 6. State of Missouri v. Stephens

88 S.W.3d 876

Charges filed - November 8, 1999

Final Disposition – June 21, 2001

Jackson County, Missouri Circuit Court

Judge Edith Messina

Stephens was charged by way of indictment with Forcible Rape, two counts of Assault in the First Degree, Kidnapping and Robbery in the Second Degree. Stephens accompanied the victim on a social date and demanded oral sex from the victim. When the victim refused, Stephens ultimately beat and raped the victim, leaving her for dead in a remote wooded area. When the victim regained consciousness, she was able to walk to the nearest house and called the police.

After a four day trial, the jury deliberated for a day and a half and convicted Stephens on all counts. However, when speaking with the jurors after the verdict, I learned that between the two days of deliberations one of the jurors visited the remote wooded area which was the scene of the crime. I made the trial court and defense attorney aware of this information. Although the defendant argued the juror's actions constituted misconduct and warranted a new trial, the trial court and Missouri Western District Court of Appeals disagreed. Stephens was ultimately sentenced to life in prison.

I served as lead counsel during the trial and was responsible for all pre-trial matters. At trial, I gave the opening statement, conducted the direct examination of approximately one-half of the State's witnesses, including the victim, and cross examined the defendant. I also gave rebuttal closing. Assistant Jackson County Prosecutor Melissa Rodriguez served as my co-counsel.

7. Funk v. Girkin
Case Number: 00CV207107
Case Filed: March 16, 2000
Final Disposition: April 17, 2003
Jackson County, Missouri Circuit Court
Judge J.D. Williamson

I represented plaintiff Funk in a medical malpractice case against multiple physicians and medical services providers. The lawsuit alleged that Mrs. Funk's husband suffered a fractured vertebra which the defendant physicians failed to properly diagnosis. The suit alleged that the misdiagnosis caused Mr. Funk to become a quadriplegic and ultimately caused Mr. Funk's death.

After extensive discovery, plaintiff entered into a monetary settlement with several of the defendants prior to trial. Based upon the information learned in discovery, plaintiff dismissed two physicians from the lawsuit prior to trial.

I served as co-counsel at the trial against two of the defendants. I presented two experts for deposition prior to trial and played a significant role in pre-trial preparation. At trial, I assisted with the exhibits and jury instructions and conducted the direct examination of two witnesses. The jury entered a verdict for defendants.

8. Mayberry v. Birnbaum and Sand Cars Unlimited

Case Number: 00CV05530

Case Filed: August 31, 2000

Final Disposition: January 12, 2004

Johnson County, Kansas District Court

Judge Larry McClain

In this civil case, I, along with lead counsel Steve Gorny, represented plaintiff Mayberry. Mayberry alleged that Sand Cars Unlimited used a defective design in the manufacture of a seat belt for a dune buggy. Mayberry further alleged that the design defect caused the seat belt to fail when Mayberry's husband was driving the dune buggy causing his death. Mayberry also contended that Birnbaum, the owner of the dune buggy, knew of problems with the seat belt and failed to properly warn Mayberry's husband of the problems. After a week of evidence, the jury entered an award of $1.5 million, finding Sand Cars 25% at fault and plaintiff 75% at fault.

I served as co-counsel in the case and became involved in the case a few months before trial, which required me to quickly familiarize myself with the extensive facts of the case and the intricacies of the plaintiff's product liability theory. I provided substantial assistance in researching and writing many of the pre-trial motions, and at trial I was responsible for approximately one half of the witnesses including two experts.

9. United States v. Grant

Case number: 09-00045-01-CR-W-SOW

Case Filed: February 4, 2009

Final Disposition: April 7, 2010

Western District of Missouri

Judge Scott Wright

A child victim disclosed to her mother that Grant sexually abused her and her sister for approximately 9 years. She further alleged that Grant would engage in oral, vaginal or anal sex with both victims and, in exchange, would give them money or goods. The child victim further disclosed that, on one occasion, Grant videotaped the incident. A search warrant was executed on Grant's residence and a computer was seized. A forensic examination of the computer revealed child pornography on the hard drive. During a post-Miranda interview, Grant admitted to downloading child pornography to his computer. He further admitted molesting both victims and giving the girls money and gifts in exchange for sex. He also confessed to videotaping one incidence of sexual abuse.

Grant was charged with Publishing a Notice of Child Pornography, Attempted Distribution of Child Pornography, Receipt of Child Pornography, Possession of Child Pornography, Attempted Transferring a Child for Sexual Exploitation, Attempted Inducing a Child to Engage in Sexually Explicit Conduct for Production of Visual Depiction and Enticement of a Child to Engage in Prohibited Sexual Conduct. Grant subsequently pled guilty and was sentenced to 30 years imprisonment with 20 years of supervised release.

As sole counsel on the case I was involved in all aspects of the case from charging to sentencing.

10. United States v. Dillingham

Case number: 10-CR-0002-DW

Case Filed: December 14, 2009

Final Disposition: March 24, 2011

Western District of Missouri

Judge Dean Whipple

Through an undercover peer-to-peer investigation, the Independence, Missouri Police Department discovered that Dillingham was sharing child pornography using the peer-to-peer software Limewire. A search warrant was obtained for Dillingham's residence and his computer and hard drive were seized. A forensic examination of the media revealed approximately 325 images and 150 videos of child pornography, including videos of children being raped and engaging in sadistic and masochistic conduct. The examination also revealed approximately 1400 photos of children playing in the grassy area outside Dillingham's apartment.

During a post-Miranda interview, Dillingham admitted that he downloaded child pornography using Limewire. He explained that he knew how Limewire worked and knew that the files in his Limewire shared folder were available for other Limewire users to access and download. He also admitted to taking pictures of neighborhood children while they were playing outside his apartment window.

Dillingham was charged with Receipt of Child Pornography, a charge that carries a statutory minimum sentence of five years imprisonment. Dillingham pled guilty to the charge and a pre-sentence investigation calculated Dillingham's range of punishment using United States Sentencing Guideline § 2G2.2, which provided for a sentence of 210-240 months. Dillingham's counsel filed a sentencing memorandum requesting the Court "categorically reject" § 2G2.2 and sentence Dillingham "far below the applicable Guideline range." I filed a response to Dillingham's sentencing memorandum responding to Dillingham's arguments and providing an abbreviated history to § 2G2.2.

After extensive testimony at the sentencing hearing, Judge Whipple entered an order sentencing Dillingham to 36 months imprisonment. The government filed a Motion to Correct Sentence and the Court entered a subsequent order sentencing Dillingham to 60 months imprisonment.

As sole counsel in the case, I was intimately involved in all aspects of the pre-indictment review and charging decisions. I prepared all pleadings and handled all major hearings in the matter.

18. Legal Activities: Describe the most significant legal activities you have pursued, including significant litigation which did not progress to trial or legal matters that did not involve litigation. Describe fully the nature of your participation in these activities. List any client(s) or organization(s) for whom you performed lobbying activities and describe the lobbying activities you performed on behalf of such client(s) or organizations(s). (Note: As to any facts requested in this question, please omit any information protected by the attorney-client privilege.)

1. U.S. Attorney for the Western District of Missouri

As U.S. Attorney for the Western District of Missouri I oversee the prosecution of a wide variety of cases. During my tenure, the office successfully prosecuted the first case in the District involving a confessed member of Al Qaida who provided material support to the organization, the first credit history fraud case in the country and one of the largest forced labor human trafficking/RICO cases in history. I have made reduction of violent crime a priority by developing a Steering Committee of community leaders to conduct a Comprehensive Gang Assessment of the Kansas City area and creating an initiative that focuses on illegal gang prosecutions.

While U.S. Attorney I have also focused on internal office management. I conducted a thorough review and revision of the office discovery policy and instituted new procedures to obtain potential Giglio related information on law enforcement witnesses. I also reorganized the office to place an emphasis on financial litigation, asset forfeiture and recovery of monetary penalties.

2. Civil Litigation

For over six years, I maintained a civil practice focused on representation of plaintiffs who suffered catastrophic injuries. I represented numerous individuals in medical malpractice, nursing home negligence and product liability lawsuits. As part of this practice, I conducted extensive investigations into alleged negligence and any potential legal issues to determine whether to file suit. I worked closely with expert witnesses and conducted hundreds of depositions of doctors, nurses and other medical personnel. I frequently participated in mediations and successfully negotiated settlements for most of my clients. I also tried five civil jury trials in four different jurisdictions.

3. Child Protection Center

Prior to becoming U.S. Attorney, I assisted the Child Protection Center (CPC) transition from an entity of the Family Court of Jackson County, Missouri, to a separate non-profit entity. While working with the executive director of the center, we successfully completed the process to obtain non-profit status through the Internal Revenue Service, created board of director by-laws and financial and personnel policies and procedures for the agency.

19. Teaching: What courses have you taught? For each course, state the title, the institution at which you taught the course, the years in which you taught the course, and describe briefly the subject matter of the course and the major topics taught. If you have a syllabus of each course, provide four (4) copies to the committee.

I have not taught any courses.

20. Deferred Income/ Future Benefits: List the sources, amounts and dates of all anticipated receipts from deferred income arrangements, stock, options, uncompleted contracts and other future benefits which you expect to derive from previous business relationships, professional services, firm memberships, former employers, clients or customers. Describe the arrangements you have made to be compensated in the future for any financial or business interest.

The only future benefits I expect to receive are from the following: federal government Thrift Savings Plans, rental property, Missouri State Retirement Plans (457), and various IRAs and stocks, all of which are listed on my Net Worth Statement.

21. Outside Commitments During Court Service: Do you have any plans, commitments, or agreements to pursue outside employment, with or without compensation, during your service with the court? If so, explain.

I have no plans, commitments or agreements to pursue outside employment, with or without compensation, during my service.

22. Sources of Income: List sources and amounts of all income received during the calendar year preceding your nomination and for the current calendar year, including all salaries, fees, dividends, interest, gifts, rents, royalties, licensing fees, honoraria, and other items exceeding $500 or more (if you prefer to do so, copies of the financial disclosure report, required by the Ethics in Government Act of 1978, may be substituted here).

See attached Financial Disclosure Report.

23. Statement of Net Worth: Please complete the attached financial net worth statement in detail (add schedules as called for).

See attached Net Worth Statement.

24. Potential Conflicts of Interest:

- a. Identify the family members or other persons, parties, categories of litigation, and financial arrangements that are likely to present potential conflicts-of-interest when you first assume the position to which you have been nominated. Explain how you would address any such conflict if it were to arise.

Should I be appointed, I initially would have a conflict with cases and matters pending in the U.S. Attorney's office while I was U.S. Attorney. I would address any such conflict by working with the Interim U.S. Attorney and the Clerk of the Court to assure that I was not assigned any such cases.

After current cases and matters in the U.S. Attorney's office are disposed of, I do not anticipate any conflicts of interest.

- b. Explain how you will resolve any potential conflict of interest, including the procedure you will follow in determining these areas of concern.

If any matter were to arise that involved an actual or potential conflict of interest, I would handle it by careful and diligent application of the Code of Conduct for United States Judges as well as other relevant canons and statutory provisions.

25. Pro Bono Work: An ethical consideration under Canon 2 of the American Bar Association's Code of Professional Responsibility calls for "every lawyer, regardless of professional prominence or professional workload, to find some time to participate in serving the disadvantaged." Describe what you have done to fulfill these responsibilities, listing specific instances and the amount of time devoted to each.

Prior to becoming United States Attorney I served on the board of the Child Protection Center (CPC), a child advocacy center that conducts forensic interviews and provides crisis intervention to children who have disclosed sexual abuse and their families. CPC provides services free of charge to all children in Jackson County and Cass County, Missouri, who disclose that they have been sexually abused. In late 2004, CPC decided to spinoff from the Family Court of Jackson County, Missouri, and become a separate non-profit agency. I have assisted CPC with all legal issues associated with becoming a non-profit agency and an entity separate from the court. I completed all the paperwork submitted to the Internal Revenue Service to obtain non-profit status, created a draft of the board of director's by-laws, worked with the board to create the final by-laws, and worked closely with the executive director to create financial policies and procedures and personnel policies and procedures for the agency. Through the process, I provided legal advice on various issues. I estimate that I spent an average of five hours a month providing assistance and advice to CPC.

I served on the board of the Metropolitan Organization to Counter Sexual Assault (MOCSA) from 2006 to 2009. MOCSA exists to lessen the ill effects of sexual assault and violence through intervention, advocacy, education, and treatment by providing services free of charge to the metropolitan Kansas City community. I also served as the chair of the Young at Art event, the fundraising committee and the program services committee for MOCSA. In addition, I provided legal advice to the executive director on an ad hoc basis. I have provided suggestions and input on a variety of issues including record retention, the proper way to respond to subpoenas, and agency policy and procedure. I spent approximately four hours a month providing assistance to MOCSA.

26. Selection Process:

- a. Please describe your experience in the entire judicial selection process, from beginning to end (including the circumstances which led to your nomination and the interviews in which you participated). Is there a selection commission in your jurisdiction to recommend candidates for nomination to the federal courts? If so, please include that process in your description, as well as whether the commission recommended your nomination. List the dates of all interviews or communications you had with the White House staff or the Justice Department regarding this nomination. Do not include any contacts with Federal Bureau of Investigation personnel concerning your nomination.

To my knowledge, my jurisdiction does not have a selection committee. On March 3, 2011, I was contacted by U.S. Senator McCaskill. I had previously interviewed with Senator McCaskill as part of the process to become U.S. Attorney. During the March 3rd conversation, Senator McCaskill inquired if I was interested in being considered for one of the open federal judgeships in the Western District of Missouri. I responded that I was interested and Senator McCaskill said that my name would be sent to the White House for consideration.

Since March 8, 2011, I have been in contact with pre-nomination officials from the Department of Justice. On April 7, 2011, I interviewed with officials from the White House Counsel's Office and the Department of Justice in Washington, DC. On June 7, 2011, the President submitted my nomination to the Senate.

- b. Has anyone involved in the process of selecting you as a judicial nominee discussed with you any currently pending or specific case, legal issue or question in a manner that could reasonably be interpreted as seeking any express or implied assurances concerning your position on such case, issue, or question? If so, explain fully.

No.

- iv. whether you served as a mediator or arbitrator in alternative dispute resolution proceedings and, if so, a description of the 10 most significant matters with which you were involved in that capacity.

I have not served as a mediator or an arbitrator.

b. Describe:

- i. the general character of your law practice and indicate by date when its character has changed over the years.

During the summer of 1986, after I graduated from law school and while I was studying for the bar exam, I was a law clerk for a small law firm. After taking the bar exam, I moved to Washington, D.C. and began working for the Department of Justice, Tax Division in September 1986. My work centered upon curbing abusive tax shelter schemes. In the spring of 1987, I transferred to the United States Attorney's Office for the Eastern District of Washington. As an Assistant United States Attorney, I represent the United States of America in civil and criminal litigation in Federal court. I have personally handled all aspects of litigation involving eminent domain, property forfeiture, water rights, environmental regulation, medical malpractice, social security claims, habeas, bankruptcy, flooding, tax litigation and a host of tort cases from slip-and-fall to Constitutional torts. The breadth of my civil experience encompasses every stage of litigation, including pre-filing investigations, discovery (interrogatories and depositions), motions practice, trials, judgments, appeals and debt collection. I have prosecuted nearly every type of federal crime, including bank robbery, drug trafficking, firearm violations, money laundering, wire fraud, bank fraud, bombings, arson, bribery, tax evasion, and witness intimidation. I have handled all aspects of criminal cases, from grand jury proceedings through trial, sentencing and appeal. I have held numerous positions and performed various duties within the U.S. Attorney's Office, including First Assistant U.S. Attorney (2006 – present), Criminal Chief (2003 – 2006), Deputy Criminal Chief (2000 – 2003), professional responsibility officer (2006 – present), senior litigation counsel (2000 – 2002), criminal appellate brief reviewer, asset forfeiture attorney, computer fraud coordinator, money laundering contact, and Special Assistant United States Attorney for the Districts of Montana, Idaho, and the Western District of Washington. I also hold an appointment as a Special Attorney to the United States Attorney General to handle certain criminal cases outside the Eastern District of Washington.

- ii. your typical clients and the areas at each period of your legal career, if any, in which you have specialized.

Throughout my career, I have represented the United States of America. At the Tax Division of the Department of Justice, I specialized in abusive tax shelter litigation. When I began as an Assistant United States Attorney, I specialized in eminent domain and social security claims. Even though I have always maintained a broad variety of civil and criminal cases throughout my career, corresponding with collateral duty assignments, I have specialized in asset forfeiture, computer crimes, and money laundering. I have also specialized in all types of fraud cases throughout my career.

- c. Describe the percentage of your practice that has been in litigation and whether you appeared in court frequently, occasionally, or not at all. If the frequency of your appearances in court varied, describe such variance, providing dates.

Prior to 2003, I appeared in court frequently and my practice was completely litigation based. After being promoted to Criminal Chief in 2003, I appeared in court a moderate amount of time and after being promoted to First Assistant U.S. Attorney in 2006, I have appeared in court occasionally. As a supervisor, my practice has included more review of cases and litigation strategies while supervising and mentoring attorneys.

- i. Indicate the percentage of your practice in:

1. federal courts:	100 %
2. state courts of record:	0 %
3. other courts:	0 %
4. administrative agencies:	0 %

- ii. Indicate the percentage of your practice in:

1. civil proceedings:	10 %
2. criminal proceedings:	90 %

- d. State the number of cases in courts of record, including cases before administrative law judges, you tried to verdict, judgment or final decision (rather than settled), indicating whether you were sole counsel, chief counsel, or associate counsel.

I have tried 38 cases to final decision. I was the sole counsel in all those cases except six. In those six, I was lead counsel.

- i. What percentage of these trials were:

1. jury:	79 %
2. non-jury:	21 %

- e. Describe your practice, if any, before the Supreme Court of the United States. Supply four (4) copies of any briefs, amicus or otherwise, and, if applicable, any oral argument transcripts before the Supreme Court in connection with your practice.

I have not practiced before the Supreme Court of the United States.

17. Litigation: Describe the ten (10) most significant litigated matters which you personally handled, whether or not you were the attorney of record. Give the citations, if the cases were reported, and the docket number and date if unreported. Give a capsule summary of the substance of each case. Identify the party or parties whom you represented; describe in detail the nature of your participation in the litigation and the final disposition of the case. Also state as to each case:

- a. the date of representation;
- b. the name of the court and the name of the judge or judges before whom the case was litigated; and
- c. the individual name, addresses, and telephone numbers of co-counsel and of principal counsel for each of the other parties.

1. Richardson v. United States, 943 F.2d 1107 (9th Cir. 1991), cert. denied, 503 U.S. 936 (1992); Eastern District of Washington, U.S. District Judge Robert McNichols.

This case involved a multi-million dollar claim for burn injuries sustained by two young men as they were moving irrigation pipe under a 115 kilovolt Bonneville Power (BPA) transmission line near Finley, Washington. I appeared as counsel in 1988, after the case was reversed by the Ninth Circuit a second time for a new trial. Coming into the case midstream, I had to learn everything about the case including all of the previous trial evidence and prepare the case for a third trial. I contended that the BPA could not be liable under the Federal Tort Claims Act for discretionary functions of the government that balanced the cost of safety devices with the risk of injury. Here the BPA chose to follow the National Electric Safety Code and not provide greater (more expensive) safety devices to protect from lightening induced electrical line arcs. Along with agency counsel Robert Jones, I presented the case for the third trial and advanced the discretionary function jurisdictional defense to liability. We prepared extensive expert testimony, from a lightning expert from the University of Florida, that the accident could not have been prevented by additional ground wires even if it occurred the way plaintiffs contended. We also presented detailed testimony concerning the economic and engineering considerations supporting the decision not to install additional ground wires. The district court ruled for the United States on the discretionary function defense, which was affirmed on appeal.

In 1992, the FBI received information that the defendant was growing marijuana on his ranch outside Odessa, Washington. I orchestrated an extensive financial investigation while the FBI monitored the grow site to determine the conspirators involved and to determine the ultimate destination for the marijuana. By mid-August 1992, multiple search warrants were executed, over 6,000 marijuana plants were eradicated from the center of a circle irrigated corn field on the Bud King Ranch, and seven co-conspirators were arrested. Over a million dollars in assets were seized and forfeited and all of the defendants pleaded guilty and were sentenced to prison. At the time, it was the biggest seizure of marijuana in the Eastern District of Washington and one of the biggest forfeitures cases.

In 1992, the FBI enlisted me to lead a multi-agency investigation into a long-standing cocaine distribution ring that previously could not be infiltrated by local or federal attempts. For two years, I advised the FBI and regional drug task force during the investigation, I conducted an extensive grand jury investigation, and the agents recorded hundreds of conversations. In August 1994, the investigation culminated in my preparing about two dozen search warrants which were executed simultaneously with nearly 30 arrests. I presented a 127-count indictment to the grand jury. At the time, it was the largest law enforcement operation in the Eastern District of Washington. The case resulted in the conviction of 37 defendants, including three different sources of cocaine, one from California, a family from the Tri-Cities and an Electric City connection. The defendants included Paulsen and Larsen, who were jointly responsible for managing the distribution of hundreds of pounds of cocaine into the Spokane area for years. All but two of the defendants pleaded guilty, including a physician's assistant, a stock broker, a car salesman, and two lawyers. Two defendants went to trial and AUSA Stephanie Lister and I tried those cases together in an eight-day jury trial. Both of those defendants were convicted; one was sentenced to ten years in prison and the other was sentenced to 20 years in prison. Nearly a million dollars in cars, cash and real property were forfeited.

On April 1, 1996, a U.S. Bank branch in Spokane was robbed and then blown up. As a diversion, another office building on the same street was blown up immediately before the robbery. It appeared three robbers were involved. I worked with the FBI and local law enforcement and conducted an extensive grand jury investigation. On July 16, 1996, the Planned Parenthood building was bombed as a diversion so the same U.S. Bank branch could be robbed again. This time, it appeared four robbers were involved. I continued to work with the FBI and the other agencies involved, and I negotiated a cooperation and immunity agreement with the attorney for an informant. By October 1996, the FBI had installed a closed circuit camera on the suspects' auto repair shop in Sandpoint, Idaho. One night, the suspects were observed leaving the shop in a suspicious manner and were followed by the FBI to a U.S. Bank branch in Portland, Oregon. The bank was contacted and ordered to lock its doors, which caused the suspects to abort their robbery attempt. They were followed back to Washington and three suspects were arrested completely by surprise in Union Gap. They were driving a stolen van and two Suburbans that were full of bank robbery gear, an arsenal of weapons, hand grenades, and disguises. Four search warrants were prepared and executed at the suspects' houses and auto repair shop. AUSAs Harrington and Lister were then assigned to help me with the cases. While preparing for grand jury and trial for the three robbers, we continued to work with the FBI to identify the fourth robber. AUSAs Harrington, Lister and I divided up the witnesses and tried the first case together. The case involved hundreds of exhibits and several expert witnesses, including an explosives expert, a computer expert, an ink expert, a firearm expert, and a chemist analyzing the lead pellets in the Planned Parenthood bomb. During the first trial, the fourth bank robber was arrested. The first trial lasted five weeks and resulted in a hung jury. AUSA Harrington and I conducted the second trial. All three defendants were convicted and sentenced to double life terms of incarceration. AUSA Harrington and I then conducted a third trial for the fourth bank robber. He was convicted of all the charges and sentenced to 55 years in prison. I handled all the appellate cases and continue to handle all the habeas challenges to their convictions.

5. United States v. Booth, CR-99-018-EFS and CR-99-019-EFS, Eastern District of Washington, 309 F.3d 566 (9th Cir. 2002), U.S. District Judge Edward F. Shea.

Defendant Booth was convicted in the Eastern District of California for operating an advance fee fraud scheme. He was released from prison and moved to Spokane to serve his period of supervised release. He became involved with a company called LeasX which offered financing for equipment leases. He purchased the company and installed Defendant Bories as the President of the company. Between December 1997 and January 1999, Booth contracted with five companies, several of whom were in financial difficulties, to find them a total of $393.3 million in financing, sometimes promising funding within one or two days. LeasX received advance fees totaling nearly $2 million. Although the advance fees were represented to be refundable if a satisfactory funding source was not secured, Booth and Bories spent all the advance fees on salaries for employees and for their own personal expenses, including, among other things, the rental of a jet airplane, automobile leases, jewelry, trips to Las Vegas, and professional golf lessons. Working with the FBI, I began an investigation when one of the customers complained about not receiving his promised financing. We uncovered the elaborate scheme Booth perpetrated all while being supervised by the Probation Office. I sought an indictment for wire fraud and nearly 100 counts of money laundering. After a 13-day jury trial, Booth was convicted of all the major counts and Bories was convicted of wire fraud. Both were sentenced to prison.

In July 2001 a bank was robbed in Spokane, Washington. On September 26, 2001, a cooperating witness (CW) told an FBI agent in Idaho that he/she knew the three people who robbed the bank, as well as many other banks in the United States based on statements they made to the CW. The CW said these three tried to recruit the CW to participate in future robberies. I worked with the FBI to obtain search and arrest warrants, and on September 29, 2001, all three individuals were arrested and search warrants were executed at their residences. Shotguns, latex masks, gloves, and other clothing were seized from the defendants' residences and cars, consistent with descriptions of items used in the bank robberies. The FBI agent then uncovered eleven unsolved takeover bank robberies which began in March 1998, and spanned seven states. The banks' losses exceeded $1.2 million. Some of these robberies were profiled on America's Most Wanted television show which called them the "100 percent" robbers based upon statements the robbers made during the robberies. I negotiated global plea agreements encompassing the crimes in all the other districts and then one defendant waived venue and pleaded guilty to eleven bank robberies. The other two defendants also pleaded guilty to their roles in the robberies. A fourth bank robber was later arrested in Florida in 2002, and pleaded guilty, too. All were sentenced to prison.

7. United States v. Martin, CR-02-130-JLQ, CR-02-142-JLQ, and CR-02-143-JLQ, Eastern District of Washington, U.S. District Judge Justin L. Quackenbush.

On April 15, 2002, a tavern in Spokane, Washington burned down. The Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco, Firearms and Explosives (ATF) and the Spokane Fire Department began an investigation and determined the fire was arson. The building was insured and the loss was determined to be $281,000. A part-owner of the business and his bodyguard/bouncer were developed as suspects. However, the bodyguard had an alibi confirmed by his girlfriend, who testified to the alibi in front of the grand jury. Subsequent investigation by the ATF, the Spokane Fire investigator and the grand jury proceedings that I headed, proved her alibi false. I assisted in obtaining a search warrant for the bodyguard's house where incriminating evidence was located. The owner then confessed and pleaded guilty to conspiracy to commit mail fraud and arson of property used in interstate commerce, and use of fire to commit a federal felony. The girlfriend pleaded guilty to perjury. The bodyguard pleaded guilty to using fire to commit a federal felony and suborning perjury. All three were sentenced to prison.

8. United States v. Jenny, CR-02-190-WFN through CR-02-194-WFN,
Eastern District of Washington, U.S. District Judge William Fremming Nielsen.

During 2002, the Drug Enforcement Administration became aware of allegations that two elderly women, Mrs. Erickson and Mrs. Jenny, were depositing large amounts of cash that smelled of marijuana into a bank account for their purported decorating business. I headed up a multi-agency investigation to determine where they were growing and who was involved. The investigation culminated in the execution of about eight search warrants and the arrest of the five people involved, including their two husbands and another person. Vacant houses in affluent neighborhoods were being used as grow houses. Nearly a million dollars in distribution proceeds and five upper middle class houses were seized and forfeited.

9. United States v. Perry, CR-06-098-EFS, Eastern District of Washington, U.S. District Judge Edward F. Shea.

The Federal Bureau of Investigation (FBI) received information that the elected mayor of Airway Heights, Washington, may have been bribed by defendant Moe, who sought to influence an admissions tax on the Spokane Raceway Park, which Moe operated and controlled. Airway Heights is a local government body that receives more than $10,000 a year in federal assistance. I worked with the FBI on a lengthy grand jury investigation of the mayor's finances. Eventually, we discovered that Moe gave the mayor two loans secured by the mayor's home, one in October of 2002 and one in October of 2004. The then-former mayor was indicted for accepting bribes and Moe was indicted for bribing a public official. As the FBI and I were preparing for trial, the former mayor Perry pleaded guilty to accepting a bribe from Moe. Moe's case went to trial where the charges were dismissed by the Court.

10. United States v. Ganley, CR-10-183-JLR, Western District of Washington, U.S. District Judge James L. Robart.

The Food and Drug Administration's Office of Criminal Investigations began an investigation when a package containing human growth hormone and steroids arrived in New York from Beijing, China in April 2008. It was discovered by Customs and Border Protection (CBP) Inspectors working the International Mail Facility at JFK Airport in New York. Further investigation revealed that defendant, who was a Special Agent with U.S. Immigration and Customs Enforcement (ICE) assigned to the Blaine, Washington office, surreptitiously sent three wire transfers to China and ordered the steroids using a false telephone number and fictitious address. To avoid any appearance of a conflict of interest with the United States Attorney's Office in the Western District of Washington, I was appointed as a Special Attorney to the Attorney General to prosecute the case. After reviewing the case with the agents, prior to indictment, I presented the matter to Mr. Ganley's attorney and negotiated a felony plea to illegal importation of steroids. The defendant also agreed to immediately resign from his position with ICE.

18. Legal Activities: Describe the most significant legal activities you have pursued, including significant litigation which did not progress to trial or legal matters that did not involve litigation. Describe fully the nature of your participation in these activities. List any client(s) or organization(s) for whom you performed lobbying activities and describe the lobbying activities you performed on behalf of such client(s) or organizations(s). (Note: As to any facts requested in this question, please omit any information protected by the attorney-client privilege.)

As a prosecutor, the decision to decline a case, the decision to charge and what to charge have a tremendous effect on the outcome of the proceeding. These decisions carry great consequence for not only the defendant, but also his or her family, the victims, as well as the public. My decision to seek a prosecution has never been lightly made as it committed resources and carried the power and prestige of a prosecution in the name of the United States. I have exercised these decisions for more than two decades.

As a manager within the office (Deputy Criminal Chief, Criminal Chief and now First Assistant) I have declined cases for all sorts of reasons, including cases presenting ethical issues or otherwise not in the best interest of the public. As the First Assistant, I continue to screen cases and give advice to less experienced AUSAs.

Additionally, I have been the United States Attorney's Office Professional Responsibility Officer (PRO) since March 2006. As the PRO, I am charged with giving ethics advice to all the other Assistant United States Attorneys. I regularly counsel attorneys that no conviction is more important than the ethics and reputation of the Government and its attorneys.

I have not performed any lobbying activities on behalf of any client or organization.

19. Teaching: What courses have you taught? For each course, state the title, the institution at which you taught the course, the years in which you taught the course, and describe briefly the subject matter of the course and the major topics taught. If you have a syllabus of each course, provide four (4) copies to the committee.

I have not taught any courses.

20. Deferred Income/ Future Benefits: List the sources, amounts and dates of all anticipated receipts from deferred income arrangements, stock, options, uncompleted contracts and other future benefits which you expect to derive from previous business relationships, professional services, firm memberships, former employers, clients or customers. Describe the arrangements you have made to be compensated in the future for any financial or business interest.

None.

21. Outside Commitments During Court Service: Do you have any plans, commitments, or agreements to pursue outside employment, with or without compensation, during your service with the court? If so, explain.

None.

22. Sources of Income: List sources and amounts of all income received during the calendar year preceding your nomination and for the current calendar year, including all salaries, fees, dividends, interest, gifts, rents, royalties, licensing fees, honoraria, and other items exceeding $500 or more (if you prefer to do so, copies of the financial disclosure report, required by the Ethics in Government Act of 1978, may be substituted here).

See attached Financial Disclosure Report.

23. Statement of Net Worth: Please complete the attached financial net worth statement in detail (add schedules as called for).

See attached Net Worth Statement.

24. Potential Conflicts of Interest:

- a. Identify the family members or other persons, parties, categories of litigation, and financial arrangements that are likely to present potential conflicts-of-interest when you first assume the position to which you have been nominated. Explain how you would address any such conflict if it were to arise.

If confirmed, I would recuse myself from any cases in which I played any role as an Assistant United States Attorney. It is not likely that any other potential or actual conflicts would arise. However, if that were to occur, I would recuse myself according to the Code of Conduct for United States Judges as well as other relevant cannons and statutory provisions.

- b. Explain how you will resolve any potential conflict of interest, including the procedure you will follow in determining these areas of concern.

If confirmed, I will consult and apply the Code of Conduct for United States Judges as well as other relevant cannons and statutory provisions.

25. Pro Bono Work: An ethical consideration under Canon 2 of the American Bar Association's Code of Professional Responsibility calls for "every lawyer, regardless of professional prominence or professional workload, to find some time to participate in serving the disadvantaged." Describe what you have done to fulfill these responsibilities, listing specific instances and the amount of time devoted to each.

Since March 2006, I have been the vice-chair of the Edgecliff SCOPE Weed and Seed site. This is a neighborhood organization in the Spokane Valley that partners with law enforcement and volunteers to combat crime and improve the community using the Department of Justice's Weed and Seed grant program. While this position is part of my official duties as an Assistant United States Attorney, I have also volunteered evenings and weekends to participate in Edgecliff functions and activities. I would estimate that I have volunteered 40 hours of my time.

From September 1993 to April 1997, I served as an unpaid Secretary, Treasurer and board member on the non-profit Conservatory Ballet Theatre. I was responsible for the finances and bookkeeping and I estimate I spent about 100 hours a year working on this endeavor.

During two years of law school, I was a Volunteer Income Tax Assistance (VITA) site coordinator. In that capacity, I worked with the IRS to obtain forms and materials and provided tax preparation assistance to low income and elderly persons by recruiting volunteers and staffing a VITA site during tax season. I would estimate I spent 40 to 60 hours each year working on this cause.

26. Selection Process:

- a. Please describe your experience in the entire judicial selection process, from beginning to end (including the circumstances which led to your nomination and the interviews in which you participated). Is there a selection commission in your jurisdiction to recommend candidates for nomination to the federal courts? If so, please include that process in your description, as well as whether the commission recommended your nomination. List the dates of all interviews or communications you had with the White House staff or the Justice Department regarding this nomination. Do not include any contacts with Federal Bureau of Investigation personnel concerning your nomination.

Senators Patty Murray and Maria Cantwell and Representative Doc Hastings formed a bi-partisan judicial selection committee to screen and recommend potential candidates in the Eastern District of Washington. After submitting my application on May 28, 2010, I was notified that I would be interviewed by the selection committee on September 18, 2010. In the meantime, I requested a judicial evaluation from the Minority Bar Associations of the State of Washington by submitting written materials on July 31, 2010, and participating in an interview on August 28, 2010. After my September 18, 2010, interview, the bi-partisan judicial selection committee recommended my candidacy, along with others, to Senators Murray and Cantwell. On October 28, 2010, I met with Senator Murray's legislative assistant, Jason Park, and answered background questions. I was interviewed by Senator Murray on December 15, 2010. On December 17, 2010, Senators Murray and Cantwell forwarded my name, along with others, to the White House for consideration for nomination by the President.

Since December 17, 2010, I have been in contact with officials from the Office of Legal Policy at the Department of Justice. On January 25, 2011, I met with attorneys from the White House Counsel's Office and the Department of Justice in Washington, D.C. On June 29, 2011, the President submitted my nomination to the Senate.

- b. Has anyone involved in the process of selecting you as a judicial nominee discussed with you any currently pending or specific case, legal issue or question in a manner that could reasonably be interpreted as seeking any express or implied assurances concerning your position on such case, issue, or question? If so, explain fully

No.

(NOTARY)

Senator KLOBUCHAR. Well, thank you very much.
And last but not least, Judge Nuffer, with your support crew right up here on the dais.

STATEMENT OF DAVID NUFFER, NOMINEE TO BE DISTRICT JUDGE FOR THE DISTRICT OF UTAH

Judge NUFFER. Thank you very much, and I am very grateful to the Committee for this opportunity, and I have been watching your work and webcasts and how you schedule these judicial nominations, and you have a remarkable number of nominees coming through, and you are getting them to the floor. And I think all the courts in the United States appreciate that.

I am very grateful to Senator Hatch and Senator Lee for their continued support, for the great courtesies they have extended to my family today to make this a very memorable day, and for their continued interest in and support of our court.

I am very grateful and honored by the President's nomination and for the staff, the executive staff who have helped me so far in this process.

Attending here today, I was seated just until a moment ago very comfortably next to my wife, Lori. Our daughter, Jessica, and her boyfriend, James Raftery, are here. Lori's brother, Ken Lyons, and our nephew, David Lyons, are here. Friends from the judiciary, Lori Murphy, Jim Buchanan, and Tom Natowski are here with us.

In the webcast audience—and, again, I thank the Committee for having this webcast. It made it possible for my mother, who is watching today with friends Dixie Lyman and Paul Lyman in Richfield, Utah, to see these proceedings, and I hope she is approving so far of what I have said.

Our other children, Pete, Chris, Paul, Lisa, Laura, Michael, and their families and friends, are watching as are other friends in Utah, Oregon, and other States and family there.

I believe also our court colleagues are watching, including my chamber staff and judges who are very anxious to get this vacancy filled so they can give me special cases; and their colleagues from the judiciary in other courts as well in other States; as well as colleagues from courts, law schools, and the practice of law, and from the Rule of Law Projects in the U.S., Turkey, and Ukraine, who I am informed are watching. And, finally, my students at the J. Reuben Clark Law School.

We all appreciate this opportunity.

- b. The American Bar Association's Commentary to its Code of Judicial Conduct states that it is inappropriate for a judge to hold membership in any organization that invidiously discriminates on the basis of race, sex, or religion, or national origin. Indicate whether any of these organizations listed in response to 11a above currently discriminate or formerly discriminated on the basis of race, sex, religion or national origin either through formal membership requirements or the practical implementation of membership policies. If so, describe any action you have taken to change these policies and practices.

My church, the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints, requires one to be a member for certain activities and privileges but the overwhelming majority of activities and events are available to the general public. The church limits its priesthood to male members and, until 1978, barred African-Americans from the priesthood. The Boy Scouts of America limits certain programs to males. I have not taken any action to change the policies of these organizations.

Otherwise, to the best of my knowledge, none of the organizations listed in response to 11a above currently discriminates or has ever discriminated on the basis of race, sex, religion or national origin either through formal membership requirements or the practical implementation of membership policies.

13. Judicial Office: State (chronologically) any judicial offices you have held, including positions as an administrative law judge, whether such position was elected or appointed, and a description of the jurisdiction of each such court.

1995 – 2003: United States Magistrate Judge (part-time), United States District Court for the District of Utah, St. George, Utah. I was appointed by the court on May 1, 1995. This is a federal court whose jurisdiction is defined by 28 U.S.C. § 636. As a part-time Magistrate Judge, I exercised jurisdiction over federal petty offense cases arising in Zion National Park, Bryce Canyon National Park and Bureau of Land Management administered lands in Southern Utah. I also handled occasional preliminary felony matters such as issuance of warrants and initial appearances. In 1998, at the request of the court, I also began to handle non-felony criminal matters that arose in Northern Utah, in sessions in Salt Lake City.

2003 – present: United States Magistrate Judge, United States District Court for the District of Utah, Salt Lake City, Utah. I was appointed by the court on January 17, 2003 and reappointed on January 17, 2011. This is a federal court whose jurisdiction is defined by 28 U.S.C. § 636. As a full-time Magistrate Judge, I exercise jurisdiction over federal civil and criminal cases. I handle all preliminary criminal proceedings including issuing arrest and search warrants, pen register and trap and trace orders, initial appearances, appointments of counsel and detention hearings.

I am responsible for resolving discovery disputes in civil cases which are referred to me, and for making reports and recommendations in all civil and criminal matters referred to me for that purpose, including hearing and ruling on motions to dismiss and to suppress evidence/statements when requested by the district judges. I also serve as a mediator in cases pending before the district court. I handle any other matter referred from district court judges.

Civil cases are assigned to me to preside in the same proportion as the district judges. Upon the consent of the parties, I preside over all civil jury and non-jury matters in those cases. I hear and rule on Social Security Administrative Appeals.

As Chief Magistrate Judge since January 1, 2009, I also handle administrative matters in the court as directed by the district judges, including coordination of the work of the magistrate judges, establishment and adjustment of policies affecting magistrate judges, policy recommendations of general concern to the court, and responses to outside requests for cooperation on matters affecting others who work with the court.

- a. Approximately how many cases have you presided over that have gone to verdict or judgment? 30
- i. Of these, approximately what percent were:

jury trials:	<1%
bench trials:	>99%
civil proceedings:	0%
criminal proceedings:	100%

- b. Provide citations for all opinions you have written, including concurrences and dissents.

As a Magistrate Judge I prepare Reports and Recommendations on dispositive matters (e.g., Motions for Summary Judgment, Motions to Dismiss, Motions to Suppress Evidence) referred to me by the District Judges of this Court, who remain the presiding judge in the case. I also prepare orders on motions referred to me, which are not dispositive. From time to time, parties will consent to my jurisdiction, and in such cases, I am the presiding judge over the case. When I am the presiding judge, I do not prepare Reports and Recommendations. Instead, I enter orders for all motions adjudicated in the case. I am attaching a list of the Reports and Recommendations that I have prepared for matters that have been referred to me by the District Judges on this Court as well as orders I have entered when acting as the presiding judge.

See attached list of opinions and orders.

- c. For each of the 10 most significant cases over which you presided, provide: (1) a capsule summary of the nature the case; (2) the outcome of the case; (3) the name and contact information for counsel who had a significant role in the trial of the case; and (3) the citation of the case (if reported) or the docket number and a copy of the opinion or judgment (if not reported).

Winderlin alleged that excessive force was used in his arrest which aggravated his pre-existing shoulder injury. I presided over the case by consent of the parties. I entered preliminary orders regarding discovery. I was preparing to decide several motions in limine and preside over a jury trial when the case settled. Copies of the opinions in this case are attached.

7. Forbes v. Wal-Mart Stores, Inc., No. 2:08-cv-00008-DN, 2010 WL 988492 (D. Utah Mar. 15, 2010). This removal case was before me by consent of the parties under 28 U.S.C. § 636(c). The plaintiff, who slipped on ice and injured himself while repairing a garage door at Wal-Mart, asserted a claim for negligence. I granted Wal-Mart's motion for summary judgment. The plaintiff appealed to the Tenth Circuit, but the appeal was dismissed by stipulation.

8. Conlin Enterprises Corp. v. SNEWS, LLC, No. 2:07-cv-00922-DN, 2008 WL 803041 (D. Utah Mar. 24, 2008). I presided over this case by consent of the parties under 28 U.S.C. § 636(c). Plaintiffs filed suit in Utah Third District Court asserting claims of defamation, interference with business relationships and civil conspiracy. The case was removed to federal court. Defendants then filed a motion to dismiss for lack of personal jurisdiction over the defendants, improper venue, and failure to state a claim for civil conspiracy. I found that the defendants were properly served with process, the court had personal jurisdiction over the defendants, venue was proper, and the civil conspiracy claim should be dismissed for failure to state a claim. The case eventually settled.

In this case involving allegations of wrongful termination, I adjudicated pending dispositive motions at the request and consent of the parties under 28 U.S.C. § 636(c). The motions I handled included Defendant's Motion for Summary Judgment, Plaintiff's Motion for Partial Summary Judgment, and two of Plaintiff's Motions to Strike. The case eventually settled before trial.

10. United States v. Goold, No. SG-96-mj-0033-DN (tried March 10, 1997). The case alleged three counts against two defendants including Operating a Vehicle Without Due Care, Exceeding Group Size, and Interfering with Agency Function. It was the first jury trial in Southern Utah in the history of the federal court. The jury found defendants guilty. I later sentenced them.

e. Provide a list of all cases in which certiorari was requested or granted.

I know of no cases in which certiorari was granted. Certiorari was requested in United States v. Echeverria, No. 2:04-cr-136 DB (D. Utah Oct. 29, 2004), cert. denied, 549 U.S. 1297 (2007).

f. Provide a brief summary of and citations for all of your opinions where your decisions were reversed by a reviewing court or where your judgment was affirmed with significant criticism of your substantive or procedural rulings. If any of the opinions listed were not officially reported, provide copies of the opinions.

1. Phillip M. Adams & Assocs., LLC v. Sony Elecs., Inc., No. 1:05-cv-64 TS, 2010 WL 2219424 (D. Utah May 26, 2010), rev'd in part, 2010 WL 3447818 (D. Utah Aug. 30, 2010). I denied plaintiff's motion to amend the complaint and for terminating sanctions. In denying the motion to amend, I concluded that there was no need to discuss the motion for terminating sanctions because it was contingent on amendment of the complaint. The District Court upheld the ruling on amendment, but reversed the ruling on the sanctions motion. The court found that the motion for sanctions was not moot because it also related to the plaintiff's claims of patent infringement. The district court did not rule on sanctions at that time.

2. United States v. Skutley, No. 2:08-cr-676 DB (D. Utah June 8, 2010), rev'd, 2010 WL 3362718 (D. Utah Aug. 23, 2010). In a Report and Recommendation on a motion to suppress, I concluded that the evidence seized during a traffic stop should be suppressed because the officers did not have reasonable suspicion to make the stop. The District Court disagreed, concluding that the officers had observed a traffic violation and that the stop was therefore lawful. Report and Recommendation supplied.

3. United States v. Alcala, No. 2:09-cr-535 DB (D. Utah Mar. 16, 2010), rev'd, No. 2:09-cr-535 DB (D. Utah May 14, 2010). In a case involving conspiracy to smuggle illegal aliens into the country and VISA fraud, I detained the lead defendant after finding he violated pre-trial release conditions by leaving the jurisdiction without permission. Defendant moved for release from custody after the time had expired to object to the original order of detention. I denied the motion because it failed to cite any information that was not known at the time of the hearing. District Judge Dee Benson reversed, setting pre-trial release conditions. Defendant has since absconded from pre-trial release and his whereabouts are unknown. Opinion supplied.

4. Systemic Formulas, Inc. v. Kim, No. 1:07-cv-159-TC, 2009 WL 5205995 (D. Utah Dec. 23, 2009) aff'd in part, rev'd in part, No. 1:07-cv-159-TC (D. Utah Feb. 4, 2010). I sanctioned an attorney appearing pro hac vice because he violated a protective order by providing his client with information obtained in discovery marked "For Attorney's Eyes Only." One of the sanctions prohibited the attorney from appearing pro hac vice in this court for three years. On appeal, District Judge Tena Campbell affirmed all other sanctions except for the three year restriction on the attorney appearing in this court. Opinion supplied.

5. Wade v. Reg'l Dir. of IRS, No. 1:08-cv-148-CW, 2009 WL 2423535 (D. Utah Aug. 4, 2009), rev'd, 2009 WL 4906853 (D. Utah Dec. 10, 2009). The petitioner filed a petition for a writ of mandamus to compel the IRS to remove tax liens from his property and to enjoin the IRS from further collections. In a Report and Recommendation, I concluded that the IRS's motion to dismiss should be granted on the grounds that the relief sought was barred by the doctrine of sovereign immunity, the Anti-injunction Act, and the Declaratory Judgment Act, and that the petitioner had failed to state a viable claim under the Mandamus Act. The District Court declined to adopt the Recommendation, concluding that when reading the petition in the light most favorable to the petitioner, the sovereign immunity doctrine did not bar the action, it was error to characterize the petition as one for declaratory relief under the Declaratory Judgment Act, the action was not barred by the Anti-injunction Act, and the petition stated a claim under the Mandamus Act.

6. ClearOne Commc'ns, Inc. v. Chiang, No. 2:07-cv-37 TC, 2008 WL 687104 (D. Utah Mar. 10, 2008), vacated, 2009 WL 1108800 (D. Utah Apr. 20, 2009). I entered an order granting plaintiff's motion to consolidate this case with another case involving the same parties. The district court later vacated this order to bring the initial case to trial at an early date.

7. S.E.C. v. Merrill Scott & Assocs, Ltd., No. 2:02-cv-39 TC, 2007 WL 3275146 (D. Utah Nov. 5, 2007), vacated in part, 2008 WL 276502 (D. Utah Jan. 30, 2008), aff'd in part, rev'd in part, 600 F.3d 1262 (10th Cir. 2010). I granted the government's motion to intervene and also allowed investor to seek limited discovery. District Judge Tena Campbell vacated the portion of my order allowing investor's discovery. The Tenth Circuit ruled that it did not have jurisdiction to review the intervention order because investor had failed to object to my order before the District Judge.

8. United States v. Evanson, No. 2:05-cr-805 TC, 2007 WL 128960 (D. Utah Jan. 12, 2007), rev'd, 2007 WL 3171547 (D. Utah Apr. 20, 2007). I granted

Defendant's motion for discovery of a Suspicious Activity Report mentioned in affidavit supporting a search warrant because the validity of the search warrant was at issue in defendant's motion to suppress. District Judge Tena Campbell reversed my decision after the government objected, as she found that after the government's disclosure of other related documents the Suspicious Activity Report was not material.

9. United States v. Evanson, No. 2:05-cr-805 TC, 2006 WL 2992561 (D. Utah Oct. 18, 2006), rev'd, No. 2:05-cr-805 TC (D. Utah Mar. 21, 2007). I denied the government's motion to disqualify defendant's counsel. District Judge Tena Campbell effectively reversed when granting a related motion on issue of attorney/client conflict of interest. Opinion supplied.

10. United States v. Barney, No. 2:04-cr-370 DB (D. Utah Jan. 5, 2005), rev'd, No. 2:04-cr-370 DB (D. Utah May 20, 2005). In a Report and Recommendation on a motion to suppress, I concluded that evidence seized during an arrest should be suppressed because the officers did not have probable cause for the arrest. The district court reversed, finding that the officers' actions in placing the defendant on his knees and handcuffing him were not a seizure in violation of the Fourth Amendment. Opinions supplied.

11. United States v. Morrison, No. 2:03-mj-41 DN (D. Utah May 6, 2004), aff'd, No. 2:04-CR-288 PGC (D. Utah July 19, 2004), rev'd, 415 F.3d 1180 (10th Cir. 2005). Defendant was charged with willfully and knowingly transmitting in interstate commerce an internet communication threatening to injure another person. The government moved to authorize involuntary antipsychotic medication to render defendant competent to stand trial. I granted the motion, and the District Court affirmed. The Tenth Circuit reversed holding that inquiry into whether it was appropriate to medicate defendant to ensure his safety or others' safety should have preceded inquiry into medication to render defendant competent. Opinions supplied.

12. United States v. Baker, No. 1:03-cr-128 DB (D. Utah May 18, 2004), rev'd, No. 1:03-cr-128 DB (D. Utah June 29, 2004). In a Report and Recommendation on a motion to suppress, I concluded that the evidence should be suppressed because it was obtained as a result of a traffic stop that violated the Fourth Amendment. The District Court declined to adopt the Recommendation, concluding that the officers had reasonable suspicion to make the traffic stop. Opinions supplied.

- g. Provide a description of the number and percentage of your decisions in which you issued an unpublished opinion and the manner in which those unpublished opinions are filed and/or stored.

Civil: As a magistrate judge, I issue orders on non-dispositive matters and orders on dispositive matters in consent cases, and I issue reports and recommendations on all dispositive matters referred to me. My non-dispositive orders include discovery matters, motions to amend the pleadings, motions to modify the schedule and other miscellaneous civil motions. I issue hundreds of such orders in any given year. Because my duties have included all civil scheduling for the active district judges for the past several years, I issue many scheduling orders and orders amending case schedules. Very few of the pretrial civil orders are published, although I have filed all of my orders with our court's Electronic Case Filing system for as long as the court has maintained that system.

Criminal: As a magistrate judge, I issue orders on non-dispositive criminal matters such as appointment of counsel, detention and scheduling, which are all referred by rule to the magistrate judge in this district. Very few if any of these orders are published.

In consulting all known sources, including Westlaw, Lexis and CM/ECF, I have found approximately 400 opinions which I understand to mean "reasoned decisions." Because tracking mechanisms were not automated before 2005 in our court, the actual number is likely higher. Only three opinions have been published, which is less than 1%. The unpublished opinions are stored in CM/ECF and are designated as "written opinions," which makes them available without cost on PACER. It appears that West and Lexis download and post the majority of these opinions on their services.

- h. Provide citations for significant opinions on federal or state constitutional issues, together with the citation to appellate court rulings on such opinions. If any of the opinions listed were not officially reported, provide copies of the opinions.

1. United States v. Benard, No. 2:09-cr-56 DAK, 2010 WL 3734847 (D. Utah Aug. 17, 2010), adopted by District Judge Dale Kimball, 2010 WL 3734846 (D. Utah Sept. 22, 2010). Defendant's appeal is pending before the Tenth Circuit Court of Appeals.

2. United States v. Skutley, No. 2:08-cv-676 DB (D. Utah June 8, 2010), rev'd, 2010 WL 3362718 (D. Utah Aug. 23, 2010). Report and Recommendation supplied in response to question 13f.

3. United States v. Gordon, No. 2:04-cr-00688-CW (D. Utah July 21, 2008), adopted by District Judge Dee Benson, 2008 WL 3540007 (D. Utah Aug. 13 2008).

6. Barker v. Utah State Office of Educ., No. 2:04-cv-518 DAK (D. Utah Aug. 26, 2005), adopted by District Judge Dale Kimball on September 21, 2005. Opinion supplied.

7. United States v. Roman, No. 2:04-cr-00544-TS (D. Utah June 15, 2005) (two separate written Reports and Recommendations), adopted by District Judge Ted Stewart on August 5, 2005, and September 28, 2005. Opinion supplied.

8. United States v. Norlander, No. 2:04-cr-00720-DB (D. Utah Apr. 27, 2005), adopted by District Judge Dee Benson on May 16, 2005. Opinion supplied.

9. United States v. Sotelo, No. 2:04-cr-388 TC (D. Utah Feb. 24, 2005), adopted by District Judge Tena Campbell on April 13, 2005. Opinion supplied.

10. United States v. Barney, No. 2:04-cv-370 DB (D. Utah Jan. 5, 2005), rev'd, No. 2:04-cr-370 DB (D. Utah May 20, 2005). Report and Recommendation supplied in response to question 13f.

11. United States v. Echeverria, No. 2:04-cr-136 DB (D. Utah Oct. 29, 2004), adopted by District Judge Dee Benson on February 3, 2005, aff'd, 203 F. App'x 936 (10th Cir. 2006), cert. denied, 549 U.S. 1297 (2007). Opinion supplied.

12. United States v. Hurst, No. 2:03-cr-795-DB (D. Utah June 25, 2004), adopted by District Judge Dee Benson on July 14, 2004. Opinion supplied.

13. United States v. Baker, No. 1:03-cr-128 DB (D. Utah May 18, 2004). This case involved two separate written Reports and Recommendations ("R&Rs"). One R&R (Document 33) was adopted by District Judge Dee Benson on June 29, 2004; but on the same date, Judge Benson declined to follow the other R&R (Document 32). Opinions supplied.

- i. Provide citations to all cases in which you sat by designation on a federal court of appeals, including a brief summary of any opinions you authored, whether majority, dissenting, or concurring, and any dissenting opinions you joined.

I have not sat by designation on a federal court of appeals.

14. Recusal: If you are or have been a judge, identify the basis by which you have assessed the necessity or propriety of recusal (If your court employs an "automatic" recusal system by which you may be recused without your knowledge, please include a general description of that system.) Provide a list of any cases, motions or matters that have come before you in which a litigant or party has requested that you recuse yourself due to an asserted conflict of interest or in which you have recused yourself sua sponte. Identify each such case, and for each provide the following information:

- a. whether your recusal was requested by a motion or other suggestion by a litigant or a party to the proceeding or by any other person or interested party; or if you recused yourself sua sponte;

- b. a brief description of the asserted conflict of interest or other ground for recusal;
- c. the procedure you followed in determining whether or not to recuse yourself;
- d. your reason for recusing or declining to recuse yourself, including any action taken to remove the real, apparent or asserted conflict of interest or to cure any other ground for recusal.

I follow the recusal statutes and Code of Conduct for United States Judges. Whenever called for by the Code of Conduct for United States Judges, the recusal statutes, or my general interest in maintaining impartiality and the appearance of impartiality of the Court, particularly with pro se parties, I disclose the potential conflict and/or recuse myself.

Our court does not employ an “automatic” recusal system. I evaluate each case when referred to me and when assigned for the parties’ consent to my jurisdiction. CM/ECF maintains a conflict checking tool which I periodically update. The conflict checking tool runs cases against a list I maintain in the system. That list includes former clients, former adverse parties and for several years included all attorneys in my former firm and the firm with which my former law firm merged. Names of attorneys who are close personal friends are included. I also review cases as they proceed, examining the list of counsel and parties to determine if an association appears which is not listed in our conflict database.

In the following cases, a party moved for my removal or disqualification. None of these motions were granted.

The motion was procedurally deficient in these cases:

Layland v. United States, No. 2:01-cv-00076
Anderson v. Ireland, No. 2:03-cv-00068
Burbank v. USDC UT, No. 2:04-cv-00742

The motion was substantively deficient in the following cases, because the motion only alleged adverse rulings:

Mikesell v. Galetka, No. 2:01-cv-00891
Soc’y of Lloyd’s v. Bennett, No. 2:02-cv-204
Travis v. Park City Mun. Corp., No. 2:05-cv-00269

In the following cases, I initiated recusal due to personal, family or staff relationships:

United States v. Great Salt Lake Council, Inc. (BSA), No. 2:04-cv-00604.
 I was a Boy Scout leader at the time and the case sought substantial damages against the regional BSA organization.

Jensen v. Utah, No. 2:05-cv-00739. A law clerk was employed previously as counsel for the defendant state agency.

George v. Delta Air Lines, Inc., No. 2:07-cv-00742; Smith v. Delta Airlines, No. 2:07-cv-00843. A law clerk was formerly employed by the defendant and her husband was still employed by that same party.

United States v. Kaplar, No. 2:06-cv-00261. I recused on this case because my law clerk's husband was related to a pro se party.

Wright Express Fin. Servs. Corp. v. ACAS Acquisition (Logex), Inc., No. 2:06-cv-01039. My neighbor was counsel for a party.

Rose v. Utah State Bar, No. 2:08-cv-00592. I had served as a Utah State Bar Commissioner and President.

York v. U.S. Dep't of Justice, No. 2:09-cv-00063. During my years in St. George, I had many legal encounters with this pro se plaintiff.

Wood-Federowicz v. Yengich, No. 2:09-cv-00482. I, like all the other judges in this district, recused in this case against a prominent defense lawyer and former CJA Panel Chair.

Brazzle v. Washington City, No. 2:09-cv-00074. I have a close personal friendship with the Washington City Attorney and previously performed significant legal work for that party.

Torrey v. Davol, No. 2:09-cv-00883. A defendant in the suit was a physician for my wife and me.

Western World Ins. v. Special Population Learning Outdoor Recreation & Educ., No. 2:06-cv-00967. My wife, son and I had been volunteers for the defendant entity.

Driessen v. Sony BMG Music Entertainment, No. 2:09-cv-00140. A former student was co-plaintiff and his spouse, a law professor, was the other plaintiff.

I recused myself in cases in which I felt pro se plaintiffs would not feel fairly treated or could later claim such unfairness if I remained:

Raiser v. Utah Cnty., No. 2:02-cv-01209. I had ruled against the pro se plaintiff in another case.

Johnson v. Johnson, No. 2:05-cv-00749. The pro se plaintiff made a significant written threat against me.

Wade v. Reg'l Dir. of IRS, No. 1:08-cv-00148. The pro se plaintiff objected to my recommendation to dismiss the case and the district judge declined to adopt it. I was concurrently referral judge on the pro se plaintiff's civil complaint against his former lawyer in a case with closely related subject matter.

Biers v. State of Utah, No. 2:09-cv-01008. Mr. Biers filed an ethics complaint against me after I ruled against him on some motions and I recused.

I do not recall the reason for recusal in this case:

MyGym v. Engel, Case No. 1:06-cv-00130.

15. Public Office, Political Activities and Affiliations:

- a. List chronologically any public offices you have held, other than judicial offices, including the terms of service and whether such positions were elected or appointed. If appointed, please include the name of the individual who appointed you. Also, state chronologically any unsuccessful candidacies you have had for elective office or unsuccessful nominations for appointed office.

I have not held any public offices other than judicial offices. I was an unsuccessful candidate for the following offices, in the years indicated:

St. George City Council, 1979
Washington County Attorney, 1982
Utah State Senate District 29, 1992

I have not had any unsuccessful nominations for appointed office.

- b. List all memberships and offices held in and services rendered, whether compensated or not, to any political party or election committee. If you have ever held a position or played a role in a political campaign, identify the particulars of the campaign, including the candidate, dates of the campaign, your title and responsibilities.

Chair, Taxpayers for Washington County, 1988. At the request of local business and education leaders, I chaired a campaign to educate about and encourage rejection of tax limitation initiatives. I raised funds, responded to state-wide coordinators' requests for assistance, coordinated local public appearances, and arranged for placement of advertisements regarding the initiatives.

Secretary, Washington County Democratic Party, 1994 – 1995. Formal service as a party organizer. I provided administrative support for the party by maintaining lists of party members and district organizations. I provided local support for various state campaigns.

Organizer, Washington County Democratic Party, 1978 – 1994. As the county grew from a relatively small population to exceed 80,000, along with others in my law firm, I informally provided administrative support for the party by maintaining lists of party members and district organizations, as well as supporting local and state candidates in their individual campaigns.

16. Legal Career: Answer each part separately.

a. Describe chronologically your law practice and legal experience after graduation from law school including:

- i. whether you served as clerk to a judge, and if so, the name of the judge, the court and the dates of the period you were a clerk;

I have not served as a clerk to a judge.

- ii. whether you practiced alone, and if so, the addresses and dates;

I have never practiced alone.

- iii. the dates, names and addresses of law firms or offices, companies or governmental agencies with which you have been affiliated, and the nature of your affiliation with each.

- iv. whether you served as a mediator or arbitrator in alternative dispute resolution proceedings and, if so, a description of the 10 most significant matters with which you were involved in that capacity.

Starting in 1993, I began to serve as a mediator. Since appointment to the bench, I have continued to serve as a settlement judge or mediator on cases as assigned by the district judges.

Mediations in Private Practice

1. Confidential v. Confidential. This wrongful death case arising out of a gravel crusher malfunction mediated to settlement.
2. Claw Constr. v. Hurricane. This case between a municipality and a contractor centered on construction rights under changing permit laws and city exaction policies. The case resolved.
3. Road Creek Ranch, Inc. v. Freemont Irrigation Co. This water dispute between a landowner and an irrigation company regarding water rights for irrigation and the stream flow needed to maintain a hatchery was resolved.
4. Confidential v. Confidential. This domestic mediation with serious emotional and financial issues was resolved.
5. Yee v. Utah Dep't of Transp. This state litigation over an accident allegedly caused by road conditions did not settle the case on the day of mediation but settled a week later for the amount of the state's last offer during the mediation.

Mediations as a Judge

6. Wing v. various parties. Several claims in a group of over 30 cases filed by a receiver seeking to recover funds which allegedly passed through a Ponzi scheme have been resolved in mediation.
7. Confidential v. Confidential. This trade secret case between prominent industry parties was co-mediated with a law professor to unsuccessful conclusion. Nearly a year later, the case settled just after opening statements in an anticipated three week trial.
8. Disabled Rights Action Comm. v. Brentwood, 2:02-cv-1005 DB. This is one of a series of cases dealing with architectural violations of ADA in residential rental properties. It was necessary to adjourn this mediation for ten days to allow measurements and verification of site plans, and then the case settled.
9. Ridgeway v. Fleet, 2:03-cv-00858 TS. This case first came to mediation in January 2005 but did not resolve. At a second session in May of that year, five days before trial, the case resolved.

10. Ammons v. La-Z-Boy, No. 1:04-cv-67 TC. Working with a private mediator who had vast mediation experience, we co-mediated to settlement a consolidation of 19 separate plaintiffs' claims for wrongful termination and retaliation. The resolution included three plaintiffs who had filed bankruptcy because the bankruptcy trustees were involved before and during the mediation.

b. Describe:

- i. the general character of your law practice and indicate by date when its character has changed over the years.

In the early years of my practice, in a two-attorney firm in a small town, I did virtually all types of legal work, with some emphasis on estate planning and business documentation.

During all phases of my practice from 1978 to 2002, I was involved in real estate development and foreclosures and also retained as counsel by different municipalities in Utah and Arizona. These retainers ranged from general representation, to representation for special projects such as establishment of municipal electric systems, to service as special litigation counsel.

From 1982 to 1992, I was heavily involved in criminal prosecution in Utah and criminal defense in Arizona. I was "city attorney" for Kanab, Utah, a small municipality in Southern Utah. In that part-time retained position I performed a broad variety of work for the city, including general advice on governmental compliance, legal assistance on specific projects, ordinance drafting, and misdemeanor prosecution.

From 1995 to 2002, I limited my practice to real estate development, special municipal work, foreclosure and civil litigation. I handled that kind of work throughout my practice, but in those latter years, I did little else. In these years I was also a part-time magistrate judge.

- ii. your typical clients and the areas at each period of your legal career, if any, in which you have specialized.

My typical clients were municipalities; individuals and businesses involved in real estate development and general civil litigation; and insurance companies for defense of civil cases. These clients came from across the southern Utah, southern Nevada, and northern Arizona area. We also had many clients from outside the southern Utah area due to our firm's early internet presence. I also represented individuals in domestic and probate litigation from time to time.

- c. Describe the percentage of your practice that has been in litigation and whether you appeared in court frequently, occasionally, or not at all. If the frequency of your appearances in court varied, describe such variance, providing dates.

Throughout my practice I appeared regularly in court. I regularly appeared in courts in southern Utah counties and on occasion in northern Arizona.

- i. Indicate the percentage of your practice in:

1. federal courts:	2%
2. state courts of record:	60%
3. other courts:	35%
4. administrative agencies:	3%

- ii. Indicate the percentage of your practice in:

1. civil proceedings:	65%
2. criminal proceedings:	35%

- d. State the number of cases in courts of record, including cases before administrative law judges, you tried to verdict, judgment or final decision (rather than settled), indicating whether you were sole counsel, chief counsel, or associate counsel.

I would estimate the number of cases, civil and criminal, that I tried to verdict, judgment or final adjudicated decision to be 150.

- i. What percentage of these trials were:

1. jury:	15%
2. non-jury:	85%

- e. Describe your practice, if any, before the Supreme Court of the United States. Supply four (4) copies of any briefs, amicus or otherwise, and, if applicable, any oral argument transcripts before the Supreme Court in connection with your practice.

I have not appeared before the Supreme Court of the United States.

17. Litigation: Describe the ten (10) most significant litigated matters which you personally handled, whether or not you were the attorney of record. Give the citations, if the cases were reported, and the docket number and date if unreported. Give a capsule summary of the substance of each case. Identify the party or parties whom you represented; describe in detail the nature of your participation in the litigation and the final disposition of the case. Also state as to each case:

- a. the date of representation;

- b. the name of the court and the name of the judge or judges before whom the case was litigated; and
- c. the individual name, addresses, and telephone numbers of co-counsel and of principal counsel for each of the other parties.

1. K.L.L. Inc. dba Pro Care Home Health & Infusion Specialists v. Bowers, Washington County Fifth District Court, Civil No. 970500264; Hon. James L. Shumate; 1997 – 2001.

The case started as a collection action by a supplier of medications used by my oncologist client, the defendant, to treat cancer. Hundreds of thousands of dollars were claimed. The doctor counterclaimed because discovery revealed the drug supplier was not purchasing enough drugs to fulfill the orders for which he was billing the doctor. The supplier's records – and the terms of the agreement as to price – were very unclear. I was sole counsel for the defendant doctor. The case was settled at the end of plaintiff supplier's case due to the supplier's severe evidentiary problems.

2. Christy v. Best Friends Animal Sanctuary, Kane County Sixth District Court, Civil No. 920600032; Hon. Don V. Tibbs; 1992 – 1993.

This case was a claim by the personal representative and widow of a veterinarian for services allegedly owing from my client, the largest no-kill animal sanctuary in the United States. While the relationship between the doctor and sanctuary had been extremely close, it was apparent the surviving spouse viewed the sanctuary as taking the doctor's time and attention to the doctor's financial detriment. She attempted to construct billings and account records based on standard fees charged to individual clients, and not the practice of billing between the doctor and sanctuary. The case was settled at the end of plaintiff's evidence due to evidentiary problems.

3. Petersen v. Hales Sand and Gravel, United States District Court for District of Utah Case No. 2:95-cv-00081-DKW; Hon. David Winder; 1995 – 1996.

I represented the defendants in this sexual harassment suit. The plaintiff was a woman who found a well-paying job on a road crew. The plaintiff claimed she was subjected to bad treatment because of her gender, but the essence of the case was sexual harassment by reason of no port-a-potties and sexual banter of the crew. The evidence demonstrated that plaintiff was often an instigator and always a participant in the offensive activities. The case was not resolved through the administrative process and proceeded through a three-day jury trial. The jury returned a no-cause verdict, but with a note admonishing the corporate defendant on its practices.

4. Kanab City v. Utah Power & Light, Kane County Sixth District Court, Civil No. 2155; Hon. Don V. Tibbs; 1986 -- 1987.

My client Kanab City had a unique provision in its electric franchise ordinance, authorizing Utah Power & Light to use rights of way in the city. The provision allowed the city, at the end of the franchise, to purchase the system by condemnation. In Utah, public uses eligible for eminent domain are usually regarded as of equivalent value, to prevent the many entities with condemnation power from attacking each other. However, this contractual provision appeared to trump case law. The litigation to condemn the system was met with a powerful response from Utah Power & Light which feared the exercise of similar provisions in other municipal franchises and the precedent of involuntary sale of its system. The litigation involved numerous issues beyond the unique legal issues, including inventory and valuation of the system and the utility's right to recover "stranded investment" such as generation capacity and power supply and wheeling contracts dedicated to the service of the municipality. Expert consultants and witnesses were key, and the parties employed all strategies available including publicity campaigns, legislative attacks and initiative petitions, which expanded the litigation. The case was on appeal to the Utah Supreme Court when the utility conceded and negotiated a sale.

5. In the Matter of the Adoption of W. A. T., 808 P.2d 1083 (Utah 1991); Washington County Fifth District Court; Hon. Dean Conder, by assignment; 1989 – 1991.

This was a simple adoption until sisters of the deceased mother objected and sought to adopt the children. The case developed into a serious contest about rights of children and relatives. My clients, the adopting parents, were legally married, but the natural mother of the children was a polygamous wife of the adopting father. Her children by a prior marriage were the adoption subjects. The children and adopting mother had lived in the home but the natural mother's sisters were hearing impaired and strangers to the fully hearing children. Overlaid on the standard "best interests of the child" issue was the sisters' argument that the polygamous relationship was a law violation that disqualified the proposed adoptive parents. The Utah Supreme Court decision was 2-1-2, with a decisive concurrence in favor of the adoption.

6. Jacobs v. Hafen, 917 P.2d 1078 (Utah 1996); Kane County Sixth District Court; Hon. Don V. Tibbs; 1993 – 1996.

My client Jacobs and his neighbor Hafen disputed ownership of a strip of land between their larger holdings. The case was decided against Jacobs at the trial level, but an appeal to the Utah Court of Appeals remanded to the trial court for additional findings. The trial court found that Utah Supreme Court case law suggested that a term shorter than 20 years might support acquiescence in "unusual circumstances." Our Supreme Court appeal asked to clarify the case law, and decide that Utah would not permit a boundary to be established by less than 20 years acquiescence. The Supreme Court reversed the trial court, quieting title in my clients' favor without the need for remand.

7. Matter of Estate of Beesley, 883 P.2d 1343 (Utah 1994); Washington County Fifth District Court; Hon. J. Philip Eves; 1991 – 1994.

This was an estate dispute between nieces and nephews of the decedent, who were my clients, and the surviving widow. The decedent and his wife executed a self-prepared pre-nuptial agreement and four self-prepared post-nuptial agreements. The widow claimed she was entitled to the entire estate, but the trial court and appellate court held that she was limited by the agreements with her deceased husband to the specific property mentioned and one half of the overall estate.

8. Hales Sand & Gravel, Inc. v. Audit Div. of State Tax Comm'n of Utah, 842 P.2d 887 (Utah 1992).

The Utah State Tax Commission took the position that the taxpayer owed taxes on transportation charges for its rock products. In spite of numerous arguments to avoid the imposition of tax, the Tax Commission and Utah Supreme Court held that the transportation charges were taxable. The appeal was successful, however, in cancelling the penalty for negligent non-payment, because the Supreme Court recognized that the taxpayer based its nonpayment of taxes on a legitimate, good faith interpretation of an arguable point of law.

I represented a son of the decedent in contesting a will at the trial and appellate levels. We were unsuccessful in arguing that the literal language of the will left significant amounts of property to pass intestate. The court held that since testacy was preferred, all the property passed through the will.

10. Moore v. Kanab City, Kane County Sixth District Court, Civil No. 2134; Hon. Don V. Tibbs; 1986.

I defended the City in this excessive force civil rights case against a police officer who stopped the plaintiff and drew a gun on him, when the plaintiff failed to respond to commands and appeared to be attempting to access a weapon. The issue was the fine point of an officer's ability to act in anticipation of a threat. The trial judge, with a jury present, entered a dismissal at the end of plaintiff's evidence, on the issue of law, based on all facts as proven in the case in chief.

18. Legal Activities: Describe the most significant legal activities you have pursued, including significant litigation which did not progress to trial or legal matters that did not involve litigation. Describe fully the nature of your participation in these activities. List any client(s) or organization(s) for whom you performed lobbying activities and describe the lobbying activities you performed on behalf of such client(s) or organizations(s). (Note: As to any facts requested in this question, please omit any information protected by the attorney-client privilege.)

I have not performed lobbying activities for any client, though I have appeared in planning and zoning administrative settings in many municipalities and negotiated with their staff on behalf of developer clients. These discussions would typically consist of arriving at understandings of the application of zoning requirements, development layout, integration of utilities and roads inside the development with those outside the development, and voicing opinions on municipal master plan proposals.

Activities During Legal Practice

1. Electric Utility Projects. In 1986, I represented Kanab City, a municipal client in exercising its right to condemn and operate its electric system and eventually negotiating the purchase of the system.
2. Innovative Real Estate Covenants. Working with engineers and the developers in the mid-1980s, we created the concept of a "Flexible Footprint" townhome. A "pad" was designated for private ownership, and the walls of various floor plans would fit inside it. By covenant provision, all area outside the walls, regardless of ownership, was maintained in a common and consistent fashion, using common funds.
3. Pro Bono Covenant Amendment. I provided pro bono assistance in the amendment of subdivision covenants for Our Savior's Lutheran Church in Bloomington, Utah.
4. Park Service Permit Negotiation. In 1991-1993 I represented Lake Powell Tours, Inc. in renegotiation of its National Park Service (NPS) permit to operate on Lake Powell.
5. Water Rights Administrative Proceeding. During 1991-1993 I was retained by Brigham Young University to monitor and, if needed, protest an application for diversion of underground water from a creek area in Motoqua, on the border of Utah and Nevada in western Washington County.

International Legal Activities

6. Hosting Foreign Delegations. Annually for the past four years (2007-2010), I have acted as professional host for delegations of Ukrainian judges and court staff who visit the United States. The visits are sponsored by Open World and the Administrative Office of the U.S. Courts.

7. Legal Curriculum Development. In 2007 I compiled the curriculum now entitled "Foundations of a Free Society" for The Leavitt Institute for International Development. This is a practical course in American citizenship, ethics, democracy and the rule of law in the context of the American Jury Trial. It is taught annually in several Ukrainian law schools, concluding with a mock trial competition each spring.

19. Teaching: What courses have you taught? For each course, state the title, the institution at which you taught the course, the years in which you taught the course, and describe briefly the subject matter of the course and the major topics taught. If you have a syllabus of each course, provide four (4) copies to the committee.

Alternative Dispute Resolution – Brigham Young University, J. Reuben Clark Law School, 2008 – present. A survey course teaching fundamentals of negotiation, mediation and arbitration, designed to enable student to advise clients in ADR settings. Syllabus supplied.

Law Practice Management – Brigham Young University, J. Reuben Clark Law School, 2001 – 2007. A general introduction to law office management including accounting, staff management, practice systems, and planning. Syllabus supplied.

20. Deferred Income/ Future Benefits: List the sources, amounts and dates of all anticipated receipts from deferred income arrangements, stock, options, uncompleted contracts and other future benefits which you expect to derive from previous business relationships, professional services, firm memberships, former employers, clients or customers. Describe the arrangements you have made to be compensated in the future for any financial or business interest.

I held the right to receive a share of payments on certain cases on which work was finished by the dissolved law firm Snow Nuffer, but paid after January 1, 2003. No further payments are expected, though it is theoretically possible.

I receive royalties on two online courses taught on the web through Manexa/LegalSpan in 2007. Payments have declined over time and are irregular. When received, any payment is usually less than $50 per month.

21. Outside Commitments During Court Service: Do you have any plans, commitments, or agreements to pursue outside employment, with or without compensation, during your service with the court? If so, explain.

I intend to continue teaching one class per year at Brigham Young University, J. Reuben Clark Law School, if permission continues to be granted by my chief judge and the chief judge of the circuit. I do not have any commitment to teach from year to year.

I intend to continue teaching with The Leavitt Institute program in Ukraine. I do not have any commitment to teach from year to year.

I intend to participate in presentation of Continuing Legal Education and community outreach efforts. I do not have any commitment to continue this work.

22. Sources of Income: List sources and amounts of all income received during the calendar year preceding your nomination and for the current calendar year, including all salaries, fees, dividends, interest, gifts, rents, royalties, licensing fees, honoraria, and other items exceeding $500 or more (if you prefer to do so, copies of the financial disclosure report, required by the Ethics in Government Act of 1978, may be substituted here).

See attached Financial Disclosure Report.

23. Statement of Net Worth: Please complete the attached financial net worth statement in detail (add schedules as called for).

See attached Net Worth Statement.

24. Potential Conflicts of Interest:

- a. Identify the family members or other persons, parties, categories of litigation, and financial arrangements that are likely to present potential conflicts-of-interest when you first assume the position to which you have been nominated. Explain how you would address any such conflict if it were to arise.

Based on my prior experience, the conflicts I am likely to encounter are with attorneys with whom I have a close personal relationship, businesses with whom I or a chambers staff member have conflicts, or clients or adverse parties from the time of my practice. However, based on experience, these are infrequent.

- b. Explain how you will resolve any potential conflict of interest, including the procedure you will follow in determining these areas of concern.

To prevent conflicts of interest from arising, I do not have investments other than personal real estate and the Thrift Savings Plan. I maintain the conflict database provided in CM/ECF and our case manager runs conflict check reports at case referral and case assignment. I also review the notices of case assignment and referral to ensure that no conflict arises which is not flagged by the conflict database. I will continue to follow the federal recusal statutes and the Code of Conduct for United States Judges. If necessary, I would seek advice from the Code of Conduct Committee of the Judicial Conference. I have erred and always will err on the side of disqualification.

25. Pro Bono Work: An ethical consideration under Canon 2 of the American Bar Association's Code of Professional Responsibility calls for "every lawyer, regardless of professional prominence or professional workload, to find some time to participate in serving the disadvantaged." Describe what you have done to fulfill these responsibilities, listing specific instances and the amount of time devoted to each.

While a judge, I have participated in hosting visits of young people to the court and discuss with them the many and varied opportunities for work in the justice system. I also participated in the design of the pro bono civil appointment program for our court which provides counsel for pro se litigants in cases that appear to have merit or complex issues that counsel might assist in resolving.

In my law practice in St. George prior to 2003, because of the relatively lower income levels in Southwestern Utah, I regularly provided reduced fee or no-fee services. There were many opportunities to assist persons charged with crimes, facing domestic litigation or involved in juvenile court proceedings. I would estimate I handled thirty of these cases during my practice. I assisted in the establishment of the St. George Children's Justice Center, a location for child victims of crime to meet with law enforcement, counselors and therapists.

26. Selection Process:

- a. Please describe your experience in the entire judicial selection process, from beginning to end (including the circumstances which led to your nomination and the interviews in which you participated). Is there a selection commission in your jurisdiction to recommend candidates for nomination to the federal courts? If so, please include that process in your description, as well as whether the commission recommended your nomination. List the dates of all interviews or communications you had with the White House staff or the Justice Department regarding this nomination. Do not include any contacts with Federal Bureau of Investigation personnel concerning your nomination.

In the Spring of 2009, the idea of applying for the judicial vacancy was suggested to me by Paul Warner, U.S. Magistrate Judge and former U.S. Attorney. To express interest, I then contacted the offices of Senator Hatch, Senator Bennett, and Congressman Matheson, and met with staff members. I met personally with Congressman Matheson on June 30, 2009; with Senator Bennett on October 16, 2010; with Senator Lee on January 14, 2011; and with Senator Hatch on January 19, 2011. There is no selection commission in Utah.

I sent a letter expressing my interest to the President on February 9, 2010 and to the White House Counsel's Office on February 26, 2011. Since March 2011, I have been in contact with officials from the Office of Legal Policy at the Department of Justice. On May 10, 2011, I met with attorneys from the White House Counsel's Office and the Department of Justice in Washington, D.C. On June 29, 2011, the President submitted my nomination to the Senate.

- b. Has anyone involved in the process of selecting you as a judicial nominee discussed with you any currently pending or specific case, legal issue or question in a manner that could reasonably be interpreted as seeking any express or implied assurances concerning your position on such case, issue, or question? If so, explain fully.

No.

Senator KLOBUCHAR. You are reminding me of when we had a Minnesota nominee, and the next group that was the happiest next to her family were those other Federal judges. They kept calling to say, "When is the hearing?"

Judge NUFFER. Exactly.

Senator KLOBUCHAR. Very good.

I am going to have Senator Hatch go first here, and please go ahead.

Senator HATCH. Let me just ask all of you this question. We will start with you, Justice Gerrard. I would just like your thoughts on the issue of impartiality. I know that in your particular case you have written and you have spoken about diversity and related issues, and I think that we can all agree that each of us individually is affected by our personal background and our personal experiences. And it is certainly true that every judicial decision impacts somebody, impacts people. So I am very interested in—and let me just say, judges do take an oath to be impartial, to decide cases without regard for the identity of the parties. If you would, please comment on the obligation of judges to be impartial. And do you believe that race, gender, or the impact of a decision may play a role in how judges decide cases or must judges apply the law impartially?

Justice GERRARD. Thank you for the question, Senator. It is a good question, a crucial one. I would say this about impartiality. I did take that oath over 16 years ago for the Nebraska Supreme Court, and I hope I have lived up to that oath every day. I think it is absolutely crucial that both sides be heard fully, that the arguments of both sides, whoever that might be, whether it be two individuals, whether it be the State, whether it be two corporations, that their arguments be considered fully and that decisions are based solely on the law.

As to the second part of your question, as far as whether race or gender or any other outside factor should impact a decision of a judge, the answer to that is no. I think it is important for judges to understand that real people are impacted by decisions, just as you have stated before. But it is the law and the evidence that judges must consider, and that is the only thing that judges should consider. And I hope I have done that for all of my years on the bench, and I would plan to continue to do that.

Senator HATCH. Well, thank you.

Ms. Phillips.

Ms. PHILLIPS. Thank you, Senator. I agree with my fellow nominee that the confidence in our system requires that judges approach all decisions from an impartial perspective, and that it is not appropriate for a judge to consider personal views or any biases that he or she may hold when making any decisions from the perspective of the bench.

I also agree with my fellow nominee that any decisions that are made must be made free of any regard for the person's race, gender, or any other factor, and I liken it to the approach that I have taken as a prosecutor. As a prosecutor, it is very important that you make decisions that are irrespective of the potential suspect or defendant's race, gender, or national origin, for example, and I would fully expect to use that same approach if I was fortunate enough to be confirmed to the district court bench.

Senator HATCH. Well, thank you.

Mr. Rice.

Mr. RICE. Thank you, Senator. I agree with my colleagues wholeheartedly that bias, prejudice, and sympathy have no room in the courtroom in making a final decision. It is as simple as that.

Thank you.

Senator HATCH. Thank you.

Judge Nuffer.

Judge NUFFER. I recall the first time I took the judicial oath and I was a little surprised to hear that we took an oath to do justice regardless to the rich and to the poor. And I have thought of that to the powerful and the powerless as well. And I think I do try to reflect on that, as my colleagues have stated, and I appreciate the statements they make. We need to be careful that we are making the decisions based on the case, not on the personalities involved.

Senator HATCH. Well, you know, I might have some other questions, but I think that is one I was very concerned about. I am happy to finish with that.

Senator KLOBUCHAR. Very good.

Senator Lee.

Senator LEE. Judge Nuffer, is there anything about having raised seven children that makes you exceptionally well qualified to be a judge?

[Laughter.]

Judge NUFFER. I would say not only having raised seven children, but having learned from my wife as I raised those children. I was in a family of two children, and it seemed very busy sometimes in our family of seven children. And I think that the management skills, being able to listen to everyone and pay attention to everyone and their needs is something that she is very good at that I have tried to learn from and exercise in the courtroom to make sure people are fully heard.

Senator LEE. Now, it has been quite a while in Utah since we have had a magistrate judge become a Federal district judge. In fact, as I think about it, I cannot think of another example where it has happened. Is there any thought you have about how we ought to use Federal magistrates differently? Are we overutilizing them or underutilizing them?

Judge NUFFER. We have a wonderful environment in Utah, a great camaraderie between our district judges and our magistrate judges, and so that is pretty much the scope of my experience. And I think that we are moving in Utah to having district and magistrate judges share the civil caseload more. I think that is going to be helpful for everyone concerned.

We are very fortunate to have that camaraderie and that sharing of the load and frank discussions in our management meetings where all judges are present about that.

As you have noted, we have never had a magistrate judge become a district judge. I think that is a good thing. I do not think it is just because it is me, but I think it is a good thing. I think courts have more depth when they have that transition happen.

Senator LEE. Great. Thank you.

Senator KLOBUCHAR. Very good.

I was thinking all of you have had Federal experience—well, you, Judge Gerrard, have been in the State system but have certainly seen the Federal system. And I just wondered what you see as the biggest challenges facing the Federal bench right now. I was just over speaking at Justice Roberts' invitation to the Judicial Conference on some of the work that we are doing on the Committee, and I just was struck by some of the issues that they raised there with resources and certain districts having higher caseloads than others and just what your opinion is. I appreciate that I have been calling you "Judge"—sort of, you know, giving away what we think might happen—"Phillips." But it said "Honorable," and so I asked our staff how you get "Honorable." Poor Mr. Rice here does not have that on there. If you are Senate-confirmed, I guess, for any position, you are forever "Honorable." So this is a very interesting fact, and I do not know if it is true. But I guess we could start with you, Ms. Phillips, about just what you see as a U.S. Attorney.

Ms. PHILLIPS. Thank you, and, yes, I do not know who created that rule, but I am a definite fan of it.

[Laughter.]

Ms. PHILLIPS. I do think that you have hit on one of the most pressing issues that is confronting the judiciary in the near future, and that is—and probably all of Federal Government—the lack of resources that will be available to address what is inevitably going to be a growing caseload. And I think when you look at resources, it is important to not only look at the resources that the judges themselves have, but also probation and parole and other entities that work within the courts because those entities play a very important role in assisting the judges to perform their responsibilities.

I also think a second issue that we need to be mindful of which has been alluded to earlier today is the impact of the fact that the guidelines are no longer mandatory and ensuring that the judges take approaches which work to ensure that defendants who are similarly situated are sentenced in a similar manner regardless of what courtroom they are in or regardless of what region of the country they are in.

So I see those as two issues that the judiciary needs to be mindful of and needs to continue working on as we work toward the future.

Senator KLOBUCHAR. I think that is interesting, just your second part. I did not expect that answer, and I think that is true, having done the prosecutor job for 8 years. I know that we would always—we had guidelines, State guidelines, but there were always some deviations, and I just remember us trying to make—be so hard that we were asking for sentences that were in a certain box, looking at all the factors. So thank you for bringing that up.

Mr. Rice, do you want to add anything?

Mr. RICE. Senator, I think the challenge, the largest challenge from the Federal bench now, if I am not presumptuous, would be the technology, technology in the courtroom, both in trying cases and discovery. I think technology is the biggest challenge, and with that could come some more efficiency in the courtroom, hopefully, that we would be more efficient with our resources and better able to process the cases more quickly and timely.

Senator KLOBUCHAR. Yes, I have had a number of lawyers and judges bring up the discovery issue and this need to do things more online. So thank you for that. You know, in the U.S. Senate we can only show charts right now, so maybe we need to change, too. I did not really mean that, to the senior Senators.

[Laughter.]

Senator KLOBUCHAR. Judge Nuffer.

Judge NUFFER. I have always seen our rising caseloads, at least in our district, as one of the big issues, and I appreciate the chance to address this here with this group because you actually have the ability to do some things about it. But in Utah, from 2009 to 2010, we had a 20-percent caseload increase in civil and criminal cases, and that is a lot of cases for a five-judge court. And we are not really sure what is driving that. It appears to be continuing. But I think it is something that needs to be watched so that we can still devote the resources that we need to adequately consider and resolve cases in a timely manner.

I think that that is true in many districts, especially border districts, that these increases occur, but I think with some issues in the economy we have actually seen more litigation rather than less. And the courts need to be able to respond to those things.

It has certainly been a challenge for us, so I relay that on to you.

Senator KLOBUCHAR. Yes, I have started to see that. I saw a story that there was more child abuse cases, and just so you know, the districts with the highest caseload average right now are, as you said, some of the border States—California and Arizona, and then the other ones are—what was the—Texas, another border—and guess what the fourth one is, Judge Nuffer? Minnesota, also a border State with Canada. It is true. We have a lot of Fortune 500 companies, a lot of civil litigation going on, and some very good judges. I do not know. But we have a high caseload, and they do incredibly well with a difficult job.

Judge Gerrard, did you want to add anything?

Justice GERRARD. The first thing, Senator Klobuchar, is that I hesitate to give advice to my Federal colleagues before I ever walk across the street. But I must say I have talked with them in some detail.

To answer your question, I think caseload management is one of the—and managing our dockets is one of the crucial issues not only in Nebraska but in the Federal courts. And one of the things that has not been mentioned is how that affects the access to justice. I think as cases are managed properly, obviously not only the criminal cases but the civil cases are able to get through on an efficient basis. So that would be one of my concerns.

But I think Nebraska, quite frankly, has done an admirable job with their caseload at this point in time. I know Nebraska is also participating in—they are one of the first district courts to participate in televising some of their proceedings, and that also, I think, is an improvement in the Federal courts for access to justice and to allow others to see how justice does work in their State.

Senator KLOBUCHAR. We actually opened up all our child protection hearings that had been closed—not to media. There are some very strict rules about that. I mean, they can come in, but they cannot report on certain things. And it really had an effect on justice, I think, making things go faster because people were watching what was happening, and they had been closed off before that. They are not filmed, but they are open.

Justice GERRARD. It does make a difference.

Senator KLOBUCHAR. It does.

Does anyone want to add anything else? Senator Hatch, do you want to ask—

Senator HATCH. Let me just ask Judge Nuffer, I noted in my introduction of you that you have a real interest in technology and its impact on the law. I would just like you to take a minute or two and talk about that, because perhaps you could expand on the quote that I used from one of your articles about how technology can reduce the distance to the courthouse and leverage our abilities.

Judge NUFFER. You know, Utah is a very interesting population, Senator. As the other people in the room may not realize, we are so urban but we are so rural.

Senator HATCH. Yes.

Judge NUFFER. All of our urban population is within 100 miles, and I appreciate the chance to address this because I think that the ability to file electronically has made a huge difference for our rural lawyers and party litigants and the ability to see the file online at any time from any location through the Internet. And I think, if I remember the quote right, leveling the lawyer in Blanding is at the same disadvantage or advantage as the lawyer in Salt Lake now. They do not have to walk to the courthouse to see the court file. They can simply see it online.

One of the great protections of the judicial process is it is open to the public. Now all those dockets are open in a much larger way than they were when they were theoretically open for view.

I think it is also leveling—I think at the time I wrote that, I was in a fairly small firm in a rural city, and I felt like technology gave us the ability to create just as good a work product with electronic research and word processing and high-quality printing as a large Salt Lake City law firm. So I looked at it as a real advantage in a real changing era, and I think it has proven to be that way in business. We have seen in Utah small businesses thrive and grow into large businesses because of the technical leverages they have.

Senator HATCH. Well, I am very proud of you and your service and pleased with what you have done. I know you well, and I have a very high regard for you. And I can say I must have a high regard for all of you others as well. I want to commend you all for being willing to serve. In this day and age, there are lots of difficulties, and we all know that. But we are very pleased to have all four of you here. I intend to support all four of you and make sure that we get you confirmed as soon as we possibly can.

I want to personally thank the President for the work that he and his staff and the Justice Department have done to bring you all here.

Thank you, Madam Chair.

Senator KLOBUCHAR. Thank you.

Senator Lee, did you have any additional questions.

Senator LEE. No. Thank you.

Senator KLOBUCHAR. OK, very good.

Well, I want to thank all of you for being here. We were just noting, Judge Gerrard, that it is too bad Senator Grassley is not here. He is a big supporter of televising hearings, so he would be very happy to hear that and would have probably seized on that answer for a good 5 to 10 minutes of questions.

[Laughter.]

Senator KLOBUCHAR. But we will pass that on, and I really did appreciate that you were willing to give us some ideas on the court system. To be honest, I have asked that question before, and this is the most interesting discussion we have had about it compared to other panels.

I want to thank you for being here today, for your service. We look forward to your confirmation, and we have been speeding up the confirmation of judges, just so you know. I was just doing the statistics for the Judicial Conference. We had 60 judges confirmed in the first 2 years of this administration, which would average 30 and 30 each year, right? And so far this year we have already done 36, and since many of them come at the end of the year, I would say that we are going at a much faster pace this year, something that this Committee was very interested in having happen. A lot of the nominees were coming through this Committee, but then they got stuck on the floor. So I am hopeful that this will be much speedier so that your families will know what you are doing for your jobs and so that Mr. Nuffer's potential fellow colleagues will be much happier.

Thank you so much. We are going to keep the record open for a week, and the hearing is now adjourned.

[Whereupon, at 3:34 p.m., the Committee was adjourned.]

[Questions and answers and submissions for the record follow.]

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Responses of John M. Gerrard

Nominee to be United States District Judge for the District of Nebraska
to the Written Questions of Senator Chuck Grassley

1. Do you believe a Judge should ever rely on his or her own personal experiences when rendering a decision?

Response: No. As I testified at the September 20, 2011, confirmation hearing, I firmly believe that a judge should rely on the admissible evidence and applicable law (and nothing else) when rendering a decision. My record as a judge confirms this belief.

- a. Could you explain to me what you meant by saying “Female and minority representation is crucial on the [Nebraska] Supreme Court ... This is a court that decides doctrine, and people of color and women look at some of those things differently”?

Response: The above quotation was reported in an Omaha World-Herald newspaper article dated November 15, 1997. In November 1997, a legislative subcommittee was examining the representation of women and minorities in the state judiciary and in other areas of state government. In my role as chair of the court’s Gender Fairness Implementation Committee, I was asked to address the subcommittee. Unfortunately, I did not keep my notes from the meeting and there is no transcript of my remarks before the informal study committee. But I do recall the tenor and context of my remarks. I did comment that diversity, and particularly diversity of legal training and prior legal experience, enriches and helps fully inform decisions on a collegial appellate body like the Nebraska Supreme Court. For example, a collegial appellate body that includes judges with a vast array of training and experience in many areas of civil, criminal, and administrative law, makes for a rich and informed bench. But I did not believe then, and I certainly do not believe now, that women judges or minority judges approach judicial decisionmaking, or view the law, in any substantively different way than their colleagues. I am not certain of the context of this lone quotation; however, I know that I said much more about the importance of diversity and richness of legal training and prior experience than I said about anything else. To the extent that I said or implied, in the abstract, that women or minorities view the law or judicial decisionmaking differently than their colleagues, I am sorry if this caused any misunderstanding. I did not believe that in 1997, and I do not believe that now.

- b. What are some of the things that you believe women and people of color look at differently?

Response: Please see my response to Question 1(a). I do not believe that women judges or minority judges approach judicial decisionmaking, or view the law, in any substantively different way than their colleagues.

- c. Do you agree it is important they make every effort to put their personal experiences behind them in order to live up to their responsibility to be a fair and impartial arbiter of the facts before them?

Response: I believe that all judges, regardless of gender or race, must set aside their personal experiences in order to be fair and impartial arbiters of the facts before them. This also is my personal responsibility as a judge; I have done so in the past, and I will continue to do so in the future.

2. In a 2008 speech before a Rotary club you stated that “One of the things that I think is important for judges at all levels is that each case affects human beings, and sometimes it affects many human beings ... The appellate bench sometimes gets caught up [on] the rules of law and I think it’s important to remember that real human beings will be affected.”

- a. Do you believe judges should ever base their decisions on a desired outcome, or solely on the law and facts presented?

Response: A judge should always base his or her decision(s) solely on the applicable law and the properly admitted, or considered, facts. There are no circumstances under which a judge should base any decision on some preconceived desired outcome—and I have never done so in my 16 years as a judge on the Nebraska Supreme Court.

- b. Do you believe a judge should consider his or her own values or policy preferences in determining what the law means?

Response: No, I do not believe a judge should consider his or her own values or policy preferences in determining what the law means--and I have never done so at any time in my judicial career.

- c. If so, under what circumstances?

Response: None. Please see my response to Question 2(b).

3. Your statements regarding how a case affects human beings sounds a lot like statements made by then Senator Obama in opposing the confirmation of Justice Roberts where he argued, judges must base their rulings on “one’s deepest values, one’s core concerns, one’s broader perspectives on how the world works, and the depth and breadth of one’s empathy.” Justice Sotomayor rejected President Obama’s so-called “empathy standard” stating, “We apply the law to facts. We don’t apply feelings to facts.” Do you agree with Justice Sotomayor? Please explain your response.

Response: Yes, I agree with Justice Sotomayor. I have always believed and, more importantly, have rendered all of my rulings on the tenet that judges apply the law to the facts. I do not apply my feelings or personal preferences to the facts of any case.

4. What is the most important attribute of a judge, and do you possess it?

Response: I believe two of the most important attributes of a judge are discipline and judicial humility. That is, a judge must have the discipline and commitment to adhere to, and fairly apply, the rule of law, regardless of one's personal views. Hopefully, my 16-year judicial record shows that I possess these attributes.

5. Please explain your view of the appropriate temperament of a judge. What elements of judicial temperament do you consider the most important, and do you meet that standard?

Response: Judges should be open minded, calm, patient, courteous, and respectful in their interactions with litigants, attorneys, jurors, and all staff. I believe these qualities should be reflected on and off the bench. I believe I meet that standard.

6. In general, Supreme Court precedents are binding on all lower federal courts and Circuit Court precedents are binding on the district courts within the particular circuit. Are you committed to following the precedents of higher courts faithfully and giving them full force and effect, even if you personally disagree with such precedents?

Response: Yes.

7. At times, judges are faced with cases of first impression. If there were no controlling precedent that dispositively concluded an issue with which you were presented, to what sources would you turn for persuasive authority? What principles will guide you, or what methods will you employ, in deciding cases of first impression?

Response: If the question of first impression arose from a statute, I would look first to the language of the provision itself with the goal of determining the statutory purpose intended by the legislative branch. Consideration of the statutory language includes, of course, examination of how the provision contextually fits into the entire statutory scheme. If the text is clear, I will simply apply the provision as written. If an ambiguity exists after considering the language itself, I may consider the legislative history of the provision if it is helpful, putting the greatest weight on the history that provides a reliable indication of the intent of the legislative body as a whole. If the meaning of the statute is still unclear and no binding precedent exists, I will look for guidance from Supreme Court and Eighth Circuit precedent and decisions rendered by other circuit courts. In those circumstances, I would consider the most closely analogous controlling precedent and the reasoning of the circuit courts for guidance.

If the question of first impression involved a constitutional issue, I would start with the language of the constitutional provision, and then consider the most closely analogous controlling precedent and reasoning for guidance.

8. What would you do if you believed the Supreme Court or the Court of Appeals had seriously erred in rendering a decision? Would you apply that decision or would you use your own judgment of the merits, or your best judgment of the merits?

Response: As a district court judge, I would be bound by the precedent of the Supreme Court and the Circuit in which I would sit as a judge. If confirmed, my role as a district court judge would be to apply that precedent irrespective of any personal views I might hold--and I would do so.

9. Under what circumstances do you believe it appropriate for a federal court to declare a statute enacted by Congress unconstitutional?

Response: Federal statutes are entitled to a presumption of constitutionality, but it is the role of federal courts to declare a federal statute unconstitutional if the statute violates a constitutional provision or if Congress exceeded its authority when it enacted the statute. Federal courts, and district courts in particular, are bound by the Constitution, and by Supreme Court precedent and controlling circuit court precedent when making this determination.

10. In your view, is it ever proper for judges to rely on foreign law, or the views of the “world community”, in determining the meaning of the Constitution?

Response: No. To interpret and apply the United States Constitution, a judge should first consider the language of the pertinent provision of the Constitution itself, and then consider controlling Supreme Court and Circuit precedent interpreting and applying the provision. Foreign law is not part of this analysis.

11. As you know, the federal courts are facing enormous pressures as their caseload mounts. If confirmed, how do you intend to manage your caseload?

Response: If confirmed, I intend to utilize rules for litigants (modeled on the most effective among the rules and practices developed by other judges in the District of Nebraska) that would provide litigants with clear guidance on my expectations for procedures and timeframes. To ensure the just, speedy, and inexpensive determination of each civil action, I would set meaningful deadlines for conducting discovery and filing motions, promptly set motions hearings and trials, and make myself available for resolution of discovery disputes. In criminal cases, I would set motions hearings, deadlines, status conferences, and trials in a manner that would ensure compliance with the Speedy Trial Act. I would render decisions on all matters as quickly as possible, consistent with fair and reasoned analysis. Finally, I would continue the District’s current practice of fully utilizing magistrate judges in civil and criminal cases to ensure the District’s many cases are timely heard and resolved.

12. Do you believe that judges have a role in controlling the pace and conduct of litigation and, if confirmed, what specific steps would you take to control your docket?

Response: I believe that judges have an important role in controlling the pace and conduct of litigation. A judge must ensure that litigation is promptly resolved without undue expense. I would maintain a consistent pace toward the earliest possible resolution of matters by requiring litigants to comply with scheduling orders unless they present a compelling reason for alteration. And, if confirmed, I would employ the case management techniques discussed in my answer to Question 11.

13. Please describe with particularity the process by which these questions were answered.

Response: I carefully read the questions presented and then personally drafted the answers to these questions. After reviewing my answers for completeness and accuracy, I sent the answers to the Office of Legal Policy for submission to the Committee.

14. Do these answers reflect your true and personal views?

Response: Yes.

UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT

MIAMI, FLORIDA 33128
(305) 523-5560

CHAMBERS OF JUDGE ADALBERTO JORDAN

October 4, 2011

The Honorable Patrick J. Leahy
Chairman
Committee on the Judiciary
United States Senate
Washington, D.C. 20510

The Honorable Charles Grassley
Ranking Member
Committee on the Judiciary
United States Senate
Washington, D.C. 20510

Dear Mr. Chairman and Mr. Ranking Member:

Attached are my responses to written questions from Senator Grassley with a correction to answer 1(a) concerning Mr. Bollea's case. In answering question 1(a), I mistakenly relied on the 2010 Sentencing Guidelines in stating that Mr. Bollea was eligible for probation with eight months of home confinement. The 2004 Sentencing Guidelines, which applied to Mr. Bollea, provided that Mr. Bollea was eligible for a split sentence of four months in custody and four months of home confinement. Please accept my apology for the mistake.

Sincerely,

Adalberto J. Jordán
United States District Judge

Enclosure

Responses of Adalberto José Jordán Nominee to the United States Circuit Court for the Eleventh Circuit
to the Written Questions of Senator Chuck Grassley

- 1. According to your questionnaire, you had five cases remanded to you for resentencing in the wake of the Supreme Court’s 2005 decision in United States v. Booker. In one of those cases, U.S. v. Bollea, you wrote, “there is a possibility that I would impose a sentence that did not require incarceration ... if the Guidelines were not applicable, and if I had complete and unfettered sentencing authority as it existed before the Guidelines came into being.” Booker of course made the guidelines effectively advisory, rather than mandatory.
- a. On remand, do you recall if you departed downward from the Guidelines in Bollea, or any of the other remanded cases? If so, could you explain the circumstances that led you to believe a downward departure was warranted?

Response: In three of the five cases, I imposed a sentence within and in accord with the Sentencing Guidelines on remand (with one of them involving an authorized downward departure under the Guidelines on a government motion for substantial assistance). In two of the cases, I varied from the Guidelines on remand.

In the Joseph and Alvarez cases, I imposed the same sentence within the Sentencing Guidelines on remand, and in the McGriff case I imposed a sentence in accord with the Sentencing Guidelines on remand after granting a government motion for a downward departure under USSG §5K1.1 based upon the defendant’s cooperation and substantial assistance.

In the Bollea case, I had sentenced the defendant to six months in custody, three years of supervised release with two months of home confinement, and a $2,000 fine. On remand, the defendant was eligible for a split sentence of four months in custody and four months of home confinement under the Sentencing Guidelines, as he was in Zone C of the Guidelines with a Total Offense Level of 11 and a Criminal History Category of I. I imposed a sentence of one month in custody, five years of supervised release with six months of home confinement, and a $2,000 fine. I varied because of the defendant’s age (71), and because I did not believe a greater sentence was necessary for appropriate punishment and deterrence under 18 U.S.C. § 3553(a).

In the Vargas-Vazquez case, I had sentenced the defendant to 41 months in custody and two years of supervised release. On remand, I sentenced the defendant to 24 months in custody and two years of supervised release. I varied from the Sentencing Guidelines under 18 U.S.C. § 3553(a) because the reason the defendant had attempted to re-enter the United States was to visit and attend to his mother, and he had not used a false name or fraudulent identification in the attempted re-entry.

- b. In light of U.S. v. Booker, what do you see as the role of the Guidelines in making sentencing determinations?

Response: The Sentencing Guidelines remain critically important at sentencing, as they provide an objective framework for treating similarly-situated defendants in a similar manner.

- c. Do you agree that the sentence a defendant receives for a particular crime should not depend on the judge he or she happens to draw?

Response: Yes.

2. In Watts v. Florida International University, a student enrolled in the University's Masters of Social Work (MSW) program was terminated according to a letter he received "based on inappropriate behavior related to patients, regarding religion." The incident in question involved the student informing a Catholic patient of several options for obtaining bereavement counseling, one of which was a church. Among the student's claims was that his First Amendment Freedom of Religion rights were violated. You granted the defendant's motion to dismiss this claim. You held that the student's professed belief that a patient who espouses a religion is entitled to be informed of a religious avenue for therapy was not a "central religious belief." In a 2 to 1 decision, the Eleventh Circuit reversed you, holding that you applied the wrong standard.

- a. Do you believe the Eleventh Circuit was correct in overruling your initial decision? Why or why not?

Response: The Eleventh Circuit's decision in Watts constitutes binding precedent, and I do not believe that it would be appropriate for me to comment on whether the decision was correct.

I would like to explain, however, that I did not rule that Mr. Watts' belief was not a central religious belief. I dismissed the free exercise claim in part because I concluded that Mr. Watts had not alleged in his amended complaint that this belief was a central one. The Supreme Court had held that "the free exercise inquiry asks whether government has placed a substantial burden on the observation of a central religious belief or practice and, if so, whether a compelling governmental interest justifies the burden." Hernandez v. Commissioner, 490 U.S. 680, 699 (1989). See also Jimmy Swaggart Ministries v. Bd. of Equalization of California, 493 U.S. 378, 384-85 (1990) (articulating same standard). Although I believed then, and believe now, that it is not appropriate for a court to "question the centrality of particular beliefs or practices to a faith, or the validity of particular litigants' interpretations of those creeds," see Hernandez, 490 U.S. at 699, I understood Hernandez to at least require an allegation that the belief in question is a central one.

Had Mr. Watts alleged that the belief was a central one, then it would not have been appropriate to question or examine that allegation, as the Supreme Court explained in Employment Division, Dept. of Human Resources v. Smith, 494 U.S. 872, 886-87 (1990). I did not question the validity of Mr. Watt's belief. The problem, as I saw it, was that Mr. Watts had not alleged that the belief was a central one.

b. What is your understanding of the difference between a centrally held belief and a sincerely held belief?

Response: My understanding is that a sincerely held belief is one that is genuinely held by a person, while a centrally held belief is one that generally constitutes a main tenet of one's faith or beliefs.

3. A Judicial profile of you appeared in the September 2005 addition of the Federal Lawyer. In that article you were asked about life experiences that may provide you with a different perspective, in which you provided your immigrant background as an example saying, "I have a different sort of understanding of the issues immigrants encounter because I am an immigrant. But you're supposed to take a step back and judge cases without any reference to your personal views, and I try hard to do that."

a. As a district court judge do you believe you have been successful at taking a step back and putting your personal views aside?

Response: Yes.

b. Could you share with the Committee an example from your cases that required you to put your personal views aside?

Response: Our court has a substantial pro se docket. There are times when, based upon the allegations in the complaint -- which are initially accepted as true -- it appears to me that a pro se plaintiff may not have been treated properly and suffered some harm as a result. Nevertheless, that does not always mean that the plaintiff has a viable cause of action, and if the complaint fails to state a claim for relief under governing law, I will dismiss the complaint with leave to amend.

4. In your response to Senator Klobuchar's question about consensus building, you replied, in part of your answer, with the following statement: "But I think I understand what the process is like and what consensus building is about and how to be civil to your colleagues even when you might disagree with a position and how to try to reach middle ground on cases where that middle ground can be reached."

- a. Please explain what you meant by “try to reach middle ground.” Is it your view that judicial decision-making is one of negotiation and compromise?

Response: It is not my view that judicial decision-making is one of negotiation and compromise. A judge should not abandon his principles to reach a middle ground. If a judge concludes, based on the applicable law, that his view is principled and correct, he should adhere to that view.

Nevertheless, appellate decision-making is often a collective exercise, and it is important to be civil to one’s colleagues even in times of disagreement. There may also be cases in which the members of an appellate panel agree on the appropriate result, but disagree on what issues can or should be addressed in arriving at that result, or on how broadly or narrowly an opinion should be written. In such cases, I believe it is appropriate to discuss various possible approaches with one’s colleagues to see whether a principled consensus on the proper approach can be reached.

- b. If so, what constrains a judge from engaging in policy-making rather than application of the law to the facts before the judge in order to decide the particular case or controversy before the judge?

Response: I do not believe that judges should engage in policy-making or decide cases based on their own personal views or preferences.

5. The judgeship for which you have been nominated has been listed as a Judicial Emergency due to the volume of cases being filed per panel. According to the 2005 judicial profile of you, one of the biggest challenges to you on the bench has been keeping up with the caseload. The article quotes you as admitting to being “not the fastest of judges.”

- a. Do you have any worries about your ability to keep up with the Eleventh Circuit’s caseload?

Response: No.

- b. What actions do you plan to take to help the Eleventh Circuit alleviate its judicial backlog?

Response: In the years since that judicial profile was published, I have improved my efficiency in handling cases. If confirmed, I will work as hard as possible to help the Eleventh Circuit with its caseload, keeping in mind that for most litigants the court of appeals is practically the court of last resort, and that there is a delicate balance between efficiency and accuracy.

6. As an adjunct professor at the University of Miami School of law, you have taught a Death Penalty Seminar off and on since 1990. As such, I am interested in your views on the Supreme Court's jurisprudence in this area. The modern day jurisprudence of the Supreme Court determines whether a mode of execution offends the 8th Amendment's prohibition on cruel and unusual punishment by considering "the evolving standards of decency that mark the progress of a maturing society." Under your understanding of this precedent, what is a court to consider in determining our nation's "evolving standards of decency"?

Response: In determining the "evolving standards of decency that mark the progress of a maturing society," the Supreme Court has held that courts should consider "objective indicia" of society's standards, "as expressed in legislative enactments and state practice with respect to executions," as well as "the standards elaborated by controlling precedents and by the Court's own understanding and interpretation of the Eighth Amendment's text, history, meaning, and purpose." Kennedy v. Louisiana, 534 U.S. 407, 421 (2008).

7. Justice Scalia has been highly critical of this approach, warning in Thompson v. Oklahoma that "the risk of assessing evolving standards is that it is all too easy to believe that evolution has culminated in one's own views."

- a. Do you agree this is a valid concern of the evolving standards of decency approach?

Response: As a lower court judge, I am bound by Supreme Court precedent, and do not believe it would be appropriate for me to comment on Justice Scalia's views.

- b. Do you believe this concern has borne out in any of the Supreme Court's death penalty decisions? Please explain.

Response: As a lower court judge, I am bound by Supreme Court precedent, and do not believe it would be appropriate for me to opine on whether Justice Scalia's concern has been borne out in any of the Supreme Court's death penalty decisions.

8. In Roper, the Supreme Court relied on foreign law in holding that the execution of minors violated the Eighth Amendment. Do you believe that foreign law should be considered in determining the meaning of the Eighth Amendment?

Response: The Constitution should be interpreted with reference to its text and history and applicable Supreme Court precedent, and not with reference to foreign law. The Supreme Court, in Eighth Amendment cases like Roper, has sometimes referred to foreign law as instructive, and in that limited circumstance and to that limited degree lower court judges may consider foreign law.

9. In your view, is it ever proper for judges to rely on foreign law, or the views of the “world community”, in determining the meaning of the Constitution?

Response: No.

10. In your 1987 article, Imagery, Humor, and the Judicial Opinion, 41 U. Miami L. Rev. 693, you stated “The work of legal realists and critical legal theorists has demystified the images created by the formal view of law and the judiciary by pointing out what had been suspected all along: that judges have failings and that they necessarily make law because of the need to interpret and the indeterminacy of legal argument.”

- a. Do you believe that judges “necessarily make law” and if so, what are the limits on judges in this capacity?

Response: Federal judges are not in the business of making law, but there are some very limited and discrete areas in which, by necessity, they do develop and articulate substantive legal principles and norms. For example, in tort cases under general maritime law where Congress has not enacted governing legislation, courts are sometimes called upon to determine, on a common-law basis, what the contours of admiralty law are. See, e.g., Atlantic Sounding Co., Inc. v. Townsend, ___ U.S. ___, 129 S.Ct. 2561 (2009) (addressing whether seaman can seek punitive damages under general maritime law for employer’s alleged willful and wanton disregard of maintenance and cure obligations). That does not mean, of course, that courts are free to do as they wish. To use the admiralty example, in trying to determine how a new admiralty issue should be resolved courts must look at the purposes of general maritime law, any relevant historical practice, how precedent in the area has evolved, and what sort of related statutory framework (if any) Congress has created.

- b. Having served as a judge, do you have any current reflections on the use of imagery and humor in judicial opinions?

Response: As a general matter, I do not believe that humor is appropriate in judicial opinions. There are times, however, when historical, social, and literally allusions may be properly used in opinions.

11. What is the most important attribute of a judge, and do you possess it?

Response: The most important attributes of a judge are impartiality and fairness. I believe that I possess those attributes.

- 12. Please explain your view of the appropriate temperament of a judge. What elements of judicial temperament do you consider the most important, and do you meet that standard?

Response: A judge should treat all litigants and attorneys with dignity and respect, be patient and even-tempered with all those who appear in court, and ensure that everyone's views are heard. These elements of proper judicial temperament usually go hand in hand.

Of these, I consider it most important to treat all litigants and attorneys with dignity and respect, and I believe that I have done that as a judge.

- 13. In general, Supreme Court precedents are binding on all lower federal courts and Circuit Court precedents are binding on the district courts within the particular circuit. Are you committed to following the precedents of higher courts faithfully and giving them full force and effect, even if you personally disagree with such precedents?

Response: Yes.

- 14. At times, judges are faced with cases of first impression. If there were no controlling precedent that dispositively concluded an issue with which you were presented, to what sources would you turn for persuasive authority? What principles will guide you, or what methods will you employ, in deciding cases of first impression?

Response: In cases of first impression, if a constitutional or statutory provision is involved, I would first examine the relevant text. If the text was not clear, I would then consider precedent on similar or related issues for guidance, as well as precedent on the purpose of the provision or principle at issue. Where appropriate, I would consult legislative materials and historical materials, and in certain specific areas of law (e.g., state insurance law in a diversity case) I would also review authoritative treatises.

- 15. What would you do if you believed the Supreme Court or the Court of Appeals had seriously erred in rendering a decision? Would you apply that decision or would you use your own judgment of the merits, or your best judgment of the merits?

Response: I would apply binding precedent even if I disagreed with it.

- 16. Under what circumstances do you believe it appropriate for a federal court to declare a statute enacted by Congress unconstitutional?

Response: It is appropriate to declare a federal law unconstitutional only if it exceeds Congress' powers or contravenes a provision of the Constitution.

17. Under what circumstances, if any, do you believe an appellate court should overturn precedent within the circuit? What factors would you consider in reaching this decision?

Response: As set forth in Rule 35(b)(1)(A) of the Federal Rules of Appellate Procedure, a circuit court, sitting en banc, should overturn circuit precedent only where it conflicts with a decision of the Supreme Court or another decision within the circuit. Those are the factors I would consider.

18. Please describe with particularity the process by which these questions were answered.

Response: I personally drafted answers to these questions, and discussed those draft answers with an official at the Department of Justice. I then finalized the answers to the questions.

19. Do these answers reflect your true and personal views?

Response: Yes.

Responses of David Nuffer
Nominee to be United States District Judge for the District of Utah
to the Written Questions of Senator Chuck Grassley

1. Do you believe that our federal government is one of limited and enumerated powers?

Response: Yes.

2. What is the most important attribute of a judge, and do you possess it?

Response: I believe diligence is the most important attribute of a judge. Many other attributes are vital, but without diligence the work will not get done. My parents taught me to work hard and I have not forgotten that lesson.

3. Please explain your view of the appropriate temperament of a judge. What elements of judicial temperament do you consider the most important, and do you meet that standard?

Response: A judge's temperament must include patience, respect for others, and a disposition to learn. Because judges must deal with many people and many cases, the work may encourage a tendency to rush or be cursory or even abrupt. These pressures must be consciously resisted. No decision should be made without due consideration of the actual case, as presented by the parties. A judge's ability to listen is key because true listening demonstrates patience, due consideration for others, and willingness to learn. I believe I have the ability to listen patiently, respecting the parties and attorneys, and I have a genuine desire to learn.

4. In general, Supreme Court precedents are binding on all lower federal courts and Circuit Court precedents are binding on the district courts within the particular circuit. Are you committed to following the precedents of higher courts faithfully and giving them full force and effect, even if you personally disagree with such precedents?

Response: Yes, this is my oath as a judge. I have fulfilled this oath since first taking it in May 1995.

5. At times, judges are faced with cases of first impression. If there were no controlling precedent that dispositively concluded an issue with which you were presented, to what sources would you turn for persuasive authority? What principles will guide you, or what methods will you employ, in deciding cases of first impression?

Response: I have not yet encountered a case of complete first impression. Features of a case may be unique but there are always guiding principles found first in the Constitution and statutes and then in regulatory and case law. Those principles may be in the precise field in which the dispute arises or in analogous or corollary circumstances. Thorough research to gather this applicable law and precedent enables a sound decision. I have not hesitated, when I have felt that counsel have not provided enough information on a legal principle, to request additional briefing and argument, which has often resulted in the clarification that was needed. To the extent that in the future I encounter issues in which there is not a statute or case precisely on point, I would continue the practices I have described.

- 6. What would you do if you believed the Supreme Court or the Court of Appeals had seriously erred in rendering a decision? Would you apply that decision or would you use your own judgment of the merits, or your best judgment of the merits?

Response: It is not the place of a lower court judge to disregard binding precedent. I have not done so and would not do so in the future. Counsel may appeal to the body which has set precedent, and make arguments for changes in that court, but a lower court cannot evade binding precedent. I apply the precedent of the Supreme Court and Tenth Circuit Court of Appeals.

- 7. Under what circumstances do you believe it appropriate for a federal court to declare a statute enacted by Congress unconstitutional?

Response: In fifteen years of judicial experience I have never seen such a situation. Such a claim should be considered carefully, deliberately and with the participation of all parties affected by the claim. My duty as a judge is to construe and apply statutes to avoid interpretations that might render the statute unconstitutional.

- 8. In your view, is it ever proper for judges to rely on foreign law, or the views of the "world community", in determining the meaning of the Constitution?

Response: The meaning of our Constitution is contained in the document itself. Where that language has been construed by the United States Supreme Court or the Tenth Circuit Court of Appeals, I would consider that construction to understand the meaning. Commentary or opinion of those outside the United States does not determine what our Constitution means.

- 9. As you know, the federal courts are facing enormous pressures as their caseload mounts. If confirmed, how do you intend to manage your caseload?

Response: Because the federal court dockets and documents are electronic, I have the ability to use management tools to track cases. I have worked with the Future Case Management design team in the U. S. Courts to develop even better management tools for judges and I have designed case and motion tracking tools that we use in our chambers. I personally review case status reports. I will continue to use the assistance of my designated case manager and law clerks to monitor and report on case progress and pending issues that can move cases forward.

- 10. Do you believe that judges have a role in controlling the pace and conduct of litigation and, if confirmed, what specific steps would you take to control your docket?

Response: For the last several years, I have handled civil case scheduling and schedule amendments for the active district judges in our court. I usually consider and enter over 500 scheduling orders each year. I am convinced that judicial intervention leads to case resolution. Parties come to court for a decision of a dispute they cannot resolve themselves, so judicial management and availability is key to moving cases toward resolution. I will continue to make myself available on short notice, by telephone or otherwise for counsel to receive answers to questions as cases move forward. I will continue to give counsel firm trial dates within a short period after an answer is filed in civil cases, and I will promptly resolve pretrial motions in criminal cases.

11. Please describe with particularity the process by which these questions were answered.

Response: I received these questions Wednesday September 28, 2011, and began drafting answers that evening. I reviewed the answers again on Thursday September 29, 2011, and later that day sent them for review to staff at the Department of Justice with a cover letter for submission to the Senate Judiciary Committee.

12. Do these answers reflect your true and personal views?

Response: Yes.

Responses of Mary Elizabeth Phillips
Nominee to be United States District Judge for the Western District of Missouri
to the Written Questions of Senator Chuck Grassley

1. What is the most important attribute of a judge, and do you possess it?

Response: A judge must be able to render a fair and impartial decision that is void of any bias, prejudice or preconceived ideas. Yes, I believe that I possess that ability.

2. Please explain your view of the appropriate temperament of a judge. What elements of judicial temperament do you consider the most important, and do you meet that standard?

Response: A judge should possess an even and calm temperament. I believe it is most important that a judge treat all individuals who appear in front of her with dignity, respect, patience and humility. Yes, I believe that I meet such a standard.

3. In general, Supreme Court precedents are binding on all lower federal courts and Circuit Court precedents are binding on the district courts within the particular circuit. Are you committed to following the precedents of higher courts faithfully and giving them full force and effect, even if you personally disagree with such precedents?

Response: Yes.

4. At times, judges are faced with cases of first impression. If there were no controlling precedent that dispositively concluded an issue with which you were presented, to what sources would you turn for persuasive authority? What principles will guide you, or what methods will you employ, in deciding cases of first impression?

Response: If faced with a case of first impression, I would first look to analogous cases from the Supreme Court, the Eighth Circuit or other circuits. If no such precedent existed and the matter involved interpretation of a statute or a Constitutional provision, I would determine and apply the plain and ordinary meaning of the statute or provision.

5. What would you do if you believed the Supreme Court or the Court of Appeals had seriously erred in rendering a decision? Would you apply that decision or would you use your own judgment of the merits, or your best judgment of the merits?

Response: I fully recognize that a district court judge is bound by the precedent of the Court of Appeals and the Supreme Court. In all matters I would apply the precedent of the Eighth Circuit and the Supreme Court.

6. Under what circumstances do you believe it appropriate for a federal court to declare a statute enacted by Congress unconstitutional?

Response: I believe it is only under rare circumstances that a district court judge should declare a statute enacted by Congress unconstitutional. One such circumstance might be if the statute violated the plain and ordinary meaning of the Constitution.

7. During your time in United States Attorney's Office, did you ever prosecute someone who was death penalty eligible? If so, have you ever sought the death penalty?

Response: As U.S. Attorney for the Western District of Missouri I have requested permission from the Attorney General to seek the death penalty against two defendants. The Capital Committee of the Department of Justice and the Attorney General concurred with my request with respect to both defendants. As U.S. Attorney I have also responded to various habeas corpus motions of defendants who received the death penalty prior to my tenure as U.S. Attorney. In such habeas corpus proceedings, my office has argued that the ruling of the trial court and the imposition of the sentence of death should be upheld.

a. If you have ever elected not to seek the death penalty for a defendant who was eligible, please explain why you determined the death penalty was not appropriate in that instance.

Response: As U.S. Attorney I requested permission from the Attorney General to not seek the death penalty against one defendant. In deciding to request permission to not seek the death penalty, I considered the aggravating and mitigating factors outlined in 18 U.S.C. § 3592, any non-statutory aggravating and mitigating factors, and the recommendations of the Assistant U.S. Attorney handling the case. The Capital Committee of the Department of Justice and the Attorney General concurred with my request to not seek the death penalty against the defendant.

8. Do you believe that the death penalty is an acceptable form of punishment?

Response: I believe that within the framework established by Chapter 228 of the United States Code and the precedent of the Eighth Circuit and the Supreme Court the death penalty is an acceptable form of punishment.

9. In Roper, the Supreme Court relied on foreign law in holding that the execution of minors violated the Eighth Amendment. Do you believe that foreign law should be considered in determining the meaning of the Eighth Amendment?

Response: As a district court judge, I would be bound by and would follow all Supreme Court precedent.

10. In your view, is it ever proper for judges to rely on foreign law, or the views of the "world community", in determining the meaning of the Constitution?

Response: As a district court judge, I would only rely on foreign law or the views of the “world community” if directed to do so by the precedent of the Eighth Circuit or the Supreme Court.

11. As you know, the federal courts are facing enormous pressures as their caseload mounts. If confirmed, how do you intend to manage your caseload?

Response: As a district court judge, I would be engaged in and knowledgeable about the cases on my caseload. I would work with the attorneys to set reasonable yet firm scheduling deadlines. I would rule on issues in a timely manner and would be available to attorneys to address unexpected issues that arise during the pendency of the case.

12. Do you believe that judges have a role in controlling the pace and conduct of litigation and, if confirmed, what specific steps would you take to control your docket?

Response: Yes, I do believe that judges have a role in controlling the pace and conduct of litigation. As I described in my response to Question 11, I would work with the attorneys to set reasonable yet firm scheduling deadlines. I would be engaged in and knowledgeable about the issues of the case and would be responsive to requests of attorneys to address issues that arise during the pendency of the case.

13. Please describe with particularity the process by which these questions were answered.

Response: I received the questions on September 28, 2011. I prepared my answers on September 29, 2011 and submitted them to the Department of Justice for submission to the Committee on September 30, 2011.

14. Do these answers reflect your true and personal views?

Response: Yes

Responses of Thomas O. Rice
Nominee to be United States District Judge for the Eastern District of Washington
to the Written Questions of Senator Chuck Grassley

1. A minority of the ABA Standing Committee on the Federal Judiciary found you “Not Qualified” for this position.

a. Do you have any insight as to why the ABA gave you a partial “Not Qualified” rating?

Response: No, the process the ABA uses to evaluate judicial candidates does not provide for the disclosure of the reason for the rating.

b. What can you tell the Committee about your background and experiences that make you qualified to sit as a federal district court judge?

Response: I have served the public for over 25 years in the Department of Justice. As you know, the United States is no ordinary litigant and as a lawyer for the Department of Justice my obligation and goal has been to see that justice was done and that the citizens of this country were treated fairly. Since I have represented the United States on both civil and criminal matters in the federal courts, I believe I have witnessed firsthand what it takes to be qualified to be a federal district court judge. As my Senate Judiciary Committee Questionnaire more fully reflects, I believe I possess the knowledge, skill, maturity, temperament, and qualities necessary to make me a successful judge.

2. What is the most important attribute of a judge, and do you possess it?

Response: The most important attribute of a judge is his or her integrity, which would include the firm adherence to seeking the factual truth and applying the rule of law to those facts. I believe I possess this attribute.

3. Please explain your view of the appropriate temperament of a judge. What elements of judicial temperament do you consider the most important, and do you meet that standard?

Response: I believe a judge should be patient, humble, respectful, courteous and fair. A judge should not be swayed by passion, sympathy or prejudice, but must decide cases on the rule of law. I believe these are the most important elements of judicial temperament and I possess these qualities.

4. In general, Supreme Court precedents are binding on all lower federal courts and Circuit Court precedents are binding on the district courts within the particular circuit. Are you committed to following the precedents of higher courts faithfully and giving them full force and effect, even if you personally disagree with such precedents?

Response: Yes.

5. At times, judges are faced with cases of first impression. If there were no controlling precedent that dispositively concluded an issue with which you were presented, to what sources would you turn for persuasive authority? What principles will guide you, or what methods will you employ, in deciding cases of first impression?

Response: I would first turn to the plain meaning of the words of the statute. If necessary, I would seek to determine the context and intent of Congress. I would also look to analogous cases from the Supreme Court and the Ninth Circuit Court of Appeals for guidance. If no other similar cases were available, I would consult other federal court decisions that considered the issue or like issues.

6. What would you do if you believed the Supreme Court or the Court of Appeals had seriously erred in rendering a decision? Would you apply that decision or would you use your own judgment of the merits, or your best judgment of the merits?

Response: I would apply binding Supreme Court and Court of Appeals precedent without regard to my personal judgment.

7. Under what circumstances do you believe it appropriate for a federal court to declare a statute enacted by Congress unconstitutional?

Response: Absent controlling precedent holding otherwise and assuming the litigants presented the case with proper jurisdiction and standing, the court must first ascertain whether a construction of the statute is fairly possible by which the constitutional question may be avoided. Then, a federal court should declare a statute enacted by Congress unconstitutional only where it clearly violates the Constitution or where Congress has clearly exceeded its constitutional boundaries.

8. In your view, is it ever proper for judges to rely on foreign law, or the views of the “world community”, in determining the meaning of the Constitution?

Response: No.

9. As you know, the federal courts are facing enormous pressures as their caseload mounts. If confirmed, how do you intend to manage your caseload?

Response: If confirmed, I would set reasonable and timely scheduling orders, adhere to the Speedy Trial Act, promptly resolve pending motions and continually monitor case aging reports.

10. Do you believe that judges have a role in controlling the pace and conduct of litigation and, if confirmed, what specific steps would you take to control your docket?

Response: I believe judges play a vital role in controlling the pace and conduct of litigation. I would set reasonable and timely scheduling orders in every case. I believe that one of the most important aspects of keeping cases moving is the prompt resolution of pending motions before the court. Litigants often cannot advance the discovery process, settlement negotiations or trial preparation without rulings from the court on numerous pretrial issues.

11. Please describe with particularity the process by which these questions were answered.

Response: I received these questions on September 28, 2011. I drafted my answers and forwarded them on September 29, 2011, to the Department of Justice for review and submission to the Senate Judiciary Committee.

12. Do these answers reflect your true and personal views?

Response: Yes.

 United States Senate

Dear Senator Leahy:

First, I would like to offer my condolences to the victims of Hurricane Irene in your wonderful State of Vermont. I know how devastating hurricanes can be having lived through quite a few of them. I am sure though that the great will of the people of Vermont will allow them to get by this bleep by nature and will make Vermont a better state.

If you do not remember me, I am John Campbell's brother in Florida. I am writing a letter on behalf of myself, the people I used to represent which were the citizens of the State of Florida, and more importantly, all citizens of the United States. I have recently read that one of our Federal District Judge, Adalberto Jordan, has received the nomination for an open position on the 11th US Court of Appeals. I believe that it is critical that our nation have the best legal talent available serving on the Appellate Courts in the United States. I am not going to get into specifics about Judge Jordan because I think his nomination speaks for itself.

I am though writing to request that a sooner-than-later hearing be held by the Senate Judiciary Committee so that you can meet Judge Jordan and hopefully have the Committee endorse his candidacy for the Federal Court of Appeals. I realize that there is a lot of political posturing occurring in Washington these days but, I do know that many of my republican friends also understand the significance of having Judges who are fair, neutral and competent. I would urge you to take up Judge Jordan's nomination as soon as possible.

Very truly yours,

 WALTER G. CAMPBELL, ESQ.

Re: Hispanic National Bar Association Endorsement of the Hon. Adalberto Jordán for the U.S. Court of Appeals for the Eleventh Circuit

Dear Senator Leahy,

On Behalf of the Hispanic National Bar Association ("HNBA"), I write to highly recommend the confirmation of the Honorable Adalberto Jordán to the United States Court of Appeals for the Eleventh Circuit. The HNBA is a non-profit, non-partisan national membership organization that represents the interests of more than 100,000 Hispanic attorneys, judges, law professors, law students and paralegals in the United States and its territories.

The HNBA has conducted appropriate due diligence as required by the HNBA's Policies and Procedures Governing Judicial Endorsements (2008), and has voted to endorse Judge Jordan's candidacy for the Eleventh Circuit Court of Appeals. Based on our review, it is clearly evident that Judge Jordán is exceedingly qualified to join the bench of the Eleventh Circuit. He is exceptionally well regarded, respected, and admired as a Judge on the U.S. District Court in the Southern District of Florida.

Judge Jordán has a storied and highly respectable resume. Born in Cuba, he is a naturalized U.S. citizen. He graduated second in his class, moving on to clerkships with the Eleventh Judicial Circuit Court of Appeals Judge Thomas Alonzo and with Justice Sandra Day O'Connor at the U.S. Supreme Court. He then worked in private practice in Miami, where he made partner in five years.

Afterwards, he joined the U.S. Attorney's Office for the Southern District of Florida, where he was ultimately named Chief of the Appellate Division. Following his tenure at the U.S. Attorney's Office, he was nominated to a seat on the U.S. District Court for the Southern District of Florida by President Bill Clinton, and was confirmed by the Senate with an overwhelming vote of 93-1.

Our due diligence revealed that Judge Jordán is held in extremely high regard throughout the legal community. He is respected amongst his peers as a jurist, talented as a federal prosecutor, and committed to pro bono service and equal justice. He also serves as an adjunct professor at the University of Miami and Florida International University, and is active in his local community. Additionally, he has been publically endorsed by the Cuban American Bar Association.

The HNBA has found Judge Jordán to be an exceedingly qualified candidate for the Eleventh Circuit Court of Appeals. His experience in the judiciary since his time as a federal clerk, in private practice, and his time spent as the Chief of the Appellate Division of the U.S. Attorney's Office, in addition to the consensus among his peers of his qualifications, make Judge Adalberto Jordán a highly qualified and experienced candidate.

Accordingly, the HNBA strongly encourages the prompt confirmation of Judge Adalberto Jordán for the U.S. Court of Appeals for the Eleventh Circuit. We stand ready to assist in your deliberations. Should there be any additional questions, please feel free to contact me through our national office at (202) 223-4777, or directly at (646) 320-8240. Thank you for your consideration.

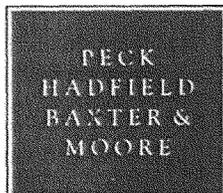

Sincerely,

Diana S. Sen

Re: Nomination of David O. Nuffer
United States District Court for the District of Utah

Dear Senator Leahy:

I just learned that President Obama (on the recommendation of Senator Orrin Hatch and Senator Mike Lee) has recently nominated Magistrate Judge David O. Nuffer to the district bench for the District of Utah. I am writing to wholeheartedly endorse Judge Nuffer's nomination to the District of Utah bench.

I have been a lawyer for 31 years and have tried more than 50 criminal and civil jury trials in state and federal courts in multiple jurisdictions. On the political side, I am a die-hard independent, without any significant ties to either major political party. However, I care desperately about our judicial system because it is at the heart of my profession. In that vein, I am writing to support Judge Nuffer's nomination because he is among the best judges I have ever had the pleasure to appear before. He is hardworking, prepared, courteous, and reasonable – with a well honed judicial demeanor. He is also a card-carrying geek who lives at the cutting edge of modern technology – which is fairly rare for a lawyer of our generation. Judge David Nuffer will make an excellent Article III judge. Thank you.

STATEMENT IN SUPPORT OF THE NOMINATION OF THOMAS O. RICE TO BE A FEDERAL DISTRICT COURT JUDGE FOR THE EASTERN DISTRICT OF WASHINGTON

Introduction

Thank you, Madam Chairman, Ranking Member Hatch, and Members of the Committee.

It's my pleasure to support the nomination of Thomas O. Rice. He is a distinguished attorney who has been nominated to serve as the next federal judge for the Eastern District of Washington.

Mr. Rice's Background

Mr. Chairman, I'm honored to recommend that the Senate confirm Thomas Rice as a District Court Judge for the Eastern District of Washington state.

Mr. Rice has strong bipartisan support -- and with good reason.

He has dedicated almost his entire professional career to serving the public as an Assistant U.S. Attorney in the Eastern District. In that time, he has earned the respect of federal judges, opposing defense attorneys, his fellow prosecutors, and local law enforcement officials.

Mr. Rice has a deep connection to Eastern Washington and its legal community. He graduated cum laude from Gonzaga University with a degree in accounting while working full-time to support himself through school. He then returned to Gonzaga for law school on a full scholarship to earn his law degree magna cum laude.

From the beginning, Mr. Rice knew that he wanted to devote his life to public service and upon graduation took a position as a trial attorney with the Department of Justice in Washington, D.C.

Instead of moving on to a more lucrative practice in the private sector, he returned to the Eastern District to work in the U.S. Attorney's Office. His intelligence and integrity allowed him to climb the ranks to become the First Assistant U.S. Attorney, in which capacity he is responsible for the management of the Spokane Office. He is currently the highest ranking career DOJ official in the Eastern District.

Over his 23 years in practice, Mr. Rice has tried over one thousand criminal cases dealing with nearly every area of federal law from bank fraud to bank robberies, from drug conspiracies to bombings, from negligence to bribery. His experience in civil litigation is equally expansive and he has consistently demonstrated his mastery of the myriad rules and procedures of the federal courts.

Mr. Rice went above and beyond his duties to volunteer additional hours at the office, taking on extra cases and establishing the Anti-Terrorism Advisory Council, consisting of representatives from every law enforcement agency in the Eastern District.

As an Assistant U.S. Attorney, his reputation as tough on crime was well earned. But so, too, was his reputation for the level-headed, fair conduct of his prosecutions.

Mr. Rice clearly meets the standards of fairness, even-handedness, and adherence to the law that we expect of our federal judges.

Outside of his many professional credentials, I've been able to speak with him, and I've been impressed by his professionalism and decency.

I know I speak on behalf of a large number of the Washington state legal community in supporting the nomination of Thomas Rice to be the next district judge for the Eastern District of Washington.

Selection Committee Work

I think it is also important to note for the Committee that Mr. Rice's nomination was the product of a bipartisan selection commission that we use in Washington state. We have continued to consult with Republicans in my state in selecting candidates because our bipartisan process works well and continues to produce strong candidates regardless of who occupies the White House.

I'm proud to have created the selection commission and believe that it is something that has served our state and our federal judiciary well.

Therefore, it is my pleasure to introduce a great lawyer and community leader who I believe will make an exceptional federal judge.

I urge this committee to approve his nomination, and I hope we can confirm Mr. Rice before the full Senate quickly.

Thank you.

PREPARED REMARKS BEFORE THE JUDICIARY COMMITTEE

Thank you very much, Mr. Chairman.

Thank you for allowing me to testify today. I am here to introduce Adalberto “Bert” Jose Jordan, who has been nominated by the President to serve as a judge on the 11th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals.

Mr. Chairman, the judiciary committee plays the critical role of diligently evaluating each nominee. I know this committee will thoroughly examine the record and career of Judge Jordan. This committee is tasked with examining the record of each nominee to ensure that they have been properly vetted, that they respect the rule of law and the constitution.

I know each of you will have questions for Judge Jordan and will give his nomination to the 11th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals the attention and consideration it deserves.

Judge Jordan certainly has extensive experience as an attorney and a judge in the state of Florida.

Judge Jordan's educational background speaks for itself. Judge Jordan earned both his bachelor's degree and his law degree from the University of Miami. ---A DOUBLE HURRICANE! Judge Jordan has been a U.S. District Court Judge for the Southern District of Florida for 12 years. At the time of his appointment to the bench he was only 37 years old. Since then, he has garnered a reputation as being a judge known for his intellect and abiding sense of fairness.

Judge Jordan remains an active and involved member of the Florida legal community. He continues to teach courses at the University of Miami School of Law and at Florida International University College of Law.

Judge Jordan's knowledge of the law is demonstrated, in part, by his work as chief of the appellate division in the Office of the U.S. Attorney for the Southern District of Florida and his time as a practicing attorney. In 1987 Judge Jordan spent a year serving as a clerk to U.S. Supreme Court Justice Sandra Day O' Connor. In addition, he also served as a clerk to Judge Thomas Clark of the 11th Circuit Court of Appeals.

I am honored to introduce him today. Mr. Chairman, thank you for giving this nomination full consideration.

NOMINATION OF STEPHANIE DAWN THACKER, OF WEST VIRGINIA, NOMINEE TO BE CIRCUIT JUDGE FOR THE FOURTH CIRCUIT; MICHAEL WALTER FITZGERALD, OF CALIFORNIA, NOMINEE TO BE DISTRICT JUDGE FOR THE CENTRAL DISTRICT OF CALIFORNIA; RONNIE ABRAMS, OF NEW YORK, NOMINEE TO BE DISTRICT JUDGE FOR THE SOUTHERN DISTRICT OF NEW YORK; RUDOLPH CONTRERAS, OF THE DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA, NOMINEE TO BE DISTRICT JUDGE FOR THE DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA; AND MIRANDA DU, OF NEVADA, NOMINEE TO BE DISTRICT JUDGE FOR THE DISTRICT OF NEVADA

TUESDAY, OCTOBER 4, 2011
U.S. SENATE,
COMMITTEE ON THE JUDICIARY,
Washington, DC.

The Committee met, pursuant to notice, at 3:03 p.m., in room SD-226, Dirksen Senate Office Building, Hon. Richard J. Durbin, presiding.

Present: Senators Durbin, Leahy, Coons, and Lee.

OPENING STATEMENT OF HON. RICHARD J. DURBIN, A U.S. SENATOR FROM THE STATE OF ILLINOIS

Senator DURBIN. Good afternoon. This hearing of the Judiciary Committee will come to order.

Today we will consider five outstanding judicial nominees for the Federal bench: Stephanie Thacker, nominated to serve on the U.S. Court of Appeals for the Fourth Circuit; Ronnie Abrams, nominated to the Southern District of New York; Rudolph Contreras, nominated to the U.S. District Court Judge for the District of Columbia; Miranda Du, nominated to the District of Nevada; and Michael Fitzgerald, nominated to the Central District of California. Each of these nominees has the support of their home State Senators or, in the case of the District of Columbia nominee, the support of D.C. Delegate Eleanor Holmes Norton. I commend President Obama for sending these nominees to the Senate, and I thank my colleague Senator Lee for joining me.

At these hearings it is traditional for nominees to be introduced to the Committee by Senators from their home States, and unless the Ranking Member has opening remarks, which I would invite him to make at this point, I am going to recognize our colleagues. So if you want to stay on their good side, please proceed.

STATEMENT OF HON. MIKE LEE, A U.S. SENATOR FROM THE STATE OF UTAH

Senator LEE. Thank you, Mr. Chairman. I join you in welcoming our nominees before us today.

Yesterday the Senate confirmed six Article III judicial nominees. This included the confirmation of Judge Jennifer Zipps, who will fill the seat held by the late Judge John Roll. The tragic and horrific events that took Judge Roll's life on January 8th of this year shook the judicial community and our Nation. I am pleased that Republicans and Democrats were able to come together to confirm her in an orderly and expeditious manner.

The Senate has confirmed 42 judicial nominees in this Congress alone so far. We have entered into a unanimous consent agreement to vote on four more judges next week. I applaud this progress, which I think demonstrates Ranking Member Grassley's commitment as well as that of the Republican members on this Committee to work with our Democratic colleagues in moving forward with consensus nominees.

Today marks the 15th nominations hearing held in the Judiciary Committee this year at which we have had the opportunity to speak with 65 judicial nominees. In total, 85 percent of President Obama's judicial nominees have received a hearing in this Congress. I think this speaks well both to President Obama's nomination process and to the ability of this Committee to work together on a bipartisan basis.

Today we will hear, among others, from Stephanie Thacker, who has been nominated by President Obama to the Fourth Circuit. Her hearing comes only 26 days after her nomination. I would note that none of President Bush's circuit court nominees were afforded a hearing that quickly, particularly those to the Fourth Circuit, where we had some issues with delay.

Yesterday marked the confirmation of President Obama's fifth nominee to serve on the Fourth Circuit. In 8 years only four of President Bush's Fourth Circuit nominees were confirmed. I hope my colleagues on the other side of the aisle are aware of the comparatively generous treatment afforded to President Obama's nominees, particularly those for the Fourth Circuit.

I welcome the nominees and their families to this Committee, and I realize that this is a very important day for all of them and look forward to hearing their testimony and responses to our questions.

Thank you, Mr. Chairman.

Senator DURBIN. Thank you, Senator Lee. For the record, I believe that Senator Reid has filed cloture on 25 of President Obama's nominees that were on the calendar just a few days ago, but there has been remarkable signs of progress since, and I hope that spirit continues with these nominees and those that are pending.

I was going to recognize Senator Reid first, and when he arrives, of course, he will be given precedence. But we will start in seniority, and I recognize my colleague and friend, Senator Jay Rockefeller.

PRESENTATION OF STEPHANIE DAWN THACKER, NOMINEE TO BE CIRCUIT JUDGE FOR THE FOURTH CIRCUIT, BY HON. JOHN D. ROCKEFELLER IV, A U.S. SENATOR FROM THE STATE OF WEST VIRGINIA

Senator ROCKEFELLER. Thank you, Senator Durbin and Senator Lee and Chairman Leahy, who was here, and all members of this Committee for having this very important hearing today.

My purpose is that I am deeply honored to put before you and introduce Stephanie Dawn Thacker, one of the finest judicial nominees I have ever known. I pay a lot of attention to this process. I am not a lawyer, but I pay a lot of attention.

She is joined by her husband, John Carr, also an esteemed lawyer; her sister, Samantha Sullivan, a teacher; and her nephew, Wade Sullivan, who has not picked his professional career yet.

Not present but I think watching very closely on television in West Virginia and surely beaming with pride is her mother, Katie Thacker, and her father, Rod Young.

Stephanie's family has many reasons to be proud of her, and she of them, and we are all fortunate for their dedication to their country and to Senator Manchin's and my home State.

For myself, I am impressed by Stephanie Thacker's superior intellect, her passion for the law, her unquestioned integrity, and her strong character. Another such person was my very dear friend, Judge M. Blane Michael, who served for more than 17 years in the very judicial seat on the Fourth Circuit to which Stephanie Thacker has been nominated. Like Judge Michael, Ms. Thacker will be a strong voice on the court, one who follows the law, defies pigeonholing; one who knows how to build consensus, often with a quick wit; always one who can couple deep legal analysis with an understanding of real-world impact.

Ms. Thacker graduated at the top of her undergraduate and law school classes, spent 12 years as a Federal prosecutor in working for the Department of Justice, fighting the most horrific crimes imaginable, and is now a top lawyer at one of West Virginia's most respected firms.

While at the Department of Justice, Ms. Thacker developed a unique expertise in the investigation and prosecution of child exploitation cases, winning difficult cases, helping to develop policy and initiatives, and as it turns out, training attorneys and law enforcement professionals around this country on that subject, and, indeed, around the world so as to prevent these terrible crimes.

One of her more lasting successes was working with the FBI and the National Center for Missing and Exploited Children to develop a nationwide initiative to combat child sex trafficking. As a result of this program, more than 1,600 children have been rescued, and more than 700 sex offenders have been convicted.

Ms. Thacker's accomplishments have earned her national recognition, including the very prestigious Attorney General's Distinguished Service Award. I have also brought copies of letters of commendation that she has received from Attorney General Gonzales, FBI Director Mueller, Senators Byrd, Chambliss, and Zell Miller, among others.

Ms. Thacker is striking to me for her groundedness. I am not sure if that is a word, but it has meaning to me. It is.

Senator DURBIN. When a Senator says it, it is a word.

Senator ROCKEFELLER. Thank you, Mr. Chairman.

[Laughter.]

Senator ROCKEFELLER. She has never forgotten who she is or where she came from, and she calls upon that life experience every day. It is perhaps Ms. Thacker's upbringing—and I really believe this totally—that drove her to fight for justice every day and created in her an understanding that decisions that she made as a prosecutor and decisions, I hope, that she will make from the bench have a lasting impact on people's lives.

Like so many in our State, Ms. Thacker came from humble beginnings and went on by force of will, by force of intellectual heft, to chart a course of accomplishment for herself, her State, and her country. Stephanie Thacker is without doubt the perfect person for this vacancy on the Fourth Circuit Court of Appeals, and she has my unwavering support.

Senator DURBIN. Thank you, Senator Rockefeller.

I would like to recognize your colleague, Senator Manchin, regarding the same nominee.

PRESENTATION OF STEPHANIE DAWN THACKER, NOMINEE TO BE CIRCUIT JUDGE FOR THE FOURTH CIRCUIT, BY HON. JOE MANCHIN III, A U.S. SENATOR FROM THE STATE OF WEST VIRGINIA

Senator MANCHIN. Thank you, Mr. Chairman, and thank you, Senator Lee, and the Committee for inviting me here today. It is my privilege to join my senior Senator, Senator Rockefeller, in support of the nomination of Stephanie Dawn Thacker, a native of Hamlin, West Virginia, to the Fourth Circuit Court of Appeals.

I would first like to take a moment to recognize her husband, John Carr; her sister, Samantha; and her nephew, Wade. I am pleased that all of you were able to join us today for the very important hearing and also her family watching on television.

Stephanie Thacker's impressive background and extensive list of accomplishments in both the public and private sectors make her an exceptional candidate for the Fourth Circuit. She is renowned in our State for her mastery of the law and of the courtroom, and I have no doubt that she will make a highly successful Federal judge.

Ms. Thacker has dedicated much of her career to fighting some of the most reprehensible offenses, which Senator Rockefeller just mentioned, in our society. As a trial attorney, deputy chief of litigation, and principal deputy chief, she spent several years prosecuting cases on child exploitation and obscenity at the Department of Justice. Her outstanding work and leadership earned her a number of honors at DOJ, including four Meritorious Awards and two Special Achievement Awards. Her impressive performance in prosecuting the case of United States v. Dwight York earned her the Attorney General's Distinguished Service Award, one of the Department's highest honors, and she was also a recipient of the Assistant Attorney General's Awards for Special Initiative and Outstanding Victim/Witness Service.

Prior to her service at the Department of Justice, Ms. Thacker worked with the U.S. Attorney's Office for the Southern District of West Virginia where she prosecuted a diversity of criminal cases, including money laundering and fraud. While at the U.S. Attorney's Office, Ms. Thacker also participated on the trial team prosecuting United States v. Bailey, the first case ever brought under the Violence Against Women Act.

Since 2006, Ms. Thacker has been a partner at the prestigious law firm of Guthrie & Thomas in Charleston. While at the firm, she has concentrated on cases involving product liability, environmental and toxic torts, complex commercial defense, and criminal defense. Ms. Thacker was a model student in both her undergraduate and legal studies. She earned her Bachelor's degree in business administration magna cum laude from Marshall University and her J.D. Order of the Coif from West Virginia University College of Law. While at WVU, she was the recipient of the Robert L. Griffin Memorial Scholarship and editor of West Virginia Law Review's Coal Issue. She has also recently been named Outstanding Female Attorney by WVU Law's Women's Caucus.

I believe that Ms. Thacker's wide-ranging expertise in civil and criminal matters, her impressive track record in the courtroom as both a prosecutor and a defense attorney, and her outstanding academic accomplishments will make her a first-rate addition to the Fourth Circuit. I am proud to call her a fellow West Virginian, and I hope that the Committee will move to confirm her for the vacancy quickly.

Along with Senator Rockefeller, I want to thank the Chairman and members of the Committee. I welcome the opportunity to work with all of you to confirm Ms. Thacker in a timely manner.

Thank you.

Senator DURBIN. Thank you, Senator Manchin and Senator Rockefeller. You are welcome to stay. I know you have busy schedules. The nominees certainly do appreciate the presence and testimony of each Senator, but if you would like to leave at this moment, you are certainly welcome to. Thank you again for coming to this Judiciary Committee hearing.

I now will recognize Senator Barbara Boxer, and she will address the nominee, Michael Fitzgerald, nominated to the Central District of California.

PRESENTATION OF MICHAEL WALTER FITZGERALD, NOMINEE TO BE DISTRICT JUDGE FOR THE CENTRAL DISTRICT OF CALIFORNIA, BY HON. BARBARA BOXER, A U.S. SENATOR FROM THE STATE OF CALIFORNIA

Senator BOXER. Thank you so much, Senator Durbin, Senator Lee. It is an honor to appear before you, and it is an honor to support the nomination of Michael Fitzgerald. I would ask him to stand, if he would. And I want to also welcome his family. I believe they are here. His dad, if he could stand. James, would you stand? James Fitzgerald, an army combat veteran of the Korean War and a retired mathematics teacher. His mom, Vivianne, a retired registered nurse. His twin brother, Patrick—let us see; yes, I see that—a Federal prosecutor who lives in Los Angeles. But before they sit down, I want to say that James and Vivianne recently celebrated their 57th wedding anniversary.

Senator DURBIN. Congratulations.

Senator BOXER. So we are thrilled that you are here so soon after that.

I had the privilege of recommending Michael to President Obama to serve on the Central District Court. A respected member of the Los Angeles legal community, he will make an excellent addition to the bench. He has deep roots in the city of Los Angeles. He and his brother are the fourth generation of their family to live in Los Angeles. Fourth generation to live in Los Angeles.

Michael received his Bachelor's degree from Harvard, graduating magna cum laude while working his way through school as a bus boy.

He went on to receive a law degree from the University of California at Berkeley, where he also graduated with honors.

After clerking on the Second Circuit Court of Appeals in New York, Michael worked for a year with a private law firm in L.A. before becoming a Federal prosecutor. As a Federal prosecutor, he served on the Organized Crime and Drug Enforcement Task Force within the Central District U.S. Attorney's Office where he prosecuted international drug rings and money laundering, including what was at the time the second largest cocaine seizure in California history.

After leaving the U.S. Attorney's Office in 1991, Michael has been in private practice where he handled complex criminal and civil cases as well as investigations by Federal agencies. Michael has remained committed to public service during his time in private practice. He has maintained an active pro bono practice. He served as counsel to the Board of Police Commissioners, which sets policy and oversees operations for the Los Angeles Police Department. He also served as deputy general counsel for the Rampart Independent Task Force which reviewed the operations of a section of the LAPD.

Now, during his career Michael has tried 26 cases to verdict, the overwhelming majority of them before a jury. Currently 60 percent of his practice is in Federal court, so he is very familiar with the Central District practices and procedures. His rating? He received a rating of unanimously well qualified by the ABA. Listen to what some respected members of the law enforcement and legal community say about him.

Veteran Anaheim police lieutenant John Quisano, who worked with Michael in prosecuting cocaine traffickers and money launderers, said the following: "Michael's knowledge of the law, his courtroom demeanor, his interpersonal skills, and his sense of fairness played a major role in the successful prosecution of our cases. He will be an outstanding Federal judge."

Former Republican-appointed U.S. Attorney and Federal Judge Robert Bonner said: "If confirmed, Mike would bring a background, experience, and understanding of both the civil and criminal side of the work of a U.S. district judge. I believe Mike will make an outstanding Federal judge.”

And the last reference I would read a bit of is from Representative Adam Schiff, who served with Michael as a Federal prosecutor, who said: “I believe he has the background, experience, integrity, intellect, and reputation in the community that will serve him well as a U.S. district court judge and reflect well on the judiciary.” And with your permission, Senator Durbin, would it be all right to include letters from those three outstanding citizens into the record at this time?

Senator DURBIN. Without objection.

[The letters appears as a submission for the record.]

Senator BOXER. So, in closing, it is clear—and I hope it is clear to you both and will be to the Committee as a whole—that Michael’s record in the public and private sector demonstrates that he is a brilliant lawyer. He is a distinguished member of the legal community, and I am very confident he will make an excellent judge.

I close by congratulating Michael for everything he has done up to now. I congratulate his family for obviously bringing up two sons very well. And I urge my colleagues in the Senate to move quickly to confirm Michael to the Federal bench.

I thank you very much.

Senator DURBIN. Thank you for joining us.

Senator BOXER. And I would ask to be excused at this time.

Senator DURBIN. Of course. I just want for the record to note that Senator Feinstein has also submitted a positive blue slip, which is the process used in this Committee, supporting this nominee, Michael Fitzgerald. Thank you very much, Senator Boxer.

Senator BOXER. Thank you, Senator.

Senator DURBIN. Senator Feinstein will be submitting a statement for the record.

[The prepared statement of Senator Feinstein appears as a submission for the record.]

Senator DURBIN. At this point I would like to recognize the Majority Leader of the U.S. Senate, Senator Harry Reid of Nevada.

PRESENTATION OF MIRANDA DU, NOMINEE TO BE DISTRICT JUDGE FOR THE DISTRICT OF NEVADA, BY HON. HARRY REID, A U.S. SENATOR FROM THE STATE OF NEVADA

Senator REID. I apologize to you and Senator Lee for being tardy, but I had a little debate with the Republican Leader on the floor that took quite a while on the legislation that is now before the Senate, so I apologize for not being here when I was supposed to be.

I am really happy to be able to introduce Miranda Du to the Judiciary Committee and to the U.S. Senate. I received her name from one of my boys who is a lawyer in Reno, Nevada. He is a trial lawyer. I am very proud of the work that he has done. And he said, “Dad, if you have an opening on the Federal bench of any kind, you should look at this woman called Miranda Du.” He said, “She has a reputation that is really terrific.” She comes from a law firm—we have a Federal judge, by the way, a Republican, who has done an outstanding job on the bench, Larry Hicks, who came from the same law firm, a prestigious law firm, McDonald & Carano. It is a wonderful law firm. She has been with that law firm for the time basically that she has been out of law school.

I want to, before I give a little background of Miranda Du, introduce her, Miranda Du; her dad, Peter; her mom, Tina; her sister, Victoria; her brother-in-law, Andy; her nephew, Ethan; her brother, Joe; and the senior partner—well, nearly that way, the other people have all retired—John Frankovich, who is an outstanding lawyer who runs that law firm from which she comes, a very fine prominent lawyer, and it is wonderful that she brought these people with her, her family and John Frankovich.

Miranda Du's story is that is an American success story. This woman, who is going to become a fine judge, is an experienced litigator. She has a love and appreciation for the State of Nevada and a dedication to public service. This woman was born in Vietnam. She was a boat child. She and her family left Vietnam by boat when she was 8 years old. She spent a year in refugee camps in Malaysia before she came to America. They sent her and her family to Alabama.

When she arrived and started school as a third grader, she did not speak a word of English. She speaks fluent English, certainly better than mine. She is such a brilliant woman that overcoming this language barrier was child's play for her.

After arriving in Alabama, her dad worked on a dairy farm. Her family later moved to California. She received a Bachelor's degree with honors in history and economics from the University of California at David and then her law degree from the University of California at Berkeley, the famous Boalt Hall.

I am so happy that I was able to find this woman to become a Federal judge. And, by the way, my son who recommended her name is one of Dean Heller's very close personal friends, and it is a good thing Heller likes her or I would sic my son on him.

[Laughter.]

Senator DURBIN. Thank you very much, Majority Leader, Reid, and I know you have a busy schedule, but we thank you for being here.

Senator REID. I do not want to leave until I hear Heller.

[Laughter.]

Senator DURBIN. Senator Dean Heller.

PRESENTATION OF MIRANDA DU, NOMINEE TO BE DISTRICT JUDGE FOR THE DISTRICT OF NEVADA, BY HON. DEAN HELLER, A U.S. SENATOR FROM THE STATE OF NEVADA

Senator HELLER. Thank you very much. Thank you, Mr. Chairman, and to the Ranking Member and the members of the Committee, it is an honor to be here. Actually today is my first opportunity I have had to address the Committee, and it is a privilege to introduce a fellow Nevadan, Miranda Du, to you this afternoon. And it is an honor also to be here with Senator Reid and to be able to promote this candidate for judgeship, which I believe will work very well with this Committee. I want to welcome her husband. I want to thank John Frankovich for his support of her over the years. We are very privileged to have her with us today.

The Senate has a solemn responsibility to make sure that judicial vacancies and nominations are addressed in a timely manner. Having spoken to Federal judges in Nevada, I understand the significant workload facing our understaffed Federal judiciary and the need to fill vacancies with qualified candidates who will uphold America's principles of equal justice under the law. And I believe Miranda Du will make an outstanding district court judge in the great State of Nevada.

Ms. Du earned her B.A. of economics and history from UC-Davis in 1991, graduated from UC-Berkeley's law school in 1994, and she is currently employed as a partner at McDonald Carano Wilson, as Senator Reid mentioned, where she has chaired the firm's employment and labor law group since 2003.

Her experience covers every phase of litigation from discovery, motion practice, and trial through appeal before the Nevada Supreme Court and the Ninth Circuit Court of Appeals. Ms. Du has earned the respect of her colleagues within the legal community, particularly for involvement in employment law, and has successfully tried a number of jury trial cases to completion.

Her work has been featured in numerous professional publications, including Northern Nevada Business Weekly and educational materials for Lorman Education and the National Business Institute.

In addition to her professional background, Ms. Du is an active member of the broader northern Nevada community. She serves as a commissioner of the Nevada Commission on Economic Development, which focuses on developing and maintaining a diverse, healthy economic base in our State. Ms. Du is a board member of the Nevada's Women's Fund and has been recognized by Super Lawyers Magazine as a rising star and was featured as one of the Top 20 Under 40 Young Professionals in the Reno-Tahoe area.

Ms. Du comes before the Committee not just with the support of Nevada's Senators, myself and Senator Reid, but Governor Brian Sandoval, Lieutenant Governor Brian Krolicki, numerous mayors, as well as State and local organizations ranging from the Nevada Chapter of AGC to Nevada Committee to Aid Abused Women.

Again, I want to thank you for the chance to introduce this exceptional Nevadan to the Committee, and I look forward to her testimony as well as the Committee's consideration of her nomination. And, again, I am honored for the opportunity to present her before you with Senator Reid.

Thank you.

Senator DURBIN. Thank you very much, Senator Heller. And I might note that the Judiciary Committee has received six letters in support of Ms. Du's nomination, including from the Republican Governor of Nevada, Brian Sandoval; the Republican Lieutenant Governor, Brian Krolicki; and the Republican mayor of Reno, Robert Cashell—each of whom has personally worked with her.

Thank you again, Senator Heller.

I would like to turn to Senator Gillibrand and let her proceed.

PRESENTATION OF RONNIE ABRAMS, NOMINEE TO BE DISTRICT JUDGE FOR THE SOUTHERN DISTRICT OF NEW YORK, BY HON. KIRSTEN E. GILLIBRAND, A U.S. SENATOR FROM THE STATE OF NEW YORK

Senator GILLIBRAND. Thank you, Mr. Chairman, and thank you, Senator Lee. I am very honored to be here today to introduce Ronnie Abrams, and I am very pleased to offer my strong support for her nomination to the United States District Court for the Southern District of New York.

Ronnie was born to a family with a heart of service, advocacy, and dedication to human rights. I want to recognize her parents who are here and her brother. I also want to recognize her husband, Greg Andres, who is also a prosecutor at the Department of Justice, and her three beautiful daughters who are accompanying her here today.

I want to thank President Obama for acting on my recommendation and nominating another superbly qualified female jurist to the Federal bench. I have had the privilege of knowing Ms. Abrams for many years. I know her as a fair-minded, brilliant attorney of great integrity. Throughout her distinguished legal career, she has proven herself as an exceptional, well-respected attorney.

As Deputy Chief of the Criminal Division at the U.S. Attorney's Office in the Southern District of New York, she supervised 160 prosecutions of violent crime, organized crime, white-collar crime, public corruption, drug trafficking, and computer crime. She helped shape the policy and management of the U.S. Attorney's Office, guiding its success in a broad range of high-level, high-stakes cases.

Her record shows her commitment to justice, and I can tell you she has a deep and sincere commitment to public service. There is no question that Ms. Abrams is extremely well qualified and well suited to serve as a Federal court judge.

But beyond all her superb and outstanding legal qualifications, she also brings the unique perspective as a daughter, a wife, and a mother. I strongly believe this country needs more women like her serving in the Federal judiciary, an institution that I believe needs more exceptional and extraordinary women.

Over the last several years, the number of women in the Federal judiciary has stagnated, hovering at roughly 500, less than a third of the Federal bench. And while it is true that women have come a very long way in filling the ranks in the legal world, we still have a long way to go. I believe it is incredibly important that we do, because when we reach parity on the Federal bench, I believe that we will achieve greater fairness and justice throughout our legal system. I have no doubt that having Ms. Abrams serving in the Federal judiciary will bring us closer to that goal.

I was extraordinarily honored to recommend her for this position, and I urge a swift approval of her nomination. Thank you.

Senator DURBIN. Thank you very much, Senator Gillibrand. Let me note for the record that your colleague, Senator Charles Schumer, has also indicated his positive support of her nomination, and I understand that our colleague on the Committee, Senator Coons, would like to make a statement at this time.

STATEMENT OF HON. CHRISTOPHER COONS, A U.S. SENATOR FROM THE STATE OF DELAWARE

Senator COONS. Thank you very much, Senator Durbin, Mr. Chairman, and thank you for the opportunity to add, if I can briefly, to Senator Gillibrand's eloquent advocacy on behalf of Ms. Abrams, whom I have known from our days together at law school and whom I also view as someone who is from a family with a heart for service, someone with the sort of stunning intellect that could have qualified her for service of any kind, but who instead chose to dedicate her adult life to public service, both as a prosecutor and as an Assistant U.S. Attorney, and then ultimately in a decade of service as chief of the crimes unit, as you heard Senator Gillibrand mention, but now in her current role with Davis Polk as someone leading pro bono cases and who has had really signal success in bringing a wide range of actions that did everything from ensuring that men and women of our armed forces received the benefits to which they were entitled, to making sure that working men and women received the pay to which they were entitled by virtue of having earned it.

I think her career at the bar suggests that we continue to have in this Nation women, and men—but in this case I think it is particularly important that we add to the women of the bar—who have an outstanding education, a great grounding in values and in a family tradition of service, and who are willing to step up and take on the very real challenges of serving on the bench in a way that respects our law and our Nation.

So I am grateful, Senator Durbin, for a chance to briefly add my voice to those who speak in strong support of the nominee from the State of New York. Thank you, sir.

Senator DURBIN. Thank you, Senator Coons, and thank you again, Senator Gillibrand.

I would now like to recognize the Delegate from the District of Columbia, Eleanor Holmes Norton, who is here to speak on behalf of Rudolph Contreras. Delegate Norton.

PRESENTATION OF RUDOLPH CONTRERAS, NOMINEE TO BE DISTRICT JUDGE FOR THE DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA, BY HON. ELEANOR HOLMES NORTON, A DELEGATE IN CONGRESS FROM THE DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA

Delegate NORTON. First, Senator Durbin, I want to thank you once again for the invaluable assistance you have been to the District of Columbia over the years.

As you are aware, President Obama gave me the courtesy to recommend Federal district court judges, and it is a very special experience and honor to recommend to you today Rudolph Contreras, a very accomplished lawyer of great intellect.

Mr. Contreras is another of these remarkable American success stories of first-generation Americans who become Federal judges. Mr. Contreras is the son of Cuban immigrants. He was born in New York and raised in Miami. I am pleased that his family is here: his mother, Amparo Contreras; his wife, Karen McSweeney; his two children, Brian Contreras and Claire Contreras.

Mr. Contreras went to the University of Pennsylvania Law School where he was cum laude Order of the Coif and a member of the Law Review. He began his career as a corporate litigator at Jones Day. He was hired out of Jones Day by then-U.S. Attorney for the District of Columbia Eric Holder, now Attorney General of the United States, who calls Mr. Contreras one of his "best hires."

Mr. Contreras now heads the Civil Division of the Office of the U.S. Attorney for the District of Columbia, and I know that two judges on our district court also headed the Civil Division before becoming judges on that court, and I am pleased that one of them is here, the chief judge, Royce Lamberth. I don't know if this is a stepping stone to becoming a district court judge or not, but Mr. Contreras will be the third in this group.

After serving a number of years in a senior position at the U.S. Attorney's Office of the District of Columbia, Mr. Contreras was stolen away by the U.S. Attorney for the District of Delaware, and after serving there with accolades for 3 years, we were fortunate to attract him back to the District of Columbia, where he has been chief of the Civil Division.

Mr. Contreras has earned universal praise from all who have worked for him about his qualifications to sit on the court. I believe his confirmation will be assured should this Committee determine to approve him. I am pleased to recommend that you, in fact, approve Rudolph Contreras to be a judge on the United States District Court for the District of Columbia, and I thank you very much, Mr. Chairman.

Senator DURBIN. Delegate Norton, thank you for joining us again today, and thank you for your fine work for the people of the District of Columbia. My thanks as well to my colleagues Senator Rockefeller and Senator Gillibrand for being here with our other colleagues who had to step away.

We are going to bring the nominees before us, first the nominee for the circuit court, and ask a few questions of them for the record, and these introductions have certainly prepared the Committee to look in a positive way toward the backgrounds of each of the nominees.

As is the custom in the Committee, the first nominee will be the Fourth Circuit nominee, Stephanie Thacker, if she would please come to the witness table.

As is the custom of the Committee, I ask you to please raise your right hand. Do you affirm the testimony you are about to give before the Committee will be the truth, the whole truth, and nothing but the truth, so help you God?

Ms. THACKER. I do.

Senator DURBIN. Thank you. Let the record reflect that the witness answered in the affirmative.

Ms. Thacker, I now give you the floor for an opening statement or introduction of family and friends, whatever you would like to put before the Committee.

STATEMENT OF STEPHANIE DAWN THACKER, NOMINEE TO BE CIRCUIT JUDGE FOR THE FOURTH CIRCUIT

Ms. THACKER. Thank you, Senator Durbin.

First I want to express my appreciation to the President of the United States, President Obama, for nominating me to this important position. I also want to thank Senator Rockefeller for his heartfelt recommendation and Senator Manchin for his strong support.

In addition to those members of my family that are here today and those that were recognized by Senator Manchin and Senator Rockefeller, I would also like to acknowledge my brother and sister back in West Virginia: my brother, Dr. Alan Young, and my sister, Stacey Young Issa.

Also, although she passed away several years ago now, I want to specifically recognize today my grandmother, Ruth Thacker, who was and remains an important force in my life, and I know she is with me in spirit today.

Senator, I am truly humbled to sit before you today, and I look forward to answering any questions you may have of me.

- iv. whether you served as a mediator or arbitrator in alternative dispute resolution proceedings and, if so, a description of the 10 most significant matters with which you were involved in that capacity.

In July, 2009, I was selected to serve as one of three arbitrators in Logan & Kanawha Coal Company v. South Carolina Electric & Gas (Case No. 31 198 Y 00294 09), which involved a UCC dispute over coal deliveries. The parties resolved the case prior to arbitration and without any substantive involvement on my part. I do not know how the case was resolved.

I have not otherwise served as a mediator or arbitrator in alternative dispute resolution proceedings.

b. Describe:

- i. the general character of your law practice and indicate by date when its character has changed over the years.

I began my legal career in 1990 in the Pittsburgh office of Kirkpatrick & Lockhart (now K&L Gates). From 1990 to 1992, I had a litigation practice that consisted of complex commercial and asbestos litigation. In that capacity, I conducted legal research, drafted memoranda of law, reviewed voluminous documents for relevance and privilege, and represented clients at depositions.

In 1992, I worked briefly as an Assistant Attorney General in the Environmental Division of the Office of the West Virginia Attorney General. My work there included representing the State of West Virginia on environmental issues involving permitting and compliance.

From 1992 through 1994, while with King, Betts & Allen (which changed its name to King, Allen & Arnold during my time there), I worked on cases involving commercial litigation defense, white collar criminal defense, and legal malpractice and professional responsibility defense. In this regard, I conducted research, drafted memoranda of law and pleadings, met with clients, and assisted with trial preparation and development.

In 1994, I joined the United States Attorney's Office for the Southern District of West Virginia and spent the next twelve years of my career as a federal prosecutor. I spent the first five years of this period as an Assistant United States Attorney in the General Criminal Division of the United States Attorney's Office. Eventually, I developed a niche in three areas: domestic violence, child support enforcement, and coal mine safety. For all cases I handled, I had responsibility from the investigation stage through trial and appeal.

In 1999, I joined the Department of Justice Child Exploitation and Obscenity Section as a Trial Attorney, where my work focused on prosecution and training in connection with child pornography, child sexual exploitation, sex trafficking, sex tourism, obscenity, and criminal non-support offenses. In 2002, I was promoted to Deputy Chief for Litigation and was responsible for supervision of approximately half of the Trial Attorneys in the Section and assisted in the development of programmatic activities and initiatives. In 2004, I became Principal Deputy Chief of the Section. In that role, I had primary responsibility for the entirety of the litigation work of the Section, including supervision of all Trial Attorneys. I oversaw the development and implementation of a nationwide program of significant prosecutions and developed policy and litigation strategies and initiatives to ensure that the Section was effectively keeping pace with the technologies employed in child exploitation and obscenity offenses.

In 2006, I became a partner at the law firm of Allen, Guthrie, McHugh & Thomas (now Guthrie & Thomas). For the past five years, I have specialized in complex litigation, environmental and toxic tort litigation, and criminal defense.

- ii. your typical clients and the areas at each period of your legal career, if any, in which you have specialized.

The general character of my 21 year law practice is one of litigation and trial work, the vast majority spent either as a federal prosecutor or as a defense attorney. My work has involved both civil and criminal matters.

From 1990 to 1994, my practice consisted of civil defense of corporate clients in complex commercial litigation as well as individuals in defense of legal malpractice claims or before the West Virginia State bar. I also had the opportunity to represent individuals in criminal matters during this time.

In 1994, I joined the Office of the United States Attorney for the Southern District of West Virginia and then spent the next twelve years of my career as a federal prosecutor. I spent the first five years of this period as an Assistant United States Attorney in the General Criminal Division of the United States Attorney's Office. In this capacity, I was afforded the opportunity to gain comprehensive criminal prosecution experience. I prosecuted cases involving fraud, tax evasion, money laundering, gun violations, environmental crimes, coal mine safety violations, domestic violence, and child support enforcement. Eventually, I developed a niche in three areas: domestic violence, child support enforcement, and coal mine safety. I was charged with the responsibility for such prosecutions in the office, and, as a result of the work I did, I was regularly called upon by the Department of Justice, the Department of Health and Human Services, the West Virginia Coalition Against Domestic Violence, the Mine Safety and Health Administration, and Assistant United States Attorneys around the country to provide advice and guidance.

From 1999 to 2006, while in the Department of Justice Child Exploitation and Obscenity Section as a Trial Attorney, I prosecuted cases around the country involving child pornography, child sexual exploitation, sex trafficking, and obscenity. As Deputy Chief for Litigation and as Principal Deputy Chief, I was responsible for the management and professional development of the Section Trial Attorneys. Additionally, the Section is responsible for developing nationwide programmatic initiatives as well as for having input into legislation that impacts the subject matter expertise of the Section.

In 2006, I became a partner in the Allen, Guthrie, McHugh & Thomas (formerly King, Betts & Allen, Allen, Guthrie & Thomas, and now Guthrie & Thomas) law firm where I had begun my career years prior. Although Guthrie & Thomas is regularly called upon to represent some of the country's largest companies in high profile cases involving complex litigation, environmental and toxic tort litigation, the firm and I also represent individuals and white collar criminal defendants.

- c. Describe the percentage of your practice that has been in litigation and whether you appeared in court frequently, occasionally, or not at all. If the frequency of your appearances in court varied, describe such variance, providing dates.

Since 1994, I have been in court on a frequent and regular basis.

- i. Indicate the percentage of your practice in:
1. federal courts: 60%
 2. state courts of record: 40%
 3. other courts:
 4. administrative agencies:

ii. Indicate the percentage of your practice in:

- | | |
|--------------------------|-----|
| 1. civil proceedings: | 60% |
| 2. criminal proceedings: | 40% |

d. State the number of cases in courts of record, including cases before administrative law judges, you tried to verdict, judgment or final decision (rather than settled), indicating whether you were sole counsel, chief counsel, or associate counsel.

I estimate that I have tried approximately 23 cases to verdict, judgment, or final decision (other than settlement). Of these, I was sole counsel on three, chief counsel on eight and associate counsel on twelve.

i. What percentage of these trials were:

- | | |
|--------------|-----|
| 1. jury: | 99% |
| 2. non-jury: | 1% |

e. Describe your practice, if any, before the Supreme Court of the United States. Supply four (4) copies of any briefs, amicus or otherwise, and, if applicable, any oral argument transcripts before the Supreme Court in connection with your practice.

I have not practiced before the Supreme Court of the United States.

17. Litigation: Describe the ten (10) most significant litigated matters which you personally handled, whether or not you were the attorney of record. Give the citations, if the cases were reported, and the docket number and date if unreported. Give a capsule summary of the substance of each case. Identify the party or parties whom you represented; describe in detail the nature of your participation in the litigation and the final disposition of the case. Also state as to each case:

- a. the date of representation;
- b. the name of the court and the name of the judge or judges before whom the case was litigated; and
- c. the individual name, addresses, and telephone numbers of co-counsel and of principal counsel for each of the other parties.

1. United States v. Bailey, 112 F.3d 758 (4th Cir.), cert. denied, 522 U.S. 896 (1997) (on appeal from United States Chief District Judge Charles H. Haden of the Southern District of West Virginia (deceased))

This was the first case in the country prosecuted under the Violence Against Women Act. I served as co-counsel representing the United States, both during trial and on appeal, and actively participated in all phases of the case.

When the victim in the case left her abusive husband, he assaulted her, put her in the trunk of their car, and drove her from West Virginia to Kentucky, meandering from place to place for four days before finally depositing her, comatose and near death, at a hospital in Kentucky. The defendant was charged with federal domestic violence and kidnapping. After trial, he was convicted of all charges and sentenced to life imprisonment. The Fourth Circuit affirmed the conviction. The victim continued to live for 16 years in a vegetative state in a nursing home in West Virginia until she passed away in 2010.

2. United States v. Bostic, 168 F.3d 718 (4th Cir. 1999), cert. denied, 527 U.S. 1029 (1999) (on appeal from United States Chief District Judge Charles H. Haden of the Southern District of West Virginia (deceased))

The defendant in this case, while subject to a domestic violence protective order, lured his estranged wife to his home by claiming that their three year-old son was ill and needed to go to the hospital. When she arrived, the defendant barricaded the door and held both his estranged wife and child at gunpoint, threatening to kill them all. The victim was able to talk herself out of the situation and the defendant was arrested. I was sole counsel on this matter at the trial level and on appeal in the Fourth Circuit. The defendant entered into a conditional plea agreement and appealed to the Fourth Circuit, arguing that the statute (18 U.S.C. § 922(g)(8)) was unconstitutional because it violated the notice and fair warning principles embodied in the Fifth Amendment and that Congress exceeded its authority under the Commerce Clause in enacting the statute. The Fourth Circuit affirmed the conviction.

3. United States v. Addair, 168 F.3d 483 (4th Cir. 1998) (on appeal from United States District Judge Elizabeth V. Hallanan of the Southern District of West Virginia (deceased))

Working with the Mine Safety and Health Administration, I investigated the defendants after a miner was killed when he became caught in the augers of a continuous mining machine owned by the defendants that had been in disrepair for several weeks. The defendants were indicted for numerous violations of the Federal Mine Health and Safety Act, including willfully allowing the continued use of mining equipment that needed repair, falsifying entries in the electrical inspection book, falsifying entries in the ventilation inspection book, and falsifying training certificates. I tried the case with co-counsel, and both defendants were convicted. I drafted the Fourth Circuit brief, and the court affirmed the convictions without oral argument.

4. United States v. Compton, Case No. 98-CR-00084 (United States District Court for the Southern District of West Virginia, Senior District Judge Robert Staker presiding (deceased))

The defendant in this case was indicted on eight counts of federal mine safety violations and ultimately pled guilty to a mine safety violation for running two continuous mining machines on the same split of air, mail fraud for defrauding the West Virginia Workers' Compensation Fund, and tax evasion for failing to report approximately $1.6 million of personal income from 1992 to 1995. I participated in the investigation of this case with the FBI, IRS and West Virginia State Police, drafted the indictment and presented it to the grand jury, and participated in the plea hearing and sentencing.

The defendant was indicted for bank fraud, money laundering, tax evasion, and being a felon in possession of a firearm. The indictment was severed and the bank fraud and money laundering counts proceeded to trial in January 1999. The felon in possession of a firearm charge proceeded to trial in February 1999. The defendant was convicted following each trial. In March 1999, the defendant pleaded guilty to the tax evasion charge rather than proceed to a third trial. I conducted the investigation, was co-counsel at trial, and handled the sentencing.

6. Child Support Prosecutions, e.g., United States v. Giuffrida, 213 F.3d 633 (4th Cir. 2000) (on appeal from United States Chief District Judge Charles H. Haden of the Southern District of West Virginia (deceased)); and United States v. Deskins, 20 Fed. Appx. 227 (4th Cir. 2001) (on appeal from United States District Judge Joseph R. Goodwin of the Southern District of West Virginia)

These are but two of a number of federal child support enforcement cases I handled as an Assistant United States Attorney in the Southern District of West Virginia. When these cases were prosecuted, the federal Child Support Recovery Act, passed in 1996, had not been widely utilized either in West Virginia or nationally. I took over sole responsibility for spearheading such prosecutions in the Southern District of West Virginia in 1997, working closely with the Federal Bureau of Investigation and the West Virginia Child Advocate Office to develop a successful system for federal child support prosecutions. These trials were some of the first cases in the country under the applicable federal statute, and I was sole counsel in both. Following a bench trial, Mr. Giuffrida was convicted, sentenced to five years probation and ordered to pay restitution. The District Court affirmed. Mr. Giuffrida then appealed, arguing that the statute had retroactive effect and challenged the amount of the restitution. The Fourth Circuit affirmed. Mr. Deskins was also convicted following a bench trial, which the District Court affirmed. Mr. Deskins appealed arguing that the evidence was insufficient to support a conviction and that the amount of restitution was not properly calculated. The Fourth Circuit affirmed.

7. United States v. Vogt, 48 Fed. Appx. 740 (11th Cir. 2002); cert. denied, 538 U.S. 925 (2003) (on appeal from United States District Judge K. Michael Moore of the Southern District of Florida)

The defendant in this case was a camp counselor at a sea camp located in the Florida Keys. He abused his position of trust and authority as camp counselor to gain access to and molest multiple adolescent boys, many of whom looked up to him. He also took pornographic pictures of the boys and maintained a large collection of child pornography. The defendant was convicted of twelve counts of possession and distribution of child pornography and sentenced to sixty-five years imprisonment. The Eleventh Circuit affirmed the conviction.

I drafted and argued pre-trial motions, was co-counsel at trial, and participated in sentencing.

For many years in several states, including New York, Georgia, and Florida, the defendant used his power as leader of a pseudo-religious organization to systematically move children interstate for the purpose of engaging with them in sexual activities. From January 1988 through his arrest in May 2002, the defendant molested approximately 40 known child victims, forcing children as young as five to perform oral sex on him, and anally sodomizing boys and girls as young as ten. Many of his victims had been born into the organization. He wielded his power over the organization to gain access to the children, separating husbands and wives and parents and children. He also threatened to order the murders of several child victims if they disclosed the sexual abuse to law enforcement officers. The defendant was convicted of multiple racketeering counts as well as interstate transportation of minors for unlawful sexual activity and was sentenced to 135 years imprisonment. The Eleventh Circuit affirmed. I participated as co-counsel in all phases of this case, and the prosecution team was awarded the Attorney General's Distinguished Service Award.

9. Hill v. Stowers, 680 S.E.2d 66 (W. Va. 2009) (on appeal from Circuit Court Judge Jay M. Hoke of the 25th Judicial Circuit)

Mr. Stowers pleaded guilty to a criminal election law violation (while represented by other attorneys). After serving his federal sentence Mr. Stowers was sued by Mr. Hill, who had lost an election to Mr. Stowers in 1996. Mr. Hill argued that because of Mr. Stowers' illegal conduct, he had divested Mr. Hill of the fair election process, and of the salary and other benefits Mr. Hill would have obtained had Mr. Hill won the election. On behalf of Mr. Stowers, I drafted and argued a motion to dismiss for failure to state a claim upon which relief could be granted. The motion was granted and the case was dismissed. I drafted the appellate brief and argued before the West Virginia Supreme Court of Appeals, which affirmed the dismissal.

10. Perrine v DuPont, 694 S.E.2d 815 (W. Va. 2010) (on appeal from Circuit Court Judge Thomas A. Bedell of the 15th Judicial Circuit)

In 2007, I was part of the team that proceeded to trial in Harrison County, West Virginia on behalf of E. I. du Pont de Nemours and Company in the first class action property damage, medical monitoring case of its kind in West Virginia. Plaintiffs claimed property damage and increased risk of personal injury due to arsenic, cadmium and lead as the result of the operation of a zinc smelting plant. After a six-week trial, the jury found DuPont liable to the class for property remediation, medical monitoring, and punitive damages. On appeal, the West Virginia Supreme Court reduced the punitive damage award and remanded the case for trial of DuPont's statute of limitation defense. The case settled prior to re-trial. As part of the settlement, DuPont provided for both a remediation and a thirty-year medical monitoring program. I was actively involved in all phases of the litigation, including discovery, motion practice, trial, appeal, and settlement negotiations. I now serve as the representative for DuPont on the Finance Committee charged with working with the Claims Administrator to implement the medical monitoring program.

18. Legal Activities: Describe the most significant legal activities you have pursued, including significant litigation which did not progress to trial or legal matters that did not involve litigation. Describe fully the nature of your participation in these activities. List any client(s) or organization(s) for whom you performed lobbying activities and describe the lobbying activities you performed on behalf of such client(s) or organizations(s). (Note: As to any facts requested in this question, please omit any information protected by the attorney-client privilege.)

The most significant legal activities I have pursued during the course of my career have been the initiatives I helped to develop and pursue while with the United States Attorney's Office and the Department of Justice. These include working with multiple organizations to combat some of the most difficult issues facing West Virginia as a state: domestic violence and coal mine safety. I continued my work developing programs of lasting impact while with the Department of Justice.

For example, in the domestic violence arena, I was the Department of Justice Violence Against Women Act point of contact for the Southern District of West Virginia. I served as a member of the Domestic Violence Protocol Review Committee and worked with the West Virginia State Police to develop a protocol for law enforcement response to domestic violence. I was also a member of the Governor's Family Violence Coordinating Council of West Virginia and participated in reviewing and amending West Virginia's domestic violence laws. With regard to child support enforcement, I spearheaded the enforcement effort of the federal Child Support Recovery Act in the Southern District of West Virginia, and prosecuted to trial some of the first child support cases in the country under the Act. Additionally, while with the United States Attorney's Office, I coordinated and prosecuted a number of coal mine safety cases in which several coal mine operators were convicted for unsafe practices in their mines.

While with the Department of Justice, I focused on the problem of domestic child prostitution. Working together with the Federal Bureau of Investigation and the National Center for Missing and Exploited Children, I helped to develop a nationwide victim-centered initiative (the Innocence Lost Initiative) which targets the vast network of offenders and provides critical social services and assistance to child victims. For this initiative, I was awarded the 2004 Assistant Attorney General's Award for Outstanding Victim/Witness Service. At the time I left the Department of Justice in early 2006, the Innocence Lost Initiative had secured 505 arrests, 60 complaints, 70 indictments, and 67 convictions of individuals involved in the commercial exploitation of children, and approximately 200 child victims had been identified nationwide as a result of the initiative. Additionally, in 2005, I was also awarded the Assistant Attorney General's Award for Special Initiative as a result of my work with the Federal Bureau of Investigation to develop a nationwide sex tourism prosecution initiative.

I have never performed lobbying activities.

19. Teaching: What courses have you taught? For each course, state the title, the institution at which you taught the course, the years in which you taught the course, and describe briefly the subject matter of the course and the major topics taught. If you have a syllabus of each course, provide four (4) copies to the committee.

In Fall 2010, I co-taught a Trial Advocacy course at West Virginia University College of Law, along with Professor Charles DiSalvo. I am teaching the same course this Fall along with Judge Larry Starcher. Syllabi supplied.

20. Deferred Income/ Future Benefits: List the sources, amounts and dates of all anticipated receipts from deferred income arrangements, stock, options, uncompleted contracts and other future benefits which you expect to derive from previous business relationships, professional services, firm memberships, former employers, clients or customers. Describe the arrangements you have made to be compensated in the future for any financial or business interest.

Aside from my ongoing legal work for which I expect to be paid, I have no current anticipated receipts from deferred income arrangements, stock, options, uncompleted contracts or other future benefits which I expect to derive from previous business relationships, professional services, firm memberships, former employers, clients or customers.

21. Outside Commitments During Court Service: Do you have any plans, commitments, or agreements to pursue outside employment, with or without compensation, during your service with the court? If so, explain.

I have no such plans, commitments, or agreements.

22. Sources of Income: List sources and amounts of all income received during the calendar year preceding your nomination and for the current calendar year, including all salaries, fees, dividends, interest, gifts, rents, royalties, licensing fees, honoraria, and other items exceeding $500 or more (if you prefer to do so, copies of the financial disclosure report, required by the Ethics in Government Act of 1978, may be substituted here).

See attached Financial Disclosure Report.

23. Statement of Net Worth: Please complete the attached financial net worth statement in detail (add schedules as called for).

See attached Net Worth Statement.

24. Potential Conflicts of Interest:

- a. Identify the family members or other persons, parties, categories of litigation, and financial arrangements that are likely to present potential conflicts-of-interest when you first assume the position to which you have been nominated. Explain how you would address any such conflict if it were to arise.

My husband is an attorney and practices in West Virginia. If confirmed, I would be conflicted from any case in which he is involved. I would also initially be conflicted from any case in which my present law firm, or its partners, has an interest. Lastly, I have been friends for over twenty years with Assistant United States Attorney Susan Robinson, and would think it best to recuse myself from all cases in which she represents the United States. While I would carefully review each case for conflict or appearance of conflict, I do not anticipate any other conflicts if I am confirmed as a judge.

- b. Explain how you will resolve any potential conflict of interest, including the procedure you will follow in determining these areas of concern.

If confirmed, I would carefully follow the federal recusal statutes and Canon 3 of the Code of Conduct for United States Judges. I would also engage in a prompt and immediate review of the parties, their affiliates, and the issues in any litigated matter to come before me so that I could make a prompt, informed decision regarding the propriety of my participation in the matter.

25. Pro Bono Work: An ethical consideration under Canon 2 of the American Bar Association's Code of Professional Responsibility calls for "every lawyer, regardless of professional prominence or professional workload, to find some time to participate in serving the disadvantaged." Describe what you have done to fulfill these responsibilities, listing specific instances and the amount of time devoted to each.

In addition to my twelve years of government service, I have remained a contributor to two charitable organizations: the West Virginia Coalition Against Domestic Violence and the West Virginia Fund for Law in the Public Interest. Additionally, in 2010, I completed training with the West Virginia Legal Aid Society in order to provide pro bono legal services for domestic violence orders of protection. Thus far, I have been called upon to so serve in one case in 2011. In that case, the client had obtained a protective order against her estranged husband and had child support and visitation orders in place. However, unbeknownst to her, the Court had also held a hearing on a petition for contempt against her which had been filed by her estranged husband. Because the client did not appear at the hearing, the Court drafted a proposed Order finding her in contempt. Pursuant to the proposed Order, the client had five days in which to object. I became involved on the fifth day of this objection time period, and worked with the client to draft and file objections to the proposed Order. The court found her in contempt but did not sanction her.

26. Selection Process:

- a. Please describe your experience in the entire judicial selection process, from beginning to end (including the circumstances which led to your nomination and the interviews in which you participated). Is there a selection commission in your jurisdiction to recommend candidates for nomination to the federal courts? If so, please include that process in your description, as well as whether the commission recommended your nomination. List the dates of all interviews or communications you had with the White House staff or the Justice Department regarding this nomination. Do not include any contacts with Federal Bureau of Investigation personnel concerning your nomination.

There is not a selection commission in my jurisdiction. On May 6, 2011, I received a telephone call from Senator John D. Rockefeller's office asking whether I would be interested in being considered for a position on the Fourth Circuit. I met with Senator Rockefeller on May 10, 2011. Since July 18, 2011, I have been in contact with officials from the Office of Legal Policy at the Department of Justice regarding my candidacy. On August 5, 2011, I met with Senator Joe Manchin. On August 16, 2011, I met with officials from the White House Counsel's Office and the Department of Justice in Washington, DC. On September 8, 2011, the President submitted my nomination to the Senate.

- b. Has anyone involved in the process of selecting you as a judicial nominee discussed with you any currently pending or specific case, legal issue or question in a manner that could reasonably be interpreted as seeking any express or implied assurances concerning your position on such case, issue, or question? If so, explain fully.

No.

(NOTARY)

Senator DURBIN. Thank you very much.

When you were introduced by Senators Rockefeller and Manchin, they pointed to one of the key developments in your legal career, and that was your work in the Justice Department's Innocence Lost Initiative which targeted those who exploited children and provided support services for the child victims. Can you give this Committee a little insight into the work that you put into this initiative and how it came from your practice of the law?

Ms. THACKER. That initiative was a part of my work with the Department of Justice, Child Exploitation and Obscenity Section. That section is tasked with pursuing crimes against children, exploitation, and obscenity.

At the time sex trafficking was an emerging and important issue that needed to be addressed. I worked together with the FBI's Crimes Against Children Unit as well as the National Center for Missing and Exploited Children to develop a nationwide initiative that would provide training, support services for victims, and also increase awareness of the issue and implement prosecutions and convictions through working groups around the country. And I understand there are now 43 working groups in the country today, and as the Senators mentioned, there have been over 700 convictions to date since it was implemented in June of 2003.

Thank you for your question.

Senator DURBIN. It is certainly good work, and it certainly speaks to your role as a prosecutor that developed into a special effort to help victims.

I would like to then move to a different part of your legal background, and that is your work in private practice where you took a slightly different role, and I would like you, if you could, to tell the Committee a little bit about the case involving Dupont, involving your class action medical monitoring case in West Virginia. It was brought on behalf of plaintiffs who alleged that they were exposed to arsenic, cadmium, and lead from Dupont's zinc smelting plant. You represented Dupont, I believe, in that action, and I would like for you to tell me how that case was tried, appealed, and the ultimate outcome.

Ms. THACKER. Thank you, Senator Durbin, for that question. Yes, I and my colleagues represented Dupont in a class action lawsuit in West Virginia that was one of the first of its kind there.

First, with respect to your question about my role in the case, I want to state first and foremost that I understand clearly the distinction between my role as an advocate currently and the role of a judge in which impartiality is critical. I recognize that.

With respect to the Dupont case, that case went to trial and resulted in a jury verdict against Dupont. The case was appealed to the West Virginia Supreme Court of Appeals, which did two things:

They reduced the damages verdict with respect to the medical monitoring punitive damages, given that there was no present personal injury alleged or proven.

They also provided a remittitur of the punitive damages due to Dupont's remediation of the site in issue. And they remanded the case back for retrial on the issue of Dupont's statute of limitations defense.

The decision of the West Virginia Supreme Court put the case then in a position where the parties were able to resolve the case prior to retrial and were able to achieve settlement.

Currently I serve as part of a three-person finance Committee together with the claims administrator and class counsel for the plaintiffs in that case, helping to carry out the settlement, which does include remediation and medical monitoring. And I am glad to be a part of that resolution and moving forward with the community in the spirit of reconciliation on behalf of the client.

Senator DURBIN. I am glad you made the point right near the end about the continued medical monitoring, which I thought was an interesting aspect of that case.

You also have the distinction of prosecuting the first case in the country under the Violence Against Women Act. That must have been a daunting undertaking since you were the first. Can you tell us what led you to the decision to try that case or to prosecute that case?

Ms. THACKER. Well, thank you, Senator Durbin, for the opportunity to address that case. Certainly I did not do it alone, so while it was daunting being the first case, I was part of a team of prosecutors.

The Violence Against Women Act had been passed in October, I believe, of 1994, and this case, the assault on the victim in the case, occurred in November 1994. Our U.S. Attorney at the time, and now my law partner, had been to a U.S. Attorneys conference in which that statute was discussed, so she recognized that the Violence Against Women Act may apply here. That case proceeded to trial, and the jury convicted the defendant and he was sentenced to life imprisonment. He was also charged with kidnapping, which provided a statutory maximum of life in prison.

A little bit about the facts underlying that life imprisonment—

Senator DURBIN. If I might, since I have gone over a bit in time.

Ms. THACKER. Certainly.

Senator DURBIN. I was particularly interested as to whether there was a challenge to the constitutionality of the law brought in that first case.

Ms. THACKER. There was a challenge to the Bailey case that was affirmed by the Fourth Circuit. The Violence Against Women Act, the criminal provisions in that part of the Violence Against Women Act specifically include a jurisdictional nexus; that is, there must be some crossing of State lines. And so contrary to or different from the Morrison section of the Violence Against Women Act that the Supreme Court held unconstitutional, the criminal provisions include enumerated jurisdictional elements.

Senator DURBIN. Thank you very much.

Ms. THACKER. Thank you.

Senator DURBIN. Senator Lee.

Senator LEE. Thank you, Mr. Chairman, and thank you, Ms. Thacker, for joining us. I welcome you and your family to the Committee.

You published a Law Review article years ago in the West Virginia Law Review in which you advocate a fairly aggressive view of vicarious liability for churches and priests, under which churches and priests would be held liable for the improper actions of other priests within the same church.

Based on that article, I feel the need to ask: Do you disagree with laws or the need for laws and legal doctrines that offer special protections to religious institutions?

Ms. THACKER. I do not disagree with that.

Senator LEE. OK. One of the reasons I asked that is that in that article you refer to at one point—you suggest that many charitable organizations, including religious institutions, are “big business.” Tell me what you meant by that and whether that means that charitable organizations, including religious institutions, should not be—whether that means they should not be offered some kind of special protections?

Ms. THACKER. Thank you, Senator Lee. I appreciate the opportunity to address that issue. The Law Review article was meant to address the emerging and novel legal issues at the time rather than to aggressively advocate. The term “big business” in the Law Review article was actually in reference to another article or case that I was citing for a particular principle in that. I don’t recall what, but that was not my view but, rather, something I was referencing. And I certainly would recognize, were I fortunate enough to be confirmed to the Fourth Circuit Court of Appeals, the constitutional protections and would follow the law of the United States Supreme Court and the Constitution.

Senator LEE. OK. In that same article, you noted a case in which a court did not hold a bishop liable for the actions of one of his fellow clergy members because the non-offending bishop did not participate in or ratify or approve of the conduct. And you argue in that article, with disapproval, I think, that the result of the court’s decision is that “heads of religious societies are not expected to be their brother’s keeper.”

So do you view the law as mandating a certain code of ecclesiastical conduct?

Ms. THACKER. I do not. My goal in that article was merely to assess the state of the law at that time on respondent superior and employer liability, and each of those cases, including the one you mentioned, turn of the specific facts, and I would, if such cases would come before me, review them on a case-by-case basis with a view toward controlling legal precedent. I was merely attempting to set forth the state of the law at the time.

Senator LEE. OK, and not to make a normative judgment as to the state of the law or what it should require.

Ms. THACKER. Absolutely not.

Senator LEE. So if I got that impression, that was not consistent with your intentions.

Now, in the conclusion of the article, you state that due to the “reprehensible factual situations involved in most of the sexual molestation cases,” you easily reached the conclusion that, “The church should be thy priest’s keeper in terms of civil liability.” That does sound like a normative statement to me, a normative judgment of sorts. Tell us what you meant by that.

Ms. THACKER. Well, the goal of the Law Review article, which I wrote as a law student 22 years ago, was simply to make a statement or a review of the areas of the law and to address how that may evolve, a sort of best guesstimate as to how that may evolve. Frankly, I have not looked at the state of the law in that area since, but I would follow the law and controlling legal precedent, depending on the facts of the cases that came before me. I certainly did not intend to make any overarching statement in that Law Review article.

Senator LEE. And you did not intend to make any statement to the effect that the legal standard to be applied when evaluating the liability vel non of a religious institution might be determined or influenced or altered in any way by the nature of the factual situation before it?

Ms. THACKER. Absolutely no, Senator.

Senator LEE. OK. Thank you.

Senator DURBIN. Thank you, Senator Lee.

I have no further questions to ask of this nominee. I thank you very much for being with us today. There may be additional questions sent to you by some other members of the Committee, and I hope you can answer them in a timely fashion, and we look forward to working with you after this hearing.

Thank you again for joining us.

Ms. THACKER. Thank you.

Senator DURBIN. We now welcome the second panel of district court nominees, all four: Ronnie Abrams of New York, Rudolph Contreras of the District of Columbia, Miranda Du of Nevada, and Michael Fitzgerald of California. When you reach your chair, please remain standing because I have a little work to do before you sit down.

If each of the district court nominees would please raise your right hand. Do you affirm the testimony you are about to give before the Committee will be the truth, the whole truth, and nothing but the truth, so help you God?

Mr. FITZGERALD. I do.

Ms. ABRAMS. I do.

Mr. CONTRERAS. I do.

Ms. DU. I do.

Senator DURBIN. Thank you. Let the record reflect that all four of the witnesses have answered in the affirmative. And for the record, I wanted to let Senator Lee know that a recent movie that came out called "Contagion" originally contained a scene where I did just that, but it was lost on the cutting room floor.

[Laughter.]

Senator DURBIN. So Senator Leahy is the only movie star on the Senate Judiciary Committee to date, unless you have something to report.

Senator LEE. I saw that movie recently, and I agree, that would have been a much more compelling movie. I think I would have cried hot tears of joy and emotion had I seen that and you had been in it as well. I am going to write the producer a letter.

Senator DURBIN. It was one of my finest moments.

Thank you to the nominees for joining us today, and we are going to proceed with questions after you have an opportunity to say a few words in advance.

We will start with Michael Fitzgerald of California. If you would like to make a statement or introduce those who are with you, it is your floor. Take it away.

STATEMENT OF MICHAEL WALTER FITZGERALD, NOMINEE TO BE DISTRICT JUDGE FOR THE CENTRAL DISTRICT OF CALIFORNIA

Mr. FITZGERALD. Thank you, Mr. Chairman. I would like to thank you, Senator Durbin and Senator Lee, on behalf of the Committee for giving me the chance to testify today. I would like to thank the President for nominating me for the Central District of California. I would like to thank Senator Boxer for her recommendation to the President, and in turn the bipartisan Judicial Advisory Committee of Senator Boxer which forwarded my name to her for her consideration.

As you have heard, present with me today are my parents, Vivianne and Jim Fitzgerald, like my brother and I native born Angelenos. Also here is my twin brother, Patrick Fitzgerald, who serves as a Federal prosecutor in the Central District of California.

Joining us through the Committee's webcast are numerous colleagues and friends. I would particularly like to acknowledge my colleagues and staff at Corbin, Fitzgerald & Athey in Los Angeles.

Thank you.

In 1994, as a member of the Advisory Committee for the Office of the District Attorney for the Los Angeles County Bar Association, I conducted interviews and reviewed documents. On November 16, 1994, I made very brief remarks upon accepting the Maynard Toll Pro Bono Associates Award. I thanked the partners of Heller Ehrman for giving me the opportunity to work on the Buttino and Wharton cases. I have no notes, transcript or recording. I have not served as a judge, except as a Judge Pro Tem pursuant to the Temporary Judge Program of the Los Angeles Superior Court. This program allows experienced lawyers to assist the court by handling extremely low-level cases. After completing training and receiving certification as a Judge Pro Tem, I have presided over four calendars of small claims cases, for a total of between 30 to 40 cases. Pursuant to California law, small claims cases are limited to $7,500 in claimed damages, are not subject to the Evidence Code, and cannot involve lawyers. No opinions are written.

- a. Approximately how many cases have you presided over that have gone to verdict or judgment? _____
- i. Of these, approximately what percent were:
- | | |
|-----------------------|---------------------|
| jury trials: | _____% |
| bench trials: | _____% [total 100%] |
| civil proceedings: | _____% |
| criminal proceedings: | _____% [total 100%] |
- b. Provide citations for all opinions you have written, including concurrences and dissents.
- c. For each of the 10 most significant cases over which you presided, provide: (1) a capsule summary of the nature the case; (2) the outcome of the case; (3) the name and contact information for counsel who had a significant role in the trial of the case; and (3) the citation of the case (if reported) or the docket number and a copy of the opinion or judgment (if not reported).
- d. For each of the 10 most significant opinions you have written, provide: (1) citations for those decisions that were published; (2) a copy of those decisions that were not published; and (3) the names and contact information for the attorneys who played a significant role in the case.
- e. Provide a list of all cases in which certiorari was requested or granted.
- f. 14. Recusal: If you are or have been a judge, identify the basis by which you have assessed the necessity or propriety of recusal (If your court employs an "automatic" recusal system by which you may be recused without your knowledge, please include a general description of that system.) Provide a list of any cases, motions or matters that have come before you in which a litigant or party has requested that you recuse yourself due to an asserted conflict of interest or in which you have recused yourself sua sponte. Identify each such case, and for each provide the following information:

- iv. whether you served as a mediator or arbitrator in alternative dispute resolution proceedings and, if so, a description of the 10 most significant matters with which you were involved in that capacity.

I have not served as a mediator or arbitrator.

b. Describe:

- i. the general character of your law practice and indicate by date when its character has changed over the years.

My practice has always consisted entirely of civil and criminal litigation, with "litigation" construed to include appeals, government investigations, and corporate internal investigations.

While an associate at O'Donnell & Gordon from 1986 to 1991, I worked on complex civil litigation, including serving as associate counsel at a two-week bench trial involving trade secrets.

From 1988 to 1991, as an Assistant United States Attorney, my practice consisted entirely of handling federal criminal trials, appeals and investigations. I served in the Organized Crime and Drug Enforcement Task Force/Major Narcotics Section. The focus of my practice was on prosecuting cocaine trucking rings. My cases included the seizure of over two tons of cocaine, at that time the second-largest seizure in California history; the lead defendant was sentenced to life in prison without parole. I also worked with a money-laundering task force of IRS criminal agents and narcotics officers from the Los Angeles Police Department. The task force investigated, prosecuted, and forfeited money-laundering fronts that posed as legitimate businesses.

From 1991 to 1995, while at Heller, Ehrman, White & McAuliffe LLP, my practice consisted of working as one of a team of lawyers handling extremely large and complicated commercial litigation.

At Corbin, Fitzgerald & Athey LLP, a four-lawyer firm, we handle criminal and civil cases in the federal and state courts, internal investigations, grand jury investigations, and investigations by the United States Securities and Exchange Commission ("SEC"). The majority of my firm's matters are federal cases and investigations.

For the last six years, the focus of my firm's practice has been the representation of clients during investigations by federal government agencies, such as the United States Attorney's Offices and the SEC. These investigations have been in the areas of securities, defense contracting, environmental law, health care, antitrust, tax, and the financial crisis. In these cases, our clients are individuals who are typically employees of corporations or financial institutions.

In addition to federal investigations, my firm also represents individuals and corporations in complicated federal civil litigation. My firm also conducts internal investigations into potential corporate wrongdoing; for example, I have been retained as counsel for the special litigation committee or audit committee of boards of directors.

Prior to six years ago, my practice also included numerous small-to-medium-sized civil cases and a variety of criminal cases in the Los Angeles Superior Court, in which the clients were individuals and small businesses. My practice also typically included more medium-sized federal civil cases and federal criminal cases in which an indictment had been returned.

- ii. your typical clients and the areas at each period of your legal career, if any, in which you have specialized.

At O'Donnell & Gordon from 1986 to 1987, my practice consisted of representing individuals and small companies in civil litigation.

As an Assistant United States Attorney from 1988 to 1991, my client was the United States of America. I handled solely criminal cases.

At Heller Ehrman from 1991 to 1995, my clients were typically large corporations or financial institutions in civil litigation, such as the Bank of America. I also represented individuals in pro bono matters, including Butino v. FBI (involving a class action of gay and lesbian FBI employees and applicants) and Wharton v. Calderon (court-appointed counsel for a habeas corpus petition for a death row inmate).

At Corbin & Fitzgerald LLP/Corbin, Fitzgerald & Athey LLP, I have represented individuals and companies in criminal and administrative investigations. I have represented individuals who are defendants in criminal cases. I have also represented individuals and companies in civil litigation and I have conducted internal investigations on behalf of companies.

- c. Describe the percentage of your practice that has been in litigation and whether you appeared in court frequently, occasionally, or not at all. If the frequency of your appearances in court varied, describe such variance, providing dates.

The entirety of my practice has always been in litigation. I have appeared frequently in court during the course of my practice. As an Assistant United States Attorney from 1988 to 1991, I appeared in court constantly. At Heller Ehrman from 1991 to 1995, I appeared less than once a month. At Corbin & Fitzgerald LLP/Corbin, Fitzgerald & Athey LLP through 2003, I typically appeared roughly once a month. From 2004 to the present, I have appeared occasionally.

- i. Indicate the percentage of your practice in:
- | | |
|-----------------------------|-----|
| 1. federal courts: | 60% |
| 2. state courts of record: | 20% |
| 3. other courts: | 0% |
| 4. administrative agencies: | 20% |
- ii. Indicate the percentage of your practice in:
- | | |
|--------------------------|-----|
| 1. civil proceedings: | 40% |
| 2. criminal proceedings: | 60% |

- d. State the number of cases in courts of record, including cases before administrative law judges, you tried to verdict, judgment or final decision (rather than settled), indicating whether you were sole counsel, chief counsel, or associate counsel.

I have tried 26 cases tried to verdict: 22 as sole counsel, 2 as chief counsel, and 2 as associate counsel.

- i. What percentage of these trials were:
- | | |
|--------------|-----|
| 1. jury: | 80% |
| 2. non-jury: | 20% |

- e. Describe your practice, if any, before the Supreme Court of the United States. Supply four (4) copies of any briefs, amicus or otherwise, and, if applicable, any oral argument transcripts before the Supreme Court in connection with your practice.

I have not appeared before the Supreme Court of the United States.

17. Litigation: Describe the ten (10) most significant litigated matters which you personally handled, whether or not you were the attorney of record. Give the citations, if the cases were reported, and the docket number and date if unreported. Give a capsule summary of the substance of each case. Identify the party or parties whom you represented; describe in detail the nature of your participation in the litigation and the final disposition of the case. Also state as to each case:

- the date of representation;
- the name of the court and the name of the judge or judges before whom the case was litigated; and
- the individual name, addresses, and telephone numbers of co-counsel and of principal counsel for each of the other parties.

1. United States v. Diaz-Sanchez, No. CR 90-851-MRP (Central District of California); Hon. Mariana R. Pfaelzer

While serving as an Assistant United States Attorney, I investigated and tried several cases arising from the shipment of cocaine in produce trucks from Mexico to California and New York. In particular, I led an investigation arising from the seizure of 2,241 pounds of cocaine in 1989, at that time the second-largest seizure of cocaine in California. The investigation culminated in the identification, indictment, trial and conviction of Diaz-Sanchez, a trucking kingpin. I was the lead counsel at the jury trial of the defendant in 1991. The defendant was sentenced to life in prison.

2. United States v. Velasquez, No. CR 90-772-JGD (Central District of California); Hon. John G. Davies

While serving as an Assistant United States Attorney, I provided leadership to a joint task force of IRS criminal agents and narcotics officers from the Los Angeles Police Department. The task force investigated several cases from 1989 to 1991. The most significant case was the seizure of Unimex, a money laundering front masquerading as a legitimate casa de cambio, i.e., a business for wiring money abroad. I was sole counsel at the trial of the principal of Unimex, defendant Velasquez, who was convicted on money-laundering and narcotics charges.

3. United States v. Affinito, 873 F.2d 1271 (9th Cir. 1989) (Circuit Judges Tang, Norris and Hall)

While serving as an Assistant United States Attorney, I handled numerous appeals. Some of these appeals were from convictions that I obtained in my own trials, but many were appeals in other cases for which I volunteered. One of these appeals was a rare government appeal in which the Ninth Circuit reversed the post-verdict granting of a motion for judgment of acquittal under Federal Rule of Criminal Procedure 29. The jury convicted the defendant in a government contracting case. Subsequent to the verdict, the Supreme Court handed down its decision in McNally v. United States, 482 U.S. 350 (1987). The district court granted a motion for judgment of acquittal and the government appealed on the ground that, despite the label used, the motion in fact should be understood as a motion for a new trial. The Ninth Circuit agreed with the government and held that the Double Jeopardy Clause did not prevent the retrial of the defendant.

4. Buttino v. Federal Bureau of Investigation, No. C-90-1639 (SBA) (Northern District of California); Hon. Sandra Brown Armstrong

Buttino was a gay FBI special agent who was anonymously "outed" to his Special Agent-in-Charge, which ultimately resulted in the removal of his security clearance and concomitant firing as an FBI special agent. Believing his firing was pretextual, Mr. Buttino filed a class action on behalf of all gay and lesbian FBI employees and applicants. At my request, Heller Ehrman decided to represent Mr. Buttino at trial on a pro bono basis. I obtained class certification and then represented Mr. Buttino and the class at trial. After several days of trial in December 1993, the case settled on the following basis: (a) the FBI renounced its prior policy of viewing homosexuality as a "negative factor" in regard to security clearances; (b) the FBI agreed to hire an openly lesbian special agent; and (c) Special Agent Buttino's pension was restored.

5. In re Student Loan Cases (Dai-Ichi Kangyo Bank, et al. v. Bank of America National Trust & Savings Association, et al.), No. CV 89-2286-HLH (Central District of California); Hon. Harry L. Hupp

In the late 1980s and early 1990s, there were defaults projected over $1 billion in federally guaranteed student loans. Certain loan servicers had allowed the federal guarantees to lapse. Therefore, a group of the world's leading banks had to make good on letters of credit that backed bonds collateralized by the student loans. The resulting litigation over this potential $1 billion loss was the largest civil case in the Central District of California. Raymond Fisher led a large team of Heller Ehrman lawyers in representing Bank of America, which was the trustee on the bonds. From 1991 to 1993, I assisted Mr. Fisher and other lawyers in drafting the many motions in the case, including analyzing the applicability of California contract law under Erie Railroad Co. v. Tompkins, 304 U.S. 64 (1938). In particular, I analyzed the role of the jury under California law in interpreting a written contract. The case settled before trial with an initial settlement between the plaintiff banks and Bank of America, and then a subsequent settlement between Bank of America and the accounting firm that had audited the loan servicers.

6. Wharton v. Ayers, No. SACV-92-3469-CJC (formerly Wharton v. Calderon) (Central District of California); Hon. David V. Kenyon, Hon. Gary L. Taylor

In 1991, Heller Ehrman decided to represent a capital habeas corpus petitioner as a pro bono project. Along with Roger Teich, I represented Mr. Wharton for over a decade, both while I was at Heller Ehrman and after I joined Robert Corbin in 1995. I handled extremely complex discovery disputes and wrote the voluminous pleadings that the case required, including opposing an interlocutory appeal to the Ninth Circuit filed by the Attorney General's Office. Wharton v. Calderon, 127 F.3d 1201 (9th Cir. 1996). Through diligent investigation, Mr. Teich and I obtained a memorandum in which the prosecutor admitted that there was little or no evidence to prove first-degree murder. On the basis of this memorandum, I obtained the right to depose the prosecutor. In 1997, I obtained summary judgment from Judge Kenyon in Mr. Wharton's favor. After Judge Kenyon retired, the case was assigned to Judge Taylor, who reversed the grant of summary judgment. I obtained a ruling from Judge Taylor that the Antiterrorism and Effective Death Penalty Act ("AEDPA") did not apply to Mr. Wharton's case. In 2003, I substituted out of the case in favor of Marcia Morrissey, a well-respected criminal defense attorney. The case is now before Judge Cormac J. Carney.

7. EchoStar Satellite Corp. v. NDS Group PLC, No. SACV 93-950-DOC (ANx) (Central District of California); Hon. David O. Carter

This case arose from a dispute between two satellite television providers, DISH Network and DIRECTV. Plaintiff EchoStar provided the security system for DISH Network for the purpose limiting the satellite signal to paying customers. EchoStar alleged that defendant NDS, the security provider for DIRECTV, hacked the EchoStar system with assistance from three individual defendants (Menard, Wilson and Main). The case involved interesting issues arising under the Digital Millennium Copyright Act, 17 U.S.C. § 1201(a)(1)(A), (a)(2), (b)(1), and civil RICO, 18 U.S.C. § 1962(c). In 2005, I successfully moved for dismissal of the case against Menard for failure to state a claim. I also successfully moved for dismissal of the case against Wilson and Main for lack of personal jurisdiction. I later represented Menard and Main as witnesses, including handling litigation in the Central District regarding letters rogatory and hiring counsel for them in Canada.

8. Lockheed Martin Corp. v. The Boeing Co., No. 6:03-CV-0796-Orl-28 KRS (Middle District of Florida); Hon. John Antoon, II, Hon. Karla R. Spaulding; United States v. Satchell, No. 04-1067M (Central District of California)

Lockheed accused three Boeing employees of stealing valuable trade secrets that allegedly gave Boeing an unfair advantage in a competition for missile launches of Air Force satellites. Lockheed filed a civil action in the Middle District of Florida (Orlando). The claimed damages, after trebling pursuant to the antitrust laws and civil RICO statute, would have been over $3 billion. The United States Attorney's Office for the Central District of California launched a grand jury investigation into the alleged theft.

From 2003 to 2005, my law partner Robert Corbin and I represented Satchell, the most senior Boeing manager involved in the case and one of the employees accused of the theft. I prepared the pleadings in the civil case and participated in numerous depositions. The civil case against Mr. Satchell was dismissed as part of a global settlement between Lockheed and Boeing. Mr. Corbin and I also represented Mr. Satchell in the criminal investigation. The government filed a criminal complaint against Mr. Satchell, which the government later dismissed. After additional investigation, the government decided not to seek an indictment against Mr. Satchell.

9. United States v. Newman, No. CR 00-974-DT (Central District of California); Hon. Dickran M. Tevrizian

In 2001, I handled the sentencing of Newman after his guilty plea to securities violations. I obtained a significant downward departure from the sentence suggested by the Sentencing Guidelines. Mr. Newman received a sentence of eight months in community confinement instead of the 18 to 36 months in prison mandated by the Sentencing Guidelines. This departure occurred before the Supreme Court's ruling in United States v. Booker, 543 U.S. 220 (2005).

Mr. Newman had been the CEO of a clothing company and was a respected figure in the garment industry. He pled guilty to conspiring with his CFO to manipulate the amount of revenues in a particular quarter, in violation of the securities laws. I persuaded the district court to depart downward for two reasons. First, I hired an expert economist to opine on the lack of loss arising from Mr. Newman's specific misconduct. Because I handle both civil and criminal cases, I realized that the measure of loss in this case was analogous to damages in a civil case, and that an economist familiar with civil securities class actions would be helpful. The expert persuasively testified that the loss to the company did not result directly from Mr. Newman's misconduct, but rather from the underlying business pressures that led Mr. Newman to manipulate the revenue. Second, I stressed that Mr. Newman's life apart from his conviction had been consistent with the highest ethics, both as a businessman and an officer in the United States Army.

In addition to my federal cases, I have also handled a number of civil and criminal cases in the California courts, including trials, direct appeals and petitions for writ of prohibition or mandate. This was a case in which I represented a qui tam relator, former City Treasurer Wohlner, from 1991 to 1994. Wohlner alleged that certain payments by the City of Hawthorne were improper and resulted from a culture of corruption tolerated by the City Council. This case was one of the first cases under the California False Claims Act, Gov't Code §§ 12650-52, a statute patterned on the federal False Claims Act, 31 U.S.C. §§ 3729-33.

I was retained as trial counsel in the Los Angeles Superior Court. In preparation for trial, I conducted depositions and filed or opposed several motions. The defendants successfully moved for judgment on the pleadings. On appeal, I obtained a reversal of that ruling, which resulted in a published opinion. On remand, I conducted more discovery and wrote additional motions and oppositions. Ultimately, the Superior Court granted summary judgment to the defendants. The client chose not to appeal a second time.

In 1992, I served as a counsel to the Special Advisor to the Board of Police Commissioners (the "Webster Commission"), which investigated the response of the Los Angeles Police Department to the 1992 civil unrest.

In 1994, I served on the Advisory Committee for the Office of the District Attorney of the Los Angeles County Bar Association. The Advisory Committee was formed at the request of District Attorney Gil Garcetti to provide an independent analysis of certain aspects of the District Attorney's Office. The Report of the Advisory Committee was presented in September 1994.

During 2000, I served as a Deputy General Counsel for the Rampart Independent Review Panel, which examined the Los Angeles Police Department in the wake of the Rampart scandal. Because of my work at the United States Attorney's Office, I examined the Narcotics Division.

During 2010 and 2011, I have participated in the Temporary Judge program of the Los Angeles County Superior Court. Volunteer lawyers who complete a training program are certified to serve without remuneration as Judges Pro Tem over small claims calendars. The program is viewed as a service to the Superior Court. I have presided over four small claims calendars. Small claims cases are civil matters that are limited to damages of $7,500. The California Evidence Code does not apply. Lawyers are not allowed to represent the parties and, as a Judge Pro Tem, I am not allowed to hear a case in which a lawyer appears as a party.

19. Teaching: What courses have you taught? For each course, state the title, the institution at which you taught the course, the years in which you taught the course, and describe briefly the subject matter of the course and the major topics taught. If you have a syllabus of each course, provide four (4) copies to the committee.

I have not taught any courses.

20. Deferred Income/Future Benefits: List the sources, amounts and dates of all anticipated receipts from deferred income arrangements, stock, options, uncompleted contracts and other future benefits which you expect to derive from previous business relationships, professional services, firm memberships, former employers, clients or customers. Describe the arrangements you have made to be compensated in the future for any financial or business interest.

I have no deferred income or future benefits.

21. Outside Commitments During Court Service: Do you have any plans, commitments, or agreements to pursue outside employment, with or without compensation, during your service with the court? If so, explain.

No.

22. Sources of Income: List sources and amounts of all income received during the calendar year preceding your nomination and for the current calendar year, including all salaries, fees, dividends, interest, gifts, rents, royalties, licensing fees, honoraria, and other items exceeding $500 or more (if you prefer to do so, copies of the financial disclosure report, required by the Ethics in Government Act of 1978, may be substituted here).

See attached Financial Disclosure Report.

23. Statement of Net Worth: Please complete the attached financial net worth statement in detail (add schedules as called for).

See attached Net Worth Statement.

24. Potential Conflicts of Interest:

- a. Identify the family members or other persons, parties, categories of litigation, and financial arrangements that are likely to present potential conflicts-of-interest when you first assume the position to which you have been nominated. Explain how you would address any such conflict if it were to arise.

The family member who would present a potential conflict of interest would be my twin brother Patrick Raymond Fitzgerald, who is an Assistant United States Attorney for the Central District of California and Chief of the National Security Section. I would address this potential conflict by recusing myself from cases in which my brother had participated, and I would follow the established procedures in the Central District of California for family members of a district judge serving as Assistant United States Attorneys. In that court, there currently are two district judges who have family members serving as Assistant United States Attorneys.

The other persons who would present a potential conflict of interest would be my law partners, Robert L. Corbin and Joel M. Athey, and a handful of other lawyers practicing in the Central District of California with whom I have close friendships. I would address these potential conflicts by recusing myself from cases in which they served as counsel.

I do not believe that other persons, parties, categories of litigation, or financial arrangements are likely to present any potential conflicts of interest

- b. Explain how you will resolve any potential conflict of interest, including the procedure you will follow in determining these areas of concern.

In regard to potential conflicts, I would (a) be alert to potential conflicts pursuant to 28 U.S.C. § 455 and the Code of Conduct for United States Judges, especially Canon 3(c); (b) consult the regulations and advisory opinions promulgated by the Judicial Conference of the United States and its Code of Conduct Committee; (c) rigorously examine my conscience to determine whether a case potentially presented a conflict, or whether there might reasonably appear to be a conflict to lawyers, parties, and the public; (d) consult with the Code of Conduct Committee, the Federal Judicial Center, and the Administrative Office of the United States Courts, as appropriate, if I were in doubt about a particular matter; (e) consult with the Chief Judge of the Central District of California; and (f) scrupulously obey the requirements of the Judicial Conduct and Disability Act of 1980, 28 U.S.C. §§ 351-364.

25. Pro Bono Work: An ethical consideration under Canon 2 of the American Bar Association's Code of Professional Responsibility calls for "every lawyer, regardless of professional prominence or professional workload, to find some time to participate in serving the disadvantaged." Describe what you have done to fulfill these responsibilities, listing specific instances and the amount of time devoted to each.

From 1992 through 1994, I served pro bono as co-counsel and trial counsel to the plaintiffs and class members in Buttino v. FBI, et al., in the Northern District of California. The case resulted in a settlement pursuant to which the FBI renounced its prior policy of viewing homosexuality as a security concern, which made it extremely unlikely that any openly gay or lesbian applicant would be hired. I spent hundreds of hours on this case.

While at Heller Ehrman, I served as court-appointed counsel to a death row inmate for his federal habeas corpus petition. Wharton v. Ayers, No. SACV-92-3469-CJC (formerly Wharton v. Calderon) (Central District of California). Although Heller Ehrman received remuneration pursuant to the Criminal Justice Act, it was far below the firm's usual rates, and the firm's motivation in taking the case was to perform a pro bono service. I spent hundreds of hours on this case.

In 1997, I volunteered to handle an appeal in the Ninth Circuit as part of its pro bono program. I was asked to represent the appellant in Marroquin v. Prunty, No. 96-55996. An indigent prisoner had appealed the denial in the district court of his petition for writ of habeas corpus. The Ninth Circuit affirmed the denial of Mr. Marroquin's petition. I do not recall how much time I spent on this appeal, but I am sure it was at least 75 hours.

In 2004 and 2006, I served as an attorney advisor for the moot court of the Program for Law and Technology of the California Institute of Technology and Loyola Law School. The moot courts involved topics under the Digital Millennium Copyright Act. The moot court teams were comprised of a student at Loyola Law School and an undergraduate at Caltech. I twice volunteered to serve as the "coach" for one of the moot court teams.

26. Selection Process:

- a. Please describe your experience in the entire judicial selection process, from beginning to end (including the circumstances which led to your nomination and the interviews in which you participated). Is there a selection commission in your jurisdiction to recommend candidates for nomination to the federal courts? If so, please include that process in your description, as well as whether the commission recommended your nomination. List the dates of all interviews or communications you had with the White House staff or the Justice Department regarding this nomination. Do not include any contacts with Federal Bureau of Investigation personnel concerning your nomination.

Senators Feinstein and Boxer have appointed bipartisan Judicial Advisory Committees for the Central District of California. For Senator Feinstein, I submitted an application to her Committee on February 9, 2009, and I was interviewed on March 17, 2009. For Senator Boxer, I submitted an application to her Committee on March 10, 2009, and was interviewed on June 19, 2009. It is my understanding that Senator Boxer's Committee recommended my name to her.

Since May 3, 2011, I have been in contact with officials from the Office of Legal Policy at the Department of Justice. On May 31, 2011, I met with representatives of the White House Counsel's Office and the Department of Justice in Washington, D.C. On July 20, 2011, the President submitted my nomination to the Senate.

- b. Has anyone involved in the process of selecting you as a judicial nominee discussed with you any currently pending or specific case, legal issue or question in a manner that could reasonably be interpreted as seeking any express or implied assurances concerning your position on such case, issue, or question? If so, explain fully.

No.

Senator DURBIN. Thank you very much. I imagine there are occasionally times when your brother's name is confused with another Patrick Fitzgerald.

[Laughter.]

Mr. FITZGERALD. Senator, I am told that the e-mails cross with an alarming degree of frequency.

Senator DURBIN. Thank you.

Ms. Ronnie Abrams, thank you for being here, and not only having the support of both of your Senators but also Senator Coons. Please proceed.

STATEMENT OF RONNIE ABRAMS, NOMINEE TO BE DISTRICT JUDGE FOR THE SOUTHERN DISTRICT OF NEW YORK

Ms. ABRAMS. Thank you. I would like to thank first and foremost Senator Gillibrand for her support and encouragement throughout this process and her kind words today. I would like to thank Senator Coons as well for his generous words.

I would like to thank the Committee for its consideration and the President for the tremendous honor of this nomination.

As you heard, I do have with me my family. I would love to introduce them myself. First is my husband, Greg Andres, and my best friend. We have been married for over 10 years. He is a long-time Federal prosecutor, now a Deputy Assistant Attorney General in the Department of Justice.

My three daughters are here. I am hoping no one is sleeping, but that may be. This is Dylan, who is 8; Teddi, who is 6; and Finley, my 2-year-old. We are very proud of all three of them.

My parents, Floyd and Efrat Abrams, are here. I owe so much to both of them, but I would be remiss if I did not note in particular that my father has been my inspiration for my life and love of the law.

My brother, Dan Abrams, with whom I am very close, is also here, as well as a few very close friends.

Thanks very much.

- iv. whether you served as a mediator or arbitrator in alternative dispute resolution proceedings and, if so, a description of the 10 most significant matters with which you were involved in that capacity.

I have never served as a mediator or arbitrator.

b. Describe:

- i. the general character of your law practice and indicate by date when its character has changed over the years.

As an associate in Davis Polk's Litigation Department from 1994 to 1998, I worked on civil matters including ones involving copyright, trademark, false advertising, libel, contract, securities fraud and antitrust claims, as well as criminal matters, in which I assisted in the representation of clients in investigations, at trial and on appeal.

I joined the United States Attorney's Office for the Southern District of New York as an Assistant United States Attorney in the Office's Criminal Division in fall 1998. In that capacity, I represented the United States in a wide range of criminal prosecutions during the investigatory stage, at trial and on appeal. I spent my first year in the General Crimes Unit, where I handled a variety of cases, including ones involving sexual exploitation of children, bank robbery, alien smuggling, immigration, identity theft and money laundering. I then served in the Narcotics, Violent Crime and Public Corruption Units, prosecuting complex cases involving narcotics trafficking organizations, violent gangs and public officials.

Between 2004 and my departure in 2008, I served in a supervisory role at the United States Attorney's Office, as either a Deputy Chief of the Criminal Division or as a Chief (and before that, Acting Chief) of the General Crimes Unit. In overseeing the General Crimes Unit, I (along with a co-chief) was responsible for the supervision and training of all new federal prosecutors and oversaw hundreds of investigations and prosecutions. As a Deputy Chief of the Criminal Division, I participated in policy-making and management of the Office, and was involved in the oversight of various units. I also served as the Department of Justice and New York City Police Department liaison and supervisor for various initiatives, including ones involving crimes against children.

In 2008, I returned to Davis Polk in the newly created position of Special Counsel for Pro Bono. In this role, I litigate and supervise civil and criminal pro bono matters, in addition to overseeing the firm's pro bono program. Among other things, I am a member of the Criminal Justice Act Panel in the Southern District of New York, through which I represent indigent defendants in federal criminal actions. I have also worked on a variety of civil matters, ranging from Fair Labor Standards Act and other federal litigations to family court proceedings. In addition to actively participating in particular matters, I also assist in supervising many more, by, among other things, editing briefs and other court documents, mooting lawyers for upcoming arguments and helping prepare witnesses and lawyers for hearings or trial.

- ii. your typical clients and the areas at each period of your legal career, if any, in which you have specialized.

As an associate at Davis Polk & Wardwell, my clients were primarily large financial institutions, media and other corporate entities. In addition to working on civil matters, I helped represent various entities that were being investigated by U.S. Attorneys' Offices.

As an Assistant United States Attorney and supervisor in the U.S. Attorney's Office, I represented the federal government exclusively in criminal prosecutions. In so doing, I worked with various federal law enforcement agencies such as the Federal Bureau of Investigation, the Drug Enforcement Administration, the Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco, Firearms and Explosives, the United States Marshals Service, the United States Secret Service and United States Immigration and Customs Enforcement, as well as various state and local law enforcement agencies, including the New York City Police Department. At times, I specialized in violent crime, crimes against children, public corruption and narcotics prosecutions and at other times, my caseload was more varied.

In my capacity as Special Counsel for Pro Bono, my clients have included workers seeking to enforce the minimum wage laws, battered women seeking orders of protection, veterans seeking benefits, wrongfully convicted individuals, criminal defendants and others without the means to represent themselves in federal and state actions, in addition to charitable, civic and governmental organizations, including but not limited to non-profit organizations and local District Attorneys' Offices.

- c. Describe the percentage of your practice that has been in litigation and whether you appeared in court frequently, occasionally, or not at all. If the frequency of your appearances in court varied, describe such variance, providing dates.

The vast majority of my practice has been in litigation. As a litigation associate, I was in court on occasion; I tried a murder case in state court, argued an appeal in the appellate division, handled proceedings in family court and either handled or assisted others in handling civil proceedings in federal court, including a hearing in a trademark case and motion to dismiss a libel case.

Over the course of my tenure at the United States Attorney's Office, I appeared in district court frequently, often ranging from once to several times a week, handling arraignments, pre-trial conferences, pleas, sentencing proceedings and hearings. During my trials there (all of which lasted between one and ten weeks), I appeared in court on a daily basis. I also argued appeals in the Court of Appeals for the Second Circuit. After I became a supervisor at the U.S. Attorney's Office in 2004, I appeared in court as the attorney of record less frequently, although I was regularly in court advising the more junior lawyers I supervised.

Since I became Special Counsel for Pro Bono in 2008, I have appeared in court from time to time. Among other things, I am now on the Criminal Justice Act Panel for the Southern District of New York and assigned clients in federal criminal actions. I have also overseen two trials – one civil case in the Southern District of New York and another in Bronx Family Court – as well as numerous appeals in state court.

- i. Indicate the percentage of your practice in:
 1. federal courts: 75%
 2. state courts of record: 20%
 3. other courts: 0%
 4. administrative agencies: 5%
- ii. Indicate the percentage of your practice in:
 1. civil proceedings: 25%
 2. criminal proceedings: 75%
- d. State the number of cases in courts of record, including cases before administrative law judges, you tried to verdict, judgment or final decision (rather than settled), indicating whether you were sole counsel, chief counsel, or associate counsel.

I have tried thirteen cases to verdict. In an additional trial (my fourteenth), the defendant pleaded guilty just prior to summations. Of those trials, one lasted two and a half months and another a month and a half. In nine of those cases, I fully shared all responsibilities preparing for and putting the case before the jury with my trial partner(s), including addressing the jury, examining witnesses and arguing motions. On five occasions, I served as a "second seat," closely supervising more junior attorneys at trial.

- i. What percentage of these trials were:
 - 1. jury: 85%
 - 2. non-jury: 15%
- e. Describe your practice, if any, before the Supreme Court of the United States. Supply four (4) copies of any briefs, amicus or otherwise, and, if applicable, any oral argument transcripts before the Supreme Court in connection with your practice.

I have not practiced before the Supreme Court of the United States.

17. Litigation: Describe the ten (10) most significant litigated matters which you personally handled, whether or not you were the attorney of record. Identify the party or parties whom you represented; describe in detail the nature of your participation in the litigation and the final disposition of the case. Also state as to each case:

- a. the date of representation;

1. United States v. Restrepo, 99 Cr. 1113 (SAS), 05 Civ. 2680 (SAS), and Related Cases

These cases involved the investigation and prosecution of a Colombian racketeering organization that engaged in robbery, murder and narcotics trafficking in New York, New Jersey and elsewhere. The organization, which included gang leader Restrepo and more than 10 others, targeted jewelers and other legitimate businesses as well as drug dealers for robberies. The defendants committed approximately 100 armed robberies. They also committed numerous murders and among their victims was Donald Pagani, a retired detective from the New York City Police Department who was killed during the course of a robbery of a meat company in the Bronx.

After Pagani's murder, Restrepo and numerous co-conspirators fled from the United States. Restrepo and others were later arrested in Colombia and extradited. After most of his co-defendants pleaded guilty, Restrepo proceeded to trial in February 2002. At trial, the government proved Restrepo's guilt through voluminous evidence, including the testimony of more than 75 witnesses and more than 400 items of physical evidence. At the conclusion of the jury trial before the Honorable Shira A. Scheindlin in the United States District Court for the Southern District of New York, Restrepo was convicted on March 25, 2002 of all counts. He was sentenced to life imprisonment. His conviction was affirmed in United States v. Baez, 349 F.3d 90 (2d Cir. 2003) and a subsequent motion to vacate his sentence was denied in Restrepo v. United States, 533 F. Supp. 2d 359 (S.D.N.Y. Jan. 22, 2008).

I prosecuted this case and related cases on behalf of the government and was involved in the investigation and all phases of the prosecution from motions to trial, sentencing, appeal and collateral review. I received the Department of Justice Director's Award For Superior Performance as an Assistant United States Attorney for my work on this matter.

2. United States v. Portee, 01 Cr. 450 (NRB) and Related Cases

This matter involved the investigation and prosecution of the leadership of the United Blood Nation, a violent street gang based on the East Coast of the United States and commonly known as the "Bloods." The investigation, which began in 1999, resulted in a multi-defendant racketeering prosecution, as well as other related federal and state prosecutions, and ended with convictions of the Bloods' founder, top lieutenants and other gang members. This investigation and prosecution solved hundreds of crimes committed along the Eastern seaboard, including attempted murders, assaults, firearms violations, prostitution-related offenses, narcotics trafficking, credit card fraud and identity theft.

After over a dozen defendants pleaded guilty, four defendants, including the Bloods leader and founder Portee and three high-ranking gang members (Jackson, Andrews and Foster) proceeded to trial before the Honorable Naomi Reice Buchwald in the United States District Court for the Southern District of New York. Each of the defendants was charged in various counts of a 39 count indictment. The evidence at trial included the testimony of six cooperating witnesses (five of them former members of the Bloods gang), recorded conversations capturing defendants discussing their respective roles in the Bloods and various crimes, the testimony of numerous victims, law enforcement officers and other witnesses, as well as a host of physical and documentary evidence. Trial commenced on June 19, 2002 and ended on August 27 and 28, 2002, when the jury returned guilty verdicts against Portee, Jackson and Andrews on multiple (but not all) counts. Portee was convicted of, among other things, racketeering, assault, violations of the narcotics and firearms laws and identity theft. (The jury was deadlocked as to Foster but he was ultimately convicted in a subsequent trial.) The convictions of the three defendants were affirmed in United States v. Portee, 123 Fed. Appx. 432 (2d Cir. 2005). Portee was sentenced to 50 years' imprisonment, Jackson to 28 years and Andrews to 29 years.

I represented the government throughout this matter, investigating, charging, litigating motions and trying the case, as well as working on the post-trial litigation and appeal. I received the Department of Justice Director's Award For Superior Performance as an Assistant United States Attorney for my work on this matter.

3. United States v. Griffith, 99 Cr. 786 (HB)

This was a criminal case involving two brothers who recruited underage girls and young women from schools in the Bronx and elsewhere into prostitution. They also videotaped the minors and adult women engaging in a host of sexual acts. Following a jury trial, at which numerous underage girls testified, the Griffiths were convicted on September 22, 2000 of transporting an individual in interstate commerce with the intent that she engage in prostitution, of using a minor to engage in sexually explicit conduct for the purpose of producing a visual depiction of such conduct, and of conspiracy to violate each of the aforementioned laws. The Honorable Harold Baer, United States District Judge for the Southern District of New York, sentenced the brothers to 126 and 120 months' imprisonment, respectively.

On appeal, the Court of Appeals for the Second Circuit upheld the Griffiths' convictions and ruled for the first time that under 18 U.S.C. § 2423(a), a person who "knowingly" transports a minor in interstate commerce for the purpose of prostitution is guilty of a crime, even if he does not have knowledge that the victim was a minor. The Court also rejected a host of other defense claims including various constitutional challenges to their convictions. United States v. Griffith, 284 F.3d 338 (2d Cir. 2002). The District Court opinion can be found at United States v. Griffith, 2000 WL 1253265 (S.D.N.Y. Sept. 5, 2000).

I handled this case on behalf of the government from beginning to end, investigating, charging, litigating motions and trying the case, as well as briefing and arguing the appeal before the Court of Appeals for the Second Circuit and handling the extensive post-trial litigation.

4. People v. Roche, Ind. No. 14851/91

The defendant in this case was charged and convicted of second degree murder in Supreme Court, New York County before the Honorable Richard Lowe. While an associate at Davis Polk, I handled Mr. Roche's appeal, pro bono, together with the Office of the Appellate Defender. My representation of Mr. Roche began in November 1995 and ended in October 1998. I appeared before the Appellate Division, First Department, and argued that the Allen charge that the trial court gave during jury deliberations violated the Due Process Clauses of both the New York and United States Constitutions. The Appellate Division agreed, reversed the conviction and remanded for a new trial. People v. Roche, 239 A.D.2d 270, 658 N.Y.S.2d 16 (1st Div., May 22, 1997).

With colleagues from Davis Polk, I then tried the case in Supreme Court, New York County before the Honorable Renee White in October 1998. The defendant was again convicted after trial. Although I left Davis Polk shortly after Mr. Roche's trial and did not handle his subsequent appeal, the Appellate Division reversed Mr. Roche's conviction for a second time due to the trial court's refusal to charge the jury on the affirmative defense of extreme emotional distress, as we had requested. People v. Roche, 286 A.D.2d 290, 729 N.Y.S.2d 722 (1st Dept. Aug. 30, 2001). The New York Court of Appeals ultimately reversed the order of the Appellate Division and reinstated the conviction. People v. Roche, 98 N.Y.2d 70 (2002).

5. Ke v. Saigon Grill, Inc., 07 Civ. 2329 (MHD)

This case involved a lawsuit brought by 36 restaurant workers at the Saigon Grill, a popular Vietnamese restaurant with two Manhattan locations, for failure to pay minimum wage and overtime under the Fair Labor Standards Act (FLSA) and New York labor law. The defendants paid their delivery workers well below the minimum wage, in some cases less than two dollars an hour, and further failed to pay overtime compensation for work weeks that lasted as long as 80 hours. The plaintiffs were unaware of their rights to be paid the minimum wage and overtime for years as a direct result of the Saigon Grill ignoring its legal obligation to provide its employees with notice of the labor laws.

After a bench trial held in June 2008, the Honorable Michael H. Dolinger, United States Magistrate Judge in the Southern District of New York, awarded the 36 plaintiffs approximately $4.6 million in compensatory and liquidated damages. Ke v. Saigon Grill, Inc., 595 F. Supp. 2d 240 (S.D.N.Y. 2008). The Court found that defendants violated the FLSA and New York labor law by failing to pay plaintiffs the minimum wage and overtime compensation, and that defendants unlawfully reduced plaintiffs' wages by fining plaintiffs for perceived infractions of restaurant rules and by requiring plaintiffs to pay for expenses associated with the purchase and maintenance of bicycles and motor scooters. The Court also found that twenty-two of the plaintiffs were fired in March 2007 in retaliation for planning to bring suit.

I joined the Saigon Grill team upon my return to Davis Polk approximately two months prior to trial, and actively supervised four associates in representing plaintiffs prior to and at trial. I oversaw everything from witness preparation and trial strategy to pre- and post-trial briefing.

6. United States v. Li, 99 Cr. 846 (SAS)

This case stemmed from the investigation and prosecution of alien smugglers – or “snakeheads” – involved in a scheme to smuggle Chinese aliens into the United States through Canada and hold them hostage until their smuggling fees were paid. In June 1999, approximately 100 of these aliens were hidden in an old fishing boat that sailed from the People’s Republic of China to Western Canada. Prior to boarding the vessel, the aliens were held in various locations by individuals with sticks and guns. In Canada, the snakeheads took custody of the aliens, eventually transporting them to New York City, beating some along the way. The aliens were released upon paying their smuggling fees; aliens who did not have the money to pay the smuggling fees were held in various locations throughout the city and beaten. Defendant Li was the snakehead responsible for guarding the aliens once they arrived in New York City.

Co-defendant Zhang pleaded guilty prior to trial and testified as a cooperating witness in defendant Li’s trial; ultimately, Li pleaded guilty prior to summations and entered into a cooperation agreement pursuant to which he provided evidence against other defendants in subsequent hostage taking and alien smuggling cases, including one involving the New York boss of the smuggling scheme.

I handled this case on behalf of the government from the beginning, investigating, charging, litigating motions and trying the case before the Honorable Shira A. Scheindlin in the United States District Court for the Southern District of New York in December 1999. There were no reported decisions in this case.

7. United States v. Danson, 02 Cr. 1052 (CPS)

This case involves the investigation and prosecution of a defendant for using a fraudulent passport, making false statements to the Immigration and Naturalization Service (“INS”) and committing perjury in an INS proceeding as part of a successful effort to obtain asylum in the United States. To support her fraudulent asylum claim, Danson claimed: (1) that her name was Adelaide Abankwah; (2) that her mother was the Queen of her village in Ghana and that she was to succeed her in that role; (3) that in the course of becoming Queen Mother, she would be subject to female genital mutilation (“FGM”); (4) that if she declined to serve as Queen Mother, she would be subject to FGM or killed; and (5) that if she returned to her village, she would be killed.

Through an investigation that spanned from New York to the village in Ghana that Danson said she came from, the government proved Danson's story false at trial. Numerous witnesses from Ghana, among others, testified at a trial before the Honorable Charles P. Sifton in the United States District Court for the Eastern District of New York in January 2003. These witnesses included: (1) an employer for whom the defendant worked for five years under the name Danson; (2) the chief of the defendant's village who testified that neither Danson nor her mother ever were or were supposed to be Queen Mother and that FGM was not practiced by members of their tribe; and (3) an expert on FGM in Ghana who testified that members of Danson's tribe did not practice FGM and that those who do practice FGM in Ghana do not use it as punishment, as Danson had claimed. The defendant was convicted of all counts after trial, and the convictions were affirmed on appeal. United States v. Danson, 115 Fed. Appx. 486 (2d Cir. 2004).

I handled this case on behalf of the government as a Special Assistant United States Attorney for the United States Attorney's Office for the Eastern District of New York from beginning to end, investigating, charging, litigating motions and trying the case, as well as handling the sentencing and arguing the appeal.

8. United States v. Marte, 99 Cr. 868 (MBM)

This case involved seven defendants charged with conspiracy to distribute and possess with intent to distribute five or more kilograms of cocaine. All defendants pleaded guilty prior to trial except for defendant Minaya. At trial before the Honorable Michael B. Mukasey in the United States District Court for the Southern District of New York in August 2000, the government proved Minaya's participation in the attempted delivery of approximately 242 kilograms of cocaine to Minaya's place of business, where it was scheduled to be off-loaded and transported for distribution. Minaya's conviction was affirmed in United States v. Marte, 52 Fed. Appx. 531 (2d Cir. 2002).

Four defendants pleaded guilty prior to trial and the fifth, Ahmed, was convicted in August 2001 of all counts after trial before the Honorable Thomas P. Griesa in the United States District Court for the Southern District of New York. Ahmed's conviction was affirmed in United States v. Ahmed, 67 Fed. Appx. 648, 2003 WL 21369261 (2d Cir. 2003).

10. United States v. Percan, 00 Cr. 1232 (AGS)

This matter involved a conspiracy to steal thousands of airbags from automobiles parked on the streets of New York and resell them to customers throughout the country. Four defendants pleaded guilty prior to trial, but defendant Percan, the owner of All in One Auto, proceeded to trial before the Honorable Allen G. Schwartz in the United States District Court for the Southern District of New York. Percan was convicted on September 24, 1999 on each of the seventeen counts with which he was charged. The evidence at trial demonstrated that Percan purchased over one million dollars worth of automobile airbags from four co-defendants who stole them directly from cars and resold the airbags to customers in each of the fifty states. The evidence also showed that Percan laundered the proceeds of his sales through bank accounts of All in One Auto and that the money from the airbag sales was used to promote the ongoing conspiracy. Percan's conviction was affirmed in United States v. Kalust, 249 F.3d 106 (2d Cir. 2001).

18. Legal Activities: Describe the most significant legal activities you have pursued, including significant litigation which did not progress to trial or legal matters that did not involve litigation. Describe fully the nature of your participation in these activities. List any client(s) or organization(s) for whom you performed lobbying activities and describe the lobbying activities you performed on behalf of such client(s) or organizations(s). (Note: As to any facts requested in this question, please omit any information protected by the attorney-client privilege.)

United States Attorney's Office: During my nine and a half years at the U.S. Attorney's Office, I investigated and prosecuted numerous cases that never proceeded to trial or that are otherwise not detailed above, including ones involving public corruption, bribery, extortion, white-collar crime, perjury, violent crime, bank robbery, kidnapping, racketeering, crimes against children, identity theft and immigration. Among many other cases that resulted in dispositions, I worked extensively on the investigation of a former New York State Assemblyman and labor organization leader who pleaded guilty in March 2008 to racketeering charges that included using embezzlement, fraud and bribes to take money from taxpayers, labor unions and contractors. I stopped working on the matter after I had full-time supervisory duties and prior to the time that he was formally charged.

My most significant legal activities as Chief of the General Crimes Unit entailed supervising and training the Assistant United States Attorneys in the Unit, all of whom were fairly new to the Office. In so doing, I, together with my co-chief, oversaw hundreds of investigations and prosecutions, including grand jury proceedings, trial advocacy, brief writing, discovery practices, plea negotiations, sentencing and pre-trial and post-conviction litigation. As Deputy Chief of the Criminal Division, in addition to helping oversee the work of numerous units, I participated in policy-making and management of the Office, while also serving as Department of Justice and New York City Police Department liaison and supervisor for various initiatives.

Davis Polk: Although the vast majority of my practice is in litigation, as Special Counsel for Pro Bono, I also oversee the pro bono program as a whole and am responsible for particular initiatives and certain relationships that the firm maintains with legal services organizations. As an associate at Davis Polk, I was also involved in representing clients of the firm – generally financial institutions and other large corporations – in various potential criminal and civil matters that did not proceed to litigation or trial.

The New York State Justice Task Force: I presently serve as Counsel to the New York State Justice Task Force, one of the first permanent task forces on wrongful convictions in the United States. The Justice Task Force was created by New York State Chief Judge Jonathan Lippman in May 2009 and its mission is to eradicate the systemic and individual harms caused by wrongful convictions and to promote public safety by examining the causes of wrongful convictions and recommending reforms to safeguard against them in the future. The Task Force's members include judges, district attorneys, police chiefs, defense attorneys, academics, legislators, forensic laboratory directors and victims' advocates from around the state. As Counsel, I run weekly or bi-weekly meetings of various subcommittees on issues ranging from forensics to false confessions and identification procedures. I also help draft the Task Force reports, as well as establish meeting agendas, identify speakers and review cases, academic studies and a host of other materials.

19. Teaching: What courses have you taught? For each course, state the title, the institution at which you taught the course, the years in which you taught the course, and describe briefly the subject matter of the course and the major topics taught. If you have a syllabus of each course, provide four (4) copies to the committee.

Columbia Law School (Fall 2008 – Present): In 2008, I created a Prosecution Externship at the United States Attorney's Office for the Southern District of New York and related seminar for Columbia Law School. The externship offers students the opportunity to learn about investigating and prosecuting federal criminal cases in United States District Court. In light of the fact that I left the United States Attorney's Office before the course began, I never oversaw the externship aspect of the course but have been co-teaching the seminar since its inception in September 2008. The seminar provides an overview of the federal criminal justice system, from the investigation and decision to charge a case through trial and sentencing. Bonnie Jonas, Senior Litigation Counsel in the U.S. Attorney's Office, co-taught the course with me in 2008 and Elizabeth Maringer, Deputy Chief of the Criminal Division in the U.S. Attorney's Office, has done so since 2009. A copy of the course syllabus is provided.

20. Deferred Income/ Future Benefits: List the sources, amounts and dates of all anticipated receipts from deferred income arrangements, stock, options, uncompleted contracts and other future benefits which you expect to derive from previous business relationships, professional services, firm memberships, former employers, clients or customers. Describe the arrangements you have made to be compensated in the future for any financial or business interest.

I will receive payments, upon retirement, from the Federal Employees Retirement System.

21. Outside Commitments During Court Service: Do you have any plans, commitments, or agreements to pursue outside employment, with or without compensation, during your service with the court? If so, explain.

No.

22. Sources of Income: List sources and amounts of all income received during the calendar year preceding your nomination and for the current calendar year, including all salaries, fees, dividends, interest, gifts, rents, royalties, licensing fees, honoraria, and other items exceeding $500 or more (if you prefer to do so, copies of the financial disclosure report, required by the Ethics in Government Act of 1978, may be substituted here).

See attached Financial Disclosure Report.

23. Statement of Net Worth: Please complete the attached financial net worth statement in detail (add schedules as called for).

See attached Statement of Net Worth.

24. Potential Conflicts of Interest:

- a. Identify the family members or other persons, parties, categories of litigation, and financial arrangements that are likely to present potential conflicts-of-interest when you first assume the position to which you have been nominated. Explain how you would address any such conflict if it were to arise.

Cases in which my current law firm, Davis Polk & Wardwell LLP, represented a party or appeared would present a potential conflict of interest. To avoid such a conflict or the appearance of one, I would recuse myself for a period of time from cases in which Davis Polk represented a party or appeared.

My husband is a Deputy Assistant Attorney General in the Criminal Division of the Department of Justice and my father is a partner in the law firm of Cahill Gordon & Reindel LLP. If confirmed, I would recuse myself from matters involving those entities where appropriate, in a manner consistent with the recusal statutes and the Code of Conduct for United States Judges.

At the present time, I cannot think of any category of litigation which, by its nature, would present a conflict of interest for me.

- b. Explain how you will resolve any potential conflict of interest, including the procedure you will follow in determining these areas of concern.

If confirmed, I would handle all matters involving actual or potential conflicts of interest through careful application of the Code of Conduct for United States Judges, as well as other relevant canons and statutory provisions. I would consult my judicial colleagues on these issues as appropriate as well.

25. Pro Bono Work: An ethical consideration under Canon 2 of the American Bar Association's Code of Professional Responsibility calls for "every lawyer, regardless of professional prominence or professional workload, to find some time to participate in serving the disadvantaged." Describe what you have done to fulfill these responsibilities, listing specific instances and the amount of time devoted to each.

As Davis Polk's Special Counsel for Pro Bono, virtually all of the work I do is designed to serve the disadvantaged. I not only work on and supervise particular pro bono matters but I oversee the program as a whole. Included among the many pro bono matters I have participated in or supervised are ones involving criminal matters in federal and state court; litigations brought by workers seeking to enforce the Fair Labor Standards Act; family court actions, primarily involving battered women; disability claims for veterans; and wrongful conviction cases. Among other things, in 2008, I supervised a trial in the Southern District of New York in which 36 delivery workers were awarded over $4.6 million from a restaurant for violations of the minimum wage and overtime laws and last year, I supervised a trial in which we represented a battered woman seeking an order of protection from her abuser in Bronx Family Court. As an associate at Davis Polk, I also did a substantial amount of pro bono work, including representing indigent defendants in criminal cases and battered women in family court.

26. Selection Process:

- a. Please describe your experience in the entire judicial selection process, from beginning to end (including the circumstances which led to your nomination and the interviews in which you participated). Is there a selection commission in your jurisdiction to recommend candidates for nomination to the federal courts? If so, please include that process in your description, as well as whether the commission recommended your nomination. List the dates of all interviews or communications you had with the White House staff or the Justice Department regarding this nomination. Do not include any contacts with Federal Bureau of Investigation personnel concerning your nomination.

In the fall of 2009, I had a conversation with Senator Kirsten Gillibrand, in which she encouraged me to apply for a federal judgeship. In November 2009, I submitted materials to Senator Gillibrand's office, including a resume. In December 2009, I submitted a completed questionnaire to Senator Charles E. Schumer's judicial selection committee and was interviewed by that committee on March 1, 2010. In March 2011, I was asked by a member of Senator Gillibrand's staff to forward the questionnaire I submitted to Senator Schumer's committee and some more recent information to her office, which I did. I was informed in April 2011 that Senator Gillibrand intended to recommend to the President that I be nominated for a judgeship in the Southern District of New York. Since April 8, 2011, I have been in contact with officials from the Office of Legal Policy at the Department of Justice. On May 9, 2011, I interviewed with attorneys from the White House Counsel's Office and the Department of Justice in Washington, DC. On July 28, 2011, the President submitted my nomination to the Senate.

- b. Has anyone involved in the process of selecting you as a judicial nominee discussed with you any currently pending or specific case, legal issue or question in a manner that could reasonably be interpreted as seeking any express or implied assurances concerning your position on such case, issue, or question? If so, explain fully.

No.

Also, state chronologically any unsuccessful candidacies you have had for elective office or unsuccessful nominations for appointed office.

I have not held any public offices. I have not been a candidate for public office or a nominee for appointed office.

- b. List all memberships and offices held in and services rendered, whether compensated or not, to any political party or election committee. If you have ever held a position or played a role in a political campaign, identify the particulars of the campaign, including the candidate, dates of the campaign, your title and responsibilities.

I have not been a member of or held office in a political party or election committee. In or around 1980, I volunteered to help with the campaign of Xavier Suarez, who unsuccessfully ran for a position as Miami City Commissioner. As a volunteer, I canvassed door-to-door on behalf of the candidate.

16. Legal Career: Answer each part separately.

- a. Describe chronologically your law practice and legal experience after graduation from law school including:

- i. whether you served as clerk to a judge, and if so, the name of the judge, the court and the dates of the period you were a clerk;

I did not serve as a clerk to a judge after law school.

- ii. whether you practiced alone, and if so, the addresses and dates;

I have never practiced law alone.

- iii. the dates, names and addresses of law firms or offices, companies or governmental agencies with which you have been affiliated, and the nature of your affiliation with each.

- iv. whether you served as a mediator or arbitrator in alternative dispute resolution proceedings and, if so, a description of the 10 most significant matters with which you were involved in that capacity.

I have never served as a mediator or arbitrator in alternative dispute proceedings.

b. Describe:

- i. the general character of your law practice and indicate by date when its character has changed over the years.

After graduation from law school, I worked as an associate in the General Litigation group at the law firm of Jones Day. I worked extensively on discovery issues, including a series of toxic tort cases involving dioxin emanated from paper mills.

Since 1994, I have spent my entire legal career as an Assistant United States Attorney in the Civil Division of the offices in the Districts of the District of Columbia and Delaware. In that capacity, I have represented the United States and its departments and agencies at both the trial and appellate levels in civil actions filed in both the District of Columbia and Delaware. During the first four years of my tenure as Assistant United States Attorney in the District of Columbia, from 1994 to 1998, I handled cases in which the government was the defendant. From 1998 to 2003, I handled affirmative litigation wherein the government was the plaintiff, primarily pursuant to the False Claims Act.

As Chief of the Civil Division in the District of Delaware from 2003 to 2006, I supervised the litigation of a small staff of attorneys and additionally maintained a case load focusing on False Claims Act cases and environmental enforcement.

Since 2006, when I became the Chief of the Civil Division in the District of Columbia, my practice has been almost exclusively supervisory in nature. I supervise and manage a Division of 40 Assistant United States Attorneys, 6 Special Assistant United States Attorneys (agency detailees), and 31 support staff. The Civil Division of the United States Attorney's Office represents the United States and its departments and agencies at both the trial and appellate levels in civil actions filed in the District of Columbia. The activities of the Civil Division primarily involve defensive civil actions in the United States District Court and United States Court of Appeals. The types of cases handled by the Civil Division include employment cases involving allegations of discrimination; common law tort suits under the Federal Tort Claims Act; challenges to agency actions under the Administrative Procedure Act; requests for records under the Freedom of Information Act and/or Privacy Act; and the defense of government officials sued in their individual capacities for alleged Constitutional violations (Bivens). The Division also brings civil actions under the False Claims Act to recover money owed to the United States Government by those who submit false claims or commit fraud against the government.

- ii. your typical clients and the areas at each period of your legal career, if any, in which you have specialized.

While in private practice at the beginning of my career, most of the work I did was for International Paper Co., defending a series of toxic tort cases involving dioxin emanated from paper mills. Since 1994, my only client has been the United States government.

- c. Describe the percentage of your practice that has been in litigation and whether you appeared in court frequently, occasionally, or not at all. If the frequency of your appearances in court varied, describe such variance, providing dates.

My entire legal career has been spent in litigation. As an associate at Jones Day, I did not appear in court at all. As an Assistant United States Attorney in the District of Columbia from 1994 to 2003, I frequently appeared before the United States District Court for the District of Columbia and occasionally before the United States Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia Circuit. As Chief of the Civil Division in the District of Delaware from 2003 to 2006, I occasionally appeared before the United States District Court for the District of Delaware and once before the United States Court of Appeals for the Third Circuit. As Chief of the Civil Division in the District of Columbia, I rarely, if ever, appear in court.

i. Indicate the percentage of your practice in:

- | | |
|-----------------------------|------|
| 1. federal courts: | 100% |
| 2. state courts of record: | 0% |
| 3. other courts: | 0% |
| 4. administrative agencies: | 0% |

ii. Indicate the percentage of your practice in:

- | | |
|--------------------------|------|
| 1. civil proceedings: | 100% |
| 2. criminal proceedings: | 0% |

- d. State the number of cases in courts of record, including cases before administrative law judges, you tried to verdict, judgment or final decision (rather than settled), indicating whether you were sole counsel, chief counsel, or associate counsel.

Not counting cases that were resolved on the pleadings or by summary judgment, I tried four civil cases to verdict, judgment or final decision. For one of these trials, the only contested issue was damages, as the liability phase had been handled by someone else. I served as lead counsel in three of the trials and as second-chair in the other.

i. What percentage of these trials were:

- | | |
|--------------|-----|
| 1. jury: | 50% |
| 2. non-jury: | 50% |

- e. Describe your practice, if any, before the Supreme Court of the United States. Supply four (4) copies of any briefs, amicus or otherwise, and, if applicable, any oral argument transcripts before the Supreme Court in connection with your practice.

I have never practiced before the Supreme Court of the United States.

17. Litigation: Describe the ten (10) most significant litigated matters which you personally handled, whether or not you were the attorney of record. Give the citations, if the cases were reported, and the docket number and date if unreported. Give a capsule summary of the substance of each case. Identify the party or parties whom you represented; describe in detail the nature of your participation in the litigation and the final disposition of the case. Also state as to each case:

- a. the date of representation;
- b. the name of the court and the name of the judge or judges before whom the case was litigated; and
- c. the individual name, addresses, and telephone numbers of co-counsel and of principal counsel for each of the other parties.

1. United States ex rel. Perkins v. Centennial Healthcare Corp., Civ. No. 02-203 (D.D.C.) (Kollar-Kotelly, J.)

This matter involved allegations of substandard care at the Grant Park nursing home and was resolved through settlement in 2008. Although the matter was referred to us pursuant to the False Claims Act, the focus of our investigation involved resident/patient care. Accordingly, although the resolution of the matter resulted in a financial recovery, the focus of the settlement agreement was the complementary Corporate Integrity Agreement, implemented through HHS, which required significant reporting on, and third-party monitoring of, the care provided to the vulnerable nursing home patients. I began this case as the lead attorney and completed it as a supervisory attorney supervising the work of former AUSA Paul Mussenden.

Co-counsel: AUSA Paul Mussenden, Deputy Chief of Staff and Senior Advisor to the Assistant Secretary, United States Department of the Interior, 1849 C Street, N.W., Washington D.C. 20240, (202) 208-3038.

Opposing Counsel: Eric A. Dubelier, Esq., Reed Smith LLP, 11301 K Street, N.W., Suite 1100 – East Tower, Washington, D.C. 20005, (202) 414-9291.

Relator's Counsel: Steven Pavsner, Joseph, Greenwald & Laake, 6404 Ivy Lane, Greenbelt, Maryland 20770, (240) 553-1211.

2. Evans v. Atwood (USAID), Civ. No. 96-2746 (D.D.C.) (Urbina, J.) (177 F.R.D. 1; 1999 WL 1032811, 38 F. Supp. 2d 25)

This was an age discrimination class action brought by Foreign Service Officers who had been subjected to a reduction in force at the United States Agency for International Development. The case went through multiple rounds of briefing on the merits and class certification, through lengthy and voluminous discovery, and through a bench trial in the fall of 1999. After trial, the case settled. The settlement agreement contained several provisions providing preferential re-hiring treatment to the employees who had been let go because of budgetary necessities, rather than poor performance, allowing these unfortunate employees a measure of substantive assistance that was otherwise not available to them. I was the sole lead attorney until just short of trial, at which point AUSA Humphreys was added to the trial team.

Co-counsel: Michael Humphreys, Assistant United States Attorney, United States Attorney's Office for the District of Nevada, 333 Las Vegas Boulevard South, Suite 5000, Las Vegas, Nevada 89101, (702) 388-6336.

Opposing counsel: Raymond C. Fay; Mehri & Skalet, 1250 Connecticut Avenue, N.W., Washington, D.C. 20036, (202) 822-5100.

3. United States v. Motiva Enterprises, Civ. No. 02-1292 (D. Del.) (Robinson, J.)

In this environmental case under the Clean Air and Clean Water Acts, the government sued owners of an oil refinery at which an explosion occurred, killing one individual, injuring others, and spilling thousands of gallons of sulfuric acid into the Delaware River and the atmosphere. I was involved as part of a sizable team in the factual investigation and lengthy settlement discussions from 2003 through 2006. In this capacity, I reviewed thousands of documents and created a detailed fact chronology that would have formed the basis of much of the subsequent litigation if the case had gone forward. I was also involved as an active member of the negotiation team. The case ultimately settled, resulting in significant injunctive relief in the form of changes in how the refinery was operated that resulted in increased safety for the refinery workers.

Co-counsel: Robert Klotz and John Sither, Senior Attorneys, Environment and Natural Resources Division, 601 D Street, N.W., Washington, D.C. 20530, (202) 514-5516.

Opposing Counsel: Charles Swinburn (departed firm), Morgan Lewis, 1111 Pennsylvania Avenue, Washington, D.C. 20004, (202) 739-3000.

4. United States ex rel. Fletcher v. Pacificare, Civ. No. 98-2709 (D.D.C.) (Robertson, J.)

This matter was a False Claims Act qui tam case in which a provider of health benefit plans to federal workers was alleged to have overcharged the government by not giving the government its best price as required by contract. I was part of a team that settled the matter in 2002 for $87 million which, at the time, was the largest recovery ever for the office. In this capacity, I was centrally involved in the settlement negotiations and helped develop the theory on which a "knowing" violation of the False Claims Act was established.

Co-counsel: Doris Coles-Huff, Assistant United States Attorney, United States Attorney's Office for the District of Columbia, 555 Fourth Street, N.W., Washington, D.C. 20530, (202) 514-7170; Sondra Mills, Consumer Litigation, Opposing Counsel: Joel Michaels, McDermott Will & Emery, 600 13th Street, N.W., Washington, D.C., 20005, (202) 756- 8000; John C. Dwyer, Cooley Godward, LLP, Five Palo Alto Square, 3000 El Camino Real, Palo Alto, California 94036, (650) 843-5228.

Relator's Counsel: Bradley S. Weiss, 513 Central Avenue, 4th Floor, Highland Park, Illinois 60035, (847) 681-9090.

5. Doyle v. United States, Civ. No. 96-0275 (D.D.C.) (Sullivan, J.)

In this medical malpractice case, a retired admiral suffered loss of sensation in his saddle area and incontinence allegedly due to an epidural administered during vein stripping procedure. The plaintiff alleged that the epidural, an extraordinarily safe procedure, was negligently administered. The defense of the claims required extensive work with multiple experts. The matter was settled in 1997 after extensive fact and expert discovery. I was the sole attorney on this matter.

Co-counsel: None.

Opposing Counsel: Gary Freeman (deceased), Harlow Case, Jack Otender & Associates, 888 17th Street N.W., 4th Floor, Washington, D.C. 20006, (202) 879-7777.

6. Polsdorfer v. Gearan (Peace Corps), Civ. No. 96-0078 (D.D.C.) (Flannery, J.).

A Peace Corps physician in Africa brought suit claiming that he had been illegally terminated for exercising his First Amendment rights by refusing to advocate condom usage for the prevention of HIV/AIDS. Because of the high incidence of HIV/AIDS in Africa and the high level of sexual activity by Peace Corps volunteers, the Peace Corps thought it was extremely important that the volunteers be taught about condom usage. But plaintiff believed otherwise and would only advocate abstinence. When plaintiff was terminated based on budget reductions, he sued claiming that it was due to his protected speech on the topic. The government's dispositive motion was granted in 1997 after extensive discovery. Dismissal was affirmed on appeal in 1998. I was the sole attorney on this matter.

Co-counsel: None.

Opposing Counsel: Craig Parshall, 32 Waterloo Street, Suite 19, Warrenton, Virginia 20196, (540) 341-1997.

7. Tomasello v. Rubin, Civ. No. 93-1326 (D.D.C) (Greene, J.), 67 F.3d 612 (D.C. Cir. 1999).

In this case, a Special Agent filed an employment discrimination suit against his employer, the ATF, alleging retaliation and discrimination based on national origin and age. Plaintiff claimed that his Irish-American boss had discriminated against him based on his Italian-American ancestry when he inter alia failed to select him for a number of positions, denied him awards, and transferred him to another office. He also claimed that a number of these actions were also done in retaliation for his EEO activity. Additionally, he also raised a number of Privacy Act claims. I became part of the trial team shortly before trial, was responsible for half of the pretrial pleadings and trial, and was solely responsible for the post-trial pleadings and appeal. Although the plaintiff had alleged about ten years worth of claims involving dozens of allegedly discriminatory acts, the government was only found liable for a single Privacy Act violation and damages were awarded in the amount of $2,000.

Co-counsel: June Jeffries (retired AUSA), 10307 Green Holly Terrace, Silver Spring, Maryland 20902.

Opposing Counsel: Prather Randle (deceased) and John Davis, 1111 14th Street N.W., Washington, D.C. 20005, (202) 408-1952; John F. Karl, Jr., 1090 Vermont Avenue, N.W., Suite 500, Washington, D.C. 20005, (202) 293-3200.

8. Varicon Int'l v. OPM, Civ. No. 96-1124 (D.D.C) (Urbina, J.), 934 F. Supp. 440 (D.D.C. 1996).

This matter involved a challenge by a contractor to the award of a sole source contract. As part of the Clinton Administration's "Reinventing Government" initiative, OPM decided to privatize and spin off its investigation services. To do so, OPM created an employee-owned company and then awarded its investigation contract to that company on a sole source no competition basis. Private companies that already provided investigation services to the government, but were not allowed to compete for the contracts, brought suit. The court denied the motion for preliminary injunction and the parties settled on terms very favorable to the government. I was the sole attorney on this matter.

Co-counsel: None.

Opposing Counsel: Richard Donald Lieberman, 5814 Cheshire Drive, Bethesda, Maryland 20814, (301) 530-8123.

9. Miller v. United States, Civ. No. 01-0551 (D.Del.) (Robinson, J.), 2008 WL 2932161 (3d Cir. 2008).

This case was a personal injury negligence case involving a claim that a postal truck cut off a public bus, requiring it to stop short and injuring the bus's passengers. The government lost the liability phase of the trial, tried by another AUSA. I was counsel for the damages phase and was solely responsible for pre-trial pleadings and trial. After a bench trial in 2006, the court awarded zero damages to the plaintiff. The matter was later affirmed on appeal (handled by another AUSA).

Co-counsel: None.

Counsel for Co-Defendant (DART): Daniel Griffith, Whiteford, Taylor & Preston, 1220 North Market Street, Suite 608, Wilmington, Delaware 19801, (302) 357-3254.

Opposing Counsel: L. Vincent Ramunno, Ramunno & Ramunno, 903 French Street, Wilmington, Delaware 19801, (302) 482-4825.

10. Everett v. United States, Civ. No. 95-0769 (D.D.C.) (Sullivan, J.), 980 F. Supp. 490 (D.D.C. 1997), 158 F.3d 1364 (D.C. Cir. 1998).

This case involved a landowner whose property abutted a national forest who claimed that the government could not prevent him from landing his private helicopter on the federal land. The Forest Service claimed that he could not land his helicopter without a permit and refused to grant a permit because the area at issue was frequented by fisherman and picnickers and, thus, not suitable for helicopter usage. After extensive briefing, summary judgment was entered for the government. The judgment was affirmed on appeal. I was the sole attorney on this matter.

Co-counsel: None.

Opposing Counsel: Roger Marzulla, Marzulla Law, 1150 Connecticut Avenue, N.W., Suite 1050, Washington, D.C. 20036, (202) 822-6760.

18. Legal Activities: Describe the most significant legal activities you have pursued, including significant litigation which did not progress to trial or legal matters that did not involve litigation. Describe fully the nature of your participation in these activities. List any client(s) or organization(s) for whom you performed lobbying activities and describe the lobbying activities you performed on behalf of such client(s) or organizations(s). (Note: As to any facts requested in this question, please omit any information protected by the attorney-client privilege.)

As an Assistant United States Attorney, I participated in many fraud investigations that were resolved short of litigation. The following four matters are examples of these.

1. In re: First Health: False Claims Act investigation involving the contractor responsible for processing Medicaid claims for the District of Columbia. The allegation was that the lack of appropriate controls in the contractor's computer systems resulted in the systematic payment of claims for ineligible beneficiaries, thus, squandering limited government funds. The investigation took place throughout 2002 and was resolved through a $13 million settlement in early 2003. This matter was significant because it returned a significant amount of money to the District's overburdened Medicaid program.

2. In re: Bell Atlantic: False Claims Act investigation involving the contractor responsible for providing telecommunications services to the Department of Education. Bell Atlantic's employees were involved in an elaborate conspiracy with a key agency employee. The agency employee would approve the contractors' fictitious overtime and the contractor would supply the agency employee with telecommunications equipment that would be falsely billed to the agency. The contract employees and the agency attorney were criminally prosecuted and convicted. I pursued Bell Atlantic under a theory of vicarious liability for its employees' illegal acts based on the company's deliberate ignorance of their activities despite obvious red flags. The matter was settled for $2 million in 2003. This matter was significant because it returned a significant amount of money to the defrauded agency.

3. In re: Harbor Health Healthcare & Rehabilitation Ctr.: This matter involved a skilled nursing facility for severely impaired juveniles in Delaware and the allegation that Harbor billed the Medicaid program (paid for by the State and the United States) for substandard care given to its patients (many who died while in its care). The matter was settled in 2005 for a modest financial payment and extensive Corporate Integrity Agreement designed to improve patient care on an ongoing basis. Like the Grant Park case described above, the matter involved creative use of the False Claims Act to indirectly improve patient care for some of Delaware's most vulnerable citizens.

4. In re: Professional Services Industries, Inc.: This matter involved allegations that PSI billed the Delaware Department of Transportation, which in turn billed the Federal Highway Administration, for consulting services that were not provided. Specifically, evidence was developed that indicated that PSI's inspectors were not inspecting the bridges and other highway structures for the length of time or with the thoroughness they claimed. The matter was settled in 2005 for a significant monetary recovery. The matter was significant because it returned a significant amount of money to a defrauded agency, but also because certain fraudulent practices had become widespread in the industry and the investigation and settlement served as a deterrent to other inspection companies (a companion case was also settled with Pennoni, Inc.).

I have never performed lobbying activities or registered as a lobbyist.

19. Teaching: What courses have you taught? For each course, state the title, the institution at which you taught the course, the years in which you taught the course, and describe briefly the subject matter of the course and the major topics taught. If you have a syllabus of each course, provide four (4) copies to the committee.

I have never taught a course at an educational institution.

20. Deferred Income/ Future Benefits: List the sources, amounts and dates of all anticipated receipts from deferred income arrangements, stock, options, uncompleted contracts and other future benefits which you expect to derive from previous business relationships, professional services, firm memberships, former employers, clients or customers. Describe the arrangements you have made to be compensated in the future for any financial or business interest.

None.

21. Outside Commitments During Court Service: Do you have any plans, commitments, or agreements to pursue outside employment, with or without compensation, during your service with the court? If so, explain.

I have no plans, commitments, or agreements to pursue outside employment, with or without compensation.

22. Sources of Income: List sources and amounts of all income received during the calendar year preceding your nomination and for the current calendar year, including all salaries, fees, dividends, interest, gifts, rents, royalties, licensing fees, honoraria, and other items exceeding $500 or more (if you prefer to do so, copies of the financial disclosure report, required by the Ethics in Government Act of 1978, may be substituted here).

See attached Financial Disclosure Report.

23. Statement of Net Worth: Please complete the attached financial net worth statement in detail (add schedules as called for).

See attached Net Worth Statement.

24. Potential Conflicts of Interest:

- a. Identify the family members or other persons, parties, categories of litigation, and financial arrangements that are likely to present potential conflicts-of-interest when you first assume the position to which you have been nominated. Explain how you would address any such conflict if it were to arise.

My wife is a regulatory attorney at the Office of the Comptroller of Currency. I would recuse myself from cases involving that agency generally and regulations she helped draft specifically. My brother is Chief Financial Officer for Del Monte Fresh. I would recuse myself from cases involving that company. I would recuse myself from all civil cases handled by the United States Attorney's Office for the District of Columbia which were filed before my appointment and over which I had supervisory responsibility. I would use existing court procedures to identify the cases in which the conflicts arise and take action accordingly.

- b. Explain how you will resolve any potential conflict of interest, including the procedure you will follow in determining these areas of concern.

It is my understanding that the District Court has procedures in place to identify conflicts based on financial holdings and other concerns. I would, of course, use these existing court procedures to identify the cases in which the conflicts arise and take action accordingly. For example, with respect to the cases handled by the United States Attorney's Office for the District of Columbia, this identical issue has already been confronted with the appointments of the Hon. Royce Lamberth and Hon. John Bates and the court was able to effectively deal with the conflicts. I am also familiar with 28 U.S.C. sections 144 and 455. I would resolve any potential conflict of interest by applying these statutes and the Code of Conduct for United States Judges.

25. Pro Bono Work: An ethical consideration under Canon 2 of the American Bar Association's Code of Professional Responsibility calls for "every lawyer, regardless of professional prominence or professional workload, to find some time to participate in serving the disadvantaged." Describe what you have done to fulfill these responsibilities, listing specific instances and the amount of time devoted to each.

Because of the actual and positional conflicts that frequently arise as a government attorney providing pro bono services, I have not provided traditional pro bono services since becoming a government attorney. However, while I was in private practice, I provided pro bono services: to an individual who sought Social Security Disability benefits because of her inability to work; an individual who sought political asylum based on persecution she would suffer if returned to El Salvador; an elderly couple who faced eviction from their long-held public housing unit based on the illegal acts of their grandson; and a grandmother who sought to legally adopt her grandkids after the untimely death of her daughter. Moreover, I have served the disadvantaged by serving as a mentor to Hispanic high school students in the District of Columbia and Hispanic law students from area law schools.

26. Selection Process:

- a. Please describe your experience in the entire judicial selection process, from beginning to end (including the circumstances which led to your nomination and the interviews in which you participated). Is there a selection commission in your jurisdiction to recommend candidates for nomination to the federal courts? If so, please include that process in your description, as well as whether the commission recommended your nomination. List the dates of all interviews or communications you had with the White House staff or the Justice Department regarding this nomination. Do not include any contacts with Federal Bureau of Investigation personnel concerning your nomination.

In December 2010, I submitted an application to the 17-member Federal Law Enforcement Nominating Commission established by D.C. Delegate Eleanor Holmes Norton to screen applicants for federal judgeships in the District of Columbia, and I was interviewed by the Commission on January 25, 2011. As I understand it, the Commission forwarded at least three names to Delegate Norton. On April 29, 2011, I was interviewed by the Delegate.

Since May 10, 2011, I have been in contact with officials from the Office of Legal Policy at the Department of Justice. On June 10, 2011, I met with officials from the White House Counsel's Office and the Department of Justice in Washington, D.C. On July 28, 2011, the President submitted my nomination to the Senate.

- b. Has anyone involved in the process of selecting you as a judicial nominee discussed with you any currently pending or specific case, legal issue or question in a manner that could reasonably be interpreted as seeking any express or implied assurances concerning your position on such case, issue, or question? If so, explain fully.

No.

Senator DURBIN. Thank you very much.

Ms. Miranda Du, thank you for joining us from Nevada. You have been introduced by the Majority Leader and the other Senator from your State, and the floor is yours.

STATEMENT OF MIRANDA DU, NOMINEE TO BE DISTRICT JUDGE FOR THE DISTRICT OF NEVADA

Ms. DU. Thank you, Senator, and I too would like to thank the Committee for giving me the opportunity to appear before you today.

I want to also thank Senator Reid for recommending me to the President. I want to express my appreciation to the President for nominating me, and, of course, I want to also thank both the Senators from my State, Senators Reid and Heller, for introducing me earlier today.

This is an incredibly proud moment for my family. They wanted to come here. I have a large group of family members, 16, in fact, from California and Arizona, and I would briefly like to introduce them.

My parents, Tina and Peter, and my brother, Joe, flew in from Orange County, California. My sister, Vicki, and her husband, Andy, and their 8-year-old son, Ethan, came in from Scottsdale, Arizona. I have two uncles, two aunts, five cousins, and another relative who all flew in from the Bay Area of California.

The managing partner of my firm, John Frankovich, also joined us here today. He is probably a little stressed out about the length of the hearing because work at my firm has stopped while everyone is convening in the conference room to watch this webcast. [Laughter.]

Ms. DU. I also wanted to acknowledge many family members and friends and colleagues who are also watching on the webcast.

Thank you.

Associate (1994 – 2001)
Partner (2002 – Present)

- iv. whether you served as a mediator or arbitrator in alternative dispute resolution proceedings and, if so, a description of the 10 most significant matters with which you were involved in that capacity.

b. Describe:

- i. the general character of your law practice and indicate by date when its character has changed over the years.

I joined my firm, McDonald Carano Wilson LLP, as an associate in September 1994. My primary area of practice was environmental and water law. I developed an interest in litigation and began to handle litigation matters about a year later. My experience covers every phase of litigation in federal and state courts, from discovery, motion practice and jury trial through appeal before the Nevada Supreme Court and the Court of Appeals for the Ninth Circuit. I have also handled numerous matters, including employment claims, in administrative proceedings before various federal and state agencies. I was appointed as the Chair of my firm's Employment & Labor Law Group in approximately 2003 and have held that position since. In that role, I take the lead in overseeing employment litigation matters and assisting in the development and mentoring of associates in the practice group.

- ii. your typical clients and the areas at each period of your legal career, if any, in which you have specialized.

My typical clients in terms of my civil litigation practice are businesses involved in disputes in federal and state courts. Claims that I have handled include breach of contract, tortious interference, misappropriation, Lanham Act violations, breach of fiduciary duties, unfair lending practices, corporate dissolution, defamation, condemnation and quiet title. My typical clients with respect to my employment law practice are employers.

- c. Describe the percentage of your practice that has been in litigation and whether you appeared in court frequently, occasionally, or not at all. If the frequency of your appearances in court varied, describe such variance, providing dates.

Approximately 90% of my practice involves litigation. Leading up to a trial, I appeared in court more frequently, and during trials, I appeared in court daily. In general, I appear in court more than occasionally to participate in hearings or conferences.

- i. Indicate the percentage of your practice in:

1. federal courts:	80%
2. state courts of record:	15%
3. other courts:	0%
4. administrative agencies:	5%

- ii. Indicate the percentage of your practice in:

1. civil proceedings:	100%
2. criminal proceedings:	0%

- d. State the number of cases in courts of record, including cases before administrative law judges, you tried to verdict, judgment or final decision (rather than settled), indicating whether you were sole counsel, chief counsel, or associate counsel.

I have been involved in four jury trials, three of which occurred in federal court. I served as the second chair in my first trial and in the role of first chair in my second trial. I assisted in the pre-trial preparation, including motion practice and jury instructions, in the other two trials.

- i. What percentage of these trials were:

1. jury:	100%
2. non-jury:	0%

- e. Describe your practice, if any, before the Supreme Court of the United States. Supply four (4) copies of any briefs, amicus or otherwise, and, if applicable, any oral argument transcripts before the Supreme Court in connection with your practice.

I have not appeared before the Supreme Court of the United States.

17. Litigation: Describe the ten (10) most significant litigated matters which you personally handled, whether or not you were the attorney of record. Identify the party or parties whom you represented; describe in detail the nature of your participation in the litigation and the final disposition of the case. Also state as to each case:

- a. the date of representation;
 - b. the name of the court and the name of the judge or judges before whom the case was litigated; and
 - c. the individual name, addresses, and telephone numbers of co-counsel and of principal counsel for each of the other parties.

This was one of the first employment cases that I worked on early in my career. The case involved claims for sexual harassment and retaliation. Plaintiff had a consensual romantic relationship with her supervisor. After their breakup and after she was disciplined for performance reasons, she complained to her employer that her supervisor engaged in sexual harassment, and later claimed she suffered retaliation because of her complaint. Part of the evidence consisted of voluminous email communications between plaintiff and the alleged harasser. I became involved after completion of discovery. I helped draft a motion for summary judgment which the court granted. I then took the debtor's examination of the plaintiff before the United States Magistrate Judge. Plaintiff appealed pro se, and I drafted the answering brief. The Ninth Circuit Court of Appeals reversed and remanded for trial on her claims for sexual harassment and retaliation. I assisted in the trial preparation, including drafting jury instructions. The jury returned a defense verdict.

Pioneer Inn Assocs., Ltd.*, CV-N-97-00399-DHW; certification to Nevada Supreme Court, 257 F.3d 999 (9th Cir. 2001); order by Nevada Supreme Court, 59 P.3d 1237 (Nev. 2002); reversed and remanded, 338 F.3d 981 (9th Cir. 2003); United States District Court for District of Nevada; Hon. David Warner Hagen; 1997 – 2004

This case offered a range of experience, including my first jury trial, oral argument to the Ninth Circuit Court of Appeals and briefing to the Nevada Supreme Court. Plaintiff sued our client, Pioneer Hotel, claiming pregnancy discrimination. Plaintiff claimed she was hired to two different positions and then was discharged on the first day of her employment when her employer discovered she was pregnant. During the course of the litigation, we moved for disqualification and sanctions as a result of ex parte communications by plaintiff's counsel with our client's management employees. The court imposed monetary sanctions against counsel and excluded certain evidence based on those contacts. The court also granted partial summary judgment on three of plaintiff's claims -- those based on her termination and failure to hire to two other positions. We obtained a jury verdict on the remaining claim for failure to hire to a third position. Plaintiff appealed to the Ninth Circuit. That court certified the issue of ex parte communications to the Nevada Supreme Court, which published a decision establishing a new test on the issue of ex parte communications with a party representative. Based on that new test, the Ninth Circuit reversed the sanctions order; it also reversed the partial summary judgment ruling. Following remand, the case was ultimately dismissed. During the course of the case, I defended depositions and conducted written discovery. I drafted discovery motions, a motion for summary judgment, motions in limine and jury instructions. I drafted the appellate briefs and handled oral argument before the Ninth Circuit Court of Appeals. I also assisted in drafting the brief to the Nevada Supreme Court on ex parte communications with a party representative and assisted with oral argument before the Nevada Supreme Court.

3. Villicana v. AIC America, Case No. CV-N-97-00494-DWH (PHA); United States District Court for District of Nevada; Hon. David Warner Hagen; 1997 – 1998

This was the first case that gave me the opportunity to personally handle all aspects of litigation, albeit under the direction of my co-counsel. The case involved discrimination, harassment and retaliation claims against my client based in part on events at a Christmas Party. Plaintiff claimed a guest of an upper management employee made inappropriate comments to her at the company Christmas Party. She complained about the incident and claimed the company not only failed to address her complaint, but terminated her employment in retaliation. I took the plaintiff's deposition, and I took and defended other depositions. I also prepared the motion for summary judgment, which was granted.

4. Barnes v. Scolari's Warehouse Markets Inc., CV-N-98-00158-ECR (PHA); United States District Court for District of Nevada; Hon. Edward C. Reed Jr.; 1998 – 2001

I served as first chair in this jury trial. The dispute involved employment discrimination and retaliation claims. Plaintiff was employed as a janitor. He falsified his timesheets and failed to offer a credible explanation for his conduct during the employer's investigation. His employment was terminated under the employer's zero tolerance policy, but plaintiff claimed he was terminated because of his race and in retaliation for having complained about alleged discrimination. I conducted written discovery, took and defended depositions, and drafted a motion for summary judgment, motions in limine and jury instructions. The jury returned a defense verdict.

Plaintiff sued our client for wrongful termination in violation of Nevada's public policy. She claimed she was discharged for filing a worker's compensation claim. I deposed plaintiff and terminated her deposition after obtaining favorable testimony relating to the reason for termination – she admitted that the employer relied on the physician's determination during the administration of the worker's compensation claim in terminating her employment. I drafted the motion for summary judgment, which the court granted. Plaintiff then appealed to the Nevada Supreme Court. I moved to dismiss for lack of jurisdiction because the appeal was not timely filed. Plaintiff's attorney claimed he did not receive the Notice of Entry of Order. The Nevada Supreme Court remanded and directed an evidentiary hearing on the issue of when the Notice of Entry of the Order granting summary judgment, which triggered the thirty day deadline to appeal, was served. The district court held an evidentiary hearing, at which I testified on the issue of service. The district court found we demonstrated service by mail. The Nevada Supreme Court dismissed the appeal.

This case involved claims for breach of contract and discrimination based on sexual orientation by a former employee. Our client, an insurance company, maintained that plaintiff's employment was terminated for performance reasons. During discovery, I obtained evidence of plaintiff's breach of her employment agreement. I then moved to assert a counterclaim against plaintiff. I did the primary work in the case, including conducting discovery and motion practice. The court granted our motion for summary judgment on plaintiff's claims and our motion for summary judgment on the issue of liability on our client's counterclaim for breach of contract. The case was ultimately dismissed.

I was the lead attorney in charge of defending this employment case. Plaintiff claimed national origin discrimination and retaliation after her employment was terminated for violation of employment policies. I took plaintiff's deposition and prepared the motion for summary judgment, which was granted. The Court found plaintiff failed to establish the essential elements of her claim and the employer had legitimate, non-discriminatory business reasons supporting its decision to terminate her employment.

My client acquired a geothermal plant and hired employees from the former owner. One of the employees subsequently sued both my client and her former employer for gender discrimination, harassment and retaliation. Plaintiff essentially claimed her male co-employees treated her differently because of her gender and management failed to take adequate remedial measures to address her complaints. Plaintiff continued to work for my client from the initiation of the lawsuit through discovery. Both defendants moved for summary judgment. I conducted discovery, including written discovery, and took and defended depositions. I drafted the motion to dismiss and was involved in drafting the motion for summary judgment and handled the oral argument on the summary judgment motion. The court granted summary judgment for both defendants. Plaintiff appealed, and I was involved in drafting the answering brief. The Ninth Circuit affirmed.

This business dispute involved claims by Quixtar Inc. against its former independent business owners, who were seeking to compete with Quixtar. The claims asserted included misappropriation of trade secrets and tortious interference. My firm was involved as local counsel for Quixtar and I was one of the primary attorneys at my firm directly involved in working with co-counsel from three other firms. The nature of the dispute was such that the case was prosecuted and defended with a sense of urgency and was highly contentious. The case spanned nearly three years, and involved countless motions and numerous hearings. For a period of almost two years, motions were filed virtually every few weeks and hearings on multiple motions were held every other month. Discovery disputes covered a range of interesting issues, including discovery into the identity of anonymous bloggers in a commercial context, discovery of communications between a party and its media consultant, subpoenas of electronic documents from third parties and a writ appeal to the Ninth Circuit. I assisted in the review and editing of all motions, the majority of which were drafted by co-counsel, and I handled several of the oral arguments on these motions. The case was ultimately dismissed.

18. Legal Activities: Describe the most significant legal activities you have pursued, including significant litigation which did not progress to trial or legal matters that did not involve litigation. Describe fully the nature of your participation in these activities. List any client(s) or organization(s) for whom you performed lobbying activities and describe the lobbying activities you performed on behalf of such client(s) or organizations(s). (Note: As to any facts requested in this question, please omit any information protected by the attorney-client privilege.)

I supervise litigation and administrative proceedings handled by local counsel in other jurisdictions for a client who has operations in ten other states. I assumed the role of corporate counsel for this client approximately ten years ago and began to manage outside litigation for them for about the last six years. I manage an average of about ten to fifteen active matters, including several lawsuits and arbitrations. In this role, I have had the opportunity to be indirectly involved in litigation before courts and arbitrators in other jurisdictions, but also the privilege to view these matters from the perspective of the receiver of legal services provided by outside counsel.

In 2004, I volunteered to serve on the CM/ECF Attorney Advisory Committee established by the United States District Court for the District of Nevada to assist with the Court's implementation of electronic filings. In 2006, I served on a similar Bench/Bar Committee tasked with the job of helping our local state district court (Second Judicial District Court) to review court rules and procedures for implementation of electronic filings. Participation in these committees gave me the opportunity to participate and provide input into the rules and procedures governing electronic filings before both courts.

I have not performed lobbying activities for any client or organization.

19. Teaching: What courses have you taught? For each course, state the title, the institution at which you taught the course, the years in which you taught the course, and describe briefly the subject matter of the course and the major topics taught. If you have a syllabus of each course, provide four (4) copies to the committee.

I have not taught any courses.

20. Deferred Income/ Future Benefits: List the sources, amounts and dates of all anticipated receipts from deferred income arrangements, stock, options, uncompleted contracts and other future benefits which you expect to derive from previous business relationships, professional services, firm memberships, former employers, clients or customers. Describe the arrangements you have made to be compensated in the future for any financial or business interest.

I do not anticipate receiving any payment from deferred income arrangements other than a 401(k) retirement plan.

21. Outside Commitments During Court Service: Do you have any plans, commitments, or agreements to pursue outside employment, with or without compensation, during your service with the court? If so, explain.

If I am confirmed, I have no plans, commitments, or agreements to pursue outside employment, with or without compensation, during my service with the court.

22. Sources of Income: List sources and amounts of all income received during the calendar year preceding your nomination and for the current calendar year, including all salaries, fees, dividends, interest, gifts, rents, royalties, licensing fees, honoraria, and other items exceeding $500 or more (if you prefer to do so, copies of the financial disclosure report, required by the Ethics in Government Act of 1978, may be substituted here).

See attached Financial Disclosure Report.

23. Statement of Net Worth: Please complete the attached financial net worth statement in detail (add schedules as called for).

See attached Net Worth Statement.

24. Potential Conflicts of Interest:

- a. Identify the family members or other persons, parties, categories of litigation, and financial arrangements that are likely to present potential conflicts-of-interest when you first assume the position to which you have been nominated. Explain how you would address any such conflict if it were to arise.

Cases in which my law firm, McDonald Carano Wilson LLP, represented a party or appeared as a party would present a potential conflict of interest. To avoid such a conflict or the appearance of one, I would recuse myself for a period of at least several years from all such cases. In addition, cases involving my former clients as parties may present a potential conflict of interest. I would follow the guidance of the recusal statutes and the Code of Conduct for United States Judges to recuse myself where appropriate to avoid even an appearance of a conflict of interest.

I do not believe any family members are likely to have cases in the United States District Court for the District of Nevada, either in the capacity of a party or counsel. I would, of course, recuse myself from such cases to avoid an appearance of a conflict of interest.

I cannot think of a category of litigation, which by its nature, would present a conflict of interest for me. I do not have any financial arrangements that would likely present a potential conflict of interest.

- b. Explain how you will resolve any potential conflict of interest, including the procedure you will follow in determining these areas of concern.

I will handle all matters involving actual or potential conflicts of interest through the careful and diligent application of the Code of Conduct for United States Judges and all relevant Canons and statutes.

25. Pro Bono Work: An ethical consideration under Canon 2 of the American Bar Association's Code of Professional Responsibility calls for "every lawyer, regardless of professional prominence or professional workload, to find some time to participate in serving the disadvantaged." Describe what you have done to fulfill these responsibilities, listing specific instances and the amount of time devoted to each.

From 1999 to 2006, while serving on the Board of Directors of Step 2, a non-profit organization devoted to helping women and families through drug and alcohol treatment, I handled legal matters for Step 2 on a pro bono basis. I have also handled several minor matters for other non-profit organizations on a pro bono basis, as well as at a reduced hourly rate. These matters primarily involved employee counseling and termination issues. I volunteered for the All Students College Educated in Nevada Today ("ASCENT") program, which required a three year commitment to mentor a student who aspires to attend college. I volunteered to coach a high school moot court team to participate in the Washoe County Bar Association Moot Court Competition (although the team ultimately was not able to participate because we did not have enough participants).

26. Selection Process:

- a. Please describe your experience in the entire judicial selection process, from beginning to end (including the circumstances which led to your nomination and the interviews in which you participated). Is there a selection commission in your jurisdiction to recommend candidates for nomination to the federal courts? If so, please include that process in your description, as well as whether the commission recommended your nomination. List the dates of all interviews or communications you had with the White House staff or the Justice Department regarding this nomination. Do not include any contacts with Federal Bureau of Investigation personnel concerning your nomination.

On February 18, 2011, I received a telephone call from Senator Harry Reid's staff to schedule a meeting with Senator Reid. On February 21, 2011, I met with Senator Reid about an anticipated vacancy on the United States District Court for the District of Nevada. On March 2, 2011, Senator Reid informed me that he would submit my name to the White House for consideration. Since March 4, 2011, I have been in contact with officials from the Office of Legal Policy at the Department of Justice. On April 8, 2011, I interviewed with attorneys from the White House Counsel's Office and the Department of Justice in Washington, DC. On August 2, 2011, the President submitted my nomination to the Senate.

- b. Has anyone involved in the process of selecting you as a judicial nominee discussed with you any currently pending or specific case, legal issue or question in a manner that could reasonably be interpreted as seeking any express or implied assurances concerning your position on such case, issue, or question? If so, explain fully.

No.

AFFIDAVIT

I, Miranda Mai Du, do swear that the information provided in this statement is, to the best of my knowledge, true and accurate.

(NAME)

(NOTARY)

Senator DURBIN. Thank you.

I would like to ask a general question based on my shadowy memories of the days when I appeared before Federal court judges in Springfield, Illinois, and in Chicago. And I had my favorites based not so much on their intelligence but on their temperament. This is a lifetime appointment, and it has been my observation that it goes straight to the head of some of the nominees once they put the robe on and they forget that they are still human beings with a background in the law and have before them attorneys who are doing their best for their clients.

I would like each of you, if you would, to just spend a brief moment talking about that issue of judicial temperament and what you have learned appearing before judges and what you would bring to the bench given that opportunity. Ms. Du, would you start?

Ms. DU. Thank you, Your Honor. Your Honor? Thank you, Senator. I think that is a very good question. I am used to appearing before the court.

One of the judges I admire the most on our Federal bench is somebody who exudes civility in the courtroom, and he conducts his courtroom with dignity and respect and is very humble. That is one of the qualities I admire. I think that the judges should exemplify our judicial system and should exhibit great temperament and in that way command respect.

Senator DURBIN. Mr. Contreras.

Mr. CONTRERAS. Yes, thank you for the question. I have practiced in the very court for which I have been nominated for the better part of 17 years, and I have appeared before many, many of the judges, and it makes a huge difference, the temperament of the judge. There were a number of judges—no longer on the bench—who even when I won it was less than a pleasant experience to appear. So I will make it a center point of my tenure, if I am so fortunate to be confirmed, to make sure that every party that appears is treated with respect and also is given the opportunity to have their claims heard fairly, regardless of walk of life or position in life.

Senator DURBIN. Thank you.

Ms. Abrams.

Ms. ABRAMS. I think judicial temperament is critically important. It is important for a judge to be patient and to be a good listener and to be humble and to be courteous to all those before him or her, no matter if they are rich or poor, no matter where they come from. I think it is important for a judge to remember that the courtroom can be an intimidating place for people, and it is important to treat everyone with respect and courtesy.

I recall that at a prior hearing one nominee said that people remember being mistreated much longer than they remember if they won or lost. And I think that that is true, and I think that a calm and decent and respectful temperament is critical for just confidence in the system overall.

Senator DURBIN. Mr. Fitzgerald.

Mr. FITZGERALD. As Ms. Abrams said, I think that being a calm and patient and good listener is very much a part of the judicial temperament. It is very important that the parties feel not only that their case was not prejudged, but that they were treated with respect and that their case was seen as important to them. And I would certainly endeavor to project that and to display that to everyone who came into my courtroom.

Senator DURBIN. Thank you. It seems like a very obvious question, I know, and the answers are anticipated. But I believe it is one of the most important elements in being a successful Federal judge, and I hope that—and I know that each of you feel as I do, that temperament is a critical element.

Let me ask you, Ms. Abrams, you served on a task force that the chief judge of New York State created to propose reforms to help safeguard against wrongful convictions. That topic is always in the news: eyewitnesses that get it all wrong, people in jail for decades when it turns out they did not commit the crime. What did you learn in this process that you would bring to the bench?

Ms. ABRAMS. Well, a wrongful conviction is just a grave failure of our criminal justice system. It destroys the life of the person convicted. It lets the actual perpetrator go free. It should never happen, and yet on occasion it does. And I think that it is important for judges to understand the causes of wrongful convictions and be vigilant in every case in ensuring that the case is handled properly and that such a grave injustice does not happen in that judge's courtroom.

Senator DURBIN. Ms. Du, you have an amazing, compelling life story of how you made it to the United States despite great adversity, and your family stuck together and I think virtually all of them are here today, which is a good thing for you. What has that experience being first-generation American meant to you in terms of your work as an attorney? And what would it mean on the bench?

Ms. DU. Having been born and raised initially in a country where the rule of law is not respected helped give me the appreciation for the rule of law and our judicial system. And that was one of the reasons why I decided to go into the law. I wanted to show my family that in this country we can be a part of the system and do well, because they did not get a sense of trust from the Government having lived in Vietnam.

Senator DURBIN. Mr. Contreras, there are so many things I can ask you about. You have an amazing background in the law, working in the U.S. Attorney's Office and the like. But the one thing I have noticed that just jumped off the page was your mentoring of disadvantaged Hispanic students in the District of Columbia as well as Hispanic law students.

Tell me why you felt the need to do that and what you have brought from that experience.

Mr. CONTRERAS. Thank you for that question, Senator. It is something as a first-generation attorney—I did not have a lot of guidance, through no fault of my parents. They just had never gone to college themselves or gone to law school, and knowing how to maneuver the very difficult paperwork or financial aid and all those things that are involved, it is a very complicated process nowadays. I have just felt that having been through it myself and hopefully learned something from those events, that it is my duty to help others that are in the position I was and hopefully can get some help going through the process.

Senator DURBIN. Thanks.

Mr. Fitzgerald, at one point in your career, you represented an FBI special agent named Frank Buttino in a matter in the early 1990's. Mr. Buttino was gay. He had his security clearance revoked and was fired after his superiors at the FBI learned of his sexual orientation. Mr. Buttino filed a lawsuit and was joined by a certified class of gay and lesbian FBI employees.

I understand there was a settlement of this case that contained some important FBI policy changes regarding the treatment of gay and lesbian employees and applicants. Can you discuss the outcome of this matter and your role in the case?

Mr. FITZGERALD. Thank you, Senator. I was approached by Heller Ehrman, the former law firm in San Francisco—I was then working in its Los Angeles office—to work on that case as a pro bono matter, and because of my trial background in the U.S. Attorney's Office and my familiarity with the FBI, I was asked to work on it, which, again, because of that background I was pleased to do so.

Mr. Buttino was the named representative. We brought the case to trial. During trial we, I am pleased to say, reached a mutually agreeable accommodation with the administration and with the FBI. The FBI agreed to no longer use security concerns as a means to keep gays and lesbians from being hired as special agents, and Mr. Buttino's pension was restored.

Senator DURBIN. Thank you.

Senator Lee.

Senator LEE. Thank you, Mr. Chairman.

Mr. Fitzgerald, as the father of twin boys, I am worried about Patrick. You are not going to use this, are you, in order to generate the perception that you are the favorite of your parents?

[Laughter.]

Mr. FITZGERALD. No, Senator, though I did ask him to hold my BlackBerry while I was here in the hearing room, and he told me that he would, but it would not become a habit.

Senator LEE. And I am sure you will return the favor for him at some point whenever he needs you to hold his BlackBerry.

Like some other nominees that we have before our Committee from time to time, you have worked personally and professionally as an activist in various political and legal causes. I do not subscribe to the view that having been an activist in one area or another ought to disqualify anyone from ascending to the bench, and I certainly do not think that is the case in any instance where I have seen someone come before this Committee.

It is our duty, of course, as Senators, especially those of us who were privileged enough to serve on this Committee, to make sure that individuals who have been nominated to a lifetime tenured vacancy in the U.S. court system will uphold the rule of law and make sure that they understand the difference between advocacy and jurisprudence and that they will not engage in any kind of political activism while on the bench. So I feel it is my responsibility to just ask a couple of questions about that.

How would your prior political activities as an advocate and as an activist influence the work that you might do as a Federal judge?

Mr. FITZGERALD. Sir, I do not believe that it would have any influence on my service as a Federal judge. The great bulk of my time since leaving the U.S. Attorney's Office has been as a businessman in Los Angeles representing clients, hoping my firm would do well, and while we have done pro bono work—and I think that is important for lawyers, and I have served on a number of committees dealing with the Federal court system—as I said, the bulk of my practice has been very much as a litigator for clients who have retained us for our expertise. And as a judge, then I would respect the rule of law; I would respect the court system as a system which is trying to do justice for the litigants in front of it pursuant to the facts as they were found, without any reference to the background of the litigants—that is what is required by the judicial oath—and, of course, pursuant to the binding precedent of the Supreme Court and of our circuit court. And that is what the job requires, and it is what I would do. And I would not bring any personal or political views to bear on any of the cases that I determined as a United States district judge.

Senator LEE. And I suppose there are recusal standards that apply to Federal judges that also provide some protection in that regard. You are familiar with those, and you are comfortable with them?

Mr. FITZGERALD. I am, sir, and I certainly would recuse myself from any case where I felt that was required and would certainly give a strong examination of conscience to make sure that my views would not influence any decision I would make as a judge. And I would also be cognizant of the fact that recusal is required not only when I felt that it might be necessary, but when a reasonable onlooker would believe it was necessary as well.

Senator LEE. Thank you. Thank you very much.

Ms. Du, I have a couple questions for you as well. First of all, let me say you have apparently garnered the support of Leif Reid, who I have known for years, and if you can impress Leif, you must be very good. So that is a credential worth having.

Now, you were the lead counsel for the defendant in a civil case years ago, Truckee Meadows Water Authority, in a case that was ultimately dismissed for lack of subject matter jurisdiction in the U.S. District Court for the District of Nevada. You filed a motion to dismiss that did not argue the issue of subject matter jurisdiction, notwithstanding the fact that there was no subject matter jurisdiction in that case.

So I thought I would ask, Why did you not raise the defense of lack of subject matter jurisdiction in that dispute?

Ms. DU. We did not realize that that was a matter that we could raise. We raised the subject matter jurisdiction that the district court disagreed with, but we did not raise that particular issue.

Senator LEE. OK. In that case you filed a third-party complaint against the TMWA's union, the Truckee Meadows Water Authority union. The union notified you in a letter that the Federal subject matter jurisdiction was lacking in that case over either it or your client. You agreed that there was no subject matter jurisdiction, but you, nonetheless, elected to proceed against the union, and the case was dismissed by the court only after the union moved to dismiss for lack of subject matter jurisdiction.

Did you consider filing a second motion to dismiss on that basis?

Ms. DU. I did not. What happened was the union filed a motion to dismiss that the court had not decided, and the plaintiff then dismissed the entire lawsuit.

Senator LEE. The district court, as I understand it in that case, characterized your position to proceed with your third-party complaint against the union as reckless and imposed sanctions for attorneys' fees and costs pursuant to Section 1927 of 28 U.S.C. I was wondering: Do you agree with the district court's assessment in that case that your conduct was reckless?

Ms. DU. I agree with the district judge's analysis in that case that the more prudent course would have been for us to either approach the plaintiff's attorney and ask them to dismiss a second time or file a second motion on our own. And in hindsight, that probably was the course of conduct we should have taken instead of bringing the union.

Senator LEE. You do not agree with the recklessness conclusion?

Ms. DU. I do not believe that I was reckless in that case. We certainly made a mistake and did not pick the best course of action, but I do not believe it was reckless.

Senator LEE. As a judge, you would be careful to look out for subject matter jurisdiction defects in any case, keeping in mind the importance of our limited Federal judiciary?

Ms. DU. Absolutely.

Senator LEE. Thank you, Mr. Chairman.

Senator DURBIN. Thanks a lot.

Let me ask you, Ms. Du, in 17 years with this McDonald Carano Wilson law firm, it appears that most of your work has been civil litigation and most of it has been in a defense capacity, civil defense. Is that a fair summary of most of your practice?

Ms. DU. Most of my practice has been on the defense side. That is correct.

Senator DURBIN. So the question that usually arises when nominees are considered is whether there is a bias based on life experience or legal experience. What could you point to in terms of your own legal career where you were on the other side of the table, perhaps representing a plaintiff or a petitioner in a case against a major corporation or a major interest?

Ms. DU. I believe that a good litigator should be able to look at both sides, both the plaintiff and the defendant sides, to assess each side's strengths and weaknesses. I do not believe I have that bias for one side or the other, and if I was fortunate to be nominated, I believe that a judge's role is to be impartial and to look at both sides.

Senator DURBIN. So if I were a criminal defendant coming before you on the bench, the obvious question, and I think I know the answer, but for the record: What would your feelings be toward a prosecution? Would you take a look at it from the viewpoint of the facts and the law without any bias based on your own personal experience?

Ms. DU. I would. I believe a judge's role is to look at the facts and apply the law and be fair and open to everyone who appeared before the court.

Senator DURBIN. And tell me about your pro bono work as an attorney.

Ms. DU. I have represented several nonprofit organizations in helping them through some of their employment issues, both from the defense and the plaintiff side.

Senator DURBIN. Thank you.

Mr. Contreras, a similar question. Most of your background has been representing the U.S. Government either prosecuting cases against individuals or representing the Government's interest in contractual relationships. And so the same question: What would a criminal defense lawyer think if he drew Judge Contreras in an important case?

Mr. CONTRERAS. Thank you for that question. I do not think anyone would feel like they were not getting a fair shot because, despite the fact that I have defended the Government for the better part of my career, a large part of my job is not just to serve justice with a capital "J" but also served justice with a small "j." And a large part of my job is convincing agencies to do what the law requires, and a lot of that is behind the scenes. Neither the parties nor the court ever see it. But my job is to enforce the law, and regardless of who I represented before assuming the bench, I will have no problem if the Government has not acted according to the law, that it will be held accountable the same way.

Senator DURBIN. Tell me about your own pro bono experience.

Mr. CONTRERAS. Given that I represent—before I worked for U.S. Attorney's Office, I did a lot of pro bono helping folks with Social Security matters and with immigration matters. Representing the United States, I am conflicted now from doing all that sort of work. So I have focused, as you mentioned earlier, on mentoring and dealing with individuals more so than pro bono work in my current tenure. Before I joined the U.S. Attorney's Office, I did a lot of work helping immigration, asylum cases, Social Security cases. I helped someone that was getting evicted from a D.C. housing unit. I helped a grandmother who was trying to adopt their grandchild because of problems with the child's mother.

Senator DURBIN. Thank you.

Ms. ABRAMS, I know you are sitting there saying, "I hope he asks me about the pro bono part."

[Laughter.]

Senator DURBIN. Please proceed and tell me about your experience.

Ms. ABRAMS. Well, I think I have been on all sides of the aisle, to a certain extent. I was a prosecutor for a long time, for 9½ years at the U.S. Attorney's Office for the Southern District of New York. But I have also represented criminal defendants in Federal and State actions. I am on the Criminal Justice Act Panel now in the Southern District of New York.

On the civil side, I have represented both plaintiffs and defendants ranging from very large corporations to individuals seeking to enforce their rights. So I think in terms of impartiality, I do not think it would be questioned because I have been on all sides.

In terms of pro bono work, thank you for the question. Virtually all of the work I do not, is designed to serve the disadvantaged. I am special counsel for pro bono at my law firm now. I litigate cases. I supervise cases. I represent battered women and veterans and criminal defendants and unpaid workers. And then I oversee the program as a whole. So I have done a good deal of pro bono work. I do it now and I did it before I was a prosecutor as well, and I think it is critically important for all lawyers to do.

Senator DURBIN. Thank you.

Mr. Fitzgerald, same question in terms of your balance as you would approach the bench based on your own personal experience, and then, again, any pro bono work that you have done. I cited a case. I believe you already have, but if you could expand on that a bit.

Mr. FITZGERALD. Yes, Senator, I am pleased that my legal career has given me the opportunity to handle both criminal and civil cases and to be on the criminal side and represent both the United States of America and defendants, on the civil side to represent plaintiffs and defendants, individuals and corporations.

Certainly most of the cases I have handled have settled and not gone to trial, and that obviously requires a certain ability to see things from the opposing party's point of view to reach a mutually agreeable settlement.

In terms of pro bono, in addition to the case that you mentioned, I have handled other court-appointed work in both the district court and the court of appeals. I have served, as Senator Boxer mentioned, as a volunteer counsel to two commissions that were investigating the Los Angeles Police Department. And I have also volunteered to be a moot court coach for a local law school that is in partnership with the California Institute of Technology for a high-tech new court program.

Senator DURBIN. Thank you.

Senator Lee.

Senator LEE. Thank you, Mr. Chairman.

Since I have spent my first 5 minutes talking to Mr. Fitzgerald and Ms. Du, I will direct my next question to Ms. Abrams and Mr. Contreras. I would like to ask both of you the same question in that order, starting with you, Ms. Abrams. If you are confirmed as Federal judges, you will be called on constantly to interpret, to offer up a judicial construction of various provisions of Federal law and of the U.S. Constitution. So what I would like to know is: What sources would you consult, would you draw upon in arriving at your construction of a particular provision?

Ms. ABRAMS. Well, the first thing you would do is look at the text of the provision at issue and the structure of that. You would look to the precedent of the Supreme Court and of the court of appeals in the circuit in which you sit, and that is the first two and most important things you do.

If it is a case of first impression and there is no precedent on point, you would look to precedent of the Supreme Court and the relevant court of appeals for analogous provisions. You would look at precedent from other circuits as well as legislative history.

Senator LEE. What ought to drive it? What the legislative body intended or what the language actually says?

Ms. ABRAMS. I think the first thing and most important thing you want to look at is what the language says, and that is your starting point always.

Senator LEE. Mr. Contreras.

Mr. CONTRERAS. Thank you for that question. This issue is actually something I practice on a nearly daily basis in my current capacity as interpreting statutes and defending statutes on behalf of the United States. I follow Chevron from the Supreme Court very clearly. If the statute is clear on its face, that is the end of the story. If it is not, if there is ambiguity, you go to Chevron step two and you see what the administrative agency's reasonable interpretation is of the statute, filling in the gaps. There is no step three about what I think about the statute, and that is where it is. If the agency's interpretation is arbitrary and capricious, then the plaintiff wins. But using the teachings of the Supreme Court and the D.C. Circuit, which has a myriad of cases on this issue, I would have lots of sources of guidance.

Senator LEE. Sure. Well, and on your court Chevron will be of enormous importance. You will, of course, be called upon from time to time to construe statutory provisions outside the unique context of Chevron and its progeny.

What about there? What do you do there? And what specifically do you think about, for instance, legislative history and what role it ought to play?

Mr. CONTRERAS. Well, if the statute is unclear—again, I go to the clear face of the statute. If the language of the statute is clear, even if legislative history is contrary to the clear language of the statute, you do what the statute says. In the end that is the statute that Congress issued.

If it is not, depending on the circumstances, one can look to see if the legislative history is clear, but that is treacherous work. You know, what various folks got into the legislative history may not be why the statute was voted into place. So if the legislative history is very clear and it seems that it clearly was the reason for the statute, I would give it some weight. But it is very hard to do, to decipher legislative history, especially long afterwards.

Senator LEE. Thank you very much to all of you. Thanks for coming today.

Thank you, Mr. Chairman.

Senator DURBIN. Thanks, Senator Lee, for being here today, and I want to thank all of our nominees who have appeared before us, and certainly the Senators and Delegate who came to speak on your behalf.

We will keep the record open for a week. If there are questions that come in either from us or other members of the Committee, I hope you will respond to them on a very timely basis. And I want to thank everyone for being here today.

This Committee will stand adjourned.

[Whereupon, at 4:25 p.m., the Committee was adjourned.]

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERSResponses of Ronnie Abrams*Nominee to be United States District Judge for the Southern District of New York to the Written Questions of Senator Chuck Grassley*1. What is the most important attribute of a judge, and do you possess it?

Response: I believe that the most important attributes of a judge are fidelity to the law, independence, integrity, fairness, good judgment, an appropriate temperament and a commitment to treating all those before her with dignity and respect. I believe that I possess these attributes.

2. Please explain your view of the appropriate temperament of a judge. What elements of judicial temperament do you consider the most important, and do you meet that standard?

Response: I believe that having an appropriate judicial temperament is critical to a judge's ability to administer justice faithfully and to the public's confidence in the judicial system. It is especially important that a judge be consistently fair, respectful, courteous, patient, humble, open-minded, evenhanded and decisive. I believe that, if confirmed as a district judge, my conduct will meet that standard.

3. In general, Supreme Court precedents are binding on all lower federal courts and Circuit Court precedents are binding on the district courts within the particular circuit. Are you committed to following the precedents of higher courts faithfully and giving them full force and effect, even if you personally disagree with such precedents?

Response: Yes.

4. At times, judges are faced with cases of first impression. If there were no controlling precedent that dispositively concluded an issue with which you were presented, to what sources would you turn for persuasive authority? What principles will guide you, or what methods will you employ, in deciding cases of first impression?

Response: If confirmed and faced with a case of first impression, I would start with the text of the provision at issue. If the plain language and structure of the text did not yield a clear answer, I would look to precedents of the Supreme Court and the Court of Appeals for the Second Circuit interpreting analogous provisions, as well as precedent from other federal courts, for guidance.

5. What would you do if you believed the Supreme Court or the Court of Appeals had seriously erred in rendering a decision? Would you apply that decision or would you use your own judgment of the merits, or your best judgment of the merits?

Response: If confirmed, I would faithfully apply any relevant Supreme Court or Second Circuit precedent, regardless of my personal judgment or views of the precedent.

6. Under what circumstances do you believe it appropriate for a federal court to declare a statute enacted by Congress unconstitutional?

Response: It is appropriate for a federal court to declare a statute enacted by Congress unconstitutional if it violates a provision clearly set out in the U.S. Constitution, or if Congress has exceeded its constitutional authority. In considering a constitutional challenge to a statute, a district judge must apply any applicable precedent of the Supreme Court and the Court of Appeals for the circuit in which it sits.

7. As you know, the federal courts are facing enormous pressures as their caseload mounts. If confirmed, how do you intend to manage your caseload?

Response: If confirmed as a district judge, I would establish rules for litigants in an effort to provide clear guidance about my expectations. Among other things, I would set and adhere to firm deadlines for pretrial discovery, motions and trial. In addition, I would monitor my docket closely; encourage mediation or settlement when possible; make productive use of the magistrate judges when appropriate; and strive to decide all matters promptly. To manage my caseload effectively, I would also endeavor to learn more about and use the best practices of fellow judges in my district.

8. Do you believe that judges have a role in controlling the pace and conduct of litigation and, if confirmed, what specific steps would you take to control your docket?

Response: Yes. A critical aspect of the due administration of justice is ensuring that matters are resolved fairly and efficiently and judges play an important role in accomplishing that goal by controlling the pace and conduct of litigation. If confirmed as a district judge, I would take the steps described in my response to Question 7 to control my docket.

9. Please describe with particularity the process by which these questions were answered.

Response: I received these questions on Tuesday, October 11, 2011. Over the course of the next day, I drafted responses to the questions. I discussed my responses with a representative of the Department of Justice and authorized the Department of Justice to transmit them to the Committee.

10. Do these answers reflect your true and personal views?

Response: Yes.

to the Written Questions of Senator Amy Klobuchar

1. If you had to describe it, how would you characterize your judicial philosophy?
How do you see the role of the judge in our constitutional system?

Response: In my view, the role a district judge plays is a very important but limited one. That role is to decide the case or controversy before the court based on the facts before the court and the law as determined by the decisions of the United States Supreme Court and Court of Appeals for the circuit in which the court sits.

2. What assurances can you give that litigants coming into your courtroom will be treated fairly regardless of their political beliefs or whether they are rich or poor, defendant or plaintiff?

Response: All parties are entitled to equal justice under the law, regardless of their economic status, political beliefs, or social status. I believe that my career in the law – in which I have represented both the federal government and defendants in criminal cases, as well as plaintiffs and defendants in civil cases, ranging from large corporations to individuals seeking to enforce their rights – demonstrates my firm commitment to that principle. Throughout my career, including as a federal prosecutor and pro bono attorney, I have endeavored to treat everyone fairly, and with dignity and respect, and if confirmed as a district judge, I would be faithful to the judicial oath and continue to do so.

3. In your opinion, how strongly should judges bind themselves to the doctrine of stare decisis? How does the commitment to stare decisis vary depending on the court?

Response: The doctrine of stare decisis applies to all courts and if confirmed as a district judge, I would firmly adhere to the doctrine.

Responses of Rudolph Contreras
Nominee to be United States District Judge for the District of Columbia
to the Written Questions of Senator Chuck Grassley

1. Although you have had significant experience in a courtroom trying cases, in your Senate Questionnaire you indicated that 100% of your experience has been civil. Do you believe you are prepared to preside over criminal trials? If not, how do you plan prepare yourself to handle criminal cases?

Response: Yes, I believe I will be prepared by the time I preside over my first criminal trial. Although I have not been a prosecutor, I have had significant exposure to criminal law through: 1) my defense of numerous cases brought against prosecutors and federal agents alleging constitutional violations (e.g., due process, excessive force, warrantless searches, etc.); 2) my handling of civil fraud cases in which I worked side-by-side with criminal prosecutors, developing parallel civil and criminal fraud cases (including issuing non-grand jury subpoenas, obtaining search warrants, interviewing witnesses, etc.); and 3) my eight years on the senior staff of two U.S. Attorney's offices, in which I was exposed to a wide variety of complex issues that arise in criminal cases. Additionally, the same rules of evidence apply to both civil and criminal trials. With that said, I will need to work hard to prepare for my first criminal trial. I will consult extensively with my judicial colleagues, with whom I have developed excellent relationships over the last seventeen years. Additionally, I will avail myself of all of the resources available through the Administrative Office of the United States Courts. Finally, I will spend long hours in the library, educating myself about the issues that will arise.

2. What is the most important attribute of a judge, and do you possess it?

Response: I believe the most important attribute of a judge is fairness/impartiality. I believe I possess that attribute. I also believe that patience, even-temperedness, diligence, and intellectual curiosity are important attributes that I possess.

3. Please explain your view of the appropriate temperament of a judge. What elements of judicial temperament do you consider the most important, and do you meet that standard?

Response: The Code of Conduct for United States Judges, Canon 3, describes an appropriate judicial temperament as follows: "A judge should be patient, dignified, respectful, and courteous to litigants, jurors, witnesses, lawyers, and others with whom the judge deals in an official capacity." I concur and add that, as a role model for the community in which one serves, a judge should also exhibit these characteristics toward those with whom he deals in an unofficial capacity. I believe I meet this standard and believe others (colleagues, judges, opposing counsel) concur with this assessment of me.

4. In general, Supreme Court precedents are binding on all lower federal courts and Circuit Court precedents are binding on the district courts within the particular circuit. Are you committed to following the precedents of higher courts faithfully and giving them full force and effect, even if you personally disagree with such precedents?

Response: Yes.

5. At times, judges are faced with cases of first impression. If there were no controlling precedent that dispositively concluded an issue with which you were presented, to what sources would you turn for persuasive authority? What principles will guide you, or what methods will you employ, in deciding cases of first impression?

Response: When faced with a matter of first impression that requires an interpretation of the Constitution, a statute, a regulation, or a rule, if unambiguous, I would rely upon the plain language of the provision. If the plain language is unclear, I would deferentially look at the relevant administrative agency's reasonable interpretation of the provision. I would also look at authority from the United States Supreme Court and Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia Circuit in analogous situations. Next, I would look at precedent from other United States Courts of Appeal and District Courts. If ambiguity remains, I would look at relevant legislative or regulatory history, cognizant that such history is difficult to discern and sometimes inaccurate.

6. What would you do if you believed the Supreme Court or the Court of Appeals had seriously erred in rendering a decision? Would you apply that decision or would you use your own judgment of the merits, or your best judgment of the merits?

Response: I would apply the binding precedent of the United States Supreme Court and the D.C. Circuit, regardless of my personal opinions about the wisdom of the decision.

7. Under what circumstances do you believe it appropriate for a federal court to declare a statute enacted by Congress unconstitutional?

Response: A statute enacted by Congress should be declared unconstitutional only if Congress has clearly exceeded its authority under the Constitution or if controlling United States Supreme Court precedent makes it clear that the statute is unconstitutional.

8. As you know, the federal courts are facing enormous pressures as their caseload mounts. If confirmed, how do you intend to manage your caseload?

Response: The hallmark of my career to date has been my hard work. I expect the same from all of the attorneys I currently supervise. If confirmed, the first principle of my chambers will be continued hard work by me and my staff. I will also work to triage cases to identify those that can be disposed of quickly and those that will require more thorough consideration and complex decision-making. Additionally, I would manage my civil cases with a very hands-on approach that would include: an early scheduling conference to discuss, inter alia, the parties' respective plans for discovery and potential for settlement or referral to mediation; a mid-discovery status conference designed to identify and solve problems before discovery ends and to ensure that the parties are making progress; my availability for a telephone conference to quickly resolve discovery disputes without the need for an extensive motions practice; a post-discovery status conference to set a trial date and substantively discuss potential dispositive motions; and a mandatory post-discovery referral to mediation. Because of the Speedy Trial Act and the much smaller criminal docket in the District of Columbia, less intense management is required in criminal cases in order to control one's docket. Nevertheless, in criminal cases too, after a defendant has had some time to consider his/her plea options, I would issue clear scheduling orders with fixed deadlines for discovery and motions practice. I feel strongly that in both civil and criminal cases, it is imperative that the significant issues be decided by the judge substantially in advance of trial so that the parties can make intelligent decisions about settlement or pleas based on a clear understanding of what evidence will be admitted, witnesses will be heard, and law applied. Such early decision-making by a court provides the clearest route to resolving cases and managing one's docket.

9. Do you believe that judges have a role in controlling the pace and conduct of litigation and, if confirmed, what specific steps would you take to control your docket?

Response: Yes, I believe that a judge must play an active role in controlling the pace and conduct of litigation and, if confirmed, I intend to use all of the mechanisms at my disposal to manage my docket, including those described above in my response to question number eight.

10. Please describe with particularity the process by which these questions were answered.

Response: I carefully reviewed and considered the questions sent to me. I also visited the Senate Judiciary Committee's website and reviewed responses to questions submitted by prior nominees who have been confirmed. After I prepared and edited my responses to the questions, I submitted them to Department of Justice representatives. After a conversation with these representatives, I authorized them to forward my responses to the Committee.

11. Do these answers reflect your true and personal views?

Response: Yes.

Responses of Rudolph Contreras
Nominee to be United States District Judge for the District of Columbia
to the Written Questions of Senator Amy Klobuchar

1. If you had to describe it, how would you characterize your judicial philosophy? How do you see the role of the judge in our constitutional system?

Response: I would not characterize myself as having a particular judicial philosophy. I simply view the role of a judge as treating all parties fairly and with respect, regardless of their identity or claims, approaching each case impartially and with an open mind, and faithfully applying the laws enacted by Congress and interpreted by the United States Supreme Court and the United States Courts of Appeals.

2. What assurances can you give that litigants coming into your courtroom will be treated fairly regardless of their political beliefs or whether they are rich or poor, defendant or plaintiff?

Response: If I am confirmed, all litigants that appear before me can be confident that I will treat them fairly regardless of wealth or station in life. I grew up in very modest surroundings and was exposed to a great number of people of limited means. In contrast, in law school (at the University of Pennsylvania) and at my former law firm (Jones Day), I was exposed to many people of great privilege. I harbor no unfair biases in favor of or against either group. And, of course, in representing the United States for the last seventeen years, I have worked diligently on behalf of all its citizens -- rich and poor. Similarly, although the greater part of my career has been spent representing defendants, I have also represented plaintiffs, both on behalf of the United States, as well as individuals in pro bono matters. Thus, litigants should be assured that I hold no bias for a particular side of a case.

3. In your opinion, how strongly should judges bind themselves to the doctrine of stare decisis? How does the commitment to stare decisis vary depending on the court?

Response: I believe that District Court judges are strongly bound by the doctrine of stare decisis. To ensure predictability and stability in the law, so that citizens can consistently order their lives and affairs, it is paramount that cases with similar facts are decided in a similar fashion and criminal convicts who commit similar offenses are sentenced in a similar fashion. Although I believe that the United States Supreme Court has greater latitude to depart from the doctrine of stare decisis, for these same reasons, it should not depart from the doctrine absent unusual circumstances.

Responses of Miranda Du
Nominee to be United States District Judge for the District of Nevada
to the Written Questions of Senator Chuck Grassley

1. In your article published May 17, 2004 in the Northern Nevada Business Weekly titled “Seek Counsel at First Union Contact” you wrote the following:

“If your employees were trying to unionize, you would probably want to know about it. And, you most likely wouldn’t want to “accidentally” help them organize. Unfortunately, some unions may engage in certain tactics to try to get you to inadvertently recognize the union.”

If you are confirmed as a United States District Judge, would labor unions or others be concerned about your impartiality?

Response: No. The target audience for the article referenced in this question was businesses who may encounter union organization. The article was written from an advocate’s perspective to offer general legal advice to businesses about training and educating their employees on union organization in light of a decision from the Seventh Circuit Court of Appeals. I believe that in our judicial system, an advocate’s role is different than that of a judge. I believe that an advocate’s role is to zealously represent her clients while a judge’s role is to be zealous in applying the laws to the facts of the case before the judge in a fair and impartial manner.

2. In another article profiling members of your law firm, Legal Eagles. Reno Magazine, Sept./Oct. 2006, you were identified as working for a firm that represents large businesses – casinos, grocery chains, and manufacturing companies – that have been sued for discrimination, including age, race, gender, national origin, and disabilities. You were quoted as saying, “Our approach is you have to be aggressive; otherwise you’re sending the message to employees that you’re an easy target to civil claims.”

- a. If confirmed, again I have concerns about the appearance of impartiality in these types of cases.

Response: As stated above, I believe the role of an advocate is different than that of a judge. I believe that as an advocate, I have a duty to represent my clients zealously. In contrast, I believe a judge must be zealous in applying the laws and must do so fairly and impartially without regards to the status of the parties who appear before the court. As an advocate, I have tremendous respect for judges who are fair and impartial. I would aspire to be the kind of judge that I would respect as an advocate.

- b. Can you please explain how you would make the transition from advocate to being a fair and neutral forum to decide and hear cases and controversies?

Response: An advocate's role is to present the best arguments for the client and to anticipate responses to arguments from the opposing party and address them accordingly. A judge's role is to consider arguments presented by all parties and to make a decision about the facts presented based on the applicable laws. I think I can make the transition from an advocate to a judge by being mindful of a judge's role to be fair, impartial and open-minded to the arguments of all parties appearing before the court. I would think of the kind of judge who I would want to appear before – one who would give all parties a fair chance to be heard -- and strive to be that judge.

c. Do you believe most companies are an easy target for frivolous claims?

Response: No. I have handled cases that I believe involve frivolous claims, but I have also handled cases where the claims asserted are not frivolous.

3. I would like to give you an opportunity to address your role in the case of Woods v. Truckee Meadows Water Authority, a 2007 case in the court to which you are now nominated.

a. Were you involved in that case, and if so, what was your role?

Response: I was the partner in charge of handling the case and supervising the work of an associate attorney.

b. As I understand the case, there came a point in the case where a decision was made to pursue a third-party complaint against the local union of the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers. Who made that decision?

Response: The case was filed by our client's employee. The lawsuit asserted claims that were settled during the union grievance process where the Union, International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers, advocated on behalf of plaintiff. In response to the lawsuit, we filed a motion to dismiss plaintiff's claims. The District Court denied our motion, allowing the lawsuit to proceed against our client. At that point, after consultation with the client, we decided to file a third party complaint against the Union for indemnification and contribution. I was involved in making that decision.

c. My further understanding is that the Union's counsel advised in a letter to the Water Authority, that the claims had no basis in law and fact, and further advised that the court lacked subject matter jurisdiction. The letter went on to warn that it (the Union) would seek sanctions if the Water Authority did not withdraw its complaint. Is this accurate, and were you aware of this letter?

Response: The summary of the letter is accurate. The letter was addressed to me and I was aware of it. At that point in time, the District Court had denied our motion to dismiss so the lawsuit was proceeding against our client. Because the Union had represented plaintiff during the union grievance process to resolve the claims that plaintiff sought to challenge in the lawsuit, we believed the Union was a necessary party to the lawsuit.

- d. After additional back and forth between the Union and the Water Authority's counsel, the Union filed its motion to dismiss and the Water Authority did not oppose the motion but agreed the court lacked subject matter jurisdiction. The District Court dismissed the action. Do you agree that dismissal of the action was appropriate?

Response: The District Court dismissed the entire action for lack of subject matter jurisdiction, including both plaintiff's original lawsuit against our client and our client's third party complaint against the Union. I agree that dismissal of the action was appropriate and it was a remedy that our client had sought from the District Court although we did not raise the same issues that the Union raised in its motion to dismiss. In response to the Union's motion to dismiss, plaintiff did not oppose the motion but offered to stipulate to voluntary dismissal of the lawsuit. All parties involved filed a stipulation to dismiss and the District Court entered the order dismissing the entire action. The District Court did not rule on the Union's motion to dismiss our client's third party complaint.

- e. In addressing the sanctions issue, the court stated "Having reviewed the record and considered arguments of counsel at the hearing on this motion, the court finds that although TMWA's counsel acted recklessly ... it did not do so with the intention to harass the union or to proceed for an improper purpose." Accordingly, the court concluded sanctions were warranted against the Water Authority pursuant to 28 U.S.C. 1927. Again, to clarify, you were counsel for the TMWA, correct? At your hearing, you stated you do not believe that you were reckless in that case. Do you have any explanation for what the court described as a reckless action?

Response: I was counsel of record for TMWA. Although I disagree with the Magistrate Judge's finding of recklessness, I think that having the benefit of hindsight, there were more prudent actions that could have been taken to defend plaintiff's lawsuit against our client after the Union raised the jurisdiction issue. But at that time, I believed we pursued the best course of action for our client. After the District Court denied our client's motion to dismiss, we had to defend the claims asserted against our client. Because plaintiff's claims were based on conduct that occurred during the union grievance process, we believed the Union was a necessary party. Our client was seeking indemnification and contribution from the Union in the event plaintiff succeeded in his claims against our client.

- f. The finding of reckless action was not a mere observation of the court, but a legal finding allowing awarding of sanctions pursuant to 28 U.S.C. 1927. If you were not reckless, under what authority did the judge state the sanctions were warranted?

Response: The Magistrate Judge based her finding of reckless action on the fact that in response to the Union's motion to dismiss, our client agreed that the District Court should dismiss the lawsuit because of the jurisdictional defect raised by the Union. The Magistrate Judge found that by doing so, we implicitly admitted that the third party complaint that we brought against the Union was reckless. The Magistrate Judge also reasoned that "[a] more prudent course would have been to raise these very same issues with the plaintiff or to file a second motion to dismiss." While I agree that it would have been more prudent to pursue these other options, I disagree that not pursuing them was reckless.

- g. Is there anything further you would like to add with regard to this case?

Response: As noted above, in hindsight, there were more prudent actions that could have been taken to defend the lawsuit against our client after the Union raised the jurisdiction issue. Specifically, we could have filed a second motion to dismiss with the District Court and waited for a decision before deciding how to proceed against the Union. We also could have approached plaintiff's counsel to ask him to stipulate to dismissal, and based on the fact that plaintiff did offer to dismiss the lawsuit in response to the Union's motion to dismiss, this approach probably would have yielded success. Although we ultimately resolved the sanctions issue with the Union and the District Court entered an order to strike the Union's motion for sanctions as moot, I have learned a great deal from this experience and it has helped me become a better lawyer and if confirmed, a better judge.

- 4. Given that you received a partial "Not Qualified" rating from the ABA's Standing Committee on the Federal Judiciary, I wanted to give you an opportunity to outline your qualifications and experience. I note from your questionnaire that you have no criminal law experience and you state you were "involved in" four jury trials. Would you please explain to the Committee why you are qualified to set as a United States District Judge?

Response: I have been a litigator in federal court for the past seventeen years and I have appeared in federal court on a regular basis. I have represented both plaintiffs and defendants. I was the Chair of a major practice group at a prominent Nevada law firm for over seven years. I have significant litigation experience, including participating in four jury trials. In addition to the jury trials, I have handled a number of preliminary injunction hearings, which are essentially mini-bench trials. I have successfully handled a labor arbitration hearing. I have conducted oral argument before the Ninth Circuit Court of Appeals on three occasions. I have drafted a number of appellate briefs to both the Ninth Circuit Court of Appeals and the Nevada Supreme Court. I have argued and drafted dozens of motions before the federal court. I have taken and defended over fifty depositions and interviews. In addition, I have supervised numerous litigation and arbitration matters in my role as corporate counsel for one of my clients. I think these experiences will help me be successful as a judge if confirmed.

5. Based on your limited experience, are there any skills or experiences you don't have that you think are necessary for a federal judge, and how do you plan to make up for this lack of experience?

Response: I realize that I lack criminal law experience. I believe that I can make up for my lack of experience by being especially studious and diligent in learning this area of the law. In the hope that I would be fortunate enough to be confirmed, I have started by observing a sentencing hearing and gathering general information on our district's criminal docket through conversations with some of our federal district court judges. I also have been monitoring our court's criminal docket for a criminal trial that I can observe. I believe I will have the opportunity to consult with fellow judges in the District of Nevada should I have general questions about the criminal docket. I plan to take full advantage of other available resources, including education programs offered by the Federal Judicial Center and other written publications. I also believe that the knowledge and skills that I have acquired through my civil litigation experience can be applied to criminal matters. For example, the rules of evidence are the same for criminal and civil trials. Deciding criminal cases requires the same reading, analytical and writing skills as in civil cases. I will make it my priority to become proficient in criminal law to ensure that parties who appear before the court have their matters be decided by a well informed judge.

6. What is the most important attribute of a judge, and do you possess it?

Response: I think there are many attributes that are important for a judge to possess, but the most important attribute is integrity. A judge who has integrity will command respect even where the judge rules against a party. I believe I possess the integrity necessary to be a good judge.

7. Please explain your view of the appropriate temperament of a judge. What elements of judicial temperament do you consider the most important, and do you meet that standard?

Response: I think a judge should be fair, impartial, open-minded, civil and humble. As an advocate, I respect judges who exhibit these elements of judicial temperament. They give litigants faith in our judicial process. I would aspire to meet the standard for what I believe to be the appropriate judicial temperament.

8. In general, Supreme Court precedents are binding on all lower federal courts and Circuit Court precedents are binding on the district courts within the particular circuit. Are you committed to following the precedents of higher courts faithfully and giving them full force and effect, even if you personally disagree with such precedents?

Response: Yes. I believe a district court judge's role is to apply binding precedents to the facts of each case before the court. I am committed to following precedents of the United States Supreme Court and the Ninth Circuit Court of Appeals even where I may personally disagree with such precedents.

9. At times, judges are faced with cases of first impression. If there were no controlling precedent that dispositively concluded an issue with which you were presented, to what sources would you turn for persuasive authority? What principles will guide you, or what methods will you employ, in deciding cases of first impression?

Response: I think there are general principles that guide a district court judge in deciding cases of first impression and I would follow such principles. I would look to decisions issued by the United States Supreme Court and the Ninth Circuit Court of Appeals for analogous situations. If no such cases exist, I would expand my search to other federal court of appeals and district court cases for guidance. If the question involves interpretation of a statute, I would first review the express language of the statute and apply the plain meaning of the words used in the statute. If the statute is not clear, I would examine the legislative intent and reach a decision that is narrowed to the facts of the case presented.

10. What would you do if you believed the Supreme Court or the Court of Appeals had seriously erred in rendering a decision? Would you apply that decision or would you use your own judgment of the merits, or your best judgment of the merits?

Response: I would apply the United States Supreme Court decision or the decision of the Ninth Circuit Court of Appeals and not use my own judgment of the merits.

11. Under what circumstances do you believe it appropriate for a federal court to declare a statute enacted by Congress unconstitutional?

Response: I believe it is appropriate for a district court judge to find that a statute is unconstitutional only if the statute clearly violates the United States Constitution or if Congress has clearly exceeded its Constitutional authorities.

12. As you know, the federal courts are facing enormous pressures as their caseload mounts. If confirmed, how do you intend to manage your caseload?

Response: I will do what I have always done -- work diligently and studiously. I plan to prioritize the cases assigned to me and work to ensure they are decided in a timely manner. For cases that have been pending the longest, I would determine whether trial should be scheduled, whether it would be appropriate to order the parties to participate in a settlement conference or whether pending motions need to be decided. I will also work diligently to review pending motions and decide them in a timely manner. I will also utilize Magistrate Judges to help decide pre-trial, non-dispositive motions and preside over settlement conferences as appropriate. I plan to utilize other tools available for judges to help move cases to resolution, including getting updates through status conferences and setting firm deadlines.

13. Do you believe that judges have a role in controlling the pace and conduct of litigation and, if confirmed, what specific steps would you take to control your docket?

Response: Yes. I believe that a judge should be involved in controlling the pace and conduct of litigation. If confirmed, I will hold attorneys accountable for moving their cases along. I will follow Rule 1 of the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure to ensure that parties “secure the just, speedy, and inexpensive determination of every action and proceeding.”

14. Please describe with particularity the process by which these questions were answered.

Response: I received the questions on the afternoon of October 11, 2011. I read through the questions and thought about the issues raised. I also reviewed the materials referenced in some of the questions. I prepared my responses over the course of a couple of days. After I discussed my responses with an official at the Department of Justice, I forwarded my responses to the Department of Justice for review and submission to the Senate Judiciary Committee.

15. Do these answers reflect your true and personal views?

Response: Yes.

Responses of Miranda Du
Nominee to be United States District Judge for the District of Nevada
to the Written Questions of Senator Amy Klobuchar

1. If you had to describe it, how would you characterize your judicial philosophy?
How do you see the role of the judge in our constitutional system?

Response: My judicial philosophy and belief as to the role of the district court judge are the same. The district court judge should be open-minded, fair and impartial and should make decisions based solely on the merits of the case. In doing so, the district court judge should apply the laws to the facts of the case as presented to the court.

2. What assurances can you give that litigants coming into your courtroom will be treated fairly regardless of their political beliefs or whether they are rich or poor, defendant or plaintiff?

Response: I can give absolute assurance that litigants appearing in my courtroom, if I was fortunate to be confirmed, will be treated fairly and equally regardless of their political beliefs or wealth. I think everyone should have equal access to our judicial system. I also think a judge's impartiality affects how advocates and litigants view our legal system. As an advocate, I appreciate and respect judges who are fair and impartial even when they may rule against my clients. I also think litigants are more accepting of a ruling from a judge who gave them a fair chance to be heard.

3. In your opinion, how strongly should judges bind themselves to the doctrine of stare decisis? How does the commitment to stare decisis vary depending on the court?

Response: I believe that district court judges must follow and apply binding precedents established by the United States Supreme Court and the court of appeals with jurisdiction over the circuit. District court judges must commit to the principles of stare decisis and this commitment should not vary depending on the court.

Responses of Michael Walter Fitzgerald
Nominee to be United States District Judge for the Central District of California
to the Written Questions of Senator Chuck Grassley

1. What is the most important attribute of a judge, and do you possess it?

Response: The most important attribute of a judge is integrity, which includes impartiality between the parties and making rulings solely on the basis of the law and the facts. I possess this attribute.

2. Please explain your view of the appropriate temperament of a judge. What elements of judicial temperament do you consider the most important, and do you meet that standard?

Response: My view is that the appropriate temperament conveys to the parties that their case is being fairly and fully heard. The elements of this appropriate temperament are patience, modesty, civility, diligence and punctuality. It is also important to be well-prepared and knowledgeable about the matters before the court, which conveys to the parties that their case is viewed as important and allows a judge to maintain control over his or her calendar. I believe that I meet this standard.

3. In general, Supreme Court precedents are binding on all lower federal courts and Circuit Court precedents are binding on the district courts within the particular circuit. Are you committed to following the precedents of higher courts faithfully and giving them full force and effect, even if you personally disagree with such precedents?

Response: Yes.

4. At times, judges are faced with cases of first impression. If there were no controlling precedent that dispositively concluded an issue with which you were presented, to what sources would you turn for persuasive authority? What principles will guide you, or what methods will you employ, in deciding cases of first impression?

Response: I would first look to cases by the Supreme Court or the Court of Appeals for the Ninth Circuit in analogous areas. If there were no such cases, I would look to cases of other Courts of Appeals for their persuasive authority. In a case involving a statute or rule, I would look to the plain meaning of the text. In the absence of a plain meaning, I would examine the structure of the statute or rule and attempt to ascertain its purpose.

5. What would you do if you believed the Supreme Court or the Court of Appeals had seriously erred in rendering a decision? Would you apply that decision or would you use your own judgment of the merits, or your best judgment of the merits?

Response: I would apply the decision of the Supreme Court or the Court of Appeals.

6. Under what circumstances do you believe it appropriate for a federal court to declare a statute enacted by Congress unconstitutional?

Response: A federal court should, if possible, interpret the statute in a way that avoids the constitutional question. If the constitutional question cannot properly be avoided, it is appropriate to declare a statute unconstitutional if Congress has exceeded its enumerated powers or if the statute contravenes a provision of the Constitution.

7. As you know, the federal courts are facing enormous pressures as their caseload mounts. If confirmed, how do you intend to manage your caseload?

Response: If confirmed, I would establish firm deadlines, especially for trial. I would also issue rulings promptly after hearings. In civil cases, I would actively use the magistrate judges in my District. I would insist that the parties make the required initial disclosures (Fed. R. Civ. P. 26) and comply with the required pretrial procedures (Fed. R. Civ. P. 16). I would also insist that the parties attempt to settle their case by using one of the three procedures set forth in the Local Rules of the Central District of California. In criminal cases, I would obey the Speedy Trial Act. I would also establish a firm motion schedule so that all motions were made and decided early in the case.

8. Do you believe that judges have a role in controlling the pace and conduct of litigation and, if confirmed, what specific steps would you take to control your docket?

Response: Yes, a district judge has a role in controlling the pace and conduct of litigation. If confirmed, I would take the specific steps that I mention in response to Question 7.

9. Please describe with particularity the process by which these questions were answered.

Response: On October 11, 2011, I received these questions from the Department of Justice. On October 12, 2011, I drafted these responses. I then discussed the responses with an official of the Department of the Justice. I finalized my responses and sent them to the Department of Justice on October 14, 2011, to be conveyed to the Committee.

10. Do these answers reflect your true and personal views?

Response: Yes.

Responses of Michael Walter Fitzgerald

to the Written Questions of Senator Amy Klobuchar

1. If you had to describe it, how would you characterize your judicial philosophy?
How do you see the role of the judge in our constitutional system?

Response: The role of a district judge is to decide the questions of facts and law arising from the cases before the court. In our constitutional system, this narrow role requires a district judge to show respect for the elected branches. A district judge should not legislate; he or she should only interpret the statutes enacted by Congress. District judges should confine themselves to this important but narrow role.

2. What assurances can you give that litigants coming into your courtroom will be treated fairly regardless of their political beliefs or whether they are rich or poor, defendant or plaintiff?

Response: If confirmed, I would decide all matters only on the basis of the law (as established by Supreme Court and Court of Appeals for the Ninth Circuit) and the facts (determined without respect to the background of the parties). I believe that my extensive litigation experience is consistent with this commitment. I have handled criminal cases on behalf of both the United States and individual defendants. I have handled a wide variety of civil cases on behalf of both plaintiffs and defendants and on behalf of both individuals and companies.

3. In your opinion, how strongly should judges bind themselves to the doctrine of stare decisis? How does the commitment to stare decisis vary depending on the court?

Response: Judges should firmly bind themselves to the doctrine of stare decisis. This commitment should be followed by all judges.

Responses of Stephanie Thacker
Nominee to be United States Circuit Judge for the Fourth Circuit to the Written Questions of Senator Tom Coburn, M.D.

- 1. Justice William Brennan once said: “Our Constitution was not intended to preserve a preexisting society but to make a new one, to put in place new principles that the prior political community had not sufficiently recognized.” Do you agree with him that constitutional interpretation today must take into account this supposed transformative purpose of the Constitution?

Response: No. I do not agree with this statement.

- 2. Do you believe judicial doctrine rightly incorporates the evolving understandings of the Constitution forged through social movements, legislation, and historical practice?

Response: I do not. Such policy considerations are reserved to the province of the legislature to the extent the legislature wishes to consider them, and are not to be entered into by the judiciary unless instructed to do so by binding Supreme Court precedent.

- 3. Is any transaction involving the exchange of money subject to Congress’s Commerce Clause power?

Response: No. That would be an overly broad interpretation of the limited powers enumerated via the Commerce Clause. Such a broad interpretation would not be consistent with binding Supreme Court precedent found in United v. Lopez, 514 U.S. 549 (1995) and United States v. Morrison, 529 U.S. 598 (2000).

- 4. The U.S. Supreme Court held in District of Columbia v. Heller, 554 U.S. 570 (2008), that the Second Amendment of the United States Constitution “protects an individual right to possess a firearm unconnected to service in a militia, and to use that arm for traditionally lawful purposes, such as self-defense within the home.” As Justice Scalia’s opinion in Heller pointed out, Sir William Blackstone, the preeminent authority on English law for the Founders, cited the right to bear arms as one of the fundamental rights of Englishmen. Leaving aside the McDonald v. Chicago decision, do you personally believe the right to bear arms is a fundamental right?

Response: I respect and would adhere to the individual right to bear arms as set forth in Heller. I would follow binding Supreme Court precedent in this regard.

- a. Do you believe that explicitly guaranteed substantive rights, such as those guaranteed in the Bill of Rights, are also fundamental rights? Please explain why or why not.

Response: Yes. The Supreme Court has held in McDonald v. City of Chicago that certain of the rights guaranteed in the Bill of Rights are, in fact, fundamental having been “deeply rooted in this Nation’s history and tradition.” I respect and would adhere to Supreme Court precedent with regard to these fundamental rights, including their application against the States.

- b. Is it your understanding of Supreme Court precedent that those provisions of the Bill of Rights that embody fundamental rights are deemed to apply against the States? Please explain why or why not.

Response: Please see response to Question 4a above.

- c. The Heller Court further stated that “it has always been widely understood that the Second Amendment, like the First and Fourth Amendments, codified a pre-existing right.” Do you believe that the Second Amendment, like the First and Fourth Amendments, codified a pre-existing right? Please explain why or why not.

Response: If confirmed, I would follow Supreme Court precedent that the Second Amendment, like the First and Fourth Amendments, codified a pre-existing right.

- 5. Some have criticized the Supreme Court’s decision in Heller saying it “discovered a constitutional right to own guns that the Court had not previously noticed in 220 years.” Do you believe that Heller “discovered” a new right, or merely applied a fair reading of the plain text of the Second Amendment?

Response: The Heller decision itself indicates that it was based upon the plain text of the Second Amendment. If confirmed, I would follow this binding Supreme Court precedent.

- a. Similarly, during his State of the Union address, the President said the Supreme Court’s decision in Citizens United v. FEC, 558 U.S. ____ (2010), “reversed a century of law” and others have stated that it abandoned “100 years of precedent.” Do you agree that the Court reversed a century of law or 100 years of precedent in the Citizens United decision? Please explain why or why not.

Response: If confirmed, I would faithfully follow the rule of law as set forth by the Supreme Court in Citizens United. Otherwise, I do not have an opinion on this issue.

- 6. What limitations remain on the individual Second Amendment right now that it has been incorporated against the States?

Response: As recognized by the Supreme Court, there are limitations placed on the individual right to bear arms in the context of certain criminal statutes (18 U.S.C. 922(g)), for example. Otherwise, although the Heller and McDonald opinions recognize that there are limitations on the constitutional right to individual gun possession, the Supreme Court did not fully resolve the extent or legality of any such limitations. If confirmed, I would follow binding Supreme Court precedent in this regard.

- a. In McDonald v. Chicago, the majority wrote: “We made it clear in Heller that our holding did not cast doubt on such longstanding regulatory measures as ‘prohibitions on the possession of firearms by felons and the mentally ill,’ ‘laws forbidding the carrying of firearms in sensitive places such as schools and government buildings, or laws imposing conditions and qualifications on the commercial sale of arms.’”

What if a state passed a law imposing a $2,000 registration fee as a condition for the commercial sale of a firearm? Without stating how you would rule in such a case, please explain how you would conduct your analysis to determine whether the fee violated the Second Amendment right to keep arms?

Response: If I am confirmed, I would confront this issue in the same manner in which I would confront any issue that came before the Court. I would review the text of the statute as well as the text of the Second Amendment and the binding Supreme Court precedent set forth in Heller and McDonald as well as any other binding Supreme Court or Fourth Circuit precedent that may exist at the time. I would then make a decision consistent with such precedent.

- i. To what cases or authorities would you refer? Please be specific.

Response: Please see response to Question 6a above.

- b. What if a state outlawed the carrying and possession of firearms on the grounds of hospitals that have psychiatric wards, regardless of whether they are private? Without stating how you would rule in such a case, please explain how you would conduct your analysis to determine whether that regulation complied with the Second Amendment’s guarantee of the right to bear arms.

Response: Please see response to Question 6a above.

- i. Could a hospital qualify as a “sensitive place?”

Response: This is not something I have heretofore considered, and on which I do not have an opinion without a full and thorough analysis of the context and the law.

- ii. To what cases or authorities would you refer? Please be specific.

Response: Please see response to Question 6a above.

- c. Is the Second Amendment limited only to possession of a handgun for self-defense in the home, since both Heller and McDonald involved cases of handgun possession for self-defense in the home?

Response: Per the Supreme Court decisions in Heller and McDonald, there is an individual and fundamental constitutional right to keep and bear arms. Although the Supreme Court recognized there are limits to this right, it has not specifically addressed the issue raised by this question. However, if confirmed, I would review and follow binding Supreme Court and Fourth Circuit precedent in this regard.

7. In Roper v. Simmons, 543 U.S. 551 (2005), Justice Kennedy relied in part on the “evolving standards of decency” to hold that capital punishment for any murderer under age 18 was unconstitutional. I understand that the Supreme Court has ruled on this matter, but do you agree with Justice Kennedy’s analysis?

Response: The decision of the Supreme Court in Roper, and the analysis therein, is binding precedent, and I would follow it, if confirmed.

- a. Do you agree that the Constitution’s prohibition on cruel and unusual punishment “embodies a principle whose application is appropriately informed by our society’s understanding of cruelty and by what punishments have become unusual?”

Response: If confirmed, I would be required to follow binding Supreme Court precedent in this regard, and I would do so.

- b. How would you determine what the evolving standards of decency are?

Response: I would follow the analytic framework of binding Supreme Court decisions.

- c. Do you think that a judge could ever find that the “evolving standards of decency” dictated that the death penalty is unconstitutional in all cases?

Response: If confirmed, I would follow binding Supreme Court precedent. In this instance, the Supreme Court has ruled that the death penalty is constitutional except in limited circumstances. I would follow such precedent.

- d. What factors do you believe would be relevant to the judge’s analysis?

Response: The factors relevant to a judicial analysis on this issue are the same factors which are to be applied in judicial analysis of any issue, that is, a review of Supreme Court precedent. In this instance, Supreme Court precedence is clear. The death penalty is constitutional except in limited circumstances.

- e. When determining what the “evolving standards of decency” are, justices have looked to different standards. Some justices have justified their decision by looking to the laws of various American states,¹ in addition to foreign law, and in other cases have looked solely to the laws and traditions of foreign countries.² Do you believe either standard has merit when interpreting the text of the Constitution?

Response: Both standards have some merit, but only to the extent directed by, and limited by, the Supreme Court. Specifically, with respect to the Eighth Amendment, the Supreme Court has held that both state laws and foreign laws are relevant in determining “evolving standards of decency.” Roper v. Simmons, 543 U.S. 551 (2005), at 564, 575. Foreign laws are not controlling, however, in interpreting the Constitution. Roper at 575. If confirmed, I would not consider state laws or foreign law in interpreting the Constitution unless directed to do so by the Supreme Court.

- i. If so, do you believe one standard more meritorious than the other? Please explain why or why not.

Response: Please see my response to Question 7e.

8. In your view, is it ever proper for judges to rely on foreign or international laws or decisions in determining the meaning of the Constitution?

Response: No. It is not proper to rely on foreign or international laws or decisions in determining the meaning of the Constitution, unless directed by the Supreme Court to do so. First and foremost, the interpretation of the Constitution should be based upon the text of the Constitution itself.

- a. Is it appropriate for judges to look for foreign countries for “wise solutions” and “good ideas” to legal and constitutional problems?

Response: No.

- b. If so, under what circumstances would you consider foreign law when interpreting the Constitution?

Response: I do not believe it is appropriate to consider foreign law when interpreting the United States Constitution, unless directed by the Supreme Court to do so.

- c. Do you believe foreign nations have ideas and solutions to legal problems that could contribute to the proper interpretation of our laws?

² Graham v. Florida, 130 S.Ct. 2011, 2033-34.

Response: I do not believe it is appropriate to consider foreign law when interpreting the United States Constitution, unless directed by the Supreme Court to do so. The narrow circumstances when the Supreme Court may so direct may include treaty obligations.

d. Would you consider foreign law when interpreting the Eighth Amendment? Other amendments?

Response: No, unless I was required by binding Supreme Court precedent to do so.

9. You have spent much of your career fighting child pornography and child sexual exploitation. Under current law, what factors can a judge consider to support his or her decision to depart downward from the sentencing guidelines when issuing a sentence?

Response: Although the Sentencing Guidelines are now advisory rather than mandatory, they should be accorded deference and are an important component to achieving fairness, uniformity, and justice in sentencing. The Guidelines themselves provide the standards applicable for various grounds for departure. Typically, these grounds are limited in nature and include factual scenarios that are well outside the norm for a given offense. There is also a body of Fourth Circuit precedent applying the various limited grounds for departure to a variety of factual scenarios. Additionally, a judge must also take into account the sentencing factors set forth in 18 USC 3553(a).

Responses of Stephanie Thacker
Nominee to be United States Circuit Judge for the Fourth Circuit
to the Written Questions of Senator Chuck Grassley

- 1. While your Senate Questionnaire indicates litigation experience, there is less evidence of your experience in appellate practice. Could you please describe your appellate experience for the Committee? In doing so, please inform the Committee how many cases you have argued at the appellate level and how many appellate briefs you have written.

Response: Given the nature of the practice at the United States Attorney's Office for the Southern District of West Virginia as well as the nature of private practice with my law firm, appellate work has been part and parcel of nearly the entire breadth of my 21 year litigation career. While with the United States Attorney's Office for the Southern District of West Virginia, I was in the General Criminal Division. There was not a separate appellate section in that office. Therefore, as an Assistant United States Attorney, I was responsible for each case I handled from the investigation stage through appeal. As a result, I wrote a number of appellate briefs during my tenure with that office and also argued an appeal before the Fourth Circuit Court of Appeals. While with the Department of Justice Child Exploitation and Obscenity Section, I also assisted in appellate brief writing in a number of prosecutions I handled around the country. Additionally, part of my role with the Child Exploitation and Obscenity Section included review and analysis of the Apprendi v. New Jersey, 530 U.S. 466 (2000), Ashcroft v. Free Speech Coalition, 535 U.S. 234 (2002), and United States v. Booker, 543 U.S. 220 (2005) Supreme Court decisions in order to help draft appellate and prosecution guidance for the United States Attorney's Offices around the country. The size and nature of my firm is also such that we do not have a separate appellate section within the firm, but, rather, each handle our cases through discovery, trial, and appeal. Therefore, I have drafted a number of appellate briefs in private practice as well and have argued one case before the West Virginia Supreme Court of Appeals (West Virginia's highest court). In total, I have drafted approximately 25 appellate briefs.

- 2. What additional experience do you have that leads you to believe you are prepared to be an appellate court judge?

Response: My career has afforded me a breadth of legal experience which I believe would serve me well if confirmed. I have practiced both civil and criminal law; both prosecution and defense; both trial work and appellate work, and in both public service and private practice. While with the United States Attorney's Office and the Department of Justice, I gained experience in a wide cross section of criminal cases, including prosecutions for domestic violence, child support, coal mine safety violations, environmental violations, firearms violations, child exploitation, child pornography, human trafficking, obscenity, tax evasion, fraud, asset forfeiture, money laundering, conspiracy and RICO. While with the United States Attorney's Office, I was responsible for coordinating a number of prosecution initiatives. Likewise, with the Department of Justice Child Exploitation and Obscenity Section, I was responsible for the development and implementation of a nationwide program of significant prosecutions. I also assisted in developing policy and litigation strategies and initiatives to ensure that the Section was effectively keeping pace with the technologies employed in child exploitation and obscenity offenses and to fill niches where areas ripe for prosecution were not being pursued otherwise. Additionally, while with the Department of Justice, I traveled both nationally and internationally providing training to law enforcement and prosecutors on the investigation and prosecution of child sexual exploitation and human trafficking crimes. For the past two years, I have served as an adjunct professor at the West Virginia University College of Law teaching classes on trial advocacy and child abuse and neglect. In my private practice work, my law firm and I are regularly called on to defend some of the country's largest companies in high-profile trials. As a result, throughout the course of my career in civil litigation, I have worked on large, complex, document intensive cases, including commercial, product liability and toxic tort litigation. I have also represented individuals and white-collar criminal defendants. I do, then, have a wealth of experience in many facets of the law, and from several perspectives that I believe has helped prepare me for the appellate bench (in addition to the appellate experience described in response to Question 1).

- 3. A key component of the ABA's criteria for evaluating appellate nominees is writing ability. As stated by the ABA Committee on the Federal Judiciary, "The ability to write clearly and persuasively, to harmonize a body of law, and to give meaningful guidance to the trial courts and the bar for future cases are particularly important skills for prospective nominees to the appellate courts." Aside from a law review article you wrote in 1989, your Senate Questionnaire provided very little in the way of examples of your legal writing and analytical skills. What further information could you provide to the Committee that would help us evaluate whether your writing skills meet the high standards expected of an appellate court judge?

Response: The ability to write well and to analyze issues is paramount to a successful academic and legal career. In this regard, I have excelled at every level of both my academic and professional careers. I achieved success at the West Virginia University College of Law due to my ability to reason, analyze, and write. I was a member of the West Virginia Law Review, and also served as the editor for the national coal issue of the West Virginia Law Review. I graduated among the top 10% of my class Order of the Coif. Given the nature of my practice throughout the course of my career, the ability to write effectively has been critical in my representation of the United States and of my clients in state and federal courts around the country. My litigation work has required that I frequently engage in brief writing and legal analysis. I have drafted a number of appellate briefs and have been engaged in frequent and robust motions practice in the litigation in which I have been involved. I am confident that the Courts before which I have appeared would universally give me high marks for my writing ability. In fact, after conducting a background investigation, including the evaluation of my writing ability, a substantial majority of the members of the American Bar Association Committee on the Federal Judiciary gave me their highest rating of "well qualified."

- 4. How would you describe your judicial philosophy?

Response: My judicial philosophy would be characterized first and foremost by impartiality and respect for the law and binding legal precedent. My judicial philosophy would also include a respect for all parties that appear before the Court.

5. Can you identify for the Committee which Supreme Court Justice you would most admire, and why?

Response: I cannot identify a singular Supreme Court Justice I would most admire. Rather, my admiration is placed upon a respect for the legal process itself and for the United States Supreme Court as an institution.

6. Could you please inform me of a Supreme Court decision you believe was poorly reasoned, without regard to whether you agreed or disagreed with the outcome, and explain why?

Response: I believe Plessy v. Ferguson, 163 U.S. 537 (1896) was poorly reasoned in that the Fourteenth Amendment guarantees equality under the law, but separation by its very nature cannot be equal. The Plessy decision favored public policy and perceived public good at the time over the protections afforded by the Constitution. This is an end justifies the means type of analysis that did not, of course, withstand the test of time. Brown v. Board of Education, 347 U.S. 483 (1954) ultimately overruled Plessy holding that separate facilities were inherently unequal and, thus, denied equal protection of the law.

7. Some people refer to the Constitution as a “living” document that is constantly evolving as society interprets it. Do you agree with this perspective of constitutional interpretation?

Response: No. I do not agree with this statement.

8. As an Assistant United States Attorney, did you ever prosecute someone who was death penalty eligible? If so, have you ever sought the death penalty?

Response: I did not have any case as an Assistant United States Attorney that was death penalty eligible.

a. Have you ever elected not to seek the death penalty for a defendant who was eligible? If so, please explain why you determined the death penalty was not appropriate in that instance.

Response: No. There has never been an occasion where I elected not to seek the death penalty for a defendant who was eligible.

9. Do you believe that the death penalty is an acceptable form of punishment?

Response: The death penalty is constitutional except in limited circumstances and I would follow Supreme Court precedent in that regard.

10. In Roper v. Simmons, the Supreme Court relied on foreign law in holding that the execution of minors violated the Eighth Amendment. Do you think it is proper to look to foreign law to determine the meaning of the Eighth Amendment to the United States Constitution?

Response: No, I do not, unless directed to do so by the Supreme Court.

11. Do you believe it ever appropriate for a judge to consult foreign law, when determining the meaning of the United States Constitution?

Response: The United States Constitution is appropriately interpreted by reference to the text of the Constitution itself and United States legal sources, specifically the United States Supreme Court. As a result, if confirmed, I would not consult foreign law in order to interpret the Constitution unless directed to do so by the Supreme Court.

12. A recent Time magazine article said that “If the Constitution was intended to limit the federal government, it sure doesn’t say so.” Do you agree with this statement? Please explain your answer.

Response: I am not familiar with the Time magazine article or its context. However, I do not agree with this statement. Pursuant to the Tenth Amendment, the federal government is one of limited and enumerated powers and the United States Supreme Court has repeatedly said so.

13. Do you believe that the Second Amendment is an individual right or a collective right?

Response: The Supreme Court has held in District of Columbia v. Heller, 554 U.S. 570 (2008) that the Second Amendment confers an individual right to bear arms. If confirmed, I would follow binding Supreme Court precedent in this regard.

14. What standard of scrutiny do you believe is appropriate in a Second Amendment challenge against a Federal or State gun law?

Response: If confirmed and presented with a case involving a Second Amendment challenge, I would closely review binding Supreme Court precedent in this regard, including Heller and McDonald, and would follow applicable precedent in determining the constitutionality of the particular issue presented at the time. The Supreme Court has held that there is an individual and fundamental constitutional right to keep and bear arms. Therefore, a heightened level of scrutiny should be applied in such circumstances.

15. What is the most important attribute of a judge, and do you possess it?

Response: Impartiality is the most important attribute of a judge. I do believe I possess this quality and that, if confirmed, I would fairly and impartially rule.

16. Please explain your view of the appropriate temperament of a judge. What elements of judicial temperament do you consider the most important, and do you meet that standard?

Response: The appropriate temperament of a judge is one that is respectful. A judge should exhibit respect for the law, the process, and the parties. In this regard, a judge should be well prepared, open minded, attentive, patient, impartial, fair, and prompt in decision making. Some of these qualities are also referenced in Canon 3(A)(3) of the Code of Conduct for United States Judges. I believe I do meet this standard.

17. In general, Supreme Court precedents are binding on all lower federal courts and Circuit Court precedents are binding on the district courts within the particular circuit. Are you committed to following the precedents of higher courts faithfully and giving them full force and effect, even if you personally disagree with such precedents?

Response: Yes. I am committed to faithfully following all binding precedent without regard to personal views.

18. At times, judges are faced with cases of first impression. If there were no controlling precedent that dispositively concluded an issue with which you were presented, to what sources would you turn for persuasive authority? What principles will guide you, or what methods will you employ, in deciding cases of first impression?

Response: In a matter of first impression, I would look first to the text of the statute, regulation, or other legal provision at issue. If the text is clear and unambiguous, I would apply it to the facts presented. If the text is ambiguous, I would then look to analogous Supreme Court and Fourth Circuit precedent for analytical and legal guidance. If there was no sufficient guidance to be found in those resources, I would look to analogous cases in other federal appellate courts.

19. What would you do if you believed the Supreme Court or the Court of Appeals had seriously erred in rendering a decision? Would you apply that decision or would you use your own judgment of the merits, or your best judgment of the merits?

Response: I would follow binding precedent of the Supreme Court and the Fourth Circuit Court of Appeals. I would not seek to inject my own judgment.

20. Under what circumstances do you believe it appropriate for a federal court to declare a statute enacted by Congress unconstitutional?

Response: It is appropriate for a federal court to declare a statute enacted by Congress unconstitutional upon a plain showing that Congress has exceeded its powers or constitutional bounds.

21. Under what circumstances, if any, do you believe an appellate court should overturn precedent within the circuit? What factors would you consider in reaching this decision?

Response: Only an appellate court sitting en banc may overturn precedent within the circuit. And, then, the court is constrained to overturn precedent only in the limited circumstance in which it is in conflict with Supreme Court precedent or with another decision within the circuit.

22. Please describe with particularity the process by which these questions were answered.

Response: I received this set of questions on the evening of October 11, 2011 from the Department of Justice. I reflected on the questions and drafted responses on October 13 and 14, 2011, which I then discussed with Department of Justice staff, and requested that my responses be forwarded to the Senate Judiciary Committee.

23. Do these answers reflect your true and personal views?

Response: Yes.

Responses of Stephanie Thacker
Nominee to be United States Circuit Judge for the Fourth Circuit
to the Written Questions of Senator Amy Klobuchar

- 1. If you had to describe it, how would you characterize your judicial philosophy? How do you see the role of the judge in our constitutional system?

Response: My judicial philosophy would be characterized first and foremost by impartiality and respect for the law and binding legal precedent. My judicial philosophy would also include a respect for all parties that appear before the Court. A judge's role in our constitutional system is as a neutral arbiter of the law.

- 2. What assurances can you give that litigants coming into your courtroom will be treated fairly regardless of their political beliefs or whether they are rich or poor, defendant or plaintiff?

Response: Judicial fairness and impartiality are paramount in our legal system. I have a deep and abiding respect for the legal process and the importance of judicial impartiality. My legal career thus far has afforded me the opportunity to see all sides of the courtroom; civil and criminal, prosecution and defense, trial and appeal. In particular, my role as a prosecutor was also one in which impartiality and a fair assessment of the evidence was critical. I feel confident that those with whom I have worked during the course of my career—whether colleagues or opposing counsel, criminal defendants, or other parties against whom I have been engaged in litigation, or judges before whom I have appeared—would assess me as fair, professional and above-board.

- 3. In your opinion, how strongly should judges bind themselves to the doctrine of stare decisis? How does the commitment to stare decisis vary depending on the court?

Response: The doctrine of stare decisis is a bedrock principle and one to which I would strongly adhere if confirmed. I would follow binding precedent of the United States Supreme Court and of the Fourth Circuit Court of Appeals.

Responses of Stephanie Thacker
Nominee to be United States Circuit Judge for the Fourth Circuit to the Written Questions of Senator Jeff Sessions

1. Do you believe that the Second Amendment is an individual right or a collective right? Please explain your answer.

Response: The Supreme Court has held in District of Columbia v. Heller, 554 U.S. 570 (2008) that the Second Amendment confers an individual right to keep and bear arms.

- a. What standard of scrutiny do you believe is appropriate in a Second Amendment challenge against a Federal or State gun law?

Response: If confirmed and presented with a case involving a Second Amendment challenge, I would closely review binding Supreme Court precedent in this regard, including Heller and McDonald, and would follow applicable precedent in determining the constitutionality of the particular issue presented at the time. The Supreme Court has held that there is an individual fundamental constitutional right to keep and bear arms. Therefore, a heightened level of scrutiny should be applied in such circumstances.

2. What is your view of the role of a judge?

Response: The role of a judge is to exercise restraint, impartiality, and fairness in reviewing the legal issues that come before the Court, and to rule promptly within the confines of controlling legal precedent.

3. Do you think it is ever proper for judges to indulge their own values in determining what the law means? If so, under what circumstances?

Response: No.

4. Do you think it is ever proper for judges to indulge their own policy preferences in determining what the law means? If so, under what circumstances?

Response: No.

5. As you may know, President Obama has described the types of judges that he will nominate to the federal bench as follows:

“We need somebody who’s got the heart, the empathy, to recognize what it’s like to be a young teenage mom. The empathy to understand what it’s like to be poor, or African-American, or gay, or disabled, or old. And that’s the criteria by which I’m going to be selecting my judges.”

- a. Do you believe that you fit President Obama’s criteria for federal judges, as described in his quote?

Response: While I would exhibit respect for all parties who come before the court, I do not believe that empathy for any particular party or issue should play any role in judicial decision making. Rather, the role of a judge is to hear and decide cases based upon an impartial application of the law to the facts, and not based on empathy. Empathy would not play a role in my decision making process if I am confirmed.

- b. During her confirmation hearing, Justice Sotomayor rejected this so-called “empathy standard” stating, “We apply the law to facts. We don’t apply feelings to facts.” Do you agree with Justice Sotomayor?

Response: Yes.

- c. What role do you believe that empathy should play in a judge’s consideration of a case?

Response: I do not believe that empathy should play any role in a judge’s consideration of a case.

- d. Do you think that it is proper for judges to consider their own subjective sense of empathy in determining what the law means?

Response: No.

- i. If so, under what circumstances?

Response: Not applicable.

- ii. Please provide an example of a case in which you have considered your own subjective sense of empathy in determining what the law means.

Response: I do not have any example of a case where I have used such a standard to determine what the law means. I have not done so.

- iii. Please provide an example of a case where you have had to set aside your own subjective sense of empathy and rule based solely on the law.

Response: Since I have not previously served as a judge, and, therefore, have not issued rulings, I cannot identify any such examples.

6. Under the Supreme Court’s decision in United States v. Booker, the federal sentencing guidelines are advisory, rather than mandatory. It seems to me that as long as the sentencing judge (1) correctly calculates the guidelines, and (2) appropriately considers factors set forth therein, the judge may impose any sentence ranging from probation to the statutory maximum. Following the Supreme Court’s decision in Gall v. United States, appellate courts must apply the highly deferential “abuse of discretion” standard when reviewing these sentencing decisions. As a result, district court judges may impose virtually any sentence, and as long as the decision is procedurally sound, there is virtually no substantive review on appeal.

- a. Do you agree that the sentence a defendant receives for a particular crime should not depend on the judge he or she happens to draw?

Response: Yes. I agree that the sentence a defendant receives for a particular crime should not depend on the judge he or she happens to draw.

- b. Under what circumstances do you believe it appropriate for a district court judge to depart downward from the sentencing guidelines?

Response: Although the Sentencing Guidelines are now advisory rather than mandatory, they should be accorded deference and are an important component to achieving fairness, uniformity, and justice in sentencing. The Guidelines themselves provide the standards applicable for various grounds for departure. Typically, these grounds are limited in nature and include factual scenarios that are well outside the norm for a given offense. There is also a body of Fourth Circuit precedent applying the various limited grounds for departure to a variety of factual scenarios. Additionally, a judge must also take into account the sentencing factors set forth in 18 USC 3553(a).

7. Do you believe it is ever appropriate for American judges to rely on foreign law when interpreting the U.S. Constitution? If so, under what circumstances?

Response: No. The United States Constitution is appropriately interpreted by reference to the text of the Constitution itself and United States legal sources, specifically the United States Supreme Court. As a result, if confirmed, I would not consult foreign law in order to interpret the Constitution unless directed to do so by the Supreme Court.

8. Do you believe that the death penalty constitutes cruel and unusual punishment under the Constitution?

Response: The Supreme Court has ruled that the death penalty is constitutional and does not constitute cruel and unusual punishment. I would follow Supreme Court precedent in this regard, if confirmed.

- a. Do you hold any personal views that would not permit you to enforce the death penalty?

Response: No.

- b. Do you believe that the death penalty is an acceptable form of punishment?

Response: The Supreme Court has ruled that the death penalty is an acceptable form of punishment and I would follow Supreme Court precedent in this regard, if confirmed.

- 9. Given the greater availability of legislative history in the federal system, do you think it is proper for federal judges to look to legislative history when construing an otherwise unambiguous statute?

Response: If a statute is clear and unambiguous, then the language of the statute controls without regard to the legislative history.

- a. Would it ever be proper for a court to determine that the meaning of a seemingly unambiguous statute is ambiguous based on the legislative history of that statute?

Response: No.

- b. To what extent do you think a court should look to legislative history when a statute is ambiguous on its face?

Response: If a statute is ambiguous, a court should turn first to available analogous Supreme Court and appellate court precedent in order to seek guidance in interpreting the statute. However, on occasion, when there is no other controlling court authority, courts may look to other sources, including official legislative history.

- 10. Some people refer to the Constitution as a “living” document that is constantly evolving as society interprets it. Do you agree with this perspective of constitutional interpretation? Please explain your answer.

Response: No. I do not agree with this statement.

Re: Michael Fitzgerald, Esq., Nominee for U. S. District Judge in the Central District of California

Dear Senator Leahy,

I write to in support of Michael Fitzgerald, a nominee for appointment as a District Judge in the Central District of California. In the summer of 1990 when I was appointed the United States Attorney in the Central District of California, I met Mike who was an Assistant United States Attorney in the Organized Crime and Drug Enforcement Section of that office.

During the year and a half that Mike was in the office during my tenure, I had the privilege of working with him and overseeing his work. He is very intelligent and able to work successfully with diverse investigators and colleagues to achieve excellent results. One particular assignment I recall was the management of a joint task force of criminal investigators from the DEA, FBI and IRS together with LAPD narcotics officers which led to the successful prosecution of drug trafficking and money laundering operations. He earned the highest respect from the members of the group as well as his own colleagues in the office. After he left the office and entered private practice, he soon earned the reputation as a highly skilled lawyer and advocate and was recognized as such by the legal community.

In my opinion, he has all the attributes required of a successful U.S. District Judge. He is intelligent, articulate and works well under pressure. He is unbiased, patient, and respectful of others. It is my opinion that he would be an excellent U.S. District Judge and an excellent choice to join the Central District of California bench.

If you have any questions or seek other information, please feel free to contact me at lbaird@jamsadr.com or my home office at (626) 844-8732.

Best regards,

Hon. Lourdes G. Baird

Re: Michael W. Fitzgerald -- Nominee for Judge of the U.S. District Court for the Central District of California

Dear Chairman Leahy and Ranking Member Grassley:

I write to register my support for the confirmation of Michael Fitzgerald for the U.S. District Court for the Central District of California.

I have known Mike Fitzgerald for nearly twenty-five years. Back in 1987, when I was the U.S. Attorney for the Central District of California, I interviewed and hired Mike as an Assistant U.S. Attorney. It was one of my best decisions, as Mike went on to serve with distinction as a federal prosecutor in the Criminal Division of the office. As an Assistant U.S. Attorney, he tried many federal criminal cases to verdict and represented the government in numerous appeals to the Ninth Circuit.

After leaving the U.S. Attorney's Office, Mike entered the private practice of law, initially at a large firm, and for the last fifteen years, as a partner at an excellent boutique firm in Los Angeles. In private practice, Mike has expanded his skills regarding civil litigation, having handled many civil matters, including complex civil cases, in addition to white collar defense work. He has an outstanding reputation in our community as a knowledgeable and skillful litigator, and is known as a lawyer of impeccable integrity.

As you can see, by virtue of his background and experience, if confirmed, Mike would bring a background, experience and understanding of both the civil and criminal side of the work of a U.S. District Judge. As a former federal judge myself, I can assure you that this is an enormous benefit that shortens considerably the learning curve for new judges. Moreover, Mike is a good-hearted person and a good listener, which gives me confidence that Mike will treat all who appear before him with courtesy, dignity and respect.

In sum, I believe Mike will make an outstanding federal district judge, and I urge you and the Judiciary Committee to act favorably respecting his nomination.

Please do not hesitate to contact me at (703) 635-9492 if you or your staff have any question or if I can be of further assistance.

Sincerely,

Robert Bonner

U.S. Senator Barbara Boxer
Statement for Senate Judiciary Committee Confirmation Hearing of Michael Fitzgerald to the U.S. District Court for the Central District of California
October 4, 2011

It is my honor to be here to support the nomination of Michael Fitzgerald, and

I want to welcome him and his family.

- His father, James Fitzgerald, an Army combat veteran of the Korean War and a retired mathematics teacher.
- His mother, Vivian Fitzgerald, a retired registered nurse.
- His twin brother, Patrick Fitzgerald, who is a federal prosecutor in Los Angeles.

In addition to welcoming them, I would like to congratulate James and Vivian, who recently celebrated their 57th wedding anniversary.

I had the privilege of recommending Michael to President Obama to serve on the Central District Court. A respected member of the Los Angeles legal community, he will make an excellent addition to the bench.

Michael has deep roots in the city of Los Angeles. He and his brother are the fourth generation of their family to live in Los Angeles.

Michael received his bachelor's degree from Harvard University, graduating magna cum laude while working his way through school as a busboy.

He went on to receive a law degree from the University of California-Berkeley, where he also graduated with honors.

After clerking on the Second Circuit Court of Appeals in New York, Michael worked for a year with a private law firm in Los Angeles before becoming a federal prosecutor.

As a federal prosecutor, he served on the Organized Crime and Drug Enforcement Task Force within the Central District U.S. Attorney's Office, where he prosecuted international drug rings and money-laundering – including what was at that time the second largest cocaine seizure in California history.

Since leaving the U.S. Attorney's Office in 1991, Michael has been in private practice, handling complex criminal and civil cases, as well as investigations by federal agencies.

Michael has remained committed to public service during his time in private practice. He has maintained an active pro bono practice, and served as Counsel to the Board of Police Commissioners, which sets policy and oversees operations for the Los Angeles Police Department.

He also served as Deputy General Counsel for the Rampart Independent Task Force, which reviewed the operations of a section of the LAPD.

During his career, Michael has tried 26 cases to verdict, the overwhelming majority of them before a jury. Currently, 60 percent of his practice is in federal court, so he is very familiar with the Central District's practices and procedures.

He received a rating of "unanimously well-qualified" by the ABA.

Listen to what some respected members of the law enforcement and legal community say about him:

Veteran Anaheim Police Lieutenant John Michael Quinzio, who worked with Michael in prosecuting cocaine traffickers and money launderers, said:

“His knowledge of the law, his courtroom demeanor, his interpersonal skills, and his sense of fairness played a major role in the successful prosecution of our cases... He will be an outstanding Federal Judge.”

Former Republican-appointed U.S. Attorney and federal judge Robert Bonner said:

“If confirmed, Mike would bring a background, experience and understanding of both the civil and criminal side of the work of a U.S. District Judge... I believe Mike will make an outstanding federal judge.”

And Representative Adam Schiff, who served with Michael as a federal prosecutor, said:

“... I believe he has the background, experience, integrity, intellect, and reputation in the community that will serve him well as a U.S. District Court Judge, and reflect well on the Judiciary.”

I would like to submit the letters of recommendation from Lt. Quinzio, Judge Bonner and Rep. Schiff into the record.

In short, Michael’s record in the public and private sector demonstrates that he is a brilliant lawyer and a distinguished member of the legal community, and I am confident he will make an excellent judge.

I close by congratulating Michael and his family on this momentous day, and I urge my colleagues in the Senate to move swiftly to confirm him to the federal bench. Thank you.

Dear Senators Leahy and Grassley:

I am writing in support of the nomination of Nevada Attorney Miranda Du to the United States District Court for the District of Nevada.

I have known Ms. Du for quite some time. For the last eight years, I have had the opportunity to observe her legal skills and temperament primarily in my role as a member of the Board of Directors of the Truckee Meadows Water Authority ("TMWA"), which is partly owned by the City of Reno. Ms. Du has represented TMWA on several matters, and she has been both effective and professional in that representation. Ms. Du is intelligent, articulate and even-tempered. She is direct and always seems prepared in responding to questions from the TMWA Board. I believe she will be a great addition to our federal bench. I strongly recommend her for confirmation.

Statement of U.S. Senator Dianne Feinstein on the Nomination of Michael Fitzgerald to be a U.S. District Judge for the Central District of California

October 4, 2011

Mr. Chairman, I regret that I am unable to attend today's hearing. I am pleased, however, to submit this statement regarding the nomination of Michael Fitzgerald to sit on the U.S. District Court for the Central District of California.

Background

Mr. Fitzgerald was born in Los Angeles in 1959. He is 52 years old, and a fourth-generation Angeleno. He is also the first openly gay nominee to the Federal bench in California.

He attended California's public schools, and then received a scholarship to attend Harvard College, from which he graduated magna cum laude in 1981.

After graduating from Harvard, Mr. Fitzgerald taught at Anaheim High School. He then attended Boalt Hall Law School at the University of California, Berkeley, where he was managing editor of the Industrial Relations Law Journal and graduated Order of the Coif in 1985.

Following law school, he clerked for the Honorable Irving R. Kaufman on the U.S. Court of Appeals for the Second Circuit.

25 Years of Legal Experience

For over 25 years, Mr. Fitzgerald has practiced law in virtually every area of practice.

After one year in private practice, he served as an Assistant United States Attorney in the Central District of California from 1988 through 1991. During that time, he served on the Organized Crime and Drug Enforcement Task Force and with the Major Narcotics Section. He led an investigation that resulted in the seizure of 2,241 pounds of cocaine and the conviction of a major drug trafficking kingpin.

Since he left the U.S. Attorney's Office, Mr. Fitzgerald has worked as an attorney in private practice, first at the law firm Heller Ehrman White & McAuliffe and now at Corbin, Fitzgerald, and Athey LLP.

He has represented plaintiffs and defendants in civil cases, as well as criminal defendants. He also has represented major corporations and corporate officials in investigations by the Securities and Exchange Commission and the Department of Justice. For example, he represented a senior Boeing manager in a Federal grand jury investigation, as well as Bank of America.

He also has been active in pro bono work. For example, Mr. Fitzgerald represented an FBI special agent, Frank Buttino, who had his security clearance revoked after his sexual orientation was revealed to his FBI superiors. The case resulted in a settlement, in which the FBI revoked its policy of treating sexual orientation as a negative factor in security clearance determinations.

Mr. Fitzgerald was a deputy counsel on the Rampart Independent Review Panel, which was appointed by the Los Angeles Police Commission to investigate a major corruption scandal in the Rampart Division of the Los Angeles Police Department. He also served as a counsel to the Special Advisor to the Webster Commission, which investigated the response of the L.A.P.D. to the L.A. riots in 1992.

Mr. Fitzgerald has tried 26 cases to verdict, including 22 as sole counsel. Over the course of his career, his caseload has been balanced between civil and criminal practice, primarily in the federal courts.

Mr. Fitzgerald is well regarded among his colleagues in the bar. Los Angeles Magazine named him a Southern California “Super Lawyer” from 2006 through 2011. He also won the Maynard Toll Pro Bono Associate Award from the Legal Aid Foundation of Los Angeles in 1994, as well as an American Jurisprudence Award in Criminal Law in 1982. The American Bar Association Committee on the Federal Judiciary unanimously rated Mr. Fitzgerald “well qualified.”

In short, Mr. Fitzgerald has had comprehensive experiences in private practice and public service that will serve him extraordinarily well on the District Court. I am pleased to support his nomination, and I encourage my colleagues to work with Senator Boxer and myself to move his nomination forward.

Thank you, Mr. Chairman.

Statement of Senator Dean Heller Judiciary Committee on the Nomination of Miranda Du to be United States District Judge for the District of Nevada
October 4, 2011

Thank you Senator Durbin, Senator Lee, members of the Committee. Today marks the first time I have had the opportunity to address the Committee, and it is a privilege to introduce fellow Nevadan Miranda Du to you this afternoon.

The Senate has a solemn responsibility to make sure that judicial vacancies and nominations are addressed in a timely manner. Having spoken to federal judges in Nevada, I understand the significant workload facing our understaffed federal judiciary and the need to fill vacancies with qualified candidates who will uphold America's principles of equal justice under law.

I believe Miranda Du will make an outstanding District Court judge in the great State of Nevada. Ms. Du earned her BA in Economics and History from UC Davis in 1991 and graduated from UC Berkeley's Law School in 1994.

She is currently a partner at McDonald Carano Wilson LLP, where she has chaired the firm's Employment & Labor Law Group since 2003. Her experience covers every phase of litigation, from discovery, motion practice and jury trial through appeal before the Nevada Supreme Court and the Ninth Circuit Court of Appeals.

Ms. Du has earned the respect of her colleagues within the legal community, particularly for her involvement in employment law, and has successfully tried a number of jury trial cases to completion.

Her work has been featured in numerous professional publications, including Northern Nevada Business Weekly and educational materials for Lorman Education and the National Business Institute.

In addition to her professional background, Ms. Du is an active member of the broader Northern Nevada community. She serves as a commissioner of the Nevada Commission on Economic Development, which is focused on developing and maintaining a diverse, healthy economic base in our State.

Ms. Du is a Board Member of the Nevada Women's Fund, has been recognized by Super Lawyers magazine as a "Rising Star," and was featured one of the top "20 under 40" young professionals in the Reno-Tahoe area. Ms. Du comes before the Committee not just with the support of Nevada's Senators, but Governor Brian Sandoval, Lieutenant Governor Krollicki, numerous Nevada mayors, as well as state and local organizations ranging from the Nevada Chapter of the Associated General Contractors to the Nevada Committee to Aid Abused Women.

Again, thank you for the chance to introduce this exceptional Nevadan to the Committee. I look forward to her testimony as well as the Committee's consideration of her nomination.

Thank you, Mr. Chairman.

Dear Senator Leahy,

I write on behalf of the Committee to Aid Abused Women to endorse Miranda Du to serve as a federal judge for the U.S. District Court, District of Nevada, in Las Vegas.

The mission of CAAW is "Changing Lives – Ending Family Violence"; we were founded in Reno in 1977 and provide temporary shelter, transitional housing, protection orders, and support services to victims of domestic violence who are escaping from abusive relationships.

Our board enthusiastically endorses Miranda's nomination. Miranda recently assisted the CAAW Board of Directors with a difficult legal matter. Her advice to us was based on a thorough review and weighing of both sides of the situation. She ably provided options for our consideration and guided us through the pros and cons of each option. Her approach gave the Board a solid foundation for discussion and decision making. Miranda was generous with her time, her knowledge and her innate sense of fairness.

Based on our experience, we know that Miranda will be a fine and fair judge. Her even-tempered nature, her amazing knowledge base and her ability to see both sides of an issue as she reaches a decision will all serve the court well.

Sincerely,

Dear Senator Leahy:

I am writing in enthusiastic support of Miranda Du's nomination to the United States District Court for the District of Nevada.

As Nevada's Lieutenant Governor, I have the privilege of serving as Chairman of the Nevada Commission on Economic Development (NCED), whose mission is to promote a robust, diversified and prosperous economy for Nevada. In this capacity, I have served with Ms. Du since she was appointed to the Commission in July 2008.

As a NCED commissioner, Ms. Du has demonstrated many qualities that will make her an ideal Federal District Court Judge. She is intelligent, inquisitive, reliable and dedicated. She is an active and involved commissioner, always prepared and informed, and she is not afraid to ask tough questions. She conducts herself in a professional and dignified manner. I think that both Nevada and the United States will benefit from Ms. Du's appointment to the Federal Bench and I strongly encourage the Senate to confirm Ms. Du.

Re: Letter of Support for Miranda M. Du (D. Nev.)

Dear Chairman Leahy and Ranking Member Grassley:

On behalf of the National Asian Pacific American Bar Association ("NAPABA"), we proudly endorse and urge the prompt confirmation of Miranda M. Du for the United States District Court for the District of Nevada. Ms. Du has the qualifications necessary to make a positive contribution as a United States District Court judge.

NAPABA is a national bar association representing the interests of Asian Pacific American attorneys, judges, law professors, and law students. Now in its 23rd year, NAPABA represents the interests of over 60 affiliate organizations and over 40,000 Asian Pacific American attorneys. NAPABA is deeply committed to supporting the appointment of qualified Asian Pacific Americans to the federal bench, especially where Asian Pacific Americans are woefully underrepresented.

Notably, Ms. Du would be the first-ever Asian Pacific American Article III judge in the District of Nevada. Given that Asian Pacific Americans represent approximately 9 percent of the population of Nevada, the confirmation of an Asian Pacific American federal judge in that jurisdiction would be significant.

Ms. Du is a partner with the prominent Nevada law firm of McDonald Carano Wilson LLP, where she has practiced for over 17 years. She leads the firm's employment and labor law group, where she has litigated employment and complex civil cases, including cases involving misappropriation, Lanham Act violations, breach of fiduciary duties, unfair lending practices, corporate dissolution, defamation, and condemnation. She has also served as a court-appointed special advocate for abused and neglected children, and often teaches continuing legal education courses on litigation and employment law.

Ms. Du has received support from a variety of individuals for this nomination. Current Governor Brian Sandoval has stated that: "In all the years that I have known Miranda, she has exhibited great character and is well respected in the legal community. During my tenure as a U.S. District Judge, each time Miranda appeared before me, she was always well prepared and represented her clients with integrity and distinction." Reno Mayor Robert Cashell has described Ms. Du as "effective and professional" in representing clients, and that she is "intelligent, articulate, and even-tempered." The Association of General Contractors of America has commended Ms. Du for her "personal integrity, excellent judgment, a strong legal background and the ability to understand both sides of an issue."

Given these comments, it is unsurprising that Ms. Du has received several awards from the Nevada legal community. These recognitions include selection as a Mountain States Rising Star by Super Lawyers in 2009, a "Top 20 Under 40" young professional in the Reno-Tahoe area in 2008, and a Woman of Achievement by the Nevada Women's Fund in 2007.

Ms. Du has demonstrated a strong commitment to community service. She has served on the board of directors for the Nevada Women's Fund (a group dedicated to strengthening the Nevada community through empowering women to improve their lives and the lives of their families), Step 2 Inc. (an organization dedicated to helping women and families through substance abuse recovery and treatment), and as a Commissioner on the Nevada Commission on Economic Development.

Miranda Du's personal story reflects strength in the American system. She is an immigrant, having left Vietnam with her parents, two siblings and extended family by boat when she was eight years old. After a year in two refugee camps in Malaysia, Ms. Du and her family were sponsored by a family in Winfield, Alabama. Ms. Du attended public schools throughout, starting in the third grade, and after the family moved to Tuscaloosa, Alabama to reunite with relatives, she and her siblings quickly learned English and assimilated with the help of caring teachers and a volunteer tutor. The Du family eventually moved to Oakland, California, where Ms. Du attended junior high and high school. Ms. Du went on to obtain a Bachelor's degree in history and economics at the University of California, Davis, and a J.D. degree from the University of California, at Berkeley. After law school, she moved to Nevada, and has practiced there ever since. In addition to the community service listed above, Ms. Du and her husband are actively involved in the Reno running community and frequently volunteer at local racing events.

Based on her qualifications, intellect, integrity, and commitment to justice, NAPABA extends an enthusiastic endorsement to Miranda M. Du to serve as a District Judge for the United States District Court for Nevada. NAPABA urges that the Senate confirm her promptly.

Sincerely,

Paul O. Hirose

Dear Senator Leahy:

We are pleased to inform you that the Committee on the Judiciary of the New York City Bar has found Ronnie Abrams, Esq., APPROVED for appointment to the United States District Court for the Southern District of New York.

Very truly yours,

Elizabeth Donoghue
Chair

Dear Senator Graham,

President Obama has nominated Michael W. Fitzgerald to serve as a District Judge on the United States District Court for the Central District of California.

I am a retired Police Lieutenant having served 30 years, most of that time in the field of narcotics investigations. From 1988 to 1991 I headed an Organized Crime and Drug Enforcement Task Force (OCDEFT) which successfully prosecuted twenty-two high level cocaine traffickers and money launders.

Michael Fitzgerald was at the time an Assistant US Attorney in the Los Angeles Office of the Central District of California. Mr. Fitzgerald worked along side my team during the investigations and then successfully prosecuted the drug traffickers. During our time working together I came to know Mr. Fitzgerald as dedicated, hardworking and talented prosecutor. His knowledge of the law; his courtroom demeanor; his interpersonal skills; and his sense of fairness played a major role in the successful prosecution of our cases. Mr. Fitzgerald's personal and professional ethics were shown to be beyond reproach. He has earned the respect of every member of my team as well as that of other prosecutors and defense attorneys.

I have worked alongside many prosecutors and only a few have impressed me as Mr. Fitzgerald has. He will be an outstanding Federal Judge. I encourage you to vote yes and confirm Mr. Fitzgerald as a District Judge on the United States District Court for the Central District of California.

Re: Recommendation of Miranda Du

Dear Senator Leahy:

It is with great pleasure that I recommend Miranda Du for United States District Court Judge, District of Nevada.

As long as I have known Miranda, she has exhibited great character and is well respected in the legal community. During my tenure as a U.S. District Judge, each time Miranda appeared before me, she was always well prepared and represented her clients with integrity and distinction.

Miranda Du will make a fine U.S. District Judge and therefore has my full support. Please feel free to contact me if you have any questions. Thank you for your consideration.

 Dear Senator Boxer:

I would like to strongly support Michael W. Fitzgerald's application for the position of U.S. District Court Judge.

I served in the U.S. Attorney's Office in Los Angeles for over six years, overlapping with Michael for almost four of those years, and I believe he has the background, experience, integrity, intellect, and reputation in the community that will serve him well as a U.S. District Court Judge, and reflect well on the Judiciary.

Michael is a veteran attorney with substantial and diverse experience in the legal field. After graduating from the University of California, Berkeley School of Law (Boalt Hall), he clerked for the Honorable Irving R. Kaufman, U.S. Court of Appeals for the Second Circuit. Later, he served in the U.S. Attorney's office in the Central District of California for almost four years, serving as the sole or lead counsel in 20 federal criminal trials and representing the government in approximately 28 appeals before the U.S. Court of Appeals for the Ninth Circuit.

In private practice he has handled numerous civil and criminal cases in both the federal and states courts, and he has been recognized for his pro bono service on more than one occasion. Both inside the workplace and beyond it in the broader legal community, Michael is known for being a superb lawyer and a dedicated professional.

I believe the country will be very well-served by Michael. I urge you and your judicial advisory committee to give him your fullest consideration and am happy to discuss his candidacy with you or any of the members of the committee.

Re: Michael Walter Fitzgerald, Nominee for United States District Judge for the Central District of California

Dear Senator Leahy and Senator Grassley:

I am writing to support the confirmation of Michael Walter Fitzgerald as a United States District Judge for the Central District of California. Mike has served as a prosecutor, a white-collar defense attorney, and as a civil litigator. Mike is well-liked and well-respected here in Los Angeles, as is the law firm where he is a named partner. As a retired District Judge, I care about this bench having served for 21 years in this federal court. Therefore, I'm pleased that, if Mike is confirmed, this vacancy would be filled with a strong nominee.

While I was on the district court bench, Mike appeared before me in both civil and criminal cases. He was well-prepared and effective in court without being brash. In particular, I remember his appearance in United States v. Maurice Newman. Mr. Newman, the former CEO of a small company, had pleaded guilty to securities fraud. In both the papers and oral argument, Mike made one of the most thorough and persuasive sentencing presentations that I saw as a District Judge. He highlighted the personal qualities of the defendant and explained the business realities that suggested that the defendant's wrongful actions didn't cause the collapse of the company. At the same time, he didn't downplay the wrongfulness of the defendant's conduct.

As a retired judge, I am with the JAMS alternative-dispute resolution service. By appointment of the bankruptcy court, I serve as the Monitor in regard to all the litigations and investigations arising from a failed bank because a large number of insureds and lawyers are drawing on the same set of Directors and Officers insurance policies. Among other duties, I have the obligation to review all invoices before they are presented to the insurance carriers. Mike's firm represents numerous clients in a variety of cases. Each month, I review the billings of Mike and his firm and I have the opportunity to compare them against those of other prominent lawyers and firms. Mike authors the report each month that accompanies the billings of his firm.

I have consistently found the work of Mike and his firm to be excellent. I have virtually never cut any of their bills, and I have never done so because I have found them to be excessive. Mike's firm is always the first firm to submit their billings and monthly report to me. His reports are always clearly written. In fact, I finally just directed the other firms to use the same template that Mike created for their own reports. Out of this group of prominent attorneys, Mike has shown leadership in resolving disputes with the insurance carriers, even when his firm was not being paid for that work. Based on my experiences with him as Monitor, now extending over more than two years, I'm confident that he'll handle the tough workload that goes along with a federal district judgeship in the Central District of California.

In general, I think that being a partner at a small firm gives a good overview of the Los Angeles business community and requires common sense. These traits, along with Mike's temperament and demeanor, would be very helpful on the bench, if Mike is confirmed.

Based on my first-hand experiences with Mike, I hope that the Judiciary Committee will report him favorably to the Senate. Please contact me if I can assist you or your staff further.

Dear Chairman Leahy and Ranking Member Grassley:

On behalf of the Congressional Hispanic Caucus, we write to express our strong support for the nomination of Rudolph Contreras to the United States District Court for the District of Columbia.

Mr. Contreras is extraordinarily well qualified for the position. As the current Chief of the Civil Division in the U.S. Attorney's Office for the District of Columbia, Mr. Contreras would follow in the footsteps of two of his predecessors who are now judges on the United States District Court for the District of Columbia, Chief Judge Royce C. Lamberth and John D. Bates.

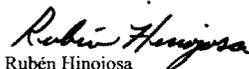

After working his way through college and graduating from the University of Pennsylvania Law School, cum laude, Order of the Coif and law review, Mr. Contreras was an associate in the litigation department of the Jones Day law firm in Washington, DC. He then served for eight years as an assistant U.S. attorney in the Civil Division in the U.S. Attorney's Office for the District of Columbia. Previous to that, Mr. Contreras served as the Chief of the Civil Division in the U.S. Attorney's Office, District of Delaware, for three years. In 2006, he assumed his current position as head of the Civil Division in the U.S. Attorney's Office for the District of Columbia, where he oversees almost eighty employees, including 40 assistant U.S. attorneys.

Mr. Contreras has the temperament, judgment, intellect and work ethic needed to serve with distinction on the bench. We wholeheartedly endorse his nomination and urge you to support his appointment. If we can provide you any further information about our endorsement or his qualifications, do not hesitate to contact us.

Re: Nomination of Ronnie Abrams, Esq. to the United States District Court for the Southern District of New York

Dear Senator Leahy:

On behalf of the more than 3,800 members of the Women's Bar Association of the State of New York ("WBASNY"), I have the honor to support the nomination of Ronnie Abrams, Esq. as a United States District Judge for the Southern District of New York. Ms. Abrams is clearly very well qualified to become a United States District Judge. WBASNY believes that Ms. Abrams will serve with great distinction, that her nomination should be promptly approved by the Senate Judiciary Committee and that she should be confirmed quickly by the full Senate. Throughout New York State, there are eminently qualified women lawyers and judges who are ready to serve on the Federal courts with distinction. WBASNY remains concerned that we not lose the progress made in the Southern District of New York to include women on the court in meaningful numbers. Ms. Abrams' confirmation, which should and will proceed on its merits, will further that important goal.

Ms. Abrams is the first nominee of our respected Senator Kirsten Gillibrand to the Federal courts in the State of New York. WBASNY applauds Senator Gillibrand for her thoughtful, excellent choice. Not only is Ms. Abrams well qualified by reason of her professional background, as we detail below, but her personal qualities and her own efforts to increase the diversity of the legal profession add further depth to a career marked by stellar accomplishment and devotion to public service.

After winning a clerkship for the Honorable Thomas P. Griesa, then Chief Judge of the District Court for the Southern District of New York, Ms. Abrams joined Davis Polk & Wardwell as a litigation associate. There she not only represented a wide variety of corporate clients in matters involving legal theories ranging from the Lanham Act to the Securities Act to libel, but she also handled a number of pro bono cases, including representation of battered women. From 1998 to 2008, Ms. Abrams served as an Assistant United States Attorney in the Southern District of New York in a number of units where she gained experience in a broad range of cases. Her abilities were recognized by promotions to the positions of Deputy Chief of the Criminal Division and Chief of the General Crimes Unit. In those roles, she oversaw and was responsible for the training of hundreds of prosecutors, and participated in policy-making and management decisions. In both positions, Ms. Abrams supervised cases involving crimes against children, in addition to the cases involving violent crime and financial fraud of all types that are the most typical workload of a United States Attorney's office.

WBASNY is particularly impressed by Ms. Abrams' decision, on leaving her position at the US Attorney's office, to change the focus of her legal work entirely to pro bono work. Her commitment to public service is extraordinary evidence of a fundamental belief in the need to do justice, and, we believe, is an important reason why the Judiciary Committee should look favorably on her nomination. As Special Counsel for Pro Bono at Davis Polk, Ms. Abrams has personally handled and also supervised pro bono matters ranging from criminal cases to Fair Labor Standards Act litigations to veterans' disability claims and matters for battered women. Among other things, she has supervised trials in Family Court on behalf of women seeking orders of protection and FLSA cases brought by workers seeking to enforce the minimum wage and overtime laws. In addition, she has been an adjunct professor at Columbia Law School since 2008.

Ms. Abrams serves as counsel to New York's Justice Task Force, a permanent task force created by the Honorable Jonathan Lippman, Chief Judge of the State of New York, to examine the causes of wrongful convictions and recommend reforms to safeguard against any such convictions in the future. Because a representative of WBASNY serves on the Task Force, we have had an opportunity to observe and to form a very favorable view of Ms. Abrams' professionalism and skill. Ms. Abrams' work on the Task Force demonstrates that she cares very much about getting the right answer. Participants in the work of the Task Force have told us that she has even-handedly given thoughtful attention to the multiple, often conflicting viewpoints held by members of the Task Force and has skillfully reconciled those views to enable the Task Force to achieve meaningful recommendations.

Finally, in all of her senior positions, Ms. Abrams has made it a priority to mentor young lawyers. She has personally mentored both men and women, and has been sensitive to the particular issues that women lawyers face and the differences in men's and women's strengths and weaknesses. Women lawyers who benefited from her mentoring have said that Ms. Abrams never stints on the time and advice that she offers to her younger colleagues, and that her support has been of great assistance in their ability to navigate the legal profession and rise to positions of responsibility themselves. She empowers young lawyers who work with her to speak on those matters and to get credit for their contributions. WBASNY holds mentoring in the highest regard as a means of improving the diversity of our legal profession, and we know that women lawyers still face a lack of mentors and role models. She is conscious of the need for female role models. Her efforts in this regard reflect very favorably on Ms. Abrams and further evidence her professionalism and commitment to justice.

WBASNY urges the members of the Judiciary Committee to act favorably and quickly to send the nomination of Ronnic Abrams to the full Senate for prompt action.

Sincerely yours,

Karen Richardson

Re: Michael W. Fitzgerald/United States District Judge for the Central District of California

Dear Senator Leahy and Senator Grassley:

I have known Michael W. Fitzgerald for over twenty years. During that time, I have served as an Assistant United States Attorney, a Municipal and Superior Court Judge, and the United States Attorney for the Central District of California (2002-2006). Since 2006, I have been in private practice in Los Angeles, California. I have professionally interacted with Mike in throughout the years. I confidently support his nomination to be a United States District Judge in the Central District of California.

I first met Mike when we served together as Assistant United States Attorneys. Mike was in the Narcotics Division. He was well liked in the office and always eager to try a case or write an appellate brief. His reputation was one of being a clear and logical thinker. I know that he particularly enjoyed working as a federal prosecutor and enjoyed advocating for the rights of victims. He also enjoyed investigating and trying serious and complex drug cases. At the time he was in the office, the "best and the brightest" prosecutors were in the Narcotics section. After I became a Municipal and Superior Court judge, Mike appeared before me in criminal and civil cases. When I became United States Attorney, I learned that Mike and his law partner Robert Corbin enjoyed a strong reputation throughout my office for honesty and ability. Both Mike and his firm were known as "straight shooters."

Mike has the intelligence, integrity, work ethic, and disposition to be an excellent district judge. He will treat counsel and the parties with dignity; at the same time, he will manage his courtroom with the efficiency and decisiveness that the workloads in this district demand. His nomination was enthusiastically received by prosecutors, defense attorneys, and the legal community generally. The litigation partners here and at similar firms hold Mike in high regard and I wouldn't hesitate to refer any criminal or civil case to his law firm.

I recommend Mike without reservation for confirmation as a United States District Judge. Please let me know if I can assist you and the Judiciary Committee in any way.
